NEW MORTGAGE LAW SOON.

Allied Real Estate Interests Urge Its Passage Without Delay.

Amendments to the mortgage tax law, as urged by the Allied Real Estate Interests of New York State, are likely to be acted upon by the Legislature within a few days. A bill embodying all the important amendments has been prepared by the Senate Committee on Taxation and may come up for action in the Senate this week.

Allan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, said yesterday that he had no doubt but that these amendments would pass the Legislature. The Allied Real Estate Interests is sending to its members and correspondents a letter requesting them to write their respective representatives in Albany to vote for the bill. A letter written by President Robineon to Senator Allds, Chairman of the Senate committee having the bill in charge, gives an outline of the amendments and the reasons for their enactment at the present time.

Mr. Robinson says: "If the bill is enacted as the committee has reported it out, the law will be perfected as regards all the defects which have been shown to exist since it went into operation. Mr. Robinson enumerates the various amendments and says:

"These amendments do away with the unjust discrimination which the present law made between mortgages recorded prior to July 1, 1906, and those recorded subsequent to that date, and they place all mortgages in the same class as regards taxation. This attitude on the part of your committee is broad-minded and fair, and it is a satisfaction to know that matters referring to taxation are considered in this spirit."

"Permit me to urge upon you the necessity for early action on this bill. Lenders on mortgages recorded prior to July 1, 1906, are calling the same as they become due from time to time, and insisting that new mortgages be made under this law. The result of this have been to impose upon mortgagors the necessity for making new loans, with all the consequent expenses of legal fees, searches, &c., at a time when mortgage money is inordinately high. Considering the fact that many of these mortgagors are wage-earners or persons owning small pieces of property, (the equity in the same representing their savings for years,) and in view of the fact that the ordinary necessities of life are now higher in price than they have been for years, it is of the utmost importance that these persons be not subjected to the added burden of placing new mortgages at a high rate of interest.

"If this bill fails to become a law, or if, for any reason, there arises serious doubt as to its enactment, mortgages will be called in large numbers, and the result to a large class of mortgagors will be most injurious."

Dress Goods Are Not Dutiable as "Etamines"—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Marion De Vries, the Board of United States General Appraisers eustained yesterday claims filed by the H. B. Claflin Company of New York regarding the rates of duty applicable to dress goods composed of cotton and flax.

The merchandise wae assessed for duty under the provision in the Dingley tariff for "etamines," with duty at the rate of 60 per cent. This classification was opposed by the importers, who ect up the contention that the goods are dutiable as cotton cloth under Paragraphe 304 to 309 inclusive, and as manufactures of flax under Paragraphs 346 and 347. After a consideration of the evidence the board reaches the conclueion that the drees goode ehould be allowed to enter at the various rates cleimed by the importers.

A protest by A. L. Tueka of this city wae overruled. The importer entered artificial shamrocks, which he claimed to be dutiable as "toys," at 35 per cent. The board, nowever, sustains the Collector of Custome in the assessment of a 60 per cent duty under the provision in the law for artificial flowers.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

HENRY F. FISCHER.—Judge Hough has appointed J. B. G. Rinehart receiver in bankruptcy for Henry F. Fischer, dealer in wines and liquors at 344 Bowery.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

FOREIGN BANK RATES DOWN

Prices continued to rise at the opening of yesterday's stock market, carrying further the advance of Monday, but profit-taking sales and a reduction of speculative commitments based upon the unfavorable weekly weather report put an end to this movement before the noon hour, and thereafter the market fluctuated narrowly, closing with only fractional changes either way in active stocks. The distinctly favorable development of the day from the point of view of financial markets was the lowering of discount rates by the Bank of Germany and the Bank of the Netherlands. The Dutch Bank raised its rate to 6 per cent. over a month ago upon the occasion of an American engagement of $1,000,000 gold in that country, and the rate now goes back to the 5 per cent. figure in force before this bogy arose. The reduction in the rate of the Bank of Germany, which had been looked for owing to the growing ease in money at Berlin, was from 6 per cent. to 5½ per cent., the moderation displayed in cutting down the discount reflecting the still abnormal position of money markets in Germany.

The 6 per cent. rate was established by the German Bank on Jan. 22 last, and its reduction to 5½ per cent. does not bring the rate to anything like the normal April interest charge. The present figure is in fact the highest for this time of the year since 1900 upon the eve of Germany's industrial troubles, and is higher than at any time in a generation save in that one year. The action of these two important Continental banks strengthens the belief that both the Bank of England and the Bank of France will find it feasible to take similar steps later in the week. A sharp advance in grain prices, running to a full cent in the Chicago market, was seized upon as an explanation for the halt in the forward movement of prices on the Stock Exchange. The weekly weather report was unquestionably unfavorable, showing as it did the presence for the third consecutive week of abnormally cold weather over the entire Winter wheat area. It remains to be seen, however, whether under these growing conditions the plant has been actually damaged or its growth simply retarded.

Money rates continued easy here, although the banks reported a heavy loss to the Sub-Treasury, reducing their gains from that source to some $670,000 against more than $3,000,000 at this time a week ago. In the foreign exchange market, to which much attention is now devoted owing to the growing belief that recent increases in the loan account have reflected in large degree the repayment of London borrowings or the buying back of American stocks from that centre, demand sterling scored another advance, rising to the par of exchange. The continued upward movement in exchange to its present high level has naturally provoked discussion of the possibility of gold exports, but at the moment at least there seems no probability of such an outcome. Our own money market has been excessively stimulated by the Treasury measures, the effect of which will wear away in some measure, while European money markets are constantly growing easier. The Bank of France secured $1,250,000 gold in London yesterday, thus continuing its policy of withdrawing gold forwarded to London during that centre's period of strain.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 23.—Trading, though not large in volume, was well distributed throughout the list. Calumet & Arizona gained a point. Trinity, Smelting, and Quincy are each fractionally higher, while Old Dominion, Copper Range, Tamarack, and Shannon each recorded a fractional decline. There was considerable profit taking noticeable in Butte Coalition by houses who were buyers of the stock before the recent advance. Complete list of transactions follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Weather reports and crop news were factors in the trading yesterday, and the usual interpretations of the official bulletins and unofficial gossip were given out through the medium of Chicago and other Western houses. Brokers were inclined to disregard this kind of news, but customers have been educated up to the green bug, and to the other pests that are supposed to destroy crops in the West and other sections, and they are ready to take fright when these features of the news become pronounced. Inasmuch as the market was professional, the idea prevails that the emphasis given to weather conditions and crop news had to do with that class of trading, especially. There is, a somewhat uneasy feeling concerning crops, but a reference to this period every year shows just exactly the same mental attitude.

"There is nothing in this market to tempt me personally nor can I conscientiously advise my customers to take a position," said a broker in the afternoon. "I have been on the floor all day and I have failed to note any significant trading. It is either professional or so manifestly amateurish that the trail leads nowhere. They call it a good trading market, and it is to some extent, but a good trader wants some definite lead. Taking chances generally, does not appeal to me. I will take a chance when my judgment interprets certain tape signs to mean something definite." "You are gun-shy," exclaimed one of his customers. "I know it," retorted the broker, "and after you have hunted good things in the market for thirty years you will be gun-shy, too."

***

Within a few weeks, one firm, comparatively well known in the financial district, will dissolve, and at least one of its members will retire to the more congenial pursuit of a gentleman farmer and the head of a small industry in the South. Several years ago he was a member of a firm which failed, and after adjusting their debts he resumed and has been very successful. He went through the recent panic with perfect comfort, but he came to the conclusion that, having accumulated a competence, it was the part of wisdom not to risk it in the future unnecessarily. "I have failed once. I have been on the ragged edge several times. I have accumulated a fairly tidy sum of money, and I have seen the possibilities of losing it, particularly in the last panic," he remarked yesterday. "Now I am going to get out and keep what I've got, for I know that I could not keep it if I stayed in the financial district."

***

An intimate friend of a spectacular operator in stocks had two accounts immediately prior to the recent panic. He received advice in his operations from his friend and transmitted his orders to the two houses with which he traded. About a week before the panic he gave orders for 2,000 shares of a certain stock to be bought to each house. One house promptly executed the orders, but the other called him up and advised him not to purchase the stock, as they believed that a big break was near. The subsequent developments need not be described, but the result was that the house that refrained from executing the order eventually got the combined account. It can be easily imagined what might have happened if, instead of a break there had been a violent rally and the long stock purchased had been profitable. This is simply a sample of the chance that enters into a broker's work.

***

Technical conditions attract a great deal of attention from time to time in the stock market, and they are duly discussed as important factors in the trading. These conditions are varied, and the exact influence of some of them is difficult to determine. The most important, of course, are an extended short interest, a so-called weak bull account or a peculiar pool position. But the position of individuals as distinct from the general situation in the market must also be considered, or at least it would have been considered a month or so ago. The elimination of big individual players has been pretty thorough, however, and this factor for the present need not be considered. Technical conditions are the foundation, at times, for important movements, and it is often desirable for big interests to cultivate them in order to give the necessary impetus at the beginning of the real movement.

***

Gossip in the last few days connected the name of a certain professional with the trading in one or two of the important stocks. He was supposed to be operating heavily but quietly, and laying the foundation of a subsequent movement on a large scale. During the last ten days he has, as a matter of fact, made his headquarters in one office, and his orders in that period did not aggregate 1,500 shares of stock. The story as to his trading gained currency through an analysis of the buyers and sellers, and the fact that one or two houses with which this operator is identified bought stocks sufficed to inspire the rumor as to his supposed position.

***

It is a curious manifestation of the condition developed by the recent panic that customers in brokers' offices are paying so much attention to current developments in the mining world. Presumably, the low prices of some of these securities are attractive after their experience with the higher-priced issues in the more legitimate market. It is a healthy sign, however, that mere tips and rumors concerning a property are not accepted as sufficient inducement for the purchase of stocks, and brokers are often requested to furnish an analysis of the properties that are being considered. The deduction may be made that if a good bull market in stocks on the big Exchange were started this interest in the securities of unknown companies would speedily diminish. All it means is that the speculative instinct is strong, and interest must be manifested in something or other.

***

One of the journals that deal specifically with finance in its technical aspects published an article a short time ago dealing with the conditions in a certain industry in which a merry fight is going on between a so-called monopoly and some very aggressive independents. The article aimed to be impartial. The editor of the journal in question received a letter from the head of the so-called trust, in which he characterized the article as vicious, inaccurate, and unwarranted. The same mail brought a letter from the spokesman of the independents in which he sarcastically inquired whether the trust so called had paid for the article in question at the rate of a dollar a word. He pointed out that, in view of the value of the article to the other side, that ought to be a fair price. The writer of the article and the editor after analyzing the two letters, came to the conclusion that the article must have been absolutely impartial.

EXPORTS OF MERCHANDISE.

Exports of merchandise from the Port of New York for the week were valued at $12,057,720, compared with $14,897,719 in the preceding week and $12,678,883 in the corresponding week last year. Total since Jan. 1, $201,982,653, against $199,750,490 in the corresponding period last year.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

DAVIS-DALY ESTATE OFF

Curb trading was in considerable volume again yesterday, though the movement of the market was uncertain and left as many stocks losers by the day's transactions as were reported higher at the close. Some of the issues which have been strongest in recent markets were the most conspicuous for their weakness yesterday. One of these in the copper list was Davis-Daly Estate, which dropped from 16¼ to 15½ on transactions of only 2,900 shares. Chicago Subway also was markedly weak, going from 19⅞ to 17¾ on sales of 4,400. In the industrial list the centre of interest was Manhattan Transit, which began the week with one of its periodic upward movements. In yesterday's market the price ranged irregularly between 5¼ and 5⅝, and closed after transactions of 12,000 at 5½, which was the opening price. Niplssing failed to maintain the strength manifested in Monday's market and sold down from 14⅜ to 14¼, though a rally before the close left the price at 14⅜.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 23.—On the Stock Exchange to-day the cheapness of money gradually exercised a favorable effect on the different departments, transactions broadened moderately, and prices hardened, particularly in the case of gilt-edged securities. But the market closed with prices below the best quotations of the day. The reduction of the discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany assisted in promoting a cheerful feeling as well as in reviving the hopes that the Bank of England will reduce its rate April 25.

Copper shares were again active under the lead of Rio Tinto, though the latter reacted in the afternoon with other Continental specialties on the easier Paris advices.

Americans, cheered by the strength of the New York market at its close yesterday, started at well over parity and improved further under the bears' covering. Realizations caused a setback in the afternoon, but with the favorable New York opening steadiness prevailed until near the close of the day, when selling caused another reaction, and the market closed dull.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent.; for three months' bills 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

Bullion amounting to £147,000 was taken into the Bank of England to-day, and £254,000 was withdrawn for shipment to France.

PARIS, April 23.—Prices on the Bourse to-day generally were firm on better foreign advices. Russian imperial 4s closed at 73.75, and Russian bonds of 1904 at 495. Three per cent. rentes, 94f 60c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 19c for checks.

BERLIN, April 23.—Prices on the Boerse to-day opened strong and later declined slightly. Americans were the firmest section upon the New York advices.

The discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany was reduced to-day from 6 to 5½ per cent.

Discount rates: Short bills, 3¼ per cent.; three months' bills, 4¼ per cent.

N.Y. CENTRAL TO ISSUE EQUIPMENT NOTES

Road Adopts Pennsylvania Plan to Pay for Much-Needed Locomotives.

A NEW TRAFFIC RECORD

Road So Rushed with Business It Offers $25,000 Premium for Quick Delivery of Engines.

The management of the New York Central, it was learned yesterday, has decided upon the issue of equipment trust obligations to provide funds with which to pay for at least a portion of the large amount of equipment, including freight cars and locomotives, which have been ordered and which are to be delivered between now and the close of the year.

This is an important departure in the financial methods which heretofore have been adhered to by the New York Central. In the past all its purchases of equipment as well as the improvements to its roadway have been provided for through the salo of stock or mortgage bonds. The New York Central now proposes to resort to equipment trust obligations, following the precedent set by many other roads, including the Pennsylvania Railroad, which for many years has issued such notes, and which quite recently provided for an issue of $100,000,000 of equipment trust certificatee.

A New York city trust company has been chosen by the road to act as trustee in connection with the issue of equipment trust obligations. The securities are to pay for locomotives ordered from the American Locomotive Company. The orders of all the New York Central lines call for the delivery of several hundred locomotives, and it is part of these that are to be provided for in this new way.

Officials of the New York Central admitted yesterday that resort was being had to this new manner of financing because of the difficulty which the road has encountered in financing its requirements in its customary way. Last January the New York Central lines, because they found its impossible to sell bonds to advantage, placed $50,000,000 of three-year notes, of which $25,000,000 was for the use of the New York Central itself, the balance being for the Lake Shore and Michigan Central. Of the Central's $25,000,000 about $19,000,000 was raised to carry on the work in and around New York City, about $3,000,000 was devoted to improvements at other points on the line, and the balance, amounting to between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, was set aside for the purchnee of equipment already ordered.

The funds derived from this source have not been sufficient, however, to provide for all the equipment that has been ordered, hence the issue of equipment notes. The urgency with which the road needs additional equipment and motive power is brought out by the fact, learned yesterday, that about ten days ago the road's management offered a bonus of $25,000 to the American Locomotive Company if it succeeded in making delivery within sixty days of any considerable number of locomotives for which orders were placed some time ago.

Figures recently made public by Vice President Brown showed that the business handled by the road this month and last exceeded any previous period in the history of the road, there having been 50,000 more loaded cars handled last month than in March a year ago and 80,000 more cars so far this month than in the corresponding period in April, 1906.

Equipment trust bonds are regarded as one of the safest forms of investment, and they are frequently sold readily at times when long-term bonds and stock can be marketed only upon unsatisfactory terms. The terms of the equipment trust issue and the rate of interest to be paid could not be learned, the management merely acknowledging that the notes were to be sold.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Steel Corporation Not Ready to Announce 1908 Rail Orders.

Steel railmakers, with the full capacity of their plants in most cases sold out for the entire remaining months of 1907, are not yet beginning to take serious consideration of the prospects of filling their books for 1908.

At the offices of the Steel Corporation it is said that they are not ready to make any announcement as to the amount of business that has come in for 1908 delivery. It is well known that the Western roads are planning to place in the neighborhood of 250,000 tons within the next few weeks. A month after the rail books were opened last year for 1907 delivery, the Pennsylvania Railroad, Chicago, Minneapolis & St. Paul, and New York Central had placed orders for an aggregate of about 450,000 tons. On May 16, 1906, the business booked for 1907 delivery aggregated 1,600,000 tons.

Pennsylvania's 1908 Rail Orders.

The rail orders of the Pennsylvania Railroad for 1908, according to reports from Philadelphia yesterday, will be 153,000 tons, which compares with this year's order of 167,000 tons. The road's announced intention of putting through only necessary improvements is responsible for the reduction, as is evidenced by a decrease of 8,000 tons in next year's schedules, in rails for new construction.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The export business lats Monday, which proved to have been 25 loads of No. 2 red for Lisbon and 11 loads of other wheat, influenced a higher opening in New York, against lowsr openings in all the Western markets. The local market, with few exceptions, was firm all day. The strength in all markets was particularly noticeable after midday on bug complaints and dry weather and frosts in Kansas. On the other hand, Ohio Valley States reported too much moisture, with bugs appearing, indicating that wet weather does not check bugs. Except for a small decline at Liverpool, the foreign markets were firmer, the feature being an advance of 1¾c per bushel at Budapest. Interior receipts were bearish, and seaboard clearances light. New export business included about 22 loads. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, 84¾c, elevator, and 85¼c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 94¾c, and No. 2 hard, Winter, 88¾c, free on board, afloat, opening navigation.

CORN.—Except for a short time at the opening corn was firm and higher all day, particularly after midday, when the light estimate for yesterday's receipts and an export business of 25 loads helped the market. Liverpool closed ¾d net lower. Cash corn in New York closed as follows: No. 2 corn, 57¼c, elevated, and 55c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 whits, 57½c, and No. 2 yellow, 56c, free on board, afloat.

NEW HAVEN ROAD'S GROWTH.

NEW HAVEN, April 23.—The physical growth of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad system, now reaching over four States, is to be brought out by an official inventory and appraisal which, there is high authority for stating, will be made by John F. Stevens, former chief engineer in charge of Panama Canal work. The New Haven Road, dating from its original opening for operation, is now more than fifty years old, and especially in the last twenty years its growth has been characterized not merely by increased rondbed and equipment, but by great purchases of real estate in the cities of New York and lower New England, including Boston.

The appraisal by Mr. Stevens, it is understood, will include all the realty of the company and its equipment, both owned and controlled, and on its leased as well as its main lines. In the annual report of the company for the last fiscal year, the actual cost of its railroad properties, including rolling stock nnd real estate, was returned at $141,608,950, and its total assets of all kinds at $239,486,355.

These returns were certified for the first time by a firm of chartered accountants.

ACCUSES BROKER HOLDEN.

Customer, Opposing Receivership Dismissal, Says He Was Swindled.

Supreme Court Juetice O'Gorman yesterday denied the application of E. R. Holden & Co., brokers of 20 Broad Street, to have vacated a previous order by which F. Herbert Wadsworth, Jr., was appointed temporary receiver of the firm.

The application was opposed by Joseph W. Bastide, a judgment creditor of the firm, who has a claim for $3,438. This represents money paid by Bastide to the firm for oil stock which he avers he afterward found to be worthless. It was declared for the brokers that the receiver was an interested party. This statement was denied for Bastide, who in affidavits further declared that the Holden concern had been organized mainly for the purpose of selling worthless stock. He added that the firm consisted only of Edward R. Holden, who had been driven out of London and Paris.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE STOCKS.

Transactions in stocks on the Produce Exchange yesterday totaled 6,400, distributed among five mining companies.

MINING EXHIBIT FAILS.

The North American Mines Exhibition Company, organized to give a mining exhibit at Grand Contral Palace, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors yesterday, following the closing of the exhibition on Monday night. The company had offices at 13 Park Row. The assignee is Francis P. Pace, and the President of the company was James P. Williams. Herbert O. Rockwell was Treasurer.

The company was organized last December with a capital stock of $100,000. The exhibition failed from the start to attract sufficient public interest to make it pay, it was said. H. C. S. Stimson of 42 Broadway is the attorney for the assignee.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

Copper metal closed in the London market yesterday for both spot and futures at £99 10s, unchanged from the last prices of Monday for both. Pig tin closed strong at £189 5s for spot and £187 for futures. Lead was unchanged at £20. Spelter was steady at £25 15s. Iron warrants were strong at 56s 6d for standard foundry and 56s 9d for Middlesboro.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Stock Exchange house of Bryan & Walker will move its uptown branch office on May 1 from 1,122 Broadway to the new Brunswick Building, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street.

The Directors of the Gresnwich Bank have placed the stock on an 10 per cent. basis by the declaration of a 5 per cent. semi-annual dividend, payable May 1 to stockholders of record April 20. Hitherto the rate has been 8 per cent. a year.

Charles Head & Co., members of the New York and Boston Stock Exchangee, have leased a private wire for Cobalt, which is said to be the only private wire running to the camp. The Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission, which controls the telegraph service from North Bay to Cobalt, found it necessary to string an additional wire before it could arrange the lease.

More Trust Conference Acceptances.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

SMITH, CHARLES KESSLER.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to Charles Stuart von Luttmon Smith, Adelena Muhlenbach Smith, the widow and heirs and next of kin of CHARLES KESSLER SMITH, deceased, send greeting:
Whereas, the Mercantile Trust Company of the City of New York has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the 18th day of May, 1899, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Charles Kessler Smith, late of the County of New York, deceased; therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 14th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seven, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.
And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.
In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said [L. S.] County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Abner C. Thomas, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, this 17th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seven.
DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

Italians Trapped on Upper Floor of Old Christopher Street Car Barn.

SOME OTHERS ARE RESCUED

Fireman Hurt and Two Engines Upset at Other Fires Yesterday Morning.

Four men were burned to death or suffocated by smoke and 180 horses suffered a like fate at 1:30 yesterday morning in a fire that gutted the two upper stories of the old stables of the Christopher Street crosstown line. It was being used as a boarding stable by the Despatch Stable Company, 168 to 174 Christopher Street. The building runs through the block to 132 to 142 Barrow Street.

As on the block bounded by West, Washington, Barrow, and Christopher Streets there are the United States Appraiser's Stores and some big tenements, there was at first considerable apprehension that the fire would spread. Battalion Chief Grabam sent in a third alarm, which brought not only an increase of land apparatus, but also the fireboats New Yorker and McClellan. The fire was confined to the single building.

Ten automobiles, one belonging to W. K. Vanderbilt, which were stored on the ground floor by the customs men until the duty had been levied, escaped fire and later the water that was dripping down from above. Tarpaulin covers thrown over the machines by the insurance patrol provided for that.

All of the men burned were Italians. One is believed to have been Antonio Figurito, a small teaming contractor, engaged on the McAdoo tunnels, who had twenty horses in the building. Another was Sam Parso, a driver, of 417 First Avenue. The other two, it is thought, were Italian laborers employed on the McAdoo tunnel, who had been allowed to sleep in the building.

Charles Korda, a watchman in the building, discovered a blaze among some stalls on the third and top floors early in the morning. Alarming the four stable hands, he went to the street and sent in an alarm. The hostlers on the second floor at once liberated the horses in the rows of stalls that radiate from a runway extending up from the ground floor to the top. A number of these they succeeded in leading to the ground floor. At the same time the men on the top floor tried to cut loose the horses there, but were driven back to the Barrow Street side of the building by the smoke and flame.

Rescue by Athletic Fireman.

Before the arrival of any of the fire apparatus Fireman Cassidy, the wrestler and athlete of the department, who had spent a day off in New Jersey, passed through Barrow Street on his way to Hook and Ladder Company No. 5's house, in Charles Street. Looking up at the top floor of the burning building he saw two negroes at the barred window.

"We aure cawn't wait, boss," answered one of the negroes.

A moment later Truck No. 5 turned the corner into Barrow Street. Before any of the members of the company were on the ground Cassidy had seized a scaling ladder and a stout hook from the side of the truck. When he got to the second floor Fireman Horahan handed him a second ladder, which Cassidy planted above his head. This enabled him to attack the iron bars before the window with his hook. It was a tough job, but in the end he got two of them free. A negro, Bill Fisher, got through. With Fisher clinging to his shoulder Cassidy worked his way hand under hand to Horahan, to whom he passed the negro. The second negro, John Small, was rescued in the same fashion.

Plunging Horses Endanger Firemen.

Meanwhile other firemen had liberated some of the terrified horses and started them down the runway. Fireman August Engel of Engine No. 30 was coaxing a horse at the head of the runway, when another horse running wild behind him struck him. Thrown down one turn of the runway, he landed on the back of another horse. On his impromptu mount he made one turn in safety, but at the next corner the horse brushed him off against the wall.

When Chief Croker ordered the men from the building, as he saw that the roof was about to fall in, Engel was picked up by two of the firemen and soon was able to attack the fire with the others from adjoining roofs. Several other men had narrow escapes from being crushed by the horses.

Four Bodies Found.

It was not until the fire was under control that the four bodies were discovered lying in a corner where they had been cut off from the runway—the only means of egress. One body was in a kneeling posture. Two were without clothing. A portable bathtub near by suggested that they had been about to bathe. Two were burned beyond recognition, while the other two plainly had been suffocated.

It was thought by E. B. Van Horn of the Despatch Company that one of them was Figurito, as a roll of bills had been found upon the body. The sub-contractor had not been seen yesterday either at the tunnel excavations or in the neighborhood. Mr. Van Horn thought that one or more of the others might have been employes of Figurito. He had understood that the latter was spending the night in the stables, as some of his horses were out of condition. Fifty of the horses were owned by the Meade Transfer Company and another fifty by the F. H. Chapman Company, which was using them on the downtown McAdoo excavations. In all 320 horses had been in the building, of which number 140 were saved.

The total loss was placed by Chief Croker at $100,000.

SIX FIREMEN INJURED.

Back Draught Burns and Bruises Them at Wooster Street Blaze.

Six firemen were slightly injured in a blaze at 74 Wooster Street, which was discovered on the top floor of the building early yesterday morning. The fire started in the quarters of the R. R. Frame Company. The men of Engine No. 13 were in the building while those of Engine No. 20 were on the fire escapes outside, when Capt. Dunn of Engine No. 20 shouted:

The back draught to which the Captain alluded scorched the men on the fire escapes so severely that they were obliged to drop their hose. Firemen Eagan, Quigg, and Stotts were burned about the face and hands. However, after the draught had passed they were back on the fire escapes with the lines.

But the men of Engine No. 13, who were inside the building, had been blown down an entire flight of stairs by the same back draught. Firemen Valente and Edwards were cut and bruised, while a nozzle of a hose line that the men had dropped in their fall pounded Fireman Herrons so severely that he was sent back to quarters. The fire was confined to the single floor with a loss of $1,000.

There were three other small fires yesterday morning at about the same time and in the same district.

CARS HIT TWO FIRE ENGINES.

Both Upset and Driver of One May Have Fractured Skull.

During the progress of a fire in a five-story tenement at 1546 Second Avenue, between Eightieth and Eighty-first Streets, which injured no one, an alarm was sent in for a fire on the top floor of the five-story building, 504 East Seventy-third Street, partially occupied by the Madison Laundry.

As all of the fire apparatus in that district was in use at the Second Avenue fire, Engine 8, in Fifty-first Street, west of Third Avenue, was sent for. As the engine turned into Third Avenue to go north a southbound surface car knocked it over. The men on the engine were shaken and bruised. The motorman, Michael Shea, was arrested.

Meanwhile Joseph Mannix, a night watchman, had helped the families who lived on the top floor across a board laid to the adjoining roof. After the firemen had brought this fire under control, though not until it had done $20,000 worth of damage, Engine 56 on its way from the fire was upset by a surface car on Third Avenue, at Seventy-ninth Street. Driver Thomas Murphy was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, with a possible fracture of the skull. Capt. McNamara, the oldest officer in the department, was cut and bruised.

Fire Commissioner Lantry said yesterday that he would take steps to see that the regulation requiring surface cars to make stops before crossing firehouse streets was observed.

INTERBOROUGH MAY NOT BID ON SUBWAYS

President Shonts Says, However, a Decision Has Not Yet Been Reached.

A SURPRISE, POSSIBLY

Several Alternative Proposals Being Considered — Bids to be Opened To-morrow.

President Shonts of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will have made his first big move since taking hold of the traction interests in this city when bids for the two north and south subway routes, the Lexington Avenue and the Seventh and Eighth Avenue, will be opened to-morrow by the Rapid Transit Commissioners.

Mr. Shonts said yesterday that there was a possibility that his company would not make a formal bid for either of the routes, and there have been rumors current for the last week that the Interborough would not bid at all, in which case the probabilities are that there would be no bids at all for construction and operation jointly, though there might be some for construction alone.

"Everybody in the company," said Mr. Shonts, "has been working on this thing night and day for three weeks, and even yet we do not know what we are going to do. Officials, stockholders, engineers, and every one else have been giving their time to a study of the invitation to contractors and there will be a meeting to-night, another to-morrow and possibly a third to-morrow night.

"We want to do the right thing by the public. That is what we are striving to get at. It may be that we will put in a bid. In fact we have two or three alternative propositions that we have been considering, and they have been worked out so that they will be ready, if they prove to be the right thing. It may be that we will not make a bid at all, but in any case we will make a representation, and the public will know just what our position is."

Shonts May Have a Surprise.

Mr. Shonts said in addition that he could not say whether the Interborough would offer to use its own capital for construction or not. The Elsberg bill, which limits the franchise to twenty years, with a renewal for a like term, would, of course, have to be taken into consideration. He intimated also that the new contracts were pretty stringent, and had to be carefully considered. He thought, however, that the company would hit upon something before the time for the closing of the bidding which would be for the best interests of the people.

The attitude of Mr. Shonts and the fact that for the last week stories of there being a strong possibility of the Interborough not bidding at all have emanated from supposedly inspired sources, has led to the conclusion by those watching the situation that the Interborough is endeavoring to create public sentiment and to spring a surprise. The most logical theory advanced is that the Interborough people desire the public to think that there is a chance of no one bidding for the subways, and then come forward with an extremely liberal offer as far as the subways are concerned, but with a string attached. Such a proposition would be advanced as a "representation" undoubtedly, and not as a bid.

Rumor to the contrary notwithstanding, it is regarded as practically certain that the Interborough will bid for the lower half of the proposed Seventh Avenue subway and the upper half of the Lexington Avenue subway, possibly also for an elevated extension out the Jerome Avenue route, connecting with the present elevated lines, if the Interborough has its way.

Track Extension Desired.

In addition to this, it is thought that the company, firmly of the opinion that it has the field to itself, at least as far as operation is concerned, and that new subways cannot be leased unless it bids, will make the extension of the trackage on its Third and Second Avenue elevated lines a condition of its "representation." It is believed that it will advance the present state of the money market and the Elsberg bill conditions as reasons for its not being particularly anxious to undertake new construction, and support these arguments with references to the new Public Utilities bill. By appearing reluctant to bid at all, the company, it is contended, will endeavor to get the commission and the public to allow it to add a third track on Third Avenue and possibly two additional tracks on Second Avenue. These two things, it is well known, are desired above all others by the traction interests.

15 YEARS IN PRISON FOR SHOOTING A GIRL

BLACK HANDER SENT UP

He Warned Intended Victim of the "Barrel" Murder Case—Stiff Terms for Armed Italians.

Sentences ranging from one year to fifteen years in the penitentiary were imposed by Judges in General Sessions and by Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court upon several Italians and one German, who had been convicted of crimes running from attempted blackmail through the list of carrying concealed weapons, assault and robbery to manslaughter. Michaelio Lelo received the heaviest sentence, fifteen years.

Lelo pleaded guilty to manslaughter before Justice Blanchard and sentence was immediately pronounced. Lelo is 30 years old, and in 1902 lived at 46 Oak Street, boarding with a family named Lebruzzi. Lelo fell madly in love with a pretty daughter, Maria, but the girl would have none of him. In November, 1902, Lelo begged her for the last time to marry him, and when she refused shot and killed her in the hallway of her home. Lelo escaped and went to Wisconsin, where for four years he eluded the search which was kept up for him. He was finally found by Lieut. Petrosino of the Detective Bureau, who brought him to this city a few days ago.

Pasquale Jacobell, 20 years old of 4,738 Third Avenue, whom Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions, sentenced yesterday to three and one-half years in prison for carrying concealed weapons, was originally charged with writing threatening Black Hand letters. He was arrested on March 20, after Mattio Melillo had complained to the police that he had received letters warning him that if he did not give up $1,000, he would be attacked and cut into small pieces.

"Remember the Barrel case," the letters had warned him. "We are the same gang who did that man up, and we'll do you if you don't take warning."

A slung shot was found upon Jacobell at the time of his arrest and the charge against him was then changed.

Judge O'Sullivan sentenced to the penitentiary Thomas Levadatty, 27 years old, of Long Branch, giving him an indeterminate sentence of not less than two years, nor more than two years and six months. Levadatty was charged with assault and robbery by William Kapleyn of 160 Bleecker Street, who testified that Levadatty had attacked him in a Mills Hotel on Bleecker Street, on March 3.

In the same court Salvatore La Rocco, 20 years old, of 5 Monroe Street, was sent to jail for a year, after he had pleaded guilty to carrying concealed weapons. Rocco was arrested by Lieut. Miller of the Detective Bureau on April 15 at his home, which is also an Italian boarding house and saloon. A dirk was found in his clothing.

John Hartman, the only one of the prisoners not an Italian, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary when he was arraigned before Judge Crain in General Sessions and pleaded guilty to attempted blackmail. Hartman, it was charged, had made the acquaintance of Mrs. Julia Strauss, a widow living on Morris Avenue, in the Bronx, and soon learned that on the death of her husband she had collected $2,000 life insurance.

No sooner had Hartman learned of the money, it was charged, than Mrs. Strauss began to receive threatening letters demanding $300. Mrs. Strauss became auspicious of Hartman, and the police at last arrested him. Hartman lived at 285 Stack Street, Brooklyn.

AGAINST LAWYER JOSEPH.

Referee Recommends His Disbarment in Bankruptcy Case.

A report has been filed in the United States District Court by Alfred Jaretzki, special referee appointed to consider the charges against A. A. Joseph, in connection with the bankruptcy proceedings of the firm of Gilroy & Blumfield. It recommends that Joseph's name be stricken from the roll of practicing attorneys of the United States courts for alleged unprofessional conduct.

WARNING TO NEW FIREMEN.

Lantry Asks Appointees If They've Paid Anything for Their Jobs.

Eighty-eight new firemen had this question propounded to them by Commissioner Lantry as they stood up for questioning before being sworn in yesterday at Fire Headquarters:

Have you paid any money for influence to secure your appointment as a fireman? If you have done this it will nullify any appointment I may make if detected.

The firemen were also told that if they were found to have paid any money for appointment they would be arrested. All declared that they had sought the appointment solely on their merits.

The appointments were made from the first list of 100 names furnished by the Civil Service Board on request of the Commissioner. This is the first list of men asked of the Civil Service Commission in a long time.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

SEATTLE, April 23.—Fire which started last night in the planer room of the Port Berkeley Mill Company's lumber mill at Port Blakeley, destroyed the entire plant, the largest lumber manufacturing establishment on the coast, and one of the largest in the world, entailing a loss of between $300,000 and $500,000. Of this, 70 per cent. is covered by insurance, and the management announces that they will rebuild at once. The 500 employes were compelled to flee for their lives.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Fire destroyed to-day the five-story building at 71-85 Ann Street, occupied by the Bunge Pickle and Yeast Company. John Evosta, a watchman, was probably mortally injured by jumping from the burning building. The loss was $50,000.

SARANAC LAKE, April 23.—The Raybrook House, owned by E. A. Harder, at Raybrook, N. Y., and formerly known as Cameron's Hotel, was burned to the ground to-day. The loss is $16,000.

TICKET SPECULATORS SAFE.

Aldermen Vote for Control Only—Final Action Next Week.

It was very clearly indicated at the meeting of the Aldermen yesterday that the proposed ordinance making ticket speculating on the sidewalk illegal and practically making it impossible for tickets to be sold at a price in advance of that printed on their face will fall of passage through the activities of the Tammany delegation. A substitute raising the license fee from $50 to $300 will probably be passed, though it is said to contain clauses which will prove unconstitutional.

The matter was brought up by Alderman Brown, author of the original ordinance. There were two reports of the Law Committee, one favoring the adoption of the original ordinance, which abolishes the sidewalk speculator and prevents the lessee of a theatre selling a ticket above the printed price or conniving at such sale, on penalty of having his license revoked. The minority report substituted the keeping of sidewalk speculators at a distance of fifty feet from theatre entrances, raised the license fee, and provided that each licensee must be a registered voter and a resident. Renewal of licenses were fixed at $100.

There was a lengthy debate, the Tammany men asserting that the original ordinance would give the proprietors of the hotel stands an absolute monopoly and drive out of business some estimable men, while Brown and his supporters declared that the clause against the theatre manager conniving at a sale above the printed price would prevent any agreement to give the hotel standa choice seats. After the debate a motion to substitute the minority for the majority report was put through by a vote of 28 to 18, and the matter will come up for final action next Tuesday.

"This theatrical game beats anything you ever saw at Coney Island. It is the greatest faking game that ever happened." He declared, too, that the only reason speculators existed was because the theatre managers wanted to make more money.

A proposal was made by President Ahearn to pass an ordinance permitting him to spend $700,000 for extras on the Riverside drive extension without public letting. Alderman Wafer, a McCarren man, raised objection, and the matter went over.

AXE SHARPENED FOR AHEARN.

Mayor Likely to Ask His Removal, but What Will the Governor Do?

The Ahearn investigation will be resumed in the reception room of the Mayor's office to-day, with John Purroy Mitchell, heretofore special Assistant Corporation Counsel, taking the place formerly occupied by George Von Skal as one of the Commissioners of Accounts, before whom the hearing is held. The quick shift on Monday of Mr. Mitchell to Mr. Von Skal's place will have the effect of changing the complexion of the inquiry entirely.

Should the Borough President and his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, continue to refuse to recognize the right of the Commissioners to proceed, and put in no rebuttal testimony, the Commissioners will report their findings to the Mayor, who if he can will recommend the removal of the Borough President by Gov. Hughes. What action the Governor will take then will of course depend on the evidence submitted to him.

A letter sent by the Mayor to Mr. Von Skal yesterday resulted in the generally expressed belief that the Commissioner of Accounts who lost his job so suddenly on Monday would not be "taken care of" by the present administration. The letter said:

April 22, 1907.

Hon. George V. von Skal, 1,817 Prospect Avenue, New York City:

Dear Mr. von Skal: In accepting your resignation as a Commissioner of Accounts, permit me to express my appreciation of the time and attention you have given to the duties of the office. I am deeply grateful to you for the services you have rendered my administration, and sincerely regret that you are leaving it.

I fully understand the situation which impelled you to withdraw from the place which you have filled with credit to the city and to my entire satisfaction. Very truly yours,

GEORGE B. McCLELLAN, Mayor.

NEW YORK'S CRIME WAVE.

More Judges Needed to Dispose of Cases, District Attorney Says.

In reply to the published statement of Magistrate Corneli concerning crime in this city, Acting District Attorney Smythe said yesterday:

"The great difficulty now is that the criminal business in this country is so great that in order to keep peace with it both the Grand Jury and the courts are unable to give adequate time and attention to each individual case. In order to keep the Tombs from filling up the District Attorney has to recommend, and Judges do accept, pleas to lesser offenses from criminals who ought to be tried and sentenced for the highest degree of crime mentioned in the indictment. Such pleas are taken to save the time of trial.

"Recently the Judges of General Sessions have been less willing to take pleas to lesser offenses than those charged in the indictment. This has resulted in a decrease in the number of pleas taken, and there has followed a large increase in the number of trials, there being to-day 100 more prison cases than a year ago and 300 more on the standing calendar.

"This situation could be met in part by holding court longer hours, and even a more efficient remedy would be to keep three of the four parts of General Sessions open during the Summer months, sitting all day, instead of having only two parts open, sitting but one-half day. Even such means, however, can only reduce the evil, and they are not adequate to meet it.

"The criminal business of this county has so increased that another part of General Sessions is imperatively demanded. Until some such measure is taken the criminal courts of this county will not be able to deal successfully with the present conditions."

MURPHY MAN SUES.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff signed an order yesterday to show cause why Dock Commissioner Bensel should not be enjoined from interfering with the use of the pier at West 135th Street by Philip Donohue, who maintains a swimming bath there.

The Commissioner announced some time ago that he intended to eject Donohue. This move was said to have been made as a part of the campaign of Mayor McClellan against Charles F. Murphy. Donohue is a Murphy man.

LABOR MEN ROUSED AGAINST ROOSEVELT

UNION LEADERS CRITICISE

In Various Cities They Denounce the President's Attitude—Who Honore Jaxon Is.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 24.—That every union man in America unite in protest against the attitude of President Roosevelt toward Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone is the proposition to be made to affiliated organizations by the Milwaukee Federated Trade Council.

Some day in the early part of May is proposed, and it is suggested that every union man in the country take this day off, and that great meetings of protest be held in every city.

The Federated Trades Council leaders had a brief meeting to-day to consider a programme of this nature to be brought before that body at its meeting Saturday night. The Milwaukee Federation will ask that the National officials of the organization select a date on which this protest shall be made. The Milwaukee federation meanwhile will urge other labor organizations by letter to similar action.

CHICAGO MEN ANGRY.

Resent President's Indifference to Criticism by Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 24.—President Roosevelt was denounced by Chicago labor leaders to-day for his letter, addressed to Honoré Jaxon, Chairman of the "Cook County Moyer-Haywood Conference," declaring the President's "profound indifference" to the hostile criticism of either capital or labor.

John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said:

"Roosevelt is President of the United States, but he is only one man. Hundreds of thousands of men in the United States may get together and pronounce Mr. Roosevelt an undesirable citizen for his unmanly and cowardly stand against Moyer and Haywood."

Edward N. Nockels, Secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, said:

"President Roosevelt's reply is typical of the Chief Executive of the United States. He could not cry 'You lie' to the charge, because there was documentary evidence that he said what was accredited to him. Therefore he did the only thing possible—that was to stand by his guns, knowing he was wrong."

R. A. Shields, Financial Secretary of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, said:

"The action of President Roosevelt in this matter is one of official importance, 'butting in', without reason or excuse. It is like him."

John C. Harding, organizer of the printers, said:

"President Roosevelt has gone out of his way to injure the case of Moyer and Haywood. He has made a mistake, and proved that he is not big enough to admit it."

Jaxon is a French Canadian half-breed, and resides in the backroom of a barber's shop at 671 West Lake Street. He barely escaped execution in Northwest Territory twenty years ago for treason. His stormy career began in Regina, territorial capital of the Canadian Northwest, in 1885, when Louis Reil, leader of the rebellion forces put down by Gen. Middleton and Canadian troops, was executed. Jaxon, who was captured at the battle of Batoche, broke jail and made for the United States.

When Jaxon, who acted as Secretary for Louis Riel's "Provisional Government," landed over the boundary at Pembina, N. D., he was caught, but again he got away from his guards. In the same year he came to Chicago and became Secretary of a local Carpenters' Council, conducting its strike policy and establishing a system of slugging.

The Chicago Moyer-Haywood Defense Conference this evening laid plans for the holding of a huge demonstration on the Lake Front on May 19, when the President's letter and his attitude toward union labor, as outlined in his letter, will have extended consideration.

CALLS CRITICISM CHILDISH.

No Occasion for the President's Outburst, Says McArdle.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—"There is absolutely no occasion for this almost childish outburst from the White House," declared P. J. McArdle, National President of the Amalgamated Asaociation of Iron, Stael, and Tin Workers, to-day, in discussing the letter of President Roosevelt in which Debbs, Moyer, and Haywood were so severely criticised.

"It would seem from the President's letter of to-day that he is particularly bitter against labor leaders who jencourage or permit disorders among members of the labor unions. He also particularly charges that Debs, Haywood, and Moyer are men of this class, but he neglects to cite even one instance to bear out his contention. He cannot expect the public to believe that these men encourage lawlessness just because Theodore Roosevelt takes it for granted that they do. He should show some sort of evidence to sustain his position if he wishes to be considered seriously.

"Unless he could cite some specific instance where Debs, Haywood, or Moyer instigated lawlessness, Mr. Roosevelt should, in common decency, have omitted the names of these men from his statement."

INDIGNATION IN BOSTON.

Labor Leaders Condemn the Attitude of the President.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 24.—Joseph Spero, President of the Moyer-Haywood-Pettibone Protest Conference of Greater Boston, said to-day:

"The President's attitude is as 'lltempered as many of his criticisms. We, who believe in the liberty of the individual, no matter what his cloth, do not consider it right to protest in the name of lawlessness, but we do strongly feel that it is the duty of the American freeman to register his protest whenever there is in his opinion violation of the law of the land, the Constitution. In this case we purpose to raise a cry from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the lakes to the Gulf, that these men were kidnapped, contrary to law, and that they have been detained in prison in violation of the sacred teneta of the Constitution."

Patrick Mahoney, former President of Cigarmakers' Union No. 97, said:

"We have too mucb Judge-made law. The President knows it, snd we know it. We are protesting against the Judge-made law and the trespassing on the rights of the people by the Judges that have been promoted from corporation counsel to the bench. The President

THE DUKE REFUSED HER.

Lady Clarke Got Angry and Must Now Pay £250 for Slander.

LONDON, April 24.—The fifth Duke de Pieneuf to-day obtained judgment for £250 in a slander suit against Lady Rose Houghton Clarke. The evidence showed that Lady Clarke, who is 60 years old, fell in love with the Duke, who is 26 years old, proposed marriage, got angry when the Duke refused her, made slanderous statements about him, and sent two offensive postcards. The Duke demanded an apology, and, failing to get it, instituted proceedings at law.

"What was the cause of the breach between you?" the plaintiff was asked by his counsel.

"She wanted me to marry her, and asked me several times," was the reply.

"Did you consent?"

"Oh, dear, no."

"What did you say?"

"I smiled and told her I was already engaged, and I thought her a bit too old."

"Was she very indignant?"

"She was, very."

MISS MARLOWE TRIUMPHS.

London Critics Are Enthusiastic Over Her Jeanne d'Arc.

Special Cablegrams.

LONDON, Thursday, April 25.—E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe appeared last night in "Jeanne d'Arc" and scored a success. The critics speak enthusiastically of Miss Marlowe. The Standard says:

"Miss Marlowe proved herself an actress of great charm and most attractive personality. The astonishing vigor of her Jeanne d'Aro was in every sense a tour de force." Other papers pay her similar compliments.

Mr. Sothern's acting is commended for its good taste, tenderness, and sincerity, but it is pointed out that his part in the play does not call for the display of qualities of a high order. "Mr. Sothern has not yet given himself a chance," The Standard remarks, and something similar to this appears in every notice of the play.

Mr. Sothern's turn will come tomorrow (Friday), when "Twelfth Night" will be presented.

HAVANA, April 24.—Mayor Cardenas is very angry because Mayor McClellan of New York, instead of doing as Señor Cardenas requested and buying 5,000 cases of condensed milk for shipment to Havana, has cabled the names of five leading New York manufacturers.

All parties praise Gov. Magoon for his plan for the immediate construction of roads. They do not yet realize that these roads will greatly facilitate military movements, permitting the quick dispatch of forces from the naval stations to suppress disorders.

BABIES CAME IN A RUSH.

Birth Rate Went Up Wonderfully on Pope's Jubilee Day.

Special Cablegram.

ROME, April 24.—The preparations by the Pope for the birth of the Spanish royal heir have served to recall an incident of the jubilee of Leo XIII. He determined that every child born in Rome on his jubilee day should receive a gift of baby linen and money.

The statistics showed that the average daily birth rate in Rome was thirty-five, and preparations were made for that number. It turned out that there were ninety-three births on the jubilee day—at least, that number was certified.

The Pope stood by the certificates in spite of the suspicion that some of the babies were impostors.

SHE HUGGED A BURGLAR.

Mrs. Stroth Thought He Was Her Husband—Catches Him Later.

After clever detective work Mrs. Matilda Stroth of 2,012 Amsterdam Avenue last night had an alleged burglar arrested who, she says, entered her flat on Tuesday. She embraced him in a darkened room, thinking that he was her husband. The alleged burglar said he was Benjamin Newman, 19 years old, of 734 East Ninth Street. He is employed as a delivery boy by a women's clothing house in Sixth Avenue. He got away after the embrace and the discovery of his identity.

Mrs. Stroth decided to see the woman on the floor above whose name had been mentioned by the intruder. The women compared notes. Mrs. Stroth's friend said that she had just had a dress delivered from a downtown store, and as the man who delivered it answered the description of the man who had been in Mrs. Stroth's room, they decided they were on the right track. The women went to the West 152d Street Station and told their story and suspicions.

Yesterday Mrs. Stroth, accompanied by Detectives Hockter, Merchert, and McHugh, went to the Sixth Avenue store. They obtained the name of the man who had delivered the package and later Newman was pointed out to them. Mrs. Stroth said she identified Newman as the men who had been in her rooms. He was then arrested.

LAMPLIGHTERS QUIT; CITY DARK IN SPOTS

UNION CALLS OUT 400 MEN

Only Formed a Short Time Ago, Whereupon the Gas Company Began Dismissals.

Sections of the five boroughs of this city were in darkness last night, save for the light cast by a three-quarter moon, because the Lamplighters' Union, newly organized, with a lighter and a ladder as its banner, has a grievance. Policemen were ordered to light up as much as they could. But they had no ladders and many policemen are fat. And the wind blew, and the matches went out.

The wind blew fiercest in the Bronx and Harlem, and most matches went out up there. Some religion went, too.

The overlapping strata of American darkness grew thicker as one went northward toward the Bronx last night. In the lower part of the island there are many electric lights. The Lamplighters' Union has nothing to do with them.

There were perhaps 25,000 lights out in West Harlem at 8 o'clock. It was dark in the streets between Amsterdam Avenue and the Hudson River from 130th to 150th Street, except for the incidental lighting that came from stores and flat windows. The blackness was most pronounced in the side streets. Morningside Avenue was fit for lovers and unfit for policemen. East Harlem was involved also.

Up in the Bronx a lighted cigarette was a torch, a cigar was a beacon fire, and automobile lamps were great sliding comets. But most of the Bronx was asleep, and it didn't care.

The merry, merry lamplighters are supposed to start out carrying the torch of civilization at 6:50 by the clock, and to have set going between 200 and 300 lamps each within an hour. Last night they didn't start, or very few of them did. Some of the old veterans couldn't get out of the habit, and though the union had voted yesterday not to light up they went on touching off their lamps. But most of the members really struck.

The police noticed that Harlem and the Bronx were not blazing as they should at 7:30 o'clock, and most of the Captains in the upper precincts ordered the reserves out after 8 o'clock to corral as many matches as they could and spread as much light as they knew how. Capts. Kruescher of the West 152d Street Station, Burns of West 125th Street, Corcoran of East 104th Street, and Buchanan of East 126th Street were particularly insistent on more light.

Inspector John Canfield of the Consolidated Gas Company was in Harlem calling on passing citizens and residents to light up near-by street lamps. The gas company gets 6 cents a night for each lamp, and he didn't want his company to lose anything.

The Welsbach Street Lighting Company has the contract to light the street lamps. Supt. Prendergast, whose office is at 314 West Forty-second Street, was out trying to employ men to light up. City Inspector Fitzpatrick was also out to do what he could. He said he had notified the Welsbach people that the strike was coming, and the company provided a few substitute lighters, but there are 22,000 street lamps in Manhattan, and most of them were dark. Some 400 men are on strike.

In Brooklyn forty lamplighters employed by the Welsbach Company to light the Broooklyn Union Gas Company's street lamps, went on strike, and many streets were in darkness until late. There are more than 150 lamplighters in the borough, but most of them refused to join in the strike. Six Inspectors were sent out to hire new men, but some of these didn't know the streets to which they were sent, and it was nearly midnight before some of the streets were lighted. To avoid trouble to-night, the Brooklyn Gas Company will not turn out its street lamps to-day.

In Queens the Welsbach Company put on fifteen new men, but most of them were green and made little progress in lighting the street lamps. They worked under police protection. When it grew late and it was seen that practically the whole borough would be dark, the police began to light the lamps.

Those having short beats were all right, but those with beats four and five miles long soon began to telephone for help. As a result the reserve platoons were turned out to help light up.

Lighting one of the lamps is not easy. The police destroyed many manties by not applying the fire rightly, or hitting the fragile material while fumbling about inside the globs.

Most of the lamplighters are Italians. They have just been organized into a union by Joseph Tortilla, special organizer of the American Federation of Labor. Herman Robinson, General Organizer of that federation, who assisted Tortilla in his work, said last night that the Welsbach Street Lighting Company had begun to discharge union men as soon as the union was formed.

The company was asked to stop doing that, and the matter was put up to Daniel Prendergast, Superintendent of the company, yesterday. Mr. Prendergast promised to take the matter up with the officers of the company to-day, but because of some more discharges that were made yesterday, Mr. Robinson said, the lamplighters voted to call the strike.

The lamplighters say that their average pay is only 98 cents a night. Some of the City Inspectors say that a good many of the men make betwsen $8 and $9 a week. The lamplighters will probably ask for an advance in pay.

A good many of the torch bearers are janitors, who can easily arrange to get off for an hour in the afternoon and another in the morning. Thus they piece out their salaries and perquisites. It is taken for granted that the Welsbach people didn't know that any of the union were janitors. Otherwise may be they wouldn't have refused what the union asked.

At 122d Street and Park Avenue last night a man who said he was a lamplighter was arreated for putting out a light after a policeman had managed to get it going. The prisoner said he was Polo Di Cicco of 337 East 117th Street. It is a misdemeanor to extinguish a public light. The prisoner was locked up in the East 126th Street Station. Lieut. Battin, who was in charge at Police Headquarters, received other complaints of lights having been extinguished.

ALL PITTSBURG HAS IT.

Pneumonokoniosis Added to Brain Storm and Other Famous Diseases.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 24.—The startling announcement has just been made here by no less an authority than Dr. C. B. Schildecker, the Coroners' physician, that every mother's son of us here in Pittsburg is suffering from pneumonokoniosis. It was bad enough to be the place of the origin of the brain storm and the exaggerated ego, and Pittsburg is not proud of this new distinction. When asked what pneumonokoniosis really is, Dr. Schildecker explained:

In other words smoke from the mills gets into the lungs of the average Pittsburger and makes them look like a sponge that has been stuck in the end of a rain spout. Instead of the lungs being a nice pink color, Dr. Schildecker says that after you have been in Pittsburg for a while they resemble a piece of blue blotting paper, over which a bottle of black ink has been spilled. Dr. Schildecker declares there is no cause for alarm as the lungs don't seem to mind it in the least.

FIRE TENDER IN SALOON.

Just Drops In to Avoid a Collision in the Street.

Half a dozen men were lined up in front of the bar in the saloon of Dietrich Lutjen, at Fifth Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, flushing their interiors with steins of dark and light brew, when the gong of a fire engine was heard.

At that instant there was a crash, the double doors of the saloon flew open, and a team of horses dragging a fire engine tender dashed in.

"Holy smoke!" exclaimed one of the startled drinkers. "The fire's in here, and we didn't know it." And the six climbed over the bar as one man.

The panic-inspiring appearance of the horses and tender in the saloon was due to the efforts of the driver to avoid a collision in the street. The tender was following Engine 119 to a small fire in Flatbush Avenue. Just as the engine passed Bergen Street a trolley flat car turned the curve there. The driver of the tender tried to turn his team into Bergen Street to avoid running into the car. The horses became frightened and dashed into the saloon. Both horses were cut by broken glass. The saloon front was wrecked.

CANCER FROM X-RAY?

Chicago Roentgen Expert Said to Have Contracted It.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Wolfram C. Fuchs, an expert in the use of the X-ray, died here to-day of cancer, which he contracted threo years ago through coming in contact with the X-Ray apparatus.

Mr. Fuchs, who was 31 years old, was one of the original exponents of the use of the ray in this country, and worked with Dr. J. B. Murphy, Dr. Nicholas Senn, and other eminent surgeons and physicians. When President McKinley was dying at Buffalo he was called into consultation.

He added several improvements to the apparatus of Roentgen and other ray experts. The completion of a treatise upon the subject was prevented by his death.

After the accident three years ago, the thumb of his right hand and the first two fingers of the left wasted away so that amputation became necessary. This necessitated his retirement from active work, but it was not expected that any further serious consequences would result.

Six months ago there grew apparent an inflammation of the right arm and side, which led to an operation. This was followed by a decline, which continued until a month ago. The entire right side, including the lung, was affected.

FACES LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Old Negro, Locked Up for Debt, Has No Chance to Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., April 24.—Gordon Phillips, a crippled negro of Burlington, who because he owes Burlington County $1 for poll tax and $1.75 for costs was arrested on Aug. 25 last and has ever since been held a prisoner in the county jail here. The arrest was made under the provisions of Section 700 of the Revised Statutes of New Jersey, passed in 1890. Under that law the tax delinquent will have to remain in jail until his tax is paid.

The old negro has not the $2.75 necessary to obtain his release, and has no opportunity to earn any money while in jail. If the law is carried out he will be imprisoned for life unless some charitably inclined person comes to his rescue and pays his debt.

The records fail to disclose any other imprisonment for such cause in the history of the county, and it might be presumed that this old negro is the only poll tax delinquent in the county. However, the county would require a jail several times larger than the New Jersey State Prison if all the poll tax delinquents had the law enforced against them as it has been against this man.

IRON SKULL OF BROOKLYN

Unhurt by the Fall of a Factory Roof Upon His Head.

The "man with the iron skull," who smiles cheerfully while husky asaistants are cracking stones on his head, has been relegated to the rear by one Henry Freund of Brooklyn. Henry ambled forward yesterday for the honors as the champion hard-headed man. He regards the man who permits boulders to be smasbed on his skull as possessing a tender and sensitive pate. Henry isn't even annoyed when a building falls on his head.

Freund lives at 145 Guernsey Street, Brooklyn. He was at work in the yard of a factory at Flushing and Metropolitan Avenues yesterday when the roof of a two-story frame toolhouse was blown off. The roof hit Henry just over the left ear, knocking him down. He sprang to his feet and looked indignantly around to see who had thrown what he supposed to be a ripe tomato.

While he was looking about him the rest of the toolhouse blew over on his head. His fellow-workmen ran over and picked him out of the wreckage. They insisted that he had been fatally hurt. Henry, who was a bit dazed, was for thrashing the man who had followed up the tomato with a brick. He was hurried to the German Hospital. There the doctors found that he was not even bruised.

INJUNCTION STOPS ALL SUBWAY BIDS

Broadway Merchants' Move Blocks Action by Transit Board To-day.

NO BIDS LIKELY ANYWAY

Only the Interborough Would Have Submitted a Half Proposal—All Plans Abandoned.

Bids for the new Lexington Avenue and Seventh and Eighth Avenue subwaye will not be opened by the Rapid Transit Commission to-day as expected. An injunction restraining the board from acting was granted late yesterday by Justice Bischoff, in the Supreme Court, on the application of a firm of lawyers representing an association of Broadway merchants, who raised objection to the form of contract when the new lines were originally proposed, and again when a hearing on the form of contract was held recently.

While the merchants, who have obtained a temporary injunction, are only interested in a part of the proposed routes which pass their places of business between Thirty-fifth and Fourteenth Streets, the action of the court ties up the whole matter and forbids the opening of bids for any subways, or the awarding of any contracts for subway construction. If made permanent it will effectually prevent the present board from contracting for any new subways, should the Public Service Commission bill pass the Legislature. The motion to make the injunction permanent will be argued in special term on Monday.

Bidders Shy Anyway.

Even before it became known that an injunction had been granted by the court, it was believed yesterday that the opening of the bids would prove to be an empty formality, as there would have been no bids, or at least none which could have been seriously considered by the board. The best the board will get, when the injunction obstacle is removed, for its three or four years' of labor that have resulted in the planning and advertising of the two routes mentioned, will be a proposal from the Interborough-Metropolitan Company to build certain sections of each route under conditions considerably different from those set forth in the approved form of contract.

Although the practical failure of the board to induce bidders to come forward will be a surprise and a shock to the public, which haa been demanding new transit lines so long and so loudly, the members of the board will not be particularly surprised, as they expressed the opinion some months ago that the Elsberg bill would have the effect of scaring off capital that otherwise might be put into subways. That the Interborough does not actually bid, it is asserted, is not due solely to the Elsberg bill, but to the conditions of the contract.

Mr. Shonts, President of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company was asked yesterday to give an indication of what the company intended to do. He had previously expressed some doubt as to what the company's attitude would be. Yesterday he said:

"All I can say at this time is that a letter will be sent to the Commissioners to-morrow making clear our position. Out of courtesy to the commission I do not feel that I can say more until the letter is read at the meeting."

What the contents of the letter referred to are, is kept a deep secret by everybody connected with the company. To a question as to whether the letter could be looked upon as a bid, Mr. Shonts did not reply directly. It is understood, however, that it cannot be so construed, as it will not offer to meet the requirements set forth in the published contract.

By those watching the transit situation speculation as to the contents of the letter was indulged in to a large extent. The most feasible theory advanced was that the Interborough-Metropolitan Company would offer to build half of each route and make connections with the present subway, but under conditions radically different from those proposed by the board. The Interborough-Metropolitan will not, when the time comes, offer to use its own money, nor will it, as far as can be learned, make any liberal offer of transfers to surface and elevated lines. It will, however, recognize a moral obligation to construct new lines as extensions or connections of its present routes, but not under the conditions proposed, which are considered extremely onerous.

Board Likely to Do Nothing More.

What the exact conditions are that the company will want modified cannot be learned until Mr. Shonts's letter is made public, and those hazarding guesses hold opinions very much at variance. There is some doubt, too, as to the legal power of the board to consider any proposition the company may make unless it complies exactly with the terms of the advertised contracts. It is exceedingly probable that the board will be in a position where it will be unable to do anything at all looking toward the building of the subways prior to the time the Public Service Commission bill becomes a law and ends the life of the board.

It was learned on good authority yesterday that even had there been no injunction proceedings there would have been little chance to-day of there being any bids submitted for the construction of the new lines, independent of operation. Contracting firms, especially of late, have shown little or no interest in the specifications, and the employés of the Interborough-Metropolitan have been about the only ones to look over the drawings. A bid for the construction of one or two small sections may have been submitted at the last moment, but even this is considered very doubtful.

Should the city be confronted with the possibility of going without new subways altogether, there will at once be agitation, probably started in Brooklyn, for the municipal conetruction of the so-called "tri-borough" route, which includes a subway down Third Avenue, in Manhattan, and an extension through Brooklyn to Coney Island. The preliminary details for the construction of this route have all been arranged, and it might be possible, at a pinch, for the board to let the contract before the Public Service Commission bill becomes operative.

Ice to be Cheaper in Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 24.—The price of ice in Chicago this Summer will be lower than in the last few years. Ice companies are now making up their new schedules to be sent to customers next week. It is said they will show reductions ranging from 10 to 40 per cent. In larger amounts ice may be obtained, it is predicted, for as low as $3.50 a ton. Last year it cost as high as $6.

CARNEGIE HAS BRONCHITIS.

Confined to His Room, but No Serious Effects Expected.

Andrew Carnegie is confined to his room with an attack of bronchitis. At his house last night it was stated that he caught a severe cold a few days ago and has been obliged to look carefully after himself. No serious effects, however, are expected, and is believed that in a few days he will be out again.

Mr. Carnegie was to have made an address at the Centennial ceremonies at Cornell to-morrow, but President Schurman received word yesterday that he would not be able to attend. Mr. Bertram, his secretary, wrote:

Mr. Carnegie is suffering from an attack of bronchitis, and will not be allowed out for several days. It is a great disappointment indeed to Mr. Carnegie that he will be unable to fulfill his engagements at Ithaca.

The address which he was to have given is on Ezra Cornell. It has been forwarded to the university, and will be read in Mr. Carnegie's stead by Judge Charles H. Blood.

CHICAGO EXPRESS WRECKED.

Several Persons Reported Injured in Crash Near Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The Chicago Express on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which left this city for New York at 10:45 P. M., was wrecked to-night near Bennett Station, on the eWst Penn Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, shortly after eleven o'clock. Bennett Station is about ten miles east of here.

The express crashed into a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train. Several persons were bruised, but none was seriously injured. The passenger engine and the caboose of the freight train were demolished.

RIVER BOAT ON THE ROCKS.

City of Hudson's Wheelhouse Wrecked in High Wind Near Tivoli.

CATSKILL, April 24.—The steamer City of Hudson of the Catskill Evening Line ran on the rocks at the upper end of Red Hook Island, near Tivoli, during a high wind and rain storm early to-day. Her starboard wheelhouse was wrecked, but she suffered no other serious damage. She was floated and towed here by a tug, and then proceeded to Hudson, where her freight was discharged.

She will be delayed several days at Hudson while repairs are being made.

SPORTSMEN'S SHOW FLOODED

Tank Containing 100,000 Gallons Bursts—Spectators in Panic.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—Five minutes after the Sportsmen's Show opened tonight in the Duquesne Gardens, in the East End section of the city, a tank containing 100,000 gallons of water burst, flooding part of the gardens and destroying many of the decorations.

Several hundred spectators rushed for the various exits panic-stricken, but none was injured.

SHOT ON HIS WEDDING DAY.

Oil City Man Killed by Former Sweetheart, Who Then Commits Suicide.

OIL CITY, Penn., April 24.—Thaddsus S. Ross, 35 years old, a clerk in the Post Office here, was shot and instantly killed to-day by Miss Isabelle Stroup, 28 years old, a former sweetheart, who immediately shot herself through the heart. Ross was to have married to-night Miss Drusilla Sampsell of this place.

The shooting occurred in the office of Dr. George W. Magee, where Miss Stroup, who was employed in a hospital at Bradford, and had arrived here at noon, had called Ross by telephone while he was dining at his home. Dr. Mageo was absent and knew nothing of the tragedy until he returned and two bodies partly prevented the office door being opened.

FRANK WALKER A SUICIDE.

Grandson of Justice Pryor Takes Poison Because of Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 24.—Frank Walker, son of the late Frank Walker, a well-known Chesapeake & Ohio Railway official and grandson of Justice Roger A. Pryor of New York, committed suicide last night by taking strychnine.

The drug was taken at the residence of friends. The young man announced to some guests what he had done, but his statement was not believed until he was taken with convulsions.

Ill health probably caused the suicide. Walker having recently undergone three severe operations for an aggravated stomach trouble.

MANICURES FOR WORKERS.

Women In Armour Plant to Have Their Nails Attended To.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, April 24.—All the women employed in the big Armour packing plant at South Omaha will hereafter have their finger nails carefully manicured by manicures employed by the packing company.

The manicures will be employed as a result of the recent Government inspection of the plant. It is stated that the innovation shows the desire of the company to make everything about its plant sanitary.

It is said that Swift & Co. and other big packing companies will also employ manicures to work in their South Omaha plants.

STROMBOLI OUTBREAK BRIEF.

CATANIA, Sicily, April 24.—The Stromboli volcano was in eruption today.

There was a series of loud explosions like artillery and an enormous quantity of incandescent stones was thrown out of the crater.

Immediately after this activity the volcano returned to its normal state.

TAFT NOT TO QUIT EVEN FOR THE BENCH

No Foundation for Stories That He Would Forego Presidency for Chief Justiceship.

FIGHTING TAFT REVEALED

War Secretary's Easy Good Nature Gives Place to Aggressive Domination—Will Manage His Managers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Secretary Taft has tied no string to his Presidential candidacy. If the Chief Justiceship of the United States Supreme Court becomes vacant to-morrow and is offered to him he will not take it.

The Ohio Senators—Dick particularly—are circulating the story that Taft would drop his chances for the Presidency on the very eve of the National Convention for the coveted wool sack. They have cleverly used the War Secretary's frankly admitted preference for the Nation's highest judicial post to support it. Naturally the man of politics might well hesitate to link his fortunes with a candidate who might desert him at any moment during the canvass, leaving him to the scant mercy of a successful opposition. There is no doubt that many Ohio Republicans have been wavering because of the doubt suggested by the Senatorial propaganda as to whether Taft would stick.

The Senators have been shrewd enough to keep this story of theirs out of print, for once it came to the surface an official denial might be expected from Taft's managers. The charge has been a whisper, passed from mouth to ear and from man to man, and it has been backed with a statement that no less a person than Secretary Taft himself told Elmer Dover—sometimes the name of Senator Murray Crane is used—that the offer of the Chief Justiceship would mean Taft's instant withdrawal from the Presidential field.

This conversation is generally reported as having taken place on the eve of the War Secretary's departure for Panama. By this means, and others, a doubt has been skillfully raised in other States than Ohio as to the sincerity of the Taft booms. The facts are exactly contrary to this rumor circulated by the opposition. When Secretary Taft permitted his brother and his friends to use his name in connection with the Presidency the War Secretary told Charles P. Taft that he would give up his dearest ambition, the Chief Justiceship, while his friends thought it proper to continue efforts for his nomination as President.

In short, Secretary Taft is enlisted for the whole war. He did not want to be a Presidential candidate. That statement cannot be made too emphatic. The turmoil of politics is not to his taste. He has not played the game, frankly confesses his ignorance thereof, and has little appetite to learn the art as practiced by either heelers, Senators, file closers, or Generals, high or low. He has seen the Presidency at close range, and he is not enamored of it. His liking is all for the bench, and his life-long ambition has been to hold the highest post of the American judiciary. He has never made any secret of his feelings in this respect, and does not now.

But the keynote of Secretary Taft's character is loyalty, both to the principles he believes in, the men who advocate them, and the interests of his friends. President Roosevelt knows that Taft has loyalty. He has leaned heavily upon it in the past and is leaning upon it now. The spectacle of the big barons of the Republican party openly organizing for a reaction against President Roosevelt and his policies stirred the fighting fiber in Taft's blood. He was appealed to in the name of Rooseveltism, by circumstances and by men, to help fight a common enemy. Events forced him to the front as the Administration champion until any retirement on his part, even to the bench, would have broken the Roosevelt line of battle and been of substantial advantage to the enemy. Then came his friends and the brother he loves, to beg him to accept the situation and be the candidate for the Presidency that the situation made him.

Reluctantly, almost sadly, and after the pressure became well-nigh irresistible, he yielded. But from the moment of his decision reluctance and hesitation fled. When he agreed to fight he went into the field determined and enthusiastic. He told his brother that no man who spent effort or money or risked his political fortunes in his behalf need fear to be abandoned by the candidate. Such abandonment, in Secretary Taft's eyes, would be such dishonor that he cannot realize how such a course on his part could be imagined.

Now that he is enlisted for this fight the country will see a new Taft, the fighting Taft. It is time people got acquainted with this man. The Taft they know is the genial, laughing, good-natured giant who goes about here and in foreign lands, patching up troubles, chloroforming revolutions, smoothing down the stiff bristles of anger—the smiling agent of peace.

But there is a Taft whose smile has faded from his lips, leaving a strong mouth set like a steel trap above a protruding, pugnacious jaw. The blue eyes of this unknown Taft, Taft the fighter, contract to points, points blue with the blueness of burnished steel. His voice is cold, hard, and steady, but his big fists clinch in anger as forceful as his other qualities are forceful, as his big body is forceful. It takes a long time to get him "mad," but when effort succeeds it is a sad time for those who have roused him.

The men who follow the fortunes of William H. Taft into this political campaign will find all the fighting they want, and he will lead just as long as there is anybody left to follow. And Taft will be the leader. People who have notions about a big, good-natured chap lending himself as a candidate to be exploited, readily indorsing whatever his managers do, will find themselves mistaken. He does not know the little details of politics, the methods of juggling a ward primary, and of playing horse with a caucus, it is true, but he knows a bigger, broader kind of politics, the Roosevelt kind, the "shirt sleeve diplomacy" kind, the kind that is frank and open and takes the people into the confidence of the men who play it at every step.

Persons disposed to doubt whether this kind is as effective as the other might

FIGHT TO GO ON, SAYS DICK,

Until Either Roosevelt or Foraker Is Buried Politically.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 24.—"The fight among the Republicans in Ohio will continue until either President Roosevelt or Senator Foraker is buried politically," said Senator Dick to-day before departing for the Jamestown Exposition, where he will represent Gov. Harris at the opening Friday.

The Senator made it apparent that Foraker would depend upon the so-called State organization for success in his fight for re-election to the United States Senate.

Dick belittled Taft's strength in Ohio. He said that he would be willing to wager that the name of the Secretary of War would not even be presented to the Republican National Convention.

Taft will hold a conference in Cincinnati Friday with State Insurance Commissioner Vorys, who has charge of his campaign in this State, and other Taft leaders.

SOUTH FOR ROOSEVELT.

Little Opposition, Says Hitchcock—Willcox Sees the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock returned to-day from his trip to the South. He went there to find out how the political situation lay, and whether there was anything in the reports from there that the Southern Republicans were against Roosevelt and Taft, and that Foraker and Fairbanks were getting away with them.

He returned highly pleased in the main with what he had discovered. He said he had talked with the Postmasters and the political leaders in Florida, Georgia, and South Carolina. According to him the situation there is the same as it is elsewhere in the country—all Roosevelt.

There is no opposition to the President worthy of the name among the Southern Republicans, Mr. Hitchcock says. The reports to the contrary are based simply on the fact that the few discontented have formed themselves into clubs and got notices of their organizations printed. They do not represent any popular sentiment, and the malcontents are not more numerous than is always the case under any Administration.

On the subject of Mr. Taft's candidacy in the South Mr. Hitchcock was not so communicative, and it was evident from his manner that the Taft situation in the South was not encouraging. He also refused to discuss the subject of third term sentiment in the South, and the impression gathered was that Mr. Hitchcock had found the third term sentiment strong and the Taft sentiment weak.

Postmaster Willcox of New York, who is in Washington on business connected with his office, had a brief talk with President Roosevelt to-day. Mr. Willcox admitted that he had talked politics with the President, but declined to go into any details of the conversation.

Representative Sherman, Chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, and Vreeland, and ex-Representative Littauer, all of New York, were among the President's callers to-day. They are on their way to the Jamestown Exposition.

MOUNT STERLING, Ky., April 24.—A. T. Siler of Whitley County was nominated to succeed himself as Railroad Commissioner by the Republicans of the Third District in convention here to-day. The resolutions indorsed President Roosevelt and the candidacy of a man to succeed him who would carry out his policies.

CUMMINS FOR THIRD TERM.

Iowa Governor Says President Should Withdraw His Refusal.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 24.—In a letter addressed to George E. Bowers of Orange, Iowa, a Republican editor, Gov. Cummins declared that President Roosevelt should withdraw his statement that he will not accept a renomination. The letter, written recently in response to an inquiry concerning Presidential politics, says:

There is a great deal being said and a great deal being written with regard to the candidate for President, but it is vastly more important that we succeed in announcing a platform that will be expressive of our purposes than it is now to determine who shall be the candidate.

Personally I believe that President Roosevelt's plain duty is to withdraw his former statement and to say that under the demand now made, and the evident state of the public mind, he will accept another nomination if it is tendered to him with practical unanimity.

WEDS A STENOGRAPHER.

President Heins Marries Clerk in Commissioner Dunne's Office.

The wedding of John L. Heins, President of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad Company, and Miss Margaret A. Boschen, a stenographer in the office of Public Works Commissioner Desmond Dunne in Brooklyn, took place last evening in the South Congregational Church. Aside from the members of the families of the bride and bridegroom, the only guests present were Commissioner Dunne and his wife. The bride was attended by her sisters, the Misses Elsie, Mildred, and Edna Boschen, as bridesmaids. Mr. Dunne was Mr. Heins's best man.

Mr. Heine and his bride will live in a handsome home in Albermarle Road. Mrs. Heins is a daughter of the late Charles Boschen, who was a produce merchant.

TO CLOSE PENNY ARCADES.

Bingham Plans Campaign Against Cheap Amusement Places.

It is expected that the number of penny arcades, moving picture shows, and other so-called "amusement places" will be noticeably decreased after May 1 by action of Police Commissioner Bingham. There has been much complaint as to loud and unseemly noises made in such places, particularly in Harlem. The police assert, too, that many of the penny arcades and moving picture shows furnish excellent browsing ground for the cheaper class of pickpockets and crooks.

RECORD BRIDGE JAM IN EVENING RUSH

Two Derailed Trains Tie Up Traffic, but Ticket Selling Goes On.

CLIMB FROM STALLED CARS

Passengers Brave Third Rail to Get to Roadways—50,000 in the Crush.

The Brooklyn Bridge groaned last night during the rush hours under the worst crush that has occurred on the structure since crushes became common. An angry mob, estimated by the police at 50,000 persons, trying to get from Manbattan to Brooklyn, fought for space on the station platforms and uttered uncomplimentary opinions of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. The mezzanine platform above the trolley loop and the staircase from Park Row were also jammed. Capt. Murtha of the Bridge Police, aided by all the policemen he could gather, managed to get the crowd into orderly motion before anybody was seriously hurt.

It was all caused by the stalling of a train at each end of the bridge. Shortly before 6 o'clock a bridge train jumped the track while entering the terminal switch in Brooklyn. The accident was caused by the switch becoming unmanageable. Soon afterward train No. 75, in charge of Motorman Charles Brennan, broke a draw bar in ascending the incline on the Manhattan side. In a few moments train No. 100, in charge of Motorman William Keys, ran up the incline and bumbed into the end of Brennan's train.

The wildest excitement prevailed in both trains. The passengers fought their way to the doors, and when the guards refused to open the gates, brushed them aside and hurried out into the roadway. Sergeants Tighe and Smith managed to fight their way into the trains. In the last car of Brennan's train they found two women in hysterics. They said they were Louise Gelderson, 37 years old, of 125 Napier Street, Brooklyn, and Clara Bigelow, 27 years old, of Eighty-ninth Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues, Brooklyn. Both were suffering from shock. They refused medical attention and no ambulance was called for them.

After more than an hour's delay the trains were again set in motion. But their progress was unsteady. They went ahead for a short distance and then were stalled for ten or fifteen minutes. Passengers on the trains became exasperated by these short advances and delays. They demanded that the guards open the gates and let them out into the roadway so that they might walk across, but the guards were deaf to their demands. Then some of the men passengers swung themselves to the network at the side of the tracks and climbed over this to the roadways. The deadly third rails were there, but none seemed to mind them. At times several persons would be in the act of escaping when the train would start. Then there would follow a moment of indecision, which usually resulted in the passengers being left banging to the network.

When the block came the station platforms at the Manbattan end were crowded to the edge. There were plenty of trains in sight, but none moving. On the mezzanine platform was another anxious crowd waiting a chance to buy tickets. Although they must have known there was a block, the agents in the booths kept right on selling tickets. Soon the stairways leading to the station platforms were dangerously packed. More persons from the street kept ascending the stairways from Park Row and from City Hall Park.

The danger in that mob was great. The men utterly disregarded the women, pushing and jostling them violently. Now and then a woman's voice would cry out in protest.

When the trouble was at its height a few helpless policemen on the mezzanine platform managed to ring the gong which warns their Captain at the telephone booth downstairs that there is trouble. Capt. Murtha quickly mustered twenty policemen from the loops and roadways, and as a flying wedge these fought their way into the crowd. When Capt. Murtha reached the booths of the ticket agents the latter were still issuing tickets.

"Here!" shouted the Captain, "stop selling tickets until I tell you to resume. Don't you know that the road is blocked?"

When the excited mob could get no satisfaction while the block continued they turned to abusing the policemen. Men and women gathered around the telephone booth at the south driveway and called Policeman Harry Smith all kinds of names, and upbraided him for the delay. The majority abused him for not posting a guard to warn them that there was a block. Smith bore it bravely.

By 7 o'clock normal conditions were resumed.

THAW CASE INQUIRY.

Jerome Identifies Policeman Who Tried to Influence the Jurors.

The twenty-five policemen who during the recent Thaw trial had posts about the Criminal Court Building spent an unpleasant half hour in District Attorney Jerome's office yesterday. They were confronted by Charles D. Newton, one of the Thaw jurors, who has told the District Attorney that upon one occasion as the jurors were entering the trial room a policeman called out:

"Don't forget that Thaw's father was a Mystic Shriner."

Although neither Mr. Jerome nor his assistant, Mr. Smyth, who has had charge of the inquiry, will discuss the case, it is known that the policeman who addressed the jurors is known to them. It is felt, however, that he has not been guilty of a crime in the eyes of the law, but has merely offended against the police rules and regulations.

$300,000 Fire in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The Zoeller Packing Company, occupying two acres of ground on Spring Garden Avenue, Allegheny, was destroyed by fire to-night, causing an estimated loss of about $300,000.

CHANCE FOR MILLIONAIRES.

Senor Senillosa Wants $20,000,000 for South American Education.

Tired of spending his money and time in an effort to interest people of the United States in the affairs of the Argentine Repuhlic and other South American countries, Juan Antonio Senillosa, ex-Consul General of the Argentine Republic in Canada, and a member of the first families of Argetina, has inserted an advertisement in the columns of THE TIMES, beginning with the line, "Wanted—A Millionaire Philanthropist."

In his advertisement Señor Senillosa asks for a man willing to spend $20,000,000 in carrying out certain educational plans which he has in mind. These plans, he says, he has been working on since 1902.

"I meant just what I said in that advertisement," he explained in answer to a question put to him last night by a TIMES reporter. Then, laying aside the latest edition of the Buenos Ayres News, containing pictures of the principals who figured in the Thaw trial, the Señor went to his desk in his library and brought forth letters which he had received from many men prominent in the affairs of the United States. There was one from Secretary Elihu Root, another from President Eliot of Harvard University, and a third from John Barrett, United States Minister to Panama. The latter was a letter introducing Señor Senillosa to President Hadley of Yale.

Señor Senillosa said he showed these letters to prove that he was not a trifler. He had represented his country at the St. Louis Exposition as the Argentine Commissioner of Social Economics, and was now anxious to spread the ethical influence of the United States in Latin America. To do this it required much money, although, he said, $10,000,000 would go far toward the end sought.

PINED FOR NEW YORK.

Terrier Couldn't Stand Middletown, N. Y., So He Trotted Home.

Bull, a bright hull terrier, lived in New York until several weeks ago. Then his master, who was leaving the city for a spell, intrusted him to William D. Steele, a dog fancier, who lives in Middletown, N. Y. One day Bull found himself in a basket, and when the lid was lifted discovered that he was in the country.

For days Bull pined for Broadway. Country life did not agree with him. It was too dull. He would rather tug on a leash than romp free over the hills. About a week ago Steele looked for Bull high and low, but could not find him. He searched every nook in Middletown without success. He was working himself into a fine fume on Tuesday about what excuse he would have to make to Bull's master, when through the police at Middletown he received a communication from Julius Puschell, chef at the West Shore Hotel, at Eleventh Avenue and Forty-second Street, this city, asking him if he had lost a bulldog. Steele replied promptly, and Bull was returned to him.

Puschell was at work in the kitchen of the hotel on Tuesday, when a tired bull terrier sneaked in and asked as well as a dog could ask for something to eat. Puschell fed him and then discovered a Middletown dog license on him, which resulted in the communication to Steele. How Bull got to New York from Middletown only he knows and he can't tell. He probably had trotted all the way—eighty miles in all—crossing the North River on a Weehawken ferryboat. It was natural for him to drop into the hotel, which is near the ferryhouse.

LOST ON THE MIGHTY OCEAN.

A Big British Ship Which Dropped Her Tug Is Trying to Make Port Alone.

Under fore and mizzen topsails the big British ship Main is somewhere within 150 miles southeast of Fire Island, proceeding slowly to port. Her skipper has been passed again and again by incoming vessels, but he has not asked for help, and none has been offered him. He is making a brave effort to come in without the aid of the seageing tug Powerful, which was forced to abandon him after a westerly gale because she ran out of coal.

The tug went to Vineyard Haven and filled her bunkers and returned to find her charge. After four days' search for the ship she dropped in here yesterday only to learn that the Main had been sighted on Tuesday by the steamer Hudson 120 miles southwest of Fire Island.

The Powerful left Bermuda on April 17 with the Main in tow, bound for this port, where the ship was to undergo extensive repairs. On the second day out gales set in, with a head sea, which swept the tug continually. The hawser parted, and the ship drifted for thirty-six hours, the tug standing by. After a lot of trouble life buoys were drifted down to the ship and the hawser again made fast.

The gales continued until the Powerful's coal supply had dwindled to three tons. It was decided that the ship should endeavor to bear up for Montauk Point, while the tug ran in for coal. Her position then was about 25 miles west of Nantucket lightship.

The Powerful returned to the locality where she left the Main, and cruised for days without finding her. She went out again last night to continue the search.

NEW POLICEMAN DISMISSED.

Severe Sentence on Man Who Was Found Off Post.

On the recommendation of Deputy Commissioner Hanson, Police Commissioner Bingham yesterday dismissed Patrolman William J. Flannery, who was attached to the East Twenty-second Street Station, and who on last Thursday was tried for being off post for forty minutes. The severity of the sentence was commented on at Headquarters, and it was pointed out that there were many similar cases in which policemen had been punished only by fines or by additional tours and reserve duty.

Flannery, who was appointed to the force only a month ago, was brought up on charges by Sergt. Wuerz, who testified that he had seen the patrolman coming out of a factory building at Avenue B and Nineteenth Street. After hearing the charges Deputy Commissioner Hanson announced that he would recommend the patrolman's dismissal.

PEACE FLAGS FOR BARTHOLDT

American and German Emblems for Congressman Who Wars on War.

An American and a German flag, each edged with white, were presented yesterday morning to Congressman Richard Bartholdt, President of the American group of the Interparliamentary Union, in recognition of his efforts in the cause of peace. He was the author of the resolution which induced President Roosevelt to summon the second Peace Conference this Summer at The Hague.

The presentation took place in the rooms of John D. Higgins at the Ansonia. It was made by Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of this city, in the presence of 100 members of the church, who formed the Auxiliary Reception Committee at the Peace Conference, held at Carnegie Hall last week. Mr. Bartholdt was born in Germany, but has been naturalized in America for thirty-four years, and the flags symbolized the nations of his birth and his adoption.

In accepting them Mr. Bartholdt said in part: "What a contrast between our country and Europe! Europe, with a dozen kings and as many million men in arms; America with 80,000,000 free men standing for the righteousness of a flag which under the panoply of law holds every man a king and every woman a queen.

"One of these flags will decorate the House of Representatives when the men who are now engaged in this war upon war assemble again. The other will be carried to Berlin to inspire the members of the Interparliamentary Group there to continue to work for the victory of justice and peace upon earth."

GIRLS CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Three Victims of Smokestack's Fall in New Jersey Glass Works.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., April 24.—By the toppling over of a smokestack at the glass works of the T. C. Wheaton Company this morning two young women were crushed to death and a third was so injured that she died half an hour later. The dead are: Silvia Gallagher, aged 17 years; Lena Doughty, 16, and Lydia Thurston, 16. The injured are Ethel Wynocker, shoulders severely bruised; Anna Nesson, aged 17, sids of body and limbs bruised, and Mary Thomas, aged 18, arm broken and body severely bruised.

St. Louis Central Union President Denounces Roosevelt's Letter.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—Owen Miller, President of the Central Trades Union, said to-night:

"I haven't the slightest hesitation in expressing my individual opinion of the President's reply to Mr. Jaxon. It is nothing short of outrageous. The idea of the President of the United States, the highest official in the country, to whom we all look, or should look, with respect for his judgment in weighty affairs, deliberately prejudging men accused of crime is, in my mind, a monstrous thing."

David Kreyling, Secretary of the Central Trades Council, said:

"I do not believe it wise at this time to enter into a controversy with the President or to take issue with him. Mere denunciation of his published utterances cannot accomplish any good results or help the cause of the accused men."

PRESIDENT TALKS AGAIN.

Convinces Labor Representatives His Opinion Is Right.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The President to-day talked with two of his visitors about his attitude toward labor organizations. These persons were S. B. Hamer, chief conductor of West Virginia of the Order of Railway Conductors, and R. H. Graham, an attorney representing the West Virginia Conductors.

He discussed the Haywood and Moyer cases, taking the same position in this matter as he did in the letter made public yesterday. The President told the railroad men particularly of what he had done for the benefit of railway organizations in his advocacy and support of the railway employers' liability bill and the safety appliance law.

The two men left the White House expressing satisfaction with the position the President had taken in the Moyer-Haywood controversy.

WHAT LOCAL LEADERS SAY.

One Union Passes a Resolution Denouncing the President.

The labor unions generally in this city were indignant yesterday at President Roosevelt's reply to letters from various labor bodies asking him to retract his statement that Moyer, Haywood, and Debhe are undesirable citizens.

Edward Hourigan, Secretary of District No. 15 of the International Association of Machinists, said that his union, which has 15,000 members, passed resolutions denouncing President Roosevelt.

"President Roosevelt only made matters worse," he said, "and his sweeping charges against unions only intensifies the effect of his first statement. It is not fair to jurjudge men on trial and there is no doubt that what he said was calculated to influence public sentiment before the trial."

J. W. Hamilton, General President of the Lithographers' International Protective and Beneficial Association, said: "I would be more manly for President Roosevelt to retract his unfair remark than to get out of a retraction by making more unfair statements. If he does not retract he will hear from the unions next election."

John W. Dyche, General Secretary of the Women's Garment Workers' International Union, said that President Roosevelt's letter meant nothing.

"He is simply trying to crawl out of the hole he has put himself into," he continued. "He has made a bad mistake, but does not want to admit it. He simply makes excuses to get out of an unpleasant fix, and puts up a very poor argument. Even if the charge that the unions are trying to prejudice the public in favor of the defendants, Moyer and Haywood, were true, it is no reason why he should try to prejudice the public against them. Two wrongs do not make a right."

Vice President Andrew Hellther of the International Association of Metal Polishers and Brass Workers said that President Roosevelt's refusal to retract was an outrage. As President of the United States he had no right to prejudge a case.

"One word from President Roosevelt," he said, "would mean more than a thousand from me. He has shown himself the able representative of the moneyed classes, and I do not see how any working man, union or non-union, could vote for him again."

CARD SHARPERS ON TRAINS.

Company After Gang That Operates on Pittsburg-New York Fliers.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 24.—The Pennsylvania Railroad has issued instructions to its detectives and conductors of passenger trains to be on the lookout for a gang of professional gamblers who are reported to be working on the fast through trains between New York and Pittsburg.

The gang obtains possession of a drawing room when the train pulls out, and then goes through the train inviting strangers to "a hand in a quiet little game." After their victims have been assembled the door of the drawing room is locked and is not reopened until they have been stripped of all the cash they have. Repeated complaints have been made to the company by men who have been swindled by the gang.

MAJOR GILLETTE DISMISSED.

Mayor Reyburn Says He Was an Expensive Luxury.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Major Cassius Gillette, Chief of the Bureau of Filtration, was forced to resign his $17,000-a-year post to-day by Director Stearns of the Department of Public Works.

"The action of Director Stearns in asking Major Gillette to resign," said Mayor Reyburn to-night, "was along the line of economy. There is no longer any need, in the opinion of the Director, of a $17,000 expert. Such expensive luxuries are no longer required.

The statement that Major Gillette drew up explaining his resignation was sent out by him to-night to the newspapers. It is in part as follows:

"Director Stearns this afternoon requested my resignation and I have given it to him, since the 'criminal combination masquerading as Republicans' has been returned to political power, and it is perfectly logical that they should want somebody else put in my place.

"I obeyed Secretary Taft's orders in coming here, did my duty and laid bare the crimes committed against the people, and now I obey the orders of the new head of the department in handing in my resignation. This is all I have to say at present."

With the dismissal of Major Gillette has come the question of the now famous $75,000 bond which he demanded from Thomas B. Wanamaker, John Weaver, then Mayor, and ex-Judge Gordon.

In discussing this bond to-night Mr. Gordon said that the salary had been guaranteed Major Gillette by himself, Mr. Weaver, and Mr. Wanamaker, and that it would be paid him. He added that Major Gillette's dismissal "shows the attitude of this administration," and "that Major Gillette is the last man they (the organization, evidently,) want."

LID IS DOWN HARD ON BANK ROBBERY

MUCH TO BE EXPLAINED

Officials Refuse to Tell How Many Bonds Were Taken or the Amount of the Loss.

The lid went down on the Trust Company of America bond robbery case yesterday afternoon after Oliver M. Dennett, the broker-banker, and William O. Douglas, the ex-assistant loan clerk, had both been held for trial in $10,000 bail, having waived examination. But there were left things that the officials of the company, at first so ready to tell about the theft and its detection, had failed entirely to explain.

So far as official information was concerned the police end of the mystery was cleared up when Dennett was arrested on Tuesday night and bonds that backed $140,000 losses of the Douglas-Dennett combination were found by the trust company people, in addition to the $20,000 in bonds that were found in Dennett's bed at the Manhattan Club Monday morning.

It was only necessary to try out the legal issue as to whether the company would recover these losses, which it had paid to the brokers in obtaining the releases of a part of the bonds. The fact that President Thorne explained yesterday that the $140,000 item represented $77,000 in cash paid out and $63,000 in market value of bonds located but not recovered, did not change the condition materially.

There the official information stopped. Indeed, William F. Sheehan, a Director of the company, in whose hands the legal end of the matter was put after Monday, declared that he was all through with it.

Case Closed, Sheehan Says.

"The police end closed with Dennett's arrest," said Mr. Sheehan as he was leaving his office last night. "The possible loss to the trust company was correctly etated in Mr. Thorne's interview of yesterday morning, and we are not looking for any one else to the best of my knowledge."

"Then why was the arrest of Dennett delayed for two days after you had him practically in your hands?" Mr. Sheehan was asked.

"So that some other things could be run down," was Mr. Sheehan's reply.

But Mr. Sheehan would not say what these other things were; neither why the physical arrest of Dennett had such a magical effect in clearing up the situation. There were these other things that neither Mr. Sheehan nor Mr. Thorne would explain, despite the fact that the situation was "cleared up":

How many bonds were stolen from the trust company all told.

Who the individual or individuals still under suspicion might be, if any such remained.

With what brokers the bonds were pledged by Dennett or Douglas.

What, if anything had been discovered about the partnership apparently existing between Dennett, Douglas, and some one named Reardon, presumably a woman stenographer in Dennett's office.

The fact of this partnership came to light in the finding of letterheads with the firm name of Douglas, Dennett & Reardon in Dennett's office when the detectives made a search there. Letters were also found from customers, some demanding settlements of accounts, and from this stories arose that it was a bucket shop proposition that Dennett had undertaken to work here.

But folks who make it their business to discover incipient bucket shops were disposed to discredit the bucket shop idea on the basis that none of Dennett's known operations since the firm of R. F. Moseley & Co. quit the Consolidated Stock Exchange had been of this order.

On the contrary, he had been having bond dealings on a small scale with reputable houses, such presumably as are concerned in the hypothecation of the trust company's bonds in the present instance. Furthermore, there would be no occasion in such a scheme as Dennett and Douglas were believed to have carried on together to enter the bucket shop field.

When Dennett was in the West Side Court at 10 o'clock yesterday morning Former J. Hennessy, his lawyer, made a determined effort to get bail fixed at something less than $10,000, which sum met the view of Magistrate Walsh, but this was to no end, and Mr. Hennessy said right afterward that it would be quite impossible for his client to furnish any such sum. Dennett was taken back to his cell, which was well removed from the one that Douglas had occupied since his arrest.

But nevertheless when Douglas was arraigned late in the afternoon his attorney, R. H. Honey, told the Magistrate that the two men were too near together, and asked that one of them be put elsewhere. A good deal of comment was created by this statement, in view of the fact that Douglas and Dennett could not have possibly spoken to each other in their imprisonment, and also to the additional fact that Honey made no effort to have Douglas admitted to bail, but agreed to the $10,000 suggested by the District Attorney's office, which there was no chance of having Douglas furnish.

Douglas on the Rack.

Assistant District Attorney Murphy was in conference most of the day yesterday with President Thorne or Vice President Crimmins of the Trust Company, and he and Mr. Thorne had a long talk with Douglas in the morning. But Mr. Murphy's labors did not produce any new developments, so far as the public was concerned, and the fourth day of the investigation closed with Douglas in the Tombs and Dennett in the West Fifty-fourth Street prison, awaiting trial.

Reports were persistent that there was still some confederate of Dennett's for whom the officials were looking, possibly some one in Boston, for Dennett's connections in New York do not indicate that he had any backer here among the known members of the financial under world.

President Thorne of the truet company denied last night that any one else was under suspicion in the company's staff of employes. When asked about a current rumor that a general investigation of the company would be ordered to ascertain by what methods so large a theft of securities could occur in a considerable period of time without being detected, Mr. Thorne said:

"Better ask the Directors. There's nobody would welcome an investigation more than I."

Several Directors of the trust company denied yesterday that any such move was on foot.

GOT VERDICT; CAN'T COLLECT.

Stonecutter Gets Execution Against Directors of Dissolved Company.

Oakleigh Thorne, President of the Trust Company of America; Warner Van Norden, President of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, and six other stockholders of the Remington Construction Company are threatened with suit by Frederick W. Park, a lawyer, unless an execution issued yesterday, is realized upon when presented at the office of Mr. Thorne, former Treasurer of the construction company.

The execution is the result of a judgment entered last March for $26,886.74 damages, awarded Charles E. Taylor, a stone cutter, for whom Mr. Park appears as counsel. The construction company has been dissolved by mutual consent of the stockholders, the dissolution taking place between the time a suit for $40,000 damages was entered by Taylor and when the case came to trial.

One of the jobs done by the concern was the construction of the Knickerbocker Trust Company Building. It was on this job that Taylor fell from a scaffold and sustained injuries which resulted in epilepsy.

SHAW UTTERS A WARNING.

Ex-Secretary Tells Brooklyn Bankers New Banking System is Needed.

Leslie M. Shaw, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, addreeeed the Brooklyn and Long Island Group of the Bankers' Association last night at a dinner held in the Assembly, Fulton and Pierrepont Streets, Brooklyn. He took as his subject the currency system and described the weak points as he sees them. He compared it to a rope leading the horse Commerce, and warned his audience that if we are not careful some day or other the knot will slip through our fingers. However, he did not mean by that there was at the present time any financial crash imminent, but only that sooner or later one was sure to come.

"We should adopt a system," he went on, 'by which the National banks might expand their issues during a time of stringency, subject to a tax heavy enough to insure the withdrawal of the additional notes as soon as the presure is past. Then we should permit notes drawn against actual values to pass from bank to bank as freely as sight drafts do now.

"If that were done we should have almost all the advantages of a central institution, like the Bank of England or the Bank of France. I do not think we are ever likely to have such an institution, and I believe it is a waste of time to urge its advantages. The first thing we should consider is whether some other system can be devised to take its place."

Mr. Shaw went on to say that he believed that this could be done by means of the trust companies. They have rather more liberty of action than the banks, and once they have demonstrated to some extent the advantages of a better system of currency, he thought that there would be no difficulty in getting the necessary legislation for its adoption.

COURTS BALK JOHNSON.

Two Cleveland Street Car Lines Shut Down and People Walk.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 24.—The traction war between Mayor Tom L. Johnson and the Cleveland Electric Company has again resolved itself into a battle of injunctions. The old company last night removed all cars from its Central and Quincy Avenue lines, and despite the efforts of the Mayor to replace them, people all along these five miles of tracks had to walk or take cabs and automobiles. The company started to tear up the track early this morning, but the workmen were stopped by the police.

One of the three-cent fare companies organized at the instance of Mayor Johnson holds a franchise on these lines, but that company has no cars on that side of the river, and the other company is restrained by injunctions.

The City Council at a meeting to-night took steps to grant another franchise to the low-fare company, but it will be about ten days before the cars can be operated.

Three low-fare companies are in operation here, each endeavoring to aid the other, and it keeps the Cleveland Electric Company busy heading them off.

BAD HEALTH DUE TO RICHES.

Management of His Vast Estate Too Much for A. S. Cochrane.

Prof. A. V. Williams Jackson of Columbia University and Alexand Smith Cochrane, President of the Alex. Smith Son's Carpet Company, sailed on the Kronprinz Wilhelm to-day. After a stay in Paris they will proceed to Constantinople, and later go to Northwestern Persia and through Armenia. After some time in Central Asia they will return by way of Siberia next Summer.

Prof. Jackson, who is a Columbia University teacher of Oriental languages, has made two other trips to Asia. Mr. Cochrane lost his health in the management of the vast wealth that came to him by the death of his father, William F. Cochrane, and his uncle, Warren B. Smith, several years ago.

TO END CAR SHORTAGE.

Railway Association Plans Fine for Keeping Cars of Other Roads.

CHICAGO, April 24.—Decisive action was taken to-day by the American Railway Association to remedy the car shortage, so far as the trouble has been due to the lack of proper and equitable interchanging arrangements. The failure of some roads to furnish a sufficient quota of equipment for their own traffic and the failure to provide and enforce proper rules for the return of foreign cars to their own roads are responsible for the shortage.

The association adopted a rule, to be confirmed later by letter ballot of all the roads, providing that any railroad which shall hereafter not promptly return to its owner after unloading all cars consigned to it, shall be penalized $5 for each car so misused, to be paid to the owner of the car. This penalty is in addition to the daily charge of 50 cents, which, after July 1, each road must pay for each car not its own which may be on its lines.

In order to make the new rule more effective, the principle of publicity is to be invoked through the instrumentality of the Car Clearing House, recently established in Chicago.

CHURCH CHORAL CONCERT.

Works by Saint-Saens and Elgar Among the Selections Sung.

The Church Choral Society, Richard Henry Warren, conductor, gave its second recital of this season yesterday afternoon in the Church of Zion and St. Timothy. The principal works chosen for presentation were Saint-Saëns's setting of the "Nineteenth Psalm," and Elgar's "Light of Life." As usual at the recitals of this organization, choir, soloists, orchestra, and director were surplieed. The mission of the society was thus set forth in the programme:

"There is much music written for the church which must fail when sung in the concert room. It was conceived for other acoustic conditions, and without those conditions much of its solemnity and beauty is lost. It is necessary also that propriety of mood be enlisted if sacred music is to make something more than an appeal to the sense of hearing; this sense of mind is essential to performance as to enjoyment, and is largely dependent on place, occasion, and selection."

Neither of the works chosen for this occasion particularly gained by being sung in a church, and either of them has been better presented under the plainer conditions of the concert hall. There was something very uninspiring in the way the "Psalm" was dragged through, and this soloist has much to learn in the way of choral singing. Some of the soloists found it difficult to stick to the key, although it must be admitted that some of the Saint-Saëns music is not adapted to singing.

The soloists in the "Nineteenth Psalm" were Mrs. Genevieve Clark Wilson, soprano; Mrs. Grace Clark Kahler, soprano; Pearl Benedict, contralto; Dr. Franklin Lawson, tenor; Thomas H. Chalmers, baritone; Frank Hemstreet, baritone; Arthur Phillps, baritone, and Frank Croxton, bass. In "The Light of Life," Mrs. Wilson, Miss Benedict, and Messrs. Croxton and Lawson sang the solo parts. Felix Lamond played the organ and an orchestra assisted. The church was filled.

DIES IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE.

H. S. Whiting Suddenly Succumbs While Talking to Dr. Wyeth.

While he was engaged in conversation with Dr. John A. Wyeth in the surgeon's office at 244 Lexington Avenue yesterday morning regarding a slight physical trouble, Holland S. Whiting, a real estate operator, dropped dead. Dr. Wyeth was about to administer a treatment that ordinarily would not have been painful. Coroner Harburger has ordered an autopsy, though it is believed that Mr. Whiting died of heart disease. The body was taken to the Morgue.

Mr. Whiting was born in this city in 1857 and was graduated from Yale in the class of 1879, after which he engaged in the manufacture of wall paper with his father, F. H. N. Whiting, then a prominent manufacturer of Milwaukee. Several years ago he came to New York and began to speculate in real estate. He had been married and is survived by three children. Of late he had been living at the Union League Club.

After the autopsy his sister, Mrs. F. H. Johnson of 47 East Fifty-eighth Street, will claim the body and make arrangements for the funeral.

AUTO BURGLARS REAPPEAR

Young Woman Sits in the Tonneau While House Is Looted.

The automobile burglars, who left Long Island last year after they had obtained much loot, when it became too hot for them, have reappeared. Throughout the looting of a house in Springfield, Queens Borough, early yesterday, the automobile, in the tonneau of which sat a fashionably dressed young woman, stood waiting directly in front of the house.

Neighbors of William H. Nostrand, a wealthy manufacturer, who has a handsome home in the Merrick Road, just south of Farmers Avenue, Springfield, noticed a large automobile drawn up in front of the Nostrand house. There were lights in the house, but neighbors supposed that there were late callers in the house.

Inside the house the burglars took not only silver, but table linen, gold watches, money, and oil paintings. Hundreds of automobiles pass along the Merrick Road, and the members of the Nostrand family, accustomed to the noise, were not awakened by the car that stood puffing in front of their home. The detectives have obtained no clue to the identity of the burglars, but they believe they were the same who operated on Long Island last year and then left for other parts.

1876—1907 A CONTRAST IN TRANSPORTATION.

In 1876 the Jarrett and Palmer Special, en route from New York to San Francisco, made the run from Jersey City to Pittsburgh over the Pennsylvania Railroad in ten hours and five minutes without a stop. At the time, this was considered a phenomenal performance. The time of the fastest regular train was fourteen hours and twenty-five minutes.

To-day the "Pittsburgh Day Express" makes the run from Jersey City to Pittsburgh in eight hours and forty-six minutes with six stops. This is an every-day performance; it is the daily schedule of the train.

MURDER TESTIMONY AMUSES THE WOMAN

Mrs. De Massy Laughs When Witnesses Tell of Simon's Last Hour.

QUARRELED OVER MONEY

Coroner's Physician Admits the Old Merchant Might Have Killed Himself.

Mrs. Anisia Louise du Vernon de Massy, on trial in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for the murder of Gustav Simon, a Broadway shirtwaist manufacturer, displayed the same indifference and calmness yesterday during the opening address to the jury of Assistant District Attorney Ely which had characterized her demeanor during the selection of the jury on the first day. Equally collected was she as Mr. Ely called to the witness stand, first, the several physicians who had attended Mr. Simon just before his death, the Coroner's physician who had performed an autopsy on his body, the photographers and draughtsmen who had drawn and pictured the room and its environs in which Mr. Simon had met his death.

Nor did the little Frenchwoman lose her nerve when Miss Rae Forscher, once the bookkeeper and cashier for Mr. Simon, related what she knew of the last eventful day in Mr. Simon's office. Previously she had smiled as Coroner's Physician Weston admitted under cross-examination that the bullet which caused the old merchant's death might have been directed by his own hand. She continued to smile as Miss Forscher told of her quarrel over money with the aged Mr. Simon, and almost laughed aloud as Miss Forscher told of her refusal to leave his office without her wages.

Mr. Ely was brief in his address, which he commenced just before the close of the morning session and completed after recess. He outlined the facts of the shooting, declaring that he need not prove a motive since he would show that the murder had been premeditated and deliberate, and promised the jury that at the conclusion of the trial he would ask them for a verdict of murder in the first degree.

As his first witness Mr. Ely called Dr. Albert T. Weston, who testified concerning the autopsy and as to the bullet having been the cause of death. To Mr. Le Barbier's questioning he then admitted that it might have been self-inflicted.

In the meantime Mr. Ely had introduced into the evidence a plan of the sixth floor of the building in which the tragedy occurred, and also photographs of the rooms and hallways. Mrs. De Massy examined these exhibits with interest, pointing out to Mr. Le Barbier that the drawing did not show the location of the elevator or the stairway alongside. Then Miss Forscher was called.

She told of Mrs. De Massy's first visit to Simon's office on Nov. 12, when she took a position with him as a designer of lingerie waists. She left Simon's employ on the 16th. Miss Forscher said, and at that time Mr. Simon asked her to work again for him later. Mrs. De Massy had replied that she had other work to do, and Simon had asked her to call for her money on Monday.

On that afternoon, the day of the shooting, Miss Forscher said she had been in the office when Mrs. De Massy came in. Mr. Simon was in the factory, and when he entered the office there was another woman, Mrs. Anna Mack, there, who was applying for a position. Mr. Simon dismissed her, the witness said, and then turned to Mrs. De Massy. The latter asked for her money and Simon told her to return at 5:30 o'clock.

The payroll had not been made up, Miss Forscher explained, and the money for it had not yet been brought from the bank. Nevertheless, Mrs. De Massy, the witness said, refused to leave the office, declaring that she would remain there until she was paid. She refused to enter the elevator for which Mr. Simon rung, and he asked her to go quietly down the stairs.

There had been one other person in the office, Miss Forscher testified, a Max Zimmerman, and after Mrs. De Massy had left the office, all three heard a rapping on the door leading into the hall. "The rapping was still continuing as I descended in the elevator on my way to the bank," said Miss Forscher.

On her return the witness said that she had found the shirtwaist shop in an uproar. Mr. Simon was lying wounded in his private office. There were several policemen about, and the witnesss said she saw Mrs. De Massy seated at a desk.

NEW CITY MAGISTRATES.

A. C. Butts, C. N. Harris, and Frederic Kernochan Named for Ten Years.

Mayor McClellan appointed Arthur C. Butts, Charles N. Harris, and Frederic Kernochan City Magistrates yesterday for terms of ten years each, to succeed Magistrates Baker, Sweetser, and Finelite, whose terms expire on May 1.

Mr. Butts is at present the Assistant Corporation Counsel representing the City of New York at Albany. He is a resident of the Bronx and a Democrat. Mr. Butts represented his district for a number of years in the Assembly, and has served as an Assistant Corporation Counsel under Corporation Counsels Whalen, Delany, and Ellison.

Mr. Harris is an Assistant Corporation Counsel, having been originally appointed by Corporation Counsel Morgan J. O'Brien and having served under Corporation Counsels Beekman, Scott, Whalen, Rives, Delany, and Ellison. Mr. Harris was graduated from Georgetown College in 1871 and from the Columbia Law School in 1873, and has practiced law in the offices of Coudert Brothers and Bowers & Sands. He is a resident of the Borough of Manhattan and a lifelong Democrat. Mr. Harris, who is a son-in-law of Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet, is a member of the Catholic Club and a Trustee of St. Stephen's Catholic Church. He is also a member of the Bar Association.

Frederic Kernochan is a resident of Manhattan, a Democrat, and a member of the Democratic General Committee for the Twenty-fifth Assembly District. He was graduated from Yale University in 1898, and from the New York Law School in 1900. Mr. Kernochan was appointed an Assistant Corporation Counsel by Corporation Counsel Rives, and as a Deputy Assistant District Attorney by Mr. Jerome. He is now practicing law as a member of the firm of Rand, Moffat & Webb. Mr. Kernochan is a member of the Bar Association and of the University and Knickerbocker Clubs.

MUST PAY FOR PRINCE SUITE.

Arthur B. Proal was ordered by Justice Truax to pay $7,000 for the rental of what is known as the "Prince Henry" suite at Sherry's. The $7,000 represents rent for six months. Unless he agrees to pay another $7,000 at the end of another six months Mr. Proal will be sued again. And this in spite of the fact that he has not occupied the "Prince Henry" suite since last Summer.

Mr. Proal had lived at Sherry's for eight years. He formerly had a five-year lease on his apartments, which was of the "optional renewal" variety, the option being with Mr. Proal. But Louis Sherry, the proprietor, wished Mr. Proal to sign a lease for five years without the optional clause. Early last Summer, when Mr. Proal was preparing to go to Europe, Mr. Sherry told him that if he did not care to take a five years' lease B. J. Goodheart would be glad to take the apartments.

Mr. Sherry says that Mr. Proal agreed then to sign the five-year lease, and that it was sent up to his apartments. But it was never signed. Mr. Proal and his wife went abroad. When they returned in July Mr. Sherry was abroad. His manager, Eugene Flauraud, was in charge. There was a verbal agreement between Mr. Proal and himself, he says, by which Mr. Proal agreed to take the "Prince Henry" suite in September. But afterward Mr. Proal ordered a house built on Fifty-second Street.

During the eight years Mr. Proal lived at Sherry's his rent was $10,500 a year. But the rent of his apartments has gone up recently, and the price Mr. Sherry is charging for the apartments, which have not been used, is $14,000 a year.

The "Prince Henry" suite got its name several years ago when Prince Henry of Germany visited this country. He occupied the apartment on the fourth floor of Sherry's.

DEFENDS SCULPTOR BARNARD

His Mother-in-Law Tells of His Work for Pennsylvania Capitol.

George Grey Barnard, the American sculptor, who was selected to do the sculpture work for the Pennsylvania Capitol Building, over which there has been a scandal, has earnest champions in the persons of his mother-in-law, Mrs. L. B. Monroe, and her daughters, who live at 251 West 100th Street. At present work upon the two groups and the bas reliefs which Mr. Barnard intended should typify the apotheosis of labor has come to a standstill for lack of funds, it having been discovered by the sculptor that the original appropriation of $100,000 was inadequate. It is thought that at least $50,000 more will be required.

The models for the first group, which is to represent the pain of labor, are in Carrara, Italy, where they were sent that this part of the work might be finished in marble. As, however, there is no money to pay for it, this group remains unfinished. The second group, typifying the joy of labor, together with two bas reliefs, is in the sculptor's studio in Moret, France. If the funds were forthcoming at once it would still require two years in which to finish the work.

"My son-in-law," said Mrs. Monroe yesterday, "went abroad to do this work that he might be more conveniently situated with regard to materials and models. He has worked with might and main that the work might be done in time. He fairly ran about his studio economizing even motion. But for eight months now the work has remained in the same state. In order to earn his living he was obliged to borrow some money from a friend with which to engage in the buying and selling of objects of art. He would go out to outlying villages and sometimes among peasants he would come across valuable objects. Whatever he made above his living expenses in this way he would devote to the work he had in hand for the Capitol.

"In the beginning, to induce him to undertake the work at the figure which they afterward boasted was a very low one, they made him all sorts of promises. They would buy this work and that work of him, they said, and he would be engaged on other matters about the Capitol. None of these verbal promises were kept, and at present the work is not progressing."

NO 4½ PER CENT. CITY BONDS

Controller Metz Explains City's Desire to Fix the Interest Rate.

Controller Metz issued a statement yesterday explaining that his visit to Albany had not been for the purpose of obtaining legislation that would enable the city to issue bonds at 4½ per cent., but to have the power of fixing the rate of interest to be paid by the city given to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. The statement, in part, was as follows:

"It has apparently been assumed that the city intends issuing bonds at 4½ per cent. This is not the case. We have been getting money on revenue bonds at 4½ per cent. recently, and I feel sure we can sell long-time bonds at 4 per cent. if we have to. The idea of having the existing restriction repealed and the power of fixing the rate given to the Sinking Fund Commission is simply for the purpose of tiding us over in case we are ever caught in a condition such as existed a few weeks ago.

"Under such conditions, and with a market such as we recently had, the Controller would sell only such bonds as he had to have for immediate payment, and sales would be for small amounts only. Any apprehension as to a higher rate on city bonds is unjustified.

"I hope that the bill giving the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund power to fix the rate will pass and be approved by the Governor."

DECLARES HAMMOND VICTIM OF A PLOT

ALIENISTS STUDY CASE

J. W. Davis Says Detained Man's Friends Will Act To-day When Further Examination Is Made.

James Bartlett Hammond, President of the Hammond Typewriter Company, who was committed on Tuesday by Magistrate Walsh to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue for five days' examination as to his sanity, was visited yesterday by Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald and Dr. William B. Coley, the two alienists who were witnesses in the hearing that resulted in Hammond's commitment, and by Dr. P. S. Bailey, another alienist.

Accompanying the doctors was a lawyer, said to be Alexander Brough of 150 Nassau Street. It was reported that he was present to look after the interests of Thomas F. Hammond, the brother of the alleged lunatic, who obtained his commitment. For more than an hour the alienists inspected Mr. Hammond, and, without expressing any opinion, decided that they would return to-day for a further examination.

Dr. Minas S. Gregory, the resident alienist at Bellevue, said that he had not yet made any examination of Mr. Hammond, nor has his assistant, Dr. Holmes. Dr. Gregory said that from the history of the case as given him he had learned that he had been using drugs and strong drink; and that, for this reason, he thought it best to permit his mind to resume its normal poise, divorced from the influences of either drink or drug before he should subject him to a mental examination. He has five days—the period of commitment in which to make the examination. Dr. Gregory said he thought the influence of drink or drug ought to be removed, if such existed, within three days. That would give him an opportunity to observe Mr. Hammond.

After the experts had left the ward a man who said he was James W. Davis tried to see Mr. Hammond. According to Mr. Davis, Mr. Hammond is absolutely sane, but is the victim of a plot, whose instigators he had no hesitancy in naming.

"It's a shame to have him in such a place as this," said he. "He is no more insane than I am. I was his classmate at the University of Vermont, and have been a Director of the Hammond Company since its inception.

"Mr. Hammond has always been in dread lest such a thing as this should happen to him. He has always been more or less eccentric. I remember when we others wer preparing for examination in college Hammond would go off to the Adirondacks and spend some days; then come back and cram up in a short time sufficiently to beat most of us out. He was of unusually bright mind.

"On another occasion, when I was traveling with him on his sailing yacht down the coast on a trip to Florida, Mr. Hammond thought he was short of funds. He put into Norfolk, and there Mr. Hammond went to a man whom he had appointed manager for that district and got from him enough money instead of applying to his own bankers.

"His eccentricities have been exaggerated. There will be other alienists and other lawyers here to-morrow to look into this matter."

E. S. LITTELL'S NAME FORGED.

Swindler Passes Bad Checks on Downtown Merchants.

Worthless checks have been passed in the last few days on several jewelers in the Maiden Lane district in payment for jewelry and diamonds, and the police were yesterday asked to find a distinguished looking man about 60 years old, who has a smooth face, is almost bald, but has a few gray locks. He passed the checks by representing himself as E. S. Littell, a member of a wholesale drug firm at 228 Fulton Street.

The man with the bad checks started operations by buying a $40 suit of clothes at Lambert's clothing store in Cortlandt Street and paying with an order on the Greenwich Bank. Smartly attired in the new clothes, he walked into the store of C. A. Keene, 180 Broadway, two blocks away, and bought a watch and chain for $59.60. The jeweler accepted the stranger's check, to which was the Littell name forged. The purchaser's manner was so urbane that as he chatted about the drug business for a few moments after selecting the watch there was no suspicion on the jeweler's part.

Next came a visit to the store of Benedict Brothers, 141 Broadway, and here the forger overdid the part of an opulent merchant. He picked out diamond earrings worth $185 and remarked pleasantly that as his cook was about to marry his coachman a wedding present of about that size was in order. Mr. Benedict was not sure of his visitor, so he courteously said that he would send the earrings over to Mr. Littell's office.

The real Mr. Littell was surprised when a messenger walked in with the earrings, and they were sent back. About the same time Mr. Keene, the clothing dealer, and some others who had accepted the checks got them back, as Mr. Littell has no account at the Greenwich Bank. He was at a loss to account for the use of his name, and has joined with the losers in calling on the police to catch the swindler.

DRINKING BOWLS FOR HORSES

The S. P. C. A. Plans to Put Many of Them on the East Side.

Plans for providing drinking bowls for horses on the east side and in other congested parts of the city were completed yesterday by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. A model basin has been selected and will be submitted to the Municipal Art Commission for approval.

Sources of Distinctiveness in Saks Clothes

Talk Number Two Which Has To Do With Designing

Every Saks model is a creation—not a rehearsal. It is a product of the big pulsing present, with no hint of forgotten yesterdays—no return to past triumphs.

The Saks Designer begins with the coat-body, and gives it new lines, proper balance and character, with special treatment as to shoulders, collar, lapels, pockets and cuffs.

Trousers and Waistcoats form studies in themselves; each is translated into a garment with separate, distinct identity.

In this manner there is infused into Suits and Top Coats identified with the Saks label a style and individuality which divorce them from all others of their ilk. In all of which you have another good reason to justify a preference.

CZAR'S KNOWLEDGE SURPRISES GOLOVIN

NO HINT OF DISSOLUTION

President of Lower House Does Not Believe Reactionary Campaign Has Swayed Monarch.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—The confidants of M Golovin, President of the lower house of Parliament, are very reticent regarding the details of the audience which he had with Emperor Nicholas yesterday, but it is learned that the discussion was frank and unreserved. His Majesty spoke his mind freely and showed himself to be surprisingly well posted on the transactions in Parliament, which he explained by the fact that he reads all the reports on the subject every night. The Emperor criticised M. Golovin's action, questioning his impartiality in allowing much more freedom to the Radicals than to the Conservatives, mentioning particularly several speeches of M. Alexinsky, Social Democrat, which, the Emperor said, should not have been permitted.

M. Golovin, in defense, pleaded his difficult position as head of a Radical Parliament.

Various features of the Ministerial programme were discussed, but there was no hint of a dissolution of Parliament and the difficulties between Premier Stolypin and the Lower House were not mentioned.

M. Golovin, previous to departing, alluded to the importance of direct relations between the Monarch and the head of the Lower House, and said he hoped his Majesty would deign to receive him again. The Emperor assented and explained that his delay in granting the President an audience was due to the pressure of affairs.

In the opinion of M. Golovin the reactionary campaign against Parliament has not made any headway with the Emperor.

A number of provincial Governors have arrived in St. Petersburg to support the movement of the Reactionists in favor of a dissolution of Parliament on the ground that the debates are causing dangerous agitation and ferment.

Senator Akymoff has been appointed President of the Council of the Empire, (Upper House of Parliament,) in succession to Baron Frisch, who died on April 13. M. Akymoff, who is a brother-in-law of ex-Interior Minister Durnovo, has been acting as Judge in the trial of Assistant Interior Minister Gurko and M. Litvinoff, head of a department in the Interior Ministry, before the High Court of Justice, on the charge of misappropriating millions of bushels of grain intended for the famine sufferers.

BANDIT'S HOUSE BOMBARDED.

Lis Captured, Mortally Wounded, After Killing Several Policemen.

WARSAW, April 24.—A notorious brigand, Stanislaus Lis, the author of many crimes, has been captured at Lublin, ninety-five miles from here, mortally wounded, after the house in which he had sought refuge had been blown to pieces by artillery fire.

Lis, when he saw that a detachment of police was advancing on the house, barricaded himself within and opened fire on the police, killing several of them. Troops were summoned to the assistance of the police, but they were unable to dislodge the bandit. Finally several quick-firing field pieces were brought up and trained on the house.

Eight shells hit the building, which was demolished, after which the infantry stormed the ruins and found Lis, desperately wounded, trying to reload his revolver, which he had emptied at the attacking party.

REACTIONARY BISHOP COMING.

Bishop Plato to Head the Russian Church in This Country.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—The Right Rev. Sergius, Bishop of Finland, having indicated his unwillingness to succeed the Rev. Dr. Tikhon as Archbishop of the Orthodox Russian Church in the United States, the Holy Synod met again to-day and elected the Right Rev. Plato to the post.

Bishop Plato is one of the youngest prelates in the Russian Church. He was born in 1866. He is a professor and Director of the Kieff Theological Academy. Bishop Plato is a tall man of impressive bearing, and wears a full black beard.

He achieved especial prominence in politics in Kieff, where he openly aided the Reactionary Union of Russian People, under whose sponsorship he was elected a member of the Lower House of Parliament after a bitter contest. In the Duma, however, he has shown little sympathy with M. Purishkevich, Vice President of the Union of Russian People, and his followers, joining the more moderate group under Count Bobrinsky.

Speaking in the House on one occasion in reply to attacks from the Left, Bishop Plato said: "I got down in the mud at Kieff in order to save the Jews from those who would attack them."

TO AID EXPORTS TO RUSSIA.

Permanent Exposition of Manufactures Is Planned.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—Upon the initiative of Ethelbert Watts, the American Consul General, a number of industrial representatives and members of the Consular Corps held a meeting here to-night to consider the establishment of a permanent international exposition of manufactures in the Russian capital. The Philadelphia Trade Museum has been taken as a model for the new organization.

A committee, which includes the American, British, Spanish, and Turkish Consuls, was appointed to formulate a project. The Consular representatives of Germany, Norway, and Sweden, whose trade will suffer by increasing the facilities of importing from more distant countries, are flatly opposed to the plan, but Finance Minister Kokovsoff and Minister of Commerce Filossofoff have expressed full approval of it.

Mr. Watts is presenting the matter to Washington.

Big St. Petersburg Strike.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—A sympathetic strike started in several factories here to-day, including Nobel's. Ten thousand men already are out, and it is feared that the strike will become general.

This movement is an outcome of a conflict that occurred yesterday between troops and a number of men who held an illegal meeting in a factory. Twenty of the workmen were injured by sabres and whips in the hands of the soldiers.

NICARAGUA AND SALVADOR AGREE

Peace Treaty Signed at Amapala —Salvador's Conditions Accepted.

HONDURAN WAR STILL ON

SAN SALVADOR, April 24.—A treaty of peace between Salvador and Nicaragua was signed last night at Amapala by Ministers representing each country. The terms of the treaty are honorable to both countries.

The conditions proposed by Salvador were accepted. The demands made by President Zelaya of Nicaragua for reparation for Salvador's part in the recent war and that there be a free interchange of commodities between Nicaragua and Salvador were rejected.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The State Department has been informed of the successful conclusion of the peace negotiations at Amapala. A cablegram received to-day from Capt. Doyle of the cruiser Chicago, dated yesterday, says:

"Peace conference agreed to treaty at 11 a. m."

Capt. Doyle added that the Peace Commissioners and their staffs would embark last evening. It is understood from this that Señor Gamez, who represented Nicaragua, will be taken on the Boston to Corinto and that Señor Garcia, the representative of Salvador, will go aboard the Chicago and be taken to Acajutla.

The details or the agreement are lacking.

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, April 20, (Via Mobile, April 24.)—Elections in Honduras for a President and a Congress to replace the defeated Bonilla Administration will be held in about sixty days, according to the plans of the Provisional Government organized at Tegucigalpa a few days ago.

This provisional Government represents three Honduran parties, namely, the Independent Liberals, the Arias, and the Policarpo Bonilla factions. Gen. Davila, the provisional President, was elected Vice President with Manuel Bonilla, the deposed President, but disagreed with his chief and retired.

By order of the Minister of War of the provisional Government Gen. Estrada of Nicaragua has been appointed General in Chief of the Honduran and Nicaraguan forces operating in the western departments, with instructions to establish his headquarters at Santa Barbara in order to direct operations against Santa Rosa and Ocotepeque, in the Department of Copan, which points have been occupied for several days by the Honduran forces of Manuel Bonilla.

Recruiting has been going on for some days. Under the law all the Hondurans are liable to military duty, and each successive Government takes up the same men, so it is probable that one-half or more of the Honduran force now being organized are friendly to the Manuel Bonilla Government.

No information is obtainable here as to the number of Bonilla's forces at Santa Rosa or Ocotepeque.

The United States gunboat Marietta landed an additional force of men here last night to police the town.

MOBILE, Ala., April 24.—According to news received here to-day by steamer another revolution is starting in Honduras in favor of Manuel Bonilla, and it has gained some headway in the vicinity of El Pimiento and Chaloma. The railroad bridge at Chaloma has been tampered with, and every one along the line of the road is said to be ready to rise at a moment's notice.

Guatemala, it is reported, has a large force on the border, about forty miles from Puerto Cortez, but it has made no move yet.

COATZACOALCOS, Mexico, April 24.—Ex-President Manuel Bonilla of Honduras arrived here last night. He states that he will await here the arrival of a steamer from the South which will bring a friend whom he refuses to name, and that with this friend he will proceed to Belize, and from there back to his own country.

He has apartments at the Colon Hotel and there to some callers he to-day bitterly arraigned the Presidents of all the Central American republics. He takes a most pessimistic view of the outlook in Central America, and says the Presidents need some one stronger than they are to thrash them into a sense of what is fitting and right. He says his own deposition from the Presidency was due to bad faith on the part of Salvador.

Churchill Now a Right Honorable.

LONDON, April 24.—Winston Spencer Churchill, Under Secretary for the Colonies, has been made a Privy Councillor, and will be sworn in shortly. It is understood that this honor is a mark of Premier Campbell-Bannerman's appreciation of his work in the Colonial Office, especially in connection with the Imperial Conference.

MAY END WAITERS' STRIKE.

Clemenceau Suggests Arbitration—Striking Bakers Riotous.

Special Cablegram.

Copyright, 1907, by THE NEW YORK TIMES CO.

PARIS, April 24.—At the suggestion of Premier Clemenceau an effort is being made to bring the waiters' strike to an end by arbitration. The situation seems ripe for settlement, for practically all the café and restaurant proprietors have signified their willingness to grant the greater part of the waiters' demands, and the men are anxious to return to work under the new conditions promised.

The chief difficulty lies in the reluctance of the proprietors to treat with the Waiters' Syndicate, which, however, insists that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and that, as the proprietors have an association, the waiters are entitled to have one, too.

This view is taken by M. Clemenceau, who this morning called a number of representative café keepers and urged them to accept the offer of arbitration made by a Justice of the Peace of the First Arrondissement. The waiters at once accepted the proposal and elected five members of the syndicate to represent them before the Magistrate, who is waiting to hear from the other side.

PARIS, April 24.—Strikers attacked several bakeries this morning in attempts to intimidate the bakers who were at work. Many windows were broken with stones. A number of men stormed a bakery in the Rue de Ramey and maltreated the workers, whereupon a number of bystanders joined in the fight and routed the strikers.

Twenty arrests were made.

A MISSIONARY CENTENARY.

Robert Morrison Landed at Canton 100 Years Ago To-day.

SHANGHAI, April 24.—A great Protestant missionary conference, in celebration of the centenary of the landing of Robert Morrison, the English missionary, at Canton, will begin to-morrow.

Seven hundred delegates have already arrived, including twelve Bishops representing the Anglican and American Methodist missionaries, together with missionaries from every province in China and Korea, and many notable visitors from the United States and Great Britain. A new hall erected to the memory of the missionaries and others who lost their lives in the Boxer uprising will be inaugurated.

Subsidiary conferences will extend the proceedings for about three weeks.

Robert Morrison was born at Morpeth, Northumberland, in 1782, and died at Canton in 1834. He studied at the Independent Academy at Hoxton, and in 1807 was sent by the London Missionary Society to Canton, landing there April 25 of that year.

In 1815 Mr. Morrison published a Chinese grammar and New Testament, in 1818 he founded the Anglo-Chinese College at Malacca, and in 1823 his Chinese dictionary was published by the East Indian Company.

AGAIN DISCUSS OUR MEAT.

LONDON, April 24.—There was an attempt in the House of Commons this afternoon to revive the agitation against the American packing houses, but the Board of Trade rather discountenanced it. The subject was brought up by a question of Sir William Bull, Conservative, who suggested the necessity for "protecting the meat trade of this country against the attacks of foreign trusts" and the taking of steps to "prevent meat unfit for food from being marketed here by representatives of the American meat packers."

Mr. Lloyd-George, President of the Board of Trade, reminded Sir William that a bill had already been introduced by the President of the Local Government Board, Mr. Burns, dealing with the importation and preparation of food. Mr. Lloyd-George added:

"I am not aware that there is any cause for further action."

The President of the Board of Trade, however, promised to watch the matter.

TO DIG AT HERCULANEUM.

First Operations Will Be of an Experimental Character.

ROME, April 24.—The Under Secretary for Public Instruction, Signor Cluffelli, replying in the Chamber of Deputies to-day to a question of Deputy Rampoldi on the subject of the excavations at Herculaneum, said the Government intended soon to begin the work. It would have a thoroughly national character, in accordance with what the Ministers believed to be the general feeling of the country. But, Signor Cluffelli added, the advice of foreign scientists would be gratefully accepted.

In conclusion Signor Cluffelli explained that the nature of the work and the ground where the excavations were to be made would not permit of extensive operations. It would be necessary to proceed gradually and thus find out the best way to continue the work, and also form an estimate of the expense which it would be necessary to incur. If the present ordinary appropriation turned out to be insufficient the Government would present a demand for further funds.

Captain of the Suevic Suspended.

LONDON, April 24.—The Board of Trade, as a result of its inquiry into the wreck of the White Star liner Suevic, which ran ashore in a fog near the Lizard on March 17, has suspended the certificate of Capt. Jones, her commander, for three months. The court found that the disaster was due to the fault of Capt. Jones in maintaining full speed while heading toward the land in thick weather.

MANY DOUBTFUL BARONETS.

Committee Recommends Legislative Action Against Them.

LONDON, April 24.—Unlike the titles granted in some Continental countries, those of the British aristocracy have always seemed to rest upon a solid foundation, based, as they have been, on royal decrees, patents, and precedence, and carefully enveloped in red tape.

It developed this evening, however, that there is alloy in the gold of the Baronetage, for a special departmental committee has issued a report saying there is no doubt that a number of persons have assumed the title of Baronet either wrongfully or upon the most doubtful basis. These cases approximate 5 or 6 per cent. of the entire Baronetage.

The committee recommends legislative action to create a tribunal that shall prevent the unlawful use of any title. In the meantime it recommends, in order to avoid frauds, that there shall be included in the annual publication of the offical roll of Baronets only the names of those who have been received at Court or who have been mentioned by that title in some official document.

$900,000 DAMAGE AT TOULON.

The Flames Broke Out Simultaneously in Five Places.

TOULON, April 24.—The authorities estimate that the damage done to the arsenal amounts to $900,000. The fire had been completely extinguished this morning, when work was resumed in the buildings which had not suffered.

The inquiry into the cause of the fire has resulted in establishing the fact that flames broke out simultaneously in five places. The area of the conflagration is surrounded by sentinels, and will so continue while the investigation is in progress.

All telegraphic and telephonic communication within the walls has been completely destroyed.

There was a semi-panic about the arsenal this morning owing to the explosion of some chemicals, but there were no casualties, and the alarm soon subsided.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

CARTAGENA, April 24.—Careful inquiries in regard to the report that a number of cases of the plague had been discovered here show that it arose from the fact that nineteen soldiers died here in the last three weeks from a disease resembling typhus fever, but which has not been definitely diagnosed. The most energetic measures have been taken to disinfect the barracks. The malady has not spread to the civilian population. The authorities say there is no justification for alarm regarding the sanitary condition of the city.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, April 24.—Advices received here to-day from Castries, St. Lucia, say that serious rioting has occurred there. A detachment of the Barbados Volunteers with a Maxim gun and ninety police are leaving here to-day for Castries on the steamer Solent of the Royal Mail Line.

LONDON, April 24.—The spirit of compromise is having effect on the prospects of the Irish Council bill, and to-day its supporters are more hopeful of reconciling the differences regarding the terms of the proposed measure. The outlook has so far improved that Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was able to announce in the House of Commons this afternoon that he hoped to be able to introduce the bill on May 7.

ROME, April 24.—The Pope to-day received in private audience Bishop O'Gorman of Sioux Falls, S. D.

SANTO DOMINGO, April 24.—The United States converted yacht Scorpion arrived here this morning from Santiago, Cuba, having on board Fenton R. McCreery, the new American Minister Resident and Consul General at Santo Domingo. He succeeds Thomas C. Dawson, who was appointed Minister to Colombia last January.

Piano Music That EVERYONE Can Play.

Even yet there are many people who do not realize that without previous training or experience, simply by aid of a wonderful mechanism, it is possible for EVERYONE to play the Piano.

There should be music in every home.

There will be music in every home—music always available and at the command of every member of the family, if the home possesses a

Loeser, Heller or Rieman PLAYER-PIANO.

These instruments have a double usefulness.

They can be played by hand as ordinary upright pianos—and when so played look no different from any other good piano.

But the untrained lover of music can also play them by aid of the perforated music rolls.

It is not mechanical music, either. The Piano is as much under control as if played by hand. It is not only possible to play the notes, but also to interpret the music.

Player-piano prices range from $500 to $900.

Your ordinary piano will be taken in exchange, at a fair valuation, if you wish. We will also make the terms of payment easy enough to suit your convenience.

Come in and hear these wonderful instruments. See for yourself how easily you can play—without any previous experience whatever.

INSURANCE REFORM MEASURES ATTACKED

DEFENDED BY UNTERMYER

He Demands That Employes of Companies Be Forbidden to Participate in Elections.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—A hearing lasting until midnight on the Rogers insurance bills, drawn to correct evils developing out of the imperfections of the reform insurance bills, was had to-night in the Ways and Means room before the Insurance Committees of both houses. Samuel Untermyer, on behalf of the International Policy Holders' Association, spoke in favor of the legislation. James N. McKeen, for the Mutual Life; Hiram Steele, for the New York Life, and other attorneys objected to the measures.

Mr. McKeen, who, with Gov. Hughes, acted as counsel to the Legislative Investigation Committee in 1905, condemned the plan to give the Superintendent of Insurance enlarged powers to make the rules govern the election of Trustees.

"Charges of fraud and forgery in connection with the recent elections have been made," said Mr. McKeen. "After a personal and minute investigation, and out of the hundreds of thousands of votes cast for the administration ticket, I found only one ballot about which there could be the slightest question."

"About 50,000 would be nearer," observed Mr. Untermyer.

Mr. Steele said the new law had not had a thorough test, and should not be amended just yet. He seriously questioned the authority of the lawmakers to prohibit proxy voting.

The methode of the Policy Holders' Association also came in for criticism at Mr. Steele's hands.

"The election of Directors of these insurance companies should be safeguarded against the attacks of the agents and manipulators by the companies," Mr. Untermyer said. "If the salaried agents of these companies cannot be stopped from participation in these elections you might just as well give these companies a perpetual lease of power, no matter what the consequences may be, as you will never again find a committee of policy holders interest themselves in this movement for the benefit of the public service unless a change is made in the law.

Chairman Rogers asked Mr. Untermyer various questions relative to the further perfecting of the insurance laws by amendments to his bills. Mr. McKeen had pointed out what he believed was a weakness of placing so much power in the hands of the Superintendent. He said that official would be able to make different rules for different companies, and they would be at the mercy of despotism and caprice at all times.

Mr. Untermyer especially scored the companies for having notified policyholders on September 6, that no other ticket would be in the field, whereas the association ticket was put in September 18.

Senator Sohmer and Mr. Untermyer had a tilt just as the latter closed his speech.

"How much do you expect to be reimbursed?" asked Senator Sohmer.

"Why?" asked Mr. Untermyer quietly.

"Oh," said the Senator. "I wanted to know just as a matter of personal information."

"Mr. Chairman, that is not his privilege to ask such a question," said Mr. Untermyer.

"No," retorted Senator Sohmer, "no one has any privileges around here but Mr. Untermyer."

PLEA FOR TORRENS SYSTEM.

Advocates of the Cohalan—Prentice Bill Before Senate Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Advocates of the Cohalan-Prentice bill providing for the introduction of the so-called Torrens system of land title registration had a hearing yesterday before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary. A large delegation of New Yorkers came to the Capitol to promote the passage of the bill, which is ofterly opposed by the title guarantee companies, because, if enacted, it would take away from them the lucrative business they are now doing in connection with the searching of titles.

The opponents of the bill had a hearing a couple of weeks ago. The delegation today was headed by David A. Clarkson, President of the Real Estate Board of Brokers of Manbattan, and A. N. Gitterman, Secretary of the Legislative Committee of that board.

A NEW WATER POWER BILL.

Directs Commission to Devise Means of Progressive Development.

ALBANY, April 24.—Senator Fuller and Assemblyman O'Brian introduced to-day by request a bill urging the State Water Supply Commission to devise plans for the progressive development of the water powers of the State for public use under State ownership and control. The commission is to adopt regulations governing the use of the water powers and prevent a monopoly thereof.

It is to proceed at once to gather all possible information relating to these water powers, and to present a preliminary report to the Governor and the Legislature next January and a final report to the Governor a year later. The sum of $50,000 is appropriated.

A statement given out in connection with the bill sets forth that it "was drafted for and in accordance with the views of the Committee on Forests of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation."

MORELAND BILL REPORTED.

Empowers Investigation of the State Departments Every Three Years.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—The Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly reported the Moreland investigation bill today.

This measure is the one which empowers the Governor, or any one he appoints, to inspect and investigate the State Departments at least once every three years.

McCLELLAN APPEAL ARGUED.

Case to Test His Title as Mayor Up Before Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, April 24.—The appeal of Mayor George B. McClellan from an order of the Appellate Division, First Department, in the case involving the action brought in the name of the People by Attorney General Jackson to test Mr. McClellan's title to the office of Mayor of New York, was argued to-day before the Court of Appeals.

The case was argued for Mayor McClellan by Eugene L. Richards and ex-Justice Hasbrouck, and for the People by Deputy Attorney General Charles A. Dolson.

ATTACKS TAX ASSESSORS.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Senator Cassidy of Watkins caused a flurry of excitement in the Senate to-day when he sought to have his bill proposing amendments to the tax law passed, by making a charge that the Tax Assessors in New York City used the latitude of the present law for blackmailing purposes.

"In New York," he said, "with assessments on $2,801,807,700 of personal property, $2,854,023,210, or almost 84 per cent., was taken off either from motives of abnormal generosity or for some other reason."

Refused to Report Local Option Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—By a vote of 8 to 4 the Assembly Excise Committee refused to report out the Local Option bill to-day. The bill now goes automatically to the Rules Committee, before which the hotel men and liquor dealers and the local option people must make their fight.

5-CENT FARE BILL PASSED.

Assembly Indorses Wagner's Measure, 97 to 5.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—The Wagner Coney Island Five-Cent Fare bill was passed in the Assembly to-day, 97 to 5. The five negative votes were cast by Wells of New York, Newton of Cortland, Wainwright of Westchester, Eggleston of Orleans, and Frisbie of Schoharie. The overwhelming victory for the bill followed hours of dickering by the Assembly machine for amendments, but which the introducer refused to incorporate in his measure.

PARSONS TO THE RESCUE.

County Chairman Stirred by Bill to Reorganize Municipal Courts.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—It developed here to-day that the New York Republican County Committee is much disturbed over the proposition contained in the Wells bill to reorganize the Municipal Courts in New York City. Chairman Parsons came here to-day for the express purpose of side-tracking the measure.

After a two hours' fight in the Codes Committee the bill was reported out to-night.

TEACHERS' BILL ADVANCED.

It Will Be on the Calendar for Final Passage To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—The New York Teachers' Salary Increase bill was reported to the Assembly to-day by the Cities Committee. Conklin of New York, the introducer, at once moved it to third reading, and it will be on the calendar for final passage to-morrow morning.

The teachers have produced the most effective lobby in Albany in years.

CRESCENT A. C. STIRRED UP.

Members Resent Sarcasm in the Organization's Paper.

There is much talk among the members of the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn over some caustic editorial comments appearing in The Crescent, the club paper, and it was reported yesterday that the editor, W. D. Walker, had been censured by the Board of Governors for his satirical composition. When Mr. Walker was asked about the matter last night he said he did not consider that the private club affairs of the Crescent Club were of interest to the general public.

The editorial which has stirred up all the talk in the big clubhouse in Pierrepont Street had to do with a complaining letter written to the editor of the club paper by a member.

This member complained about the glee club. The glee singers, he said, were wearing on his nerves. They would tune up any time they chanced to come together anywhere in the clubhouse. Eating a chop or a squab in the grill room, his repast would be interrupted by the glee club suddenly appearing and startling in lustily on "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground." The library proved no refuge from the glee band, nor could they be escaped by flight to the billiard room.

M. O. L. ALDERMEN QUIZZED.

Grand Jury Takes Up the Bribery Charges Against Them.

The cases of Aldermen Henry Clay Peters of the "giant intellect" and William Clifford and John J. Cronin occupied the attention of the Grand Jury yesterday. Clifford was held on a charge of having accepted a bribe on Jan. 15 of $6,500 from a reporter, offered to him for "swinging" the votes of the eleven M. O. L. Aldermen to ex-Judge Rufus B. Cowing for Recorder.

Peters and Cronin are charged with perjury, Peters upon two counts, once before a Magistrate and once before the Grand Jury. The charges grew out of Peters's and Cronin's statements that they had neither of them known before the day of the vote that they were to vote for Judge Cowing.

Three Aldermen who had in some way acquired this knowledge and had not hesitated to tell Magistrate Whitman were witnesses before the Grand Jury. They are Aldermen Kuntze, O'Neill, and Noonan. Earl Harding, the reporter who bribed Clifford, and County Detective Reardon, who arrested him, were also witnesses. No indictments were handed down.

AFTER LAWYER JOHNSON.

His Absence Halts Building Association Inquiry—Shareholders Angry.

The first hearing of the investigation into the methods of Otto Kelsey and Edward G. Riggs as receivers in winding up the affairs of the defunct Republic Savings & Loan Association, which was scheduled to go on yesterday before Referee Alexander McKinny in the Mechanics' Bank Building, Brooklyn, was held up by the failure of Russell S. Johnson of the firm of Hasbrouck & Johnson, the attorney of record, to put in an appearance.

When Deputy Attorney General Mott learned that Mr. Johnson was not present he moved that Referee McKinny declare him in contempt of court. Several other lawyers, who were at the hearing to represent certain shareholders, joined in the request.

Some of them intimated that the receivers were trying to block the investigation until the Senate decides whether Supt. Kelsey is to remain in office. Referee McKinny said he would decide on May 2 whether Mr. Johnson should be adjudged in contempt.

EX-JUDGE COWING IN COURT.

Appears for Negro Boy Charged with Murder Where He Once Presided.

After occupying a seat upon the bench in General Sessions for twenty-eight years, ex-Judge Rufus B. Cowing, who resigned from the bench in January, appeared in General Sessions yesterday as counsel for Melvin Shemo, a negro elevator boy, charged with the murder of John Kennedy, truckman, last January.

Mr. Cowing, who as a Judge frequently said that it was not necessary to take four or five days to get a jury, sustained that contention yesterday when he got a jury in a little over an hour. One witness was examined and then the case was adjourned until to-day.

GOV. HUGHES KILLS A RAILROAD CHARTER

ASKED EXTENSION OF TIME

His Action Sounds the Death Knell of "Sleeping" Franchises in the State Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 24.—Gov. Hughes vetoed a piece of "special" railroad legislation to-day. It was the bill introduced by Senator Heacock of Herkimer, which provided for the extension of time for the Davenport, Middleburg & Durham Railroad Company to begin the construction of its road. The bill provided that the company should have until 1912 to begin, and until 1917 to finish it. The veto of this bill sounds the death knell of wildcat schemes of this sort during the Hughes administration.

Heretofore for political bosses to obtain a charter for a railroad was only in the day's work during the session, and to extend the time five years at a clip now and then was also only a part of the regular programme. The road affected by the Heacock bill has been enjoying this privilege for ten years. Governors of both parties have usually held leaders in line by extending the life of such paper roads until the leaders could sell their option and charter at a large profit.

A case in point is that of a railroad in which Robert H. Hunter, ex-boss of Dutchess, was interested. He came before the Railroads Committee of the Assembly last year and asked that the bill extending the time for the construction of his road be extended. The committee did not take kindly to it until pressure from the office of the Executive brought it out of committee, put it through the House, and the next stage was the prompt signing of the bill by Gov. Higgins.

The bill which the Governor rapped so severely to-day was a scheme of the same character.

SLIT THROAT AND SAVED MAN.

Quick work by Dr. Julius London of the house staff of Lincoln Hospital yesterday afternoon saved the life of Ludwig Hirsch, a young business man of Westchester, who has been in the hospital for a week, suffering from throat trouble.

While the doctor was walking through the ward yesterday afternoon he saw Hirsch on his bed breathing heavily. The man was slowly strangling to death. The only instrument the doctor had handy was his penknife. Dipping the blade in an antiseptic solution, he quickly made an incision in the throat of the suffering man.

This afforded immediate relief and a few minutes later a tube was inserted in the opening. It is believed Hirsch will live.

TROOPS WILL NOT REVOLT.

National Guard Regiments Will Work with the Regulars.

Gov. Hughes's order assigning the Seventh and other National Guard regiments to work with the regulars in the forts near New York this Summer, instead of going to the usual regimental camps, excited a good deal of discussion among National Guard officers yesterday. It was known that Gen. Charles F. Roe and some of the commanding officers had been opposed to the splitting up of the corps on account of the effect upon the regimental training, and it was assumed that the General had once more been overruled at Albany.

Only a few weeks ago his acceptance of the resignation of Capt. Wendel while under charges had not been approved by the Governor, and the subsequent dismissal of that officer was thought a significant mark of the Executive's disapproval of the commanding officer of the State Guard. It was learned, however, yesterday that the General had seen fit to revise his opinion and had recommended the plan proposed by the Federal authorities.

The detail will be as follows:

To Fort Schuyler, three companies of the Thirteenth Heavy Artillery and two companies of the Forty-seventh Infantry.

To Fort Totten, five companies of the Eighth Infantry to act as Coast Artillery reserves and two companies as supports.

To Fort Wadsworth, five companies of the Thirteenth Heavy Artillery and four companies of the Seventh Infantry.

To Fort Hamilton, four companies of the Thirteenth Heavy Artillery and six companies of the Seventh Infantry.

The Fourteenth Infantry, the Twenty-second Engineers, and the First, Second, and Sixth Batteries of Artillery will as in other years go into camp at Peekskill.

GEN. ROE CHANGED HIS MIND.

ALBANY, April 24.—Gov. Hughes's order of yesterday designating National Guard regiments to participate with the regular army this Summer in coast guard maneouvres was finally issued on the recommendation of Major Gen. Charles F. Roe, commanding the National Guard. This fact was announced this morning by Adjt. Gen. Henry, who gave out Gen. Roe's letter making the recommendation.

It appears from the letter that Gen. Roe originally recommended "that no coast artillery be sent as reserves and no Infantry as supports." On receipt of the letter of Assistant Secretary of War Oliver, he withdrew the recommendation and made that upon which the Governor acted.

is to learn as to the relative standing and reliability of the leading manufacturers of medicinal agents, as the most eminent physicians are the most careful as to the uniform quality and perfect purity of remedies prescribed by them, and it is well known to physicians and the Well-Informed generally that the California Fig Syrup Co., by reason of its correct methods and perfect equipment and the ethical character of its product has attained to the high standing in scientific and commercial circles which is accorded to successful and reliable houses only, and, therefore, that the name of the Company has become a guarantee of the excellence of its remedy.

TRUTH AND QUALITY

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing, therefore we wish to call the attention of all who would enjoy good health, with its blessings, to the fact that it involves the question of right living with all the term implies. With proper knowledge of what is best each hour of recreation, of enjoyment, of contemplation and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and the use of medicines dispensed with generally to great advantage, but as in many instances a simple, wholesome remedy may be invaluable if taken at the proper time, the California Fig Syrup Co. feels that it is alike important to present truthfully the subject and to supply the one perfect laxative remedy which has won the appoval of physicians and the world-wide acceptance of the Well-Informed because of the excellence of the combination, known to all, and the original method of manufacture, which is known to the California Fig Syrup Co. only.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. and the same heretofore known by the name—Syrup of Figs—which has given satisfaction to millions. The genuine is for sale by all leading druggists throughout the United States in original packages of one size only, the regular price of which is fifty cents per bottle.

Every bottle is sold under the general guarantee of the Company, filed with the Secretary of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C., that the remedy is not adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act, June 30th, 1906.

R. C. OGDEN MAY HEAD JEANES FUND BOARD

FOR SOUTHERN SCHOOLS

Field Secretaries Will Be Appointed to Investigate Conditions in the Rural Districts.

Booker T. Washington, President of the Tuskegee Institute, and Hollis Burke Frissell of Hampton Institute, came to town yesterdey for the purpose of organizing a Boerd of Trustees to handle the endowment fund of $1,000,000 given hy Miss Anna T. Jeanes of Germantown, Penn., for the assistance and maintenance of elementary schools for negroes in the South.

Dr. Washington said last night that the hoard would consist mainly of Southern men, some white, some negroes, and that the utmost care is heing taken to pick such men as are qualified in every way for the handling of such a sum.

Although neither Dr. Washington nor Dr. Frissell would tell the names of any of the men they have in mind, it is understood that Rohert C. Ogden will be one of the trustees, if not President of the board. Mr. Ogden has long been a leader in the work of improving Southern educational conditions. His long business training has given him exceptional qualifications for the handling of an endowment fund. When Mr. Ogden retired from husiness several months ago he said that his active interest in Southern educational affeirs would not cease.

It is understood that Dr. Washington end Dr. Frissell have already conferred with Mr. Ogden regarding the fund that has been left temporarily in their care. The two negro university Presidents were instructed hy Miss Jeanes to organize a Board of Trustees. They refused last night to say how large the hoard would be, hut it is likely that twelve men will be chosen.

"The entire personnel of the Board will not he complete until Friday, probably," said Dr. Washington last night. "I am not at liherty to discuss the endowment until the Board has heen named. I may say, however, that we hope this endowment of $1,000,000 will be the nucleus of a gigantic sum for the assistance and maintenance of elementary schools in the South, an assistance which is so badly needed."

He said that none of the money can be applied either to Tuskegee or to Hampton, as the terms of the gift explicitly state that the interest from the endowment shall he applied only to elementary schools.

One of the first acts of the Board of Trustees will he to appoint what will be known as "field secretaries," whose duties will be to investigate school conditions in rural districts of the South. Mr. Cox, privats secretery to Dr. Washington, explained the exact purposes for which the fund is endowed. He said that country schools which are unable to pay the selary of a teacher for longer than a few months of the year will be aided by the fund, thus lengthening the scholastic term. Underpaid teachers in the rural districts will also come under the provisions of the endowment.

Dr. Washington is responsible for many of the stipulations in the endowment because it was only after meny conferences with him that Miss Jeanes announced her intention of giving the $1,000,000 to encourage the education of the Southern negro.

The principal of the endowment cannot be touched. The interest from the securities is now about $40,000 a year, and with judicious management may reach $50,000.

Dr. Weshington and Dr. Frissell will meet this morning in the Manhattan Hotel to continue their deliberations upon the selection of a Board.

UPTOWN CAR LINES BLOCKED.

Feed Cable Burned Out, Tying Up Broadway and Other Roads.

The Broadway cars were hlocked from 6:45 to 8:20 o'clock yesterday morning in the district hounded on the north hy Fifty-ninth Street and on the south by Twenty-third Street.

Not only the Broadway line, but elso the Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, and Ninth Avenue lines end the Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Street crosstown lines, were tied up completely in the same zone for more than an hour. The trouhle was caused by the "hurning out" of one of the main feed cables in the Sixth Avenue conduit in the hlock between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets.

On this cable the electricity is conveyed from the Ninety-sixth Street power house to the suh-station in Fiftieth Street, where it is distributed to the various surface car lines in that district. With a roar that could be heard for blocks, hlue flames flashed up through the slots and manholes in Sixth Avenue at 6:45 o'clock and hurned through the hlock between Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Streets for more than twenty minutes. All of the cars on the circuit fed from that rotary station were immediately brought to a stop.

The Sixth Avenue elevated railroad and the Subway were severely taxed by the additional crowds from the blocked surface cars.

TO RATIFY MERGER.

Meeting of New Haven Road Stockholders Fixed for May 31.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24.—Notices will soon be issued to stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company calling a meeting of them on May 31 to ratify the merger with the steam corporation of the Consolidated Railway Company in which the New England Navigation Company has already been consolidated.

It was made known some time ago that the management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad contemplated the merger of all its properties into the parent corporation. President Mellen, in announcing a few days ago the postponement of the New Haven's proposed stock issue, gave as one of the reasons for this postponement the desire of the road's management to allow any further financing to awalt the completion of the road's plans for the merger of its steamship and railroad interests.

In preparation for the larger consolidation which is now announced, the New Haven has heen absorbing gradually the several railroad corporations that formed integral parts of the New Haven system.

PANNONIA SCRAPES HER PIER.

Carried Against It by Strong Tide—Egyptian Excavator Here.

Owing to the wind and strong tide, the Cunarder Pannonia, in yesterday from the Medlterranean, had great difficulty in getting alongside her pier. In turning to run alongside the vessel's bow struck the end of the pier with such force as to shake the structure from end to end and scrape the paint off her port side from amidships to stern.

James T. Dennis of Baltimore, who for the last four yeers hes been assistant field director of the Egyptian Exploration Fund, arrived on the Pannonia. The officers of the fund are in London and Boston, and the active work has been central in Luxor, Egypt.

"The greatest discovery we have yet made," said Mr. Dennis, "is the finding of the tomb of Mentu-Hotep of the eleventh dynasty, about 2700 or 2800 B. C. The tomh is well preserved, and is situated ahout three miles west of Luxor. It is, indeed, the only well-preserved temple of the Early Empire."

Although the tomh officially belongs to the French, that netion having the right to all antiquities found there, Mr. Dennis helleves there is more than a reasonahle chance that it will be brought here.

POLICE GET A POISON SCARE.

Woman with a Delusion Telephoned Some One Gave Her a Fatal Potion.

Lieut. John Lonergan, in charge of the telephone bureau in the Bronx Police Headquarters, was startled just hefors 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the frantic appeals of a woman over the telephone thet he send a policeman at once to 2,680 Creston Avenue.

"I am dying," he voice said; "some one has poisoned me. Send some one to me quick!"

The woman gave the name of Catherine Berkwitz, in answer to a question, and Lonergan beceme husy with the wires for a few minutes. When he had finished Dr. Bickelhaupt was urging the driver of the Fordham Hospital ambulance to make better time to save a dying woman. Detective Rooney and Policeman Dribben of the Bronx Park Police Station were hurrying in the patrol wagon for the place, and Coroner Robert McDonald end Dr. Curtin, Coroner's physician, were in Coroner McDoneld's wagon making a record run. The ambulance won the race by e head, the police and the Coroner arriving in the order named.

Dr. Bickelhaupt found that Mrs. Berkwitz was not suffering from poisoning, but was the victim of a nervous disease which subjected her to hallucinations.

SAYS HENRY WHITE IS INSANE.

But ex-Secretary of Garment Workers Is Ordered to Make an Accounting.

Henry White, former Secretary of the United Garment Workers of America, who was ordered by Supreme Court Justice O'Gormen to meke en accounting of his profits received from ths printing of the union labels to be placed in clothing, was declared to be insane by a physician yesterday at a hearing before the referee appointed to take the accounting.

Justice O'Gorman decided that White had heen guilty of a fraud on the union and directed that he produce before Thomas L. Feitner, the referee, all of the books of the New York Bond and Printing Company and also all his own books and papers bearing on his relations with the concern.

FREIGHTER PIONEER BURNED.

Deadly Gases from Cargo Force Firemen to Work in Relays—Loss $75,000.

The Pioneer, a steam freighter, owned by the Stephens & Condit Transportation Company, was burned yesterday morning while lying at Pier 24, North River, and damaged to the extent of $75,000. The vessel was loaded with cotton, jute, chemicals, cylinders of explosive gases, carhoys of acids, spices, and peint material. Fed by this material, the flames burned fiercely, and soon after the fire was discovered the forward hold of the Pioneer resembled a hlast furnace. The firemen had to work in relays on account of the deadly gases given off. During all the time they were pouring water into the hold of the vessel there was fear of an explosion.

ANOTHER CAMORRA ARREST.

Woman Who Knew Alfano, Prisoner Here, and Other Leaders, Taken.

NAPLES, April 24.—The police of this city made an arrest to-day that has a bearing upon the recent apprehension in New York City of Enrico Alfano, also called "Erricone," the head of the Camorra of this city. They took into custody a woman nemed Meria Stendardo, who has been acquainted with all the leaders of the Cemorra, including Nicola Morra, one of the murderers of Cuccola, who obtained for Alfano the passport upon which he left Itely for the United States.

ACCUSED OF KILLING TWO.

Druggist Indicted for Murder of Wife's Brother and Stepfather.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 24.—Bert B. Bruce, a young druggist, has been indicted on the charge of murdering James S. Self and Ernest Geisler, his wife's brother and stepfather. Self died Nov. 9, 1905, and Geisler died on April 4, 1906, both under suspicious circumstances. The lives of Self and Geisler were insured in favor of Bruce's mother-in-law. The bodies were exhumed recently, and chemicel analyses were made. Mrs. Bruce got a divorce from her husband. She declared that he had attempted to kill her. Bruce is in jail here.

"Lincoln in the Telegraph Office"

HERE, beginning in the May Century, is a series of articles that every American will want to read—articles that throw new light on the most attractive figure in our history, ABRAHAM LINCOLN. During the four years of the Civil War, President Lincoln spent more of his waking hours in the War Department telegraph office than in any other place except the White House. Several times a day his tall, homely form with a gray plaid shawl over his shoulders, could be seen crossing the White House lawn. Again, in the evening, before retiring, he would come for the latest news, for in those days the Executive Mansion was not connected by telegraph with the outside world. Sometimes he would stay at the War Department all night.

David Homer Bates, Maneger of the War Department Telegraph Office and Cipher Operator from 1861 to 1866, tells the story, and in it you will find much that is new regarding the great leaders of the War—stories of McClellan that will surprise those who think they know all about McClellen—how a great bribe was offered for reports which would affect the stock market—how Lincoln bore himself, leaning over the desks of the operators to catch the news of victories and of defeats.

Read this first article in the May CENTURY, and you will read them all.

HAVE you seen the wonderful portraits in color by Sigismond de Ivanowski which The Century is printing, each one worth the price of the magazine? Some are portraits of stage characterizations of the day, some of heroines of fiction. In May is a marvellous realization of Blackmore's "Lorna Doone."

Read "Ballooning by Moonlight," in the May Century, the narrative of a woman's trip over the Apennines; read Thomas Nelson Page's clean-cut little essay on "Jamestown," with its tribute to Captain John Smith; read the illuminating article on "Railway Disasters at Night," with its suggestions for safety devices. There are six complete stories, besides the two serial novels that everybody is reading—"Come and Find Me," by Elizabeth Robins, and Mrs. Burnett's "The Shuttle," "the story which is stirring both sides of the Atlantic."

The Summer numbers of THE CENTURY will be notable—July "Fiction Number"; August "Mid-Summer Holiday Number." Why not subscribe for the half year beginning with May and get them—and all the Lincoln articles? Two dollars, and address changed as often as desired. The Century Co., Union Square, New York.

AGAINST AHEARN.

Witness Declares He Showed No Interest in Street Repairs.

The investigation of Borough President Ahearn's department before the Commissioner of Accounts was continued yesterday in the reception room of the Mayor's office, with John P. Mitchell sitting as one of the Commissioners in place of George von Skall, who resigned very suddenly on Monday. Mr. Mitchell, who had previously acted as Assistant Corporation Counsel, did all the questioning.

Several witnesses were examined. Henry C. Opdycke, Secretary of the Automobile Club, gave evidence as to certain inspections of the street surfaces that he had made. He had found many holes, and some of them were over a year old. Mr. Mitchell, after this evidence, read into the record portions of the contracts for maintenance with asphalt companies, which provided that the Borough President must proceed to have the repair work done if the company failed to live up to its obligations.

Marvin Scudder gave testimony as to the amounts of damage suits against the city, filed as a result of the street conditions during the last three years. These figures were as follows:

Total	$1,053,386

James H. Howard testified that he had made examinations as to how the asphalt used by the companies was made, and had found that, in violation of the contracts, some of it was made from distilled asphaltic oil. When he had seen Mr. Ahearn about this and had offered to supply evidence of what he said, Mr. Ahearn did not appear to be interested. The hearing will be continued on Friday.

GET VICES FROM EXPLORERS.

Dr. Grenfell Says Polar Expeditions Are Ruining the Eskimos.

Before sailing yesterday on the White Star liner Oceanic Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, the Labrador missionary, had a few words to say on the subject of Arctic exploring parties, and their effect on the Eskimo. Dr. Grenfell will spend a few weeks with his mother in Chester, England, before returning to his Labrador mission.

He declared that arctic exploring parties take liquor and vice to the Eskimo, and that unless they cease there will not be an Eskimo living in a few years. He said that the people are not wise, and that they readily learn the vices of the people who come among them. Although a hundred years ago Eskimos were found in certain parts of Labrador and Greenland there are none to be found there now.

"There is no necessity for Polar exploration," he said. "I am satisfied that there is nothing at the pole but an open sea which freezes over. There is no land there. No living man is sure in which direction the ice sea will flow. The explorers may find the pole, but it will be by chance and by drifting."

SUIT FILED AGAINST ROEHR.

Action Began to Recover $2,500 from Missing Brooklyn Lawyer.

Papers in an action to recover $2,500 for breach of contract from Edward H. M. Roehr, the lawyer who disappeared suddenly three weeks ago, leaving the affairs of several estates of which he was Trustee in a badly tangled condition, were filed yesterday by Thomas C. Whitlock in the County Clerk's office, Brooklyn. Mr. Whitlock says that on Feb. 23 last he loaned Roehr $2,000. The lawyer promised to pay it back within a week, when, he said, he was to receive a loan of $25,000 from the Nassau Trust Company.

Mr. Whitlock says that on March 6 Roehr told him the loan from the trust company was tied up because of red tape, and at his request Mr. Whitlock advanced him an additional $500. The complainant says the lawyer made false representations to him when he obtained both loans.

MERCHANT CUTS OFF HIS SON.

Gives Him Only $75 a Month Out of an Estate Worth Millions.

The will of Charles E. Waring, the hat manufacturer of Yonkers, was filed in the Westchester County Surrogate's office at White Plains to-day, and in an odd provision it cuts off his son, Chester C. Waring, with only a monthly allowance of $75, while his two brothers inherit the bulk of his estate after the death of their mother. Mr. Waring was a brother of John T. Waring, who died about two months ago in Yonkers, leaving an estate valued at about $6,000,000. The value of the estate of the latest member of the Waring family to die is not given in the papers filed in the Surrogate's office, but it is estimated that he left between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000.

Brooklyn Autoists Return to A. A. A.

By a unanimous vote the members of the Long Island Automobile Club decided last night to apply for a renewal of its membership in both the American Automobile Association and the New York State Automobile Association. The club resigned from both of these bodies last year, but under the more practical policy adopted by the new officers of the National body the sentiment of the club has undergone a change within the last few months. Charles Jerome Edwards, Alfred Wilmarth, and Dr. C. D. Parker reported to the club that they held a conference early in the month with a committee of the American Automobile Association, and as a result it seemed desirable for the Long Island club to co-operate in the work being done by affiliated clubs throughout the State. The Long Island club has over 400 members, and its application will be acted upon at the Executive Committee meeting of the American Automobile Association in this city next Monday.

Yale Will Row at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24.—Yale rowing officials have decided to enter the 'Varsity eight in as many races as possible this Spring because of the failure of the crew to approach settled conditions earlier in the season. No permanent make-up has yet been secured, and the watermanship of the eight has suffered because of the frequent changes. Two preliminary races will be rowed—the American Rowing Association regatta on the Schuylkill on May 25 and the race with Annapolis on the Severn on May 4. These, it is thought, will give the regulars plenty of experience for the Harvard races.

West Point Takes Up Lacrosse.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 24.—The Army Athletic Association has added lacrosse to the list of games played by the cadets at the Military Academy. Twenty-five men turned out this week to try their hand at the new game, but with the exception of two or three all of them have never before played the game. There will be no attempt made this season to arrange a schedule of games with any of the colleges, but possibly a few of the smaller schools will be played.

Lieut. Col. Howze has granted some privileges to the candidates which enable them to get more time to practice.

California Horse, with Top Weight, Earned Third Victory at the Aqueduct Track.

In two head finishes, with three horses in one case and four in another, fighting out on nearly even terms, the two-year-olds racing at Aqueduct yesterday added complications to the perplexing question of how they shall be classed. It is regarded as a matter of course that the leading stables of the East have better young horses in reserve, but on the showing that the two-year-olds have made in the early racing to date two-year-old form promises to be a very mixed and uncertain quantity. The two-year-old races furnished about all the excitement of the afternoon, and the stake feature of the card, the Woodhaven, four and a half furlongs, selling, well merited the prominence it had on the programme, as it not only brought out the largest field of the day, but produced the most sensational contest of the meeting.

Thirteen of the sixteen named on the card went to the post for the race, the runners including four winners at the meeting, and several others that had run close up in earlier races. Miller quite performed his part when he broke first with Masks and Faces and went on in the lead, Masks and Faces lasting in front until the horses were almost on the winning post, where the Keene filly began to step and the field closed on her. In the last few jumps, with whips going all around, Rustle and Laura Clay got up to the leader, and the three horses passed the post almost abreast, Rustle getting the decision by a head, with Masks and Faces second a similar distance in front of Laura Clay.

In the second of the races for two-year-olds there was a contest of much the same character, with four horses fighting out them. Split Second was the pacemaker, and lasted in front into the last jump, Sepoy, Sweet-aire, and Bigot then getting up to her, and in a sharply fought finish going past the judges lined out heads apart, with Sweet-aire first, Sepoy second, and Split Second third, Bigot finishing a close fourth.

Only two post favorites were successful in the course of the afternoon, the first of these being the stout and fast California horse W. H. Carey, which, with the top weight, went out at odds on over a field that included the Brooklyn Handicap winner, The Picket. The one other winning favorite was Punky, a cast-off from the James R. Keene stable, which galloped out in front all the distance in the six furlongs for maidens three years old and upward.

In the opening race the Oneck Stable's Royal Onyx, at 10 to 1, raced to the front in the first half furlong, and lasted in the lead to the end, winning by three lengths from the odds-on favorite Campaigner. Robador, with a smart brush of speed at the finish, took the third place in clever style from Mary Morris. Summaries:

VELOCITY WINS SUBURBAN.

Outsider Finishes First in $10,000 Race at Epsom—Maher Unplaced.

LONDON, April 24.—The City and Suburban Handicap at Epsom to-day was won by Velocity, Larino was second and Succor was third. Thirteen horses started. Dean Swift, the winner of the race last year, was the favorite. "Danny" Maher, the American jockey, rode Slavetrader, C. S. Newton's entry.

Three jockeys were thrown during the race, but none of them was seriously hurt. The betting was 6 to 1 against Velocity, 3 to 1 against Larino, and 100 to 7 against Succor.

The City and Suburban Handicap is of 2,000 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upward; about one mile and a quarter.

GOULD WINS AT TENNIS.

American Champion Defeats Cross for International Championship.

LONDON, April 24.—The international amateur court tennis championship tournament began to-day in the courts of the Queen's Club. The withdrawal of Eustace H. Miles, the title holder, robbed the competition of much of its interest, although the presence of Jay Gould of Lakewood, N. J., in the opening match attracted a big gallery. The young American champion met with little resistance in his contest with R. K. Cross, and won in three straight sets, 6—0, 6—1, 6—3.

Last year Gould lost the challenge round of the championship to E. H. Miles after four closely contested sets. Gould won the first set, but then tired perceptibly. Miles captured the next three. With the improvement shown during the past year by the American amateur champion he was expected to give Miles a much harder fight for the title, and not a few predicted a victory for the youngster, but Miles announced the day after Gould sailed from America, that business would prevent his defending his title, and Gould is now looked upon as a sure winner. In his game to-day with Cross, the latter was at the mercy of Gould, whose "railroad" service was unplayable.

MISS SUTTON AT THE NETS.

California Player Wins Doubles Tennis Match in St. Nicholas Tournament.

With only occasional bursts of vigorous racquet work Miss May G. Sutton made her first appearance yesterday in tournament play on the indoor lawn tennis court of the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. The California girl had as her partner in the women's doubles Mrs. J. V. L. Pruyn, and the pair faced Miss Emily Scott and Miss Margaret Behr in the first round of the event. Miss Sutton fairly romped through the two sets. She took the brunt of the match and won in straight sets at 7—5 and 6—3. There was also another competition in this first round in which Miss Juliet Adee and Miss Martha Coster defeated Miss Pauline Robinson and Miss Daisy Hollins in straight sets by the score 6—2 and 6—4. It was the match in which the California girl played that attracted the fashionable gallery.

Miss Sutton began the service in her match, and using a puzzling cut she bothered her opponents. The Western girl found her strongest adversary in the younger sister of Karl H. Behr, Jr., Miss Margaret Behr, who displayed marked skill from her side of the net. Miss Behr proved remarkably aggressive in the rallies.

During the opening set Miss Behr's dashing work and her changes from the base line to the net materially assisted her side in the scoring. She came near to carrying the set for her side, and it was only by the greatest effort on the part of Miss Sutton that this was averted. With the games at deuce at 5 all Miss Sutton took a session near the net that produced some fast tennis and won at 7—5. In the second set Miss Sutton kept closer to the net. She did not allow the opposing pair to take the lead, and by her spirited volleying won the set and match at 6—3.

The semi-final matches of this series are scheduled for to-day, and Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, ex-national champion, will compete. It is expected that Miss Moore and her partner will meet Miss Sutton and her partner in the final competition, so that the relative merits of the two American players may be judged. The summary:

Women's Doubles, First Round.—Miss May G. Sutton and Mrs. J. V. L. Pruyn defeated Miss Emily Scott and Miss Margaret Behr, 7—5, 6—3; Miss Juliet Adee and Miss Martha Coster defeated Miss Pauline Robinson and Miss Daisy Hollins, 6—2, 6—4.

LEAGUE TENNIS SCHEDULE.

Representative Clubs in Metropolitan Championship Series.

Lawn tennis players will begin the fourth annual series of matches for the championship of the Metropolitan League on Saturday, June 1. The list of clubs is again divided into two divisions this season, of which the first division, in which is the champion West Side Lawn Tennis Club of last year, appears much the stronger. This division also includes the Kings County Lawn Tennis Club and the New York Athletic Club and Crescent Athletic Club. The winning clubs of each section will meet in a series of home-and-home matches in September for the championship title. The schedule:

NOVEL AUTO TEST FOR MOTOR CARS

Four Days' Contest for Stock Cars Under Severe Rules to be Held in June.

BONNETS WILL BE SEALED

Three Classes of Cars Will Compete in 600-Mile Run—No Penalty for Tire Troubles.

It has remained for the Contest Committee of the Automobile Club of America to announce the first competition for motor cars in the metropolitan district this season. Several meetings have been held within the last few days, and a number of plans have been discussed by Chairman Robert Lee Morrell and his associates, and yesterday Mr. Morrell stated that a four days' endurance run had been decided upon, to begin on Wednesday, June 19, and conclude on Saturday, June 22.

This endurance run is termed by the committee a sealed bonnet contest as the rules specify that not only the bonnet, but the transmission gears, axles, coil boxes, and all parts pertaining to the engine will be sealed by the committee previous to the start. No adjustments, replacements, or repairs of any kind will be allowed during the entire four days' of the run. There will be no restriction, however, to the amount of gasoline, lubricating oil, and water that may be desired by the competitors, nor will any penalties be imposed for tire troubles. The test, therefore, will show conclusively the endurance of the motor to make a four days' run over ordinary roads without the necessity of minor repairs. When a car breaks down, if it should be necessary to break the bonnet seal for repairs, the machine will be disqualified.

A run of 150 miles a day will be required of the competing cars, making a total of 600 miles for the four days, but runabouts will be required to run 700 miles, or 175 miles a day. A different route will be selected for each day's run, one day going to Poughkeepsie and back, another day to New Haven, while for the final day the committee is arranging to have the cars run to Greenwich or Stamford, then turn back to a point on the Hudson River and return to the city by the usual river road. Each day's run will end at the Automobile Club of America, West Fifty-fourth Street near Broadway, and the cars will be locked up in the club garage in charge of a Technical Committee.

Three classes have been provided for and special certificates of merit will be awarded in each case. One class will consist of stock cars, without tops, selling for $3,000 and over. The second class will be for cars selling for $1,500 and over and less than $3,000, while the third class will include cars selling for less than $1,500.

This endurance run will be the only contest to be conducted by the Automobile Club of America until the Fall, but two or three other tests of a practical nature will probably be arranged for September or October.

Many Autos for Orphans' Day.

President Colgate Hoyt of the Automobile Club of America and John W. Gates have offered their cars for the use of the Orphans' Day Committee that is endeavoring to secure over 100 automobiles to use on June 12, when several hundred orphans from the different institutions in the city will be taken for a day's ride and entertainment, probably to Coney Island. Over fifty cars have already been secured, offering accommodations for a trifle over 300 children. President Hoyt has requested the members of the Automobile Club to forego the use of their machines so far as possible on that day, and turn them over for the orphans' entertainment.

Air-Cooled Motor Test.

The most severe test to which an air-cooled motor car has ever been subjected was made yesterday with a twelve-horse power Franklin car in the salesroome of Wyckoff, Church & Partridge, Broadway and Fifty-sixth Street. Before starting the engine the car was mounted on a platform, and the carburetor and throttle were sealed by a Technical Committee. The motor was started at a speed of 400 revolutions a minute equivalent to nine miles an hour, and it is intended to keep the engine running at this rate for five days, making a non-stop run of over 1,000 miles.

CYCLISTS GET LICENSES.

N. C. A. Board of Control Gives Authority for Riders to Compete.

The work of licensing bicycle riders began this week, and National Champion Frank L. Kramer again got the coveted No. 1. No. 2 went to Bobby Walthour, and Nos. 3 and 4, respectively, to John and Menus Bedell. Walter Bardgett of Buffalo got No. 5, and Joe Fogler, winner of the last six-day race, was allotted the following numeral. Floyd Krebs has No. 7, Nat. Butler No. 8, and A. C. Spain No. 9. "Major" Taylor, who has just sailed for Europe, got his old number 13.

The amateur standard licenses, good on both track and road, have been awarded as follows: No. 1, Frank L. Vallant; 2, Fred E. Mommer; 3, J. Castles; 4, John Wilkins. Although the work of registering road riders has only started, Chairman R. F. Kelsey of the National Cycling Association's Board of Control has already issued twenty-two of these cards, which are good for road racing only.

The riders who have already been registered are, in numerical order: H. Cadwallader, Jr., A. H. Seeley, C. T. Mayo, R. Rouiller, Jean Roy, George Smoll, Herbert Williams, Maurice Rosenblum, Jules Cazanave, Charles Nerent, P. Wollenschlager, M. S. Walters, F. Bauldauf, J. B. Hawkins, Edward Prudent, Herman H. Hintze, H. A. Gliesman, Nick Kind, Holmes Scudder, Randolph Smith, Charles Milkowait, Otto J. Stih, and Paul J. Thomas.

FISHING AND FISHERMEN.

Good tomcod fishing is reported in Newark Bay and the Hackensack River. Small boys fishing from the bridges that span the Hackensack caught great quantities of them on Sunday.

Oake's Pond, on the outskirts of Bloomfield, N. J., is well stocked with catfish, eels, and suckers, and many good catches have been reported.

Emanuel Friedrich of Brooklyn and a party of eleven caught forty sea flounders and thirty-nine codfish last Tuesday.

Games for Xavier Athletes.

Three well-contested events were held last night at the regular monthly games of the Xavier Athletic Association held in the gymnasium, 205 West Fourteenth Street. The high jump was won by J. Marquart at 5 feet 9 inches. Pett Coffey was second with 5 feet 8 inches. Peter Coffey was second with 5 feet 8 M. Kenny won the event for three standing jumps with a total distance of 30 feet 8 inches. H. Hendrickson was second with 29 feet 9 inches, and S. Kenny third with 29 feet 5 inches. The potato race had ten competitors and was captured after a close finish by George Barron, with J. Eagen second, and Rocco Pavis third.

N. Y. A. C. Spring Games Postponed.

After a conference between Capt. E. F. Haubold and James E. Sullivan, Honorary Director of Athletic Sports at the Jamestown Exposition, the New York Athletic Club has consented to change its Spring games from June 22 to June 29, so as not to interfere with the college championship that is to be held in conjunction with the sports at Jamestown on June 22. The plan of the Jamestown authorities is to make this a monster college carnival, and entries have been promised from all of the leading colleges of the East and West, the North and South. Capt. Haubold felt that he could help sport a great deal more by holding the meeting on another date, because the New York Athletic Club invariably draws all of the college entries of the East.

Stevens's Freshmen Win at Lacrosse.

In a game marked by the absence of effective team work, the Stevens freshman lacrosse team defeated the Columbia freshmen yesterday on South Field by a score of 5 to 3. Brittain played a brilliant game for the Blue and White, with Finlay close behind his teammate.

Cyclist Steih Reinstated.

Otto J. Steih of New York City, who with five other riders was suspended by the National Cycling Association for having competed in novice races after having won prizes, has been restored to good standing. Steih made satisfactory reparation to the N. C. A. authorities.

W. L. DOUGLAS

BEST IN THE WORLD. $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

Do you wear W.L.Douglas shoes? If not, I believe I can give you good and sufficient reasons why it will pay you to wear them.

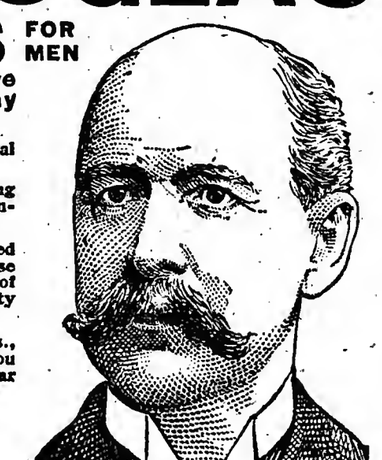
I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles, which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.:—I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the past ten years, and have found them easy to walk in, stylish and very comfortable. I am on my feet 16 hours daily, and have not known a pain or ache since wearing them. WM. LEISHMAN, Com. of Deeds, 46 Manhattan St., N.Y. City.



These are a few of the reasons why I make and sell more Men's Fine Hand-Sewed Process $3.50 Shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 GILT EDGE SHOE CANNOT BE EQUALLED AT ANY PRICE.

W. L. DOUGLAS BOYS' SHOES $1.75 AND $2.00. JUST THE SAME AS MY MEN'S $3.50 SHOES, THE SAME LEATHERS, FOR $1.75 AND $2.00.

Fast Color Eyelets used exclusively.

W. L. Douglas name and price is stamped on the bottom, which protects the wearer against high prices and inferior shoes. INSIST UPON HAVING THEM. TAKE NO SUBSTITUTE.

THE WORLD'S BANKING SITUATION.

Events are moving swiftly in the world's large banking centres. It was but a few days ago that the Bank of England reduced its rate from a figure denoting storm and stress, and already it is expected soon—perhaps to-day—to make another reduction to a rate signifying normal ease. In the brief interval the Banks of Germany and the Netherlands reduced their rates, but maintain them above the normal, and this week we have available the returns for 6,344 National banks of the United States, whose combined reports are our substitute for the reports made by single institutions abroad. There is an exceptional reason for considering our reports now in connection with those abroad, for in each case the abnormal rates of foreign banks were due to fears of our situation, and their approximate ease is traceable to relief of their anxiety regarding ourselves—who, it may be said, were, perhaps, as much too confident about ourselves as foreign observers were overanxious.

We have heretofore remarked upon those features in our situation which seemed to mitigate much that was unfavorable, so that we shall be under no suspicion of pessimism in reiterating upon fuller and later information opinions which have been so fortunate as to meet the approval of such an authority as a distinguished former Finance Minister of France. M. ROUVIER, according to our Paris telegram published yesterday, indorses our position that our splendid merchandise credits abroad, past, present, and potential, relieved us of any fears of financial pressure by those who owed us so much. The position held by all foreigners and many Americans that the embarrassments of a creditor nation imperiled the world's finance seemed to us equally novel and untenable, and events have proved it such. The liquidation of our speculative situation was accomplished with less trouble than anyhody anticipated, and we awaited the payment of our duee in gold quite at our ease, so much so that for the first time in international finance we waived our strict claims, and established, perhaps, a credit for an accommodating spirit and ability which ought to be good for something when conditions are reversed and we are asked to make inconvenient remittances.

Naturally, as M. ROUVIER remarks, those who distrusted us were reassured upon that head, but they still borrow some trouble about the "demoralization" of our railways, although they are relaxing in their distrust of American securities. Herein our foreign observers do us less than justice. What has seemed to them demoralization of our railways was rather demoralization of their managers. If the roads had been unable to handle their business because of deterioration of plant, and if they needed "five milliards" to make good depreciation of physical conditions, then indeed they worried reasonably. But the facts were the opposite. Never have maintenance accounts been so large, never has the traffic movement been equaled, never has there been anything like such capacity for whatever demands might have been anticipated. It is the excess of business, not the falling off of equipment or administration, which has "demoralized" our railways. It is one phase of that excess of prosperity from which Secretary SHAW prayed to be delivered, and not anything to disturb those otherwise approving our posture toward themselves, as M. ROUVIER phrased it.

Nevertheless there is a fly in the ointment. The particular phrase of THE TIMES which M. ROUVIER selected for indorsement was that "the world is suffering from that absorption of liquid capital which is characteristic of great prosperity." As regards England, the proof of it is that its banking reserve, often painfully restored, leake away again and again. As regards France, the paucity of liquid assets, despite a magnificent banking position, is shown, in the opinion of its banking authorities, by their insistence that the gold lent to London shall be returned in kind, being held distinct from the commercial credits which in normal times are allowed to be offset against commercial debits, with comparative indifference to the current balance. As regards ourselves, the fact is proved by the aggregated returns of our National banks, revealing conditions not reflected in the apparent ease of the money market. Two of our three central reserve cities are below their lawful reserve, the deficiency of Chicago and St. Louis being made good by New York. The ratio of reserve for "other reserve cities" is lower than it has been with a single exception since 1880, when it stood at 36.2 per cent. against 24.3 per cent. at the last report. For the United States the reserves stand at 20.74 per cent., a minimum which also has but one precedent, being a decline from the maximum of 33.4 per cent. In the East it is only New York which is strong, and it is to be feared with a strength which is not its own and, therefore, deceptive. In the West, which is boasting of its strength, the reserves are 16.61 per cent., which is almost as low as the law allows, and lower than is prudent in American practice. It is in the light of these facts that the New York money market must be interpreted. It is the best single reason for the unusual margin between the call and time money markets, a circumstance that is cautionary in itself, but indicative of prudent preparation from a strain that is certain if crops and trade are good.

WAR FOR PEACE.

We should feel hardly satisfied with ourselves if we thought our aims and motives in the matter of promotion of peace fell below Mr. CARNEGIE'S, but we must reserve to ourselves a certain freedom in our choice of ways and means. He politely explains that his suggestion of an international police is designed to enforce "no law whatever." Our position is that it is better that the law should be formulated before the mandate to force is given. Otherwise we fear that the baton will not be intrusted to the policemen of the world, and we should not feel entirely safe if it were.

It is true that Mr. CARNEGIE specifies one case in which the Nations got together for common action in a righteous cause, and so they may again, with no dissent from us. But we recall something like a tripartite international lynching, with our next friend among the lynchers, and a narrow escape from a situation which might have broken much crockery. The raw material of another such situation existe to-day, and there is a decided difference of opinion regarding what is right to be done, with a mingling of politics and finances which men may differ about honestly. It is impossible to say what might come out of such a situation if the big stick were in hand, and the rules for its use not formulated.

Mr. CARNEGIE dislikes war as exalting might above right, and yet he proposes to organize "irresistible" force to make force unnecessary. Can Mr. CARNEGIE rely upon unanimity among his associated powere regarding an unforeseen dispute, and if not, what becomes of his irresistible array? The path is not free from difficulties, even if nnanimity upon the objects and methode of international action is reached beforehand, but without such unanimity, it seems to us that the organization of war in the interest of peace is a dangerous procedure.

"UNDESIRABLE CITIZENS."

President ROOSEVELT has written many letters, but he never wrote one more edifying or salutary than that he has just addressed to Mr. JAXON, Chairman of the "Cook County Moyer-Haywood Conference." We trust that Mr. JAXON considers himself answered. If he does not, he is upon that point in disagreement with about every right-thinking and law-abiding citizen of this Republic. Mr. JAXON, in behalf of his "conference," had sent to the President an impudent letter of protest—we say impudent because, however courteous in its phrases, such a letter was of its very nature impudent—against the President's allusion in the Harriman correspondence to MOYER and HAYWOOD as "undesirable citizens." To this the President replies in a letter that will become memorable, meeting Mr. JAXON'S main point in this effective fashion:

> I entirely agree with you that it is improper to endeavor to influence the course of justice, whether by threats or in any similar manner. For this reason I have regretted most deeply the action of such organizations as your own in undertaking to accomplish this very result in the very case of which you speak. For instance, your letter is headed: "Cook County Moyer-Haywood-Pettibone Conference," with the headlines "Death Cannot, Will Not, and Shall Not Claim Our Brothers."
> This shows that you and your associates are not demanding a fair trial, or working for a fair trial, but are announcing in advance that the verdict shall only be one way, and that you will not tolerate any other verdict. Such action is flagrant in its impropriety, and I join heartily in condemning it.

Poesibly there may have been some doubt about the propriety of the President's allusion to men under indictment and awaiting trial for murder as "undesirable citizens," but upon that point he says: "I neither expressed nor indicated any opinion as to whether Messrs. MOYER or HAYWOOD were guilty of the murder of Gov. STEUNENBERG. But no possible outcome either of the trial or the suit can affect my judgment as to the undesirability of the type of citizenship of those whom I mentioned." The murder of Gov. STEUNENBERG was the culmination of a long eeries of barbarous outrages and acts of violence committed by the Western Federation of Minere, a labor organization eo lawlese and abhorrent to the primary ideae of civilization that it might fairly be described not as organized labor, but as organized crime. The pendency of a murder trial does not deprive American citizens of the right to speak their minds about the Western Federation and its bloody work.

Certainly, the aseumption by Mr. JAXON and his "conference" of the right to rebuke the President for interfering with the procedure of justice was an act of towering audacity. When this "conference" proclaimed upon its stationery that "death cannot, will not, and shall not claim our brothers," it directly prejudged the case of MOYER and HAYWOOD. That sentiment is open to no other construction than this, that even if guilty, even if they did murder STEUNENBERG, they shall go free. They "shall not" be put to death for their crime. Does that mean that the "conference" will forcibly set them free? The more Mr. JAXON'S position is examined the worss it appears. But Mr. ROOSEVELT has put him permanently in a position where no argument can be had in his behalf, and none is needed against him.

Time-serving and chicken-hearted politicians may say that the President has made a mistake in thue antagonizing "labor." Nobody can be so blind ae to fail to see that it is not labor that the President condemns, but crime, murder, assassination, the use of dynamite against innocent men in their homes, and a resort to savage violence as a means of eettling disputes. Honest labor can have no relations with crime, no sympathy for criminals. Mr. ROOSEVELT'e letter will cost him nothing politically. Indeed, the writing of it was one of those characteristio acts that make him strong with the people and win their applause. He had the courage to tell Mr. JAXON what he thinks of his "conference," and we have never had a President who surpassed him in the capacity of saying or writing what he thinks in language of unmistakable meaning. Mr. JAXON and other actual or intending critics of the President's expressions will now have not the least douht of his position and his intention to hold it.

SULLIVAN'S CASE.

The case of SULLIVAN, the bruiser and skullbreaker, eo moved the compassion of Judge CRAIN, as he explained in his remarks from the bench yesterday, that after finding that he could not euspend eentence altogether, he imposed a sentence of two months' imprisonment, "in order that, when his imprisonment is over, he might go out and feel like going back to his work and his wife like a man." His Honor admitted that his heart was moved, "but it was moved to take that man and put his feet again on the right road."

The road traveled by the feet of men who have acquired the habit of felonious assault and rohbery was indicated in the case of JOHN FARRELL, arraigned before Magistrate CORNELL yesterday on a charge of attempted burglary. FARRELL was convicted of burglary less than two months ago and eentenced to the Elmira Reformatory. In his case, too, sentence was suspended, probably in order that he might get on his feet again and go home to his wife and his work again like a man. Magistrate CORNELL, we judge, is hard-hearted, for he was not in the least moved by FARRELL'S plight. Much experience with habitual criminals has either sealed the fountains of his pity or given him such wariness of mind that he has doubts about the right road and going to work like a man.

In view of the very bad record of SULLIVAN, Justice CRAIN'S explanation of his light sentence fails to satisfy the inquiring mind. We are sorry for that, but we are exceedingly glad that the Judge has given himself another chance. He frankly says that if he made a mistake he is willing to correct it, and he admite that District Attorney JEROME has brought to his attention facts of which he was not aware. He will on Friday give his decision upon the application of the District Attorney for the revocation of the sentence on the ground of inadequacy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

New Negroes in the New South. In the second of the illuminating articles on the negro problem which RAY STANNARD BAKER is contributing to The American Magazine, he puts one of his discoveries in regard to the Southern whites in the well-found and striking phrase, "They want the New South, but the old darky." And in Mr. BAKER'S opinion, the old darky they cannot have, since he was the product of conditions that are gone forever, and failure to realize this faot has much to do, he thinks, with making the race situation what it is, an ever-growing menace to the Nation.

Of course Mr. BAKER has been told again and again in Atlanta that no Northerner can hope to understand ths negro as do the people who have lived among them all their lives and been forced to study them with ceaseless attention. "But curiously enough," he eays, "I found that these men rarely knew anything about the better class of negroes—those who wers in business or in independent occupations—those who owned their own homes. They did come in contact with the servant negro, the field hand, the common laborer, who make up the great mass of the race. On the other hand, the best class of negroes did not know the higher class of the white people, and based their euspicion and hatred upon the scts of the poorer sort of whites with whom they naturally came into contact. The best elements of the two races are as far apart as if they lived in different countries; and that is one of the chief causes of the growing danger of the Southern situation."

As Mr. BAKER says, the New Negro is not less inevitable than the New South and the New White Southerner. And the "worthless negro" is not, as eo often asserted, the New Negro; he ie only the Old Negro who has proved himself incapable of adaptation to the New South and is going down to extermination in vagrancy and crime and general shiftlessness. But there are negroes, relatively very few, as yet, though absolutely in considerable numbers, who are showing the power of adaptability to new conditions in some degree, at least, and are "getting on," even in spite of the terrible hindrances to which they are subjected. It is these that the white Southsrners do not know, partly, perhaps, because they fiercely refuse to have anything to do with negroes who "do not keep in their proper place"—who, in other words, are not "the old darky."

Invited a Big Discussion. Gov. HUGHES, in overruling Gen. ROE in the matter of accepting the Secretary of War's invitation to assign certain National Guard regiments to assist the regular army in testing the efficiency of the coast defenses this Summer, has taken action of great importance—action that illustrates the Governor's courage, for it is eure to cause endless discussion and no little resentment in National Guard circles, and may have effects the seriousness of which could hardly be exaggerated.

It is evident that, in the eyes of the Governor, the National Guard regiments have an end, an object, which is not—the National Guard regiments. This will be a novel and displeasing view to not a few members of those regiments, for, though they have never expressed, perhaps never even consciously held, the theory that the preservation of "the organization" is the first considsration, they have acted on it again and again, occasionally with consequsnces most harmful to the repute they intended to guard so jealously.

We all remember what happened when a call came from the President for some of the New York regiments to take part in ths Cuban war. All of them showed willingness, even eagerness, to go to the front, and no reasonable person ever douhted either the courage or the patriotism of the militiamen, but in one instance the response was conditioned on an assurance that "the organization" would be kept together under its own officers, and, as this assurance was not given, the regiment staid at home—to be, for many a month thereafter, the sullen object of popular scorn. This feeling died out in time, and it was never very strong, since the Cuban war was not a great emergency, and only a few Bostonians could get the thrill of thinking the country in danger.

The proposed testing of the coast defenses is still less likely to give that thrill, but Gov. HUGHES has been able to see the point at issue, which is whether the National Guard is an end or a means—whether the intereets of the National Guard or the public service are to be determining. Gen. ROE decided that the Secretary's invitation should not be accepted, because acceptance would involve potential or probable injury to "the organizations." Gov. HUGHES decided the other way—decided that the National Guard was for use, and that anything which interfered with use should be ignored. We think his opinion will receive a lot of public approval.

Held the Dead Responsible. After considering the Larchmont case until most people have to be reminded what the Larchmont case was, the United States Steamboat Inspectors—who were in part trying themselves, by the way—have decided that, while there was nothing in Capt. MCVAY'S conduct which they could praise, yet they could not charge him with any definite incompotency, negligence, or bad conduct. They put all responsibility for the collision that cost 150 lives upon the First Pilot, whom they charge with "careless and unskilled navigation," in that he did not keep out of the way of a sailing vessel.

That First Pilot, as it happens, did not, when the crash came, get into a hoat and row ashore with a few membefs of the crew. He remained on the steamer, perhaps out of some old-fashioned idea that his place was there on deck while any passengers were unrescued, and there he died. He may, as the Inspectors hint, have invited the collision wbile trying to "teach the windjammer a lesson," but he did belong to the old school of seamen, while the exonerated MCVAY lives to enter, according to report, the congenial husiness of undertaking. Well, he can easily learn to handle the dead better than he handled the living the night the Larchmont went down.

Men Teachers for Her Boys.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter in to-day's paper concerning the inadvisability of women teachers for boys over seven years of age has come to my notice, and I wish to express my approbation of it.

There would be better discipline, more manly boys on our streets, instead of the little ruffians we have now, and altogether finer results if the hoys' olasses wsre governed by men, and if ths salaries were sufficient to induce cultured, dignified men to take the positions as teachers of our public schools.

INVITATION A LA PARISIENNE.

("The experiment of perfuming the Paris Subway has been made with great success."—Times cable.)

"You'll take a Subway ride, I hope,
With me, adored Musette,
Amid the fragrant heliotrope
And 'Brise des Violettes.'
In balmy darkness you shall hear
Rose-laden breezes moan,
While, hand in hand, Musette, my dear,
We'll dream about Cologne.

"Come, love!—the etairway's vague perfume
Tells what's in store for us:
A scented trip through scented gloom
To scented terminus;
Melodious cries from scented guards:
'Witch Hazel! Next, Bay Rum!'
Musette!—it is a theme for bards,
'The Scented Subway!—Come!'

"Come where Provence's fragrant breeze,
'Mid walls of iron pent,
Meets zephyrs from the Pyrenees
And Gascon vineyard's scent;
Come!—What?—Musette! Your language hurts!
How can you say 'Oh, punk!
We might as well buy perfume squirts
And dive into a trunk'?"

TEACHER REFUSES TO TAKE EXTRA PAY

Writes Board a Letter Saying He's Not Entitled to a Cent of It.

HIS STAND APPLAUDED

Unfavorable Report Made on Plan to Arbitrate the Salary Demands of Teachers.

Through a clerical srror in ths Davis law of 1898, which estahlished the salary schedules under which school teachers are paid at present, the Board of Education for ths last nine years has been involved in litigation, which already has cost the city $1,500,000, without leaving any prospect of relief in sight. Teachers of the graduating class in ths elementary schools in particular have taken advantage of this error. Tbs School Commissioners, espscially Majority Leader Stern, have severely criticised the teachsrs on many occasions for taking advantage of the situation to mulct the city.

Yesterday ths board got a surprise in connection with these suits, which took it off its feet. George L. Byrne, graduating class teacher in Public School 5, Manhattan, recently wrote President Winthrop that although by taking advantage of the error in ths statute he could get $1,100 from the city in the courts, he would relinquish his claim, because "morally I am not entitled to one cent of it." The By-laws Committee presented the letter to the board yesterday with ths suggestion that "the thanks of the board be expressed to Mr. Byrne for his honorable and high-minded behavior in this matter." When the letter was read, the Commissioners clapped vigorously.

"Snch men as Mr. Bryne ought to be promoted in the service," declared Commissioner Delaney of Brooklyn.

No Peace With Teachers.

This letter followed an unfavorable report from the By-Laws Committee on a proposition presented by Commissioner Wilmer, suggesting the holding of a peace conference with the teachers in the hope of preventing further litigation, by arbitration or otherwise. The report was laid over at the suggestion of Mr. Wilmer.

Attached to the report were two letters discussing the arbitration commission. The Interborough Association, which is forcing an "equal pay for equal work" measure through tbe Legislature, that will cost the city many millions to put into operation, wrote one approving Mr. Filmer's efforts to "get fair play for the teachers." The Public Education Association suggested the establishment of a committee of claims, consisting half and half of teachers and members of the hoard, to which every claim should be submitted. This committee would send every claim, together with its opinion for or against the case, to the committtee of the board, under whose charge such a case might come. The By-Laws Committee will take this suggestion under advisement.

Supt. Maxwell's proposition of providing free eyeglasses to pupils suffering from defective vision did not come up yesterday. Chairman Stern of the committee having the matter in charge said that the committee intends to seek the co-operation of Health Commissioner Darlington and the Board of Health in getting oculiste to examine the children. "We have decided to get the oculists before we give away the eyeglasses," said Mr. Stern. Thirty oculists would be needed, and their salaries would amount to about $40,000 to $50,000 a year, according to Mr. Stern. Whether the Board of Estimate is willing to make the appropriation for the purpose remains to he seen.

Favoritism in Appointments.

Commissioner Jonas accused the Board of Superintendents of questionable actions in making out the eligible lists for the position of high schoolo Principal.

"If an eligible list can be juggled with to evade tbe provisions we have laid down, certainly our provisions governing appointments also can be juggled," he said. "Twenty-five candidates took an examination for the position of First Assistant Teacher of Classical Langusges in the Boys' High School, Brooklyn. I learned that before the examination the position was promised to a certain man. It happened that when the examination was over this man was sixth on the eligible list. Even then he expected appointment. If I had not prevented it, the first man on the list would not have received the appointment. This is a case in point. I have no desire to quarrel with the City Superintendent or with the Board of Superintendents, neither shall I run away from a quarrel."

Supt. Maxwell, who is Chairman of the Board of Superintendents, declared that that hoard never considered a proposition of appointng a chosen man to the position. Commissioner Jonas replied. Soon there was a hot argument, which President Winthrop cut off.

DENIED BY ACRITELLI.

Coroner Did Not Give Out Letter Criticising Sicilians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the last few issues of THE TIMES you have published communications from various persons criticising me for allowing the publication of an alleged letter attacking the Sicilian element in this city.

I have denied in Italian papers any knowledge of this alleged letter or of the manner in which it became public, but since these gentlemen justly take THE TIMES as their oracle of news, allow me to make the same denial through THE TIMES, and in order that there may not be any further misunderstanding, please let me state that such a letter was not written to or received hy me; that it was not given out by me for publication, and, in fact, I advised against its publication upon having had a glimpse of it.

People who know me are well aware that I have none but the most kindly feeling toward law-abiding citizens of every nationality or region, and Sicilians are no exception to this rule. Such being the fact, I must ask you to allow me to reiterate, as emphatically as possible, that this alleged letter was not received or given out by me for publication; that it was published against my advice, and that I do not at all sympathize or coincide with the views therein, to wit, the wholesale denunciation of an entire population from a particular region for the sins and crimes committed hy a few.

Cubic Contents of a Ton of Coal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several years ago I saw stated in a book entitled "General Information" that it required forty cubic fest of spacs to hold a ton of coal. Therefors, to estimate ths amonnt of coal in a bin, or that a hin will hold filled to height desired to fill, multiply the length of hin by width, and that product hy ths height, to get the number of cuhic feet, which divide by forty. Ths quotient is the amount of coal.

To prove that this is correct fill a hox containing a cuhic foot of space with sither chestnut, stove, or grate coal, or mixed, and it will be found on weighing that the hox contains exactly fifty pounds of coal, even full, or one-fortieth part of a ton.

Many coal dealers do not appear to be informed of the exact number of cubic feet required to hold a ton of coal. Inquiring of dealers in different cities, the answer given by many varied from 34 to 38 cubic feet, only two answering correctly. C. C.

INVESTED WITH PALLIUM.

Archbishop Blenk Succeeds the Late Archbishop Chapelle.

NEW ORLEANS, April 24.—Before a distinguished representation of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy of the United States, including Cardinal Gibbons, two Archbishops, and sixteen Bishops, Archbishop Blenk of New Orleans was invested to-day with the pallium. This insignia is the official recognition hy the Church of the Archbishop's succesaion to the functions and authority of the late Archbishop Chapelle, whose Archiepiscopal Province comprised Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Texas, and Oklahoma, and who died during the yellow fever epidemio here two years ago.

The ceremony took place in the old St. Louis Cathedral. About 10 o'clock a solemn procession of 150 of the clergy entered the Cathedral, where, following a celebration of high mass, the pallium was put upon the altar. It was brought here from Rome, and its sacred import was described by Archbishop Glennon of St. Louis, who delivered the sermon.

After the mass Archbishop Blenk renewed his oath of allegiance to tbe Holy Ses, and then Cardinal Gibbons placed the pallium upon the most reverend prelate's shoulders.

In addition to those mentioned the following were present:

Archbishop Moeller of Cincinnati and Bishops Estrada of Havana, Scannell of Omaha, Hennessy of Wichita, Janssen of Belleville, O'Reilly (auxiliary) of Peoria, Morris (coadjutor) of Little Rock, Byrne of Nashville, Garrigan of Sioux City, Kenny of St. Augustine, Verdaguer of Brownsville, Dunne of Dallas, Gallagher of Galveston, Meerschaert of Guthrie, Heslin of Natchez, Allen of Mobile, and Van De Ven of Natchitoches, La.

HARLEM'S NEW HOSPITAL

Will Be Opened To-morrow with Accommodations for 250 Patients.

Ths new group of buildings of the Harlem Hospital, facing on Lenox Avenue, between 136th and 137th Street, with accommodations for 250 patients, is practically finished, and will he opened for patients probably to-morrow. The main building, a structure of red brick and light stone, is one of the most notable architectural features of Harlem. It not only will provide one of the best equipped and up-to-date hospitals in New York, but it is large enough to supply the ambulance district in which it is located for many years to come.

Final touches in the way of getting fittings and furnishings in shape in the new building are under the direction of Miss Sara Gainsforth, supervising nurse of the hospital. With her she has every employe who can be spared from the old Harlem Hospital, on East 120th Street.

The new hospital will start off with the same staff as the old one had, with such increase as may be necessary from time to time.

The Harlem Hospital leaves frame buildings, which, erected in the day that Harlem was a village along the Harlem and East Rivers, were fine country mansions.

MANN RARE BOOK SALE.

The Lenox Library Purchases Work Printed In 1766—Other Sales.

A volume of The Thespian Mirror, which John Howard Payne published in New York in 1805, when he was only 13 years of age, was one of the many rareties sold yesterday by the Anderson Company of the private library of Charles N. Mann of Philadelphia. The magazine was sold for $51.25 to George D. Smith.

The Lenox Library obtained, for $42, another rarity, namely, "Ponteach; or, The Savages of America," written by Major Robert Rogers and published in London in 1766.

Alfred Becks bought for $120 an extra-illustrated copy of "Actors and Actresses of Great Britain and the United States," by Brander Matthews and Laurence Hutton.

The extremely rare "Secret Memoirs of Harriott Pumpkin, hy the Ghost of Old Ralph," an attack on Mrs. Mellon, the actress, afterward Duchess of St. Albans, was sold for $20. The book is said to have been immediately suppressed after its issue and all copies that could be found destroyed.

A first edition of William Prynne's "Histrio-Mastix, Player's Scourge; or, Actors' Tragedies," London, 1633, sold for $25.50. For the publication of this work Prynne had his ears cut off, besides being imprisoned and fined.

A first edition of the scarce Revolutionary play, "The Widow's Son," by Samuel Woodworth, author of "The Old Oaken Bucket," was sold for $37 to Frank Maier, a collector of Americana.

MORE DISPENSARIES NEEDED.

Hospital Conference Decides to Make an Appeal to the Mayor.

At a meeting of the Hospital Conference of the City of New York last night at the Academy of Medicine, 17 West Forty-third Street, two papers were read by medical men on the subject of dispensaries and the treatment of dispensary patients, and it was declared the dispensaries of New York handled more cases during the last year than ever before.

It was declared that either more dispensaries must be provided, or a limit put on the number of patients treated. This would mean that in many cases persons needing treatment would be turned away from the dispensaries.

The conference has only power to make recommendations, and it was decided to make a statement to the Mayor and the heads of hospitals with regard to the matter.

BLOODGOOD CUTTER'S WILL.

$1,000,000 to Bible Society Upheld, but Other Bequeste Illegal.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 24.—Surrogate Jackson of Nassau County signed a decree to-day probating the will of the late Bloodgood H. Cutter, the farmer poet, who died at Little Neck, leaving the bulk of his estate, amonnting to $1,000,000, to the American Bible Society. The Surrogate in proving the will removed all interlineations and cancellations in the instrument which were objected to by several of the legatees.

According to the interlineations the Little Neck farm was apparently to pass to John Cutter, Jr., a second cousin, one of three children, to the exclusion of their father's life interest, John Cutter of Augusta, Me., and of the other children. The farm is worth thousands of dollars as it is in the fast developing suburban section. With the interlineations the Manhasset farm, another valuable tract, was to pass to George Cutter, Jr., to the exclusion of his three brothers.

Stephen Wilson, one of the executors of the will, testified that the poet wrote something in the will after all the witnesses had signed it. Mr. Wilson was also removed as executor, as his name had also been filled in with Richard Smith, co-executor.

Miss Waldo Willed $5,000 to Charity.

The will of Rosalie Livingston Waldo, a half-sister of ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Waldo, who died in Paris, France, on March 16, was filed in the Surrogates' office yesterday. The will disposes of an estate worth more than $50,000, according to the petition accompanying it. The sum of $5,000 is given to the Children's Aid Society of New York for the benefit of the Astor Memorial School in Mott Street. The rest of the property is given to relatives.

Will of Elizabeth Wood.

The will of Elizabeth Wood, who died on April 16, was filed with the Surrogate yesterday. It hequeaths to the Methodist Episcopal Church Home $1,000, St. Christopher's Home for Orphan Children at Dobb's Ferry gets $1,000, and the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church the property at the southwest corner of 118th Street and Second Avenue. The rest of the estate goes to relatives and friends.

The Park Gets a Connochaetes.

A specimen of Genus connochaetes, or horned horse, arrived at the Central Park Zoo yesterday, and was added to the menagerie. Director Smith got the beast, which is really a South African antelope or gnu, in a trade after it had been shipped from Africa. It is a fine specimen, he says. There was a gnu in the menagerie twelve years ago, but it was merely lent by P. T. Barnum.

REPUBLICANS PLOT AGAINST OKLAHOMA

Cannon Hopes to Keep Out Her Electoral Votes Next Year.

AN APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

He is Asked to Reject the Constitution and So Cause Delay—His Attitude In Doubt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—A schems of which Speaker Cannon is the most prominent figure, to keep Oklahoma out of the Union until after the next Presidential election, is under way, and President Roosevelt has been asked to join in it.

Oklahoma will be one of the biggest of the Western States and she is entitled to two Senators and five Representatives, which would give her seven votes in the Electoral College. It is quite within the range of possibilities that her vote might decide the next Presidential election.

When the Democrats swept Oklahoma last year it was a frightful shock to the Republican leaders. They had not been very optimistic, but they had hoped that if they did not carry Oklahoma at least the majority would be small enougb to give them a fighting chance in the future. Oklahoma's Democratic majority was such as to make it certain that the Republicans had no chance whatever in the near future.

Thereupon the leaders began to schems. Many of them are doubtful of defeating Bryan next year unless Roosevelt is the candidate. At any rate they do not want to take any chances. There were some conferences, at which the watchword was "Oklahoma must be kept out of the Union at any cost."

It looked like a good deal of a contract, in view of the fact that Congress had enacted and the President had approved a law admitting the State to the Union, but difficulties apparently insuperable simply serve to bring out real genius, and that is what the Republican leaders have.

They waited until the Oklahoma Constitutional Convention adjourned before doing anything to arouse its suspicions. Then they began to work. The plot was to get the President to withhold his approval of the State Constitution and necessitate the calling of a new Constitutional Convention. If the President could be induced to do this the leaders believed that it would he impossible to get a new Constitutional Convention elected and have its work completed and the Constitution ratified at the polls in time for the State to participate in the next election.

Speaker Cannon was easily enlisted in this plan, because all along he had been opposed to Statehood, and did his best to prevent the passage of the act. His sole reason appeared to be that Oklahoma would cast a Democratic vote in the next Electoral College. He was more thoroughly soured over his defeat on this question than anything that ever happened to him. The Oklahoma election merely accentuated his grievance.

The plan to have the President throw out the Constitution was suggested by certain remarks he made while the convention was at its work. He threatened to reject the instrument if it contained a "Jim Crow car" provision. The convention struck out the "Jim Crow" section, and the incident was closed, but it gave the Republican leaders an idea.

The law is supposed to limit the President's powers in rejecting a State Constitution. He is not allowed to do so so long as it provides for a republican form of government, and is not in conflict with the Constitution of the United States. The conspirators, however, declare they have discovered sufficient grounds for action.

The idea was first broached to the President some weeks ago by Dennis Flynn of Oklahoma. The President did not indicate what he thought. Then Senator Long of Kansas came and urged the plan. He is one of the Roosevelt men in the Senate. The President listened, but made no sign.

The Speaker took part to-day. His personal representative in the House, Representative Watson of Indiana, came on here with a copy of the Constitution and a memorandum of points in it which might furnish ground for a rejection. These he took to the White House with a request that the President would give an answer.

The reason to be given by the President, if he lends himself to the scheme, is that the Constitution includes many matters which might more properly be left for a State Legislature to enact after it had been elected; that it goes too much into detail instead of confining itself to broad general principles.

What the plotters chiefly rely on is the fact that the President is known to disapprove heartily of one of the provisions of the Constitution, which denies the ballot to soldiers who are serving outside the State. He has not indicated, however, that his dislike for this section is strong enough to tempt him into such a performance as Watson proposed to him to-day.

Watson came here direct from the Speaker, who went to Indiana the other day to see him and give directions about the Fall campaign, including this matter. This visit is the one which was distorted into an alliance between Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon. The real purpose of Cannon was to give Watson his orders.

CANNON DENIES DEAL.

Illinois Delegation Not to be Handed to Fairbanks, He Says.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Speaker Cannon, who arrived in Washington to-day from the West, was very much surprised to learn of the report that he had made an agreement to deliver the Illinois delegation to the next Republican National Convention to Vice President Fairbanks. He said:

"The first I knew of such a meeting was on my journey to Washington this morning when I received the Washington papers. No such conferenoe was had or thought of at any time. Our people in Illinois arc exceedingly busy attending to the ordinary affairs of life. Some time during the latter part of next Winter or Spring no doubt the Republicans of Illinois will select a delegation to the Republican National Convention, but no attention so far as I am informed nnd believe is being paid to the matter at this time.

"He would be a bold man who would agree to deliver the Illinois delegation to anybody, and any one in public life wou'd not only be a bold man who would so agree, but would draw a prize, if one was offered, for being a foolish man."

CLEVELAND INDORSES PLAN.

Descendants of Signers of Declaration of Independence May Meet.

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association of the United States has made public a letter from ex-President Cleveland, approving the plan for the reunion of the descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence at Jamestown Exposition, on July 4. Mr. Cleveland says:

"It seems to me that a reunion of the descendants of the signers of the Declaration of Independence on or about the date when this immortal document was signed would be a most impressive incident in connection with the Jamestown Exposition. Such a reunion should certainly have a tendency to stimulate patriotic sentiment and arouse among those who are within its influence a better appreciation of the initial efforts of the Fathers of the Republio to establish a new nation, and impress upon it the best ideals of a free Government."

WHITE HOUSE DINNER WITH MUSIC LATER

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt Entertain a Distinguished Company.

DANCE ON GRANITE STATE

Naval Reservists Entertain Their Friends on the Ship—Eclectic Club Produces "Petticoat Perfidy."

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at dinner this evening, in the White House. Their guests were the French Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Meyer, Secretary and Mrs. Garfield, Justice and Mrs. Day, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Beekman Winthrop, Assistant Postmaster General F. H. Hitchcock, the Counselor of the British Embassy and Lady Isabella Howard, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Cowles, Gen. Crozier, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Norman, Mrs. Bayard, widow of the ex-Secretary of State; Mrs. Hobson, Mrs. Borden, Mrs. Nicholas Fish, Capt. McCoy, and Capt. Long. The table was decorated with Richmond roses, in mounds, and apple blossoms, one of the most Springlike and dainty decorations of the season. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a gown of golden brocade, which harmonized with the flowers used.

Some additional guests were asked for a musicale in the East Room, later in the evening. The programme was given by Miss Corrie Scheffer, a young Dutch violinist, who is a daughter of Dr. R. C. H. Scheffer, who founded the famous botanical gardens in Batavia, Java, where the young artist was born. She was for five years a pupil of Ysaye, and during most of that time was a member of his household. She gave a programme this evening especially selected by the President, which consisted of folk songs, contra dances, and legends arranged for stringed instruments, and was accompanied by Miss Blakely. The two young women wore the costume of the peasants of the Netherlands, with its elaborate cap, multitudinous petticoats, and gay colorings of the land of Delftware and windmills.

Miss Scheffer came to America about a year ago to join her sister, Mrs. Richard Erskine Ely, wife of the Director of the League of Political Study. She was heard in concert in New York under distinguished patronage, including Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder, Mrs. Robert Abbe, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. William A. Perry, and Mrs. Douglas Robineon, the last named a sister of the President, for whom Miss Scheffer has given the programme at several musicales. Miss Scheffer and Miss Blakely will repeat the programme to-morrow night, at the Netherlands Legation.

Mrs. Bryce, wife of the British Ambassador, held a large and pretty reception in the Embassy this afternoon, when 100 members of the diplomatic corps and other smart society in Washington paid their respects. The ballroom, in which she received the guests, and the dining room were decorated with Spring blossoms.

Mrs. Robert Shaw Oliver, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War, is confined to her bed with grip, and will be unable to accompany the distinguished party to Jamestown to-morrow, for the opening of the Exposition. The Misses Oliver will go with their father.

Mr. and Mrs. James Pinchot gave the use of their home this afternoon for a lecture given by Mr. Tibbets, Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. His subject was "The Battle of the Strong."

The Minister from Colombia and Mme. Cortez entertained at dinner to-night, having as their guests the Minister from Haiti and Mme. Legere, the Minister from Mexico to Cuba and Mme. Godoy, Miss Calderon, daughter of the Minister from Bolivia, Count and Countess Hatzfeld, the First Secretary of the Colombian Legation and Mme. Guzman, Mr. Walls of the Spanish Legation, Mr. Pasos of the Colombian Legation, and the Minister from Salvador, Mr. Mejia.

The Minister from the Netherlands and Mme. Van Swinderen entertained at dinner this evening, in the legation.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy entertained at dinner this evening.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Taft were the guests of honor at dinner this evening of Gen. and Mrs. John A. Johnson, in their Massachusetts Avenue home.

Mme. Creel, wife of the Mexican Ambassador, was the guest of Mrs. M. M. Parker to-day at a beautifully appointed luncheon given in her honor.

DANCE ON THE GRANITE STATE.

Naval Reservists Entertain Their Friends on Their Ship.

Gayly decorated with flags and bunting the Granite State, formerly the United States warship New Hampshire, resounded last night to the strains of music, for a dance given by members of the Second Division of the First Battalion, Naval Militia of New York. The reserve ship was stationed at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street.

The dance took place on the spar deck, which was decorated with flags of the international code and the navy hoist, intermingling with the Stars and Stripes.

Overhead the deck was canopied with the colors of the United States Navy in blue and old gold. On the after bridge the numbers "II." appeared in varicolored electric lights, emblem of the Second Division.

On the spar deck and just below the after bridge stood a Colt automatic rapid-fire gun, and another gun—a trophy obtained from the wreck of the Spanish cruiser Isla de Cuba, and presented to the battalion by one of the members of the division, who fought in the war with Spain.

Dancing began at 9 o'clock.

A string orchestra was stationed in the centre of the deck and played for the dancing. As the guests arrived they were received on the spar deck by Mrs. George Pell, Mrs. Henry H. Forbes, and Mrs. Joseph Ewing. The dancing continued until midnight, when supper was served on the gun deck in the intermission in the numbers. On the gun deck there was a horseshoe-shaped table, and at the head of the table the National ensign was unfurled.

The gun deck was illuminated throughout with electric lights, covered with Japanese lanterns. After supper dancing was resumed and continued until about 2:30 o'clock this morning.

The Committee of Arrangements included Hamilton Pell, Henry O. Barber, Niles Becker, Thomas P. Cummings, S. Barclay Lottimer, John R. Moore, Jr., George A. Schultze, and Philip Van Rennselaer Schuyler.

The patronesses were Mrs. Charles S. Bates, Mrs. Emily F. Bloodgood, Mrs. Sidney de Kay, Mrs. William De Wolf Dimock, Mrs. Joseph Ewing, Mrs. Henry H. Forbes, Mrs. William B. Franklin, Mrs. George G. Guion, Mrs. Campbell T. Hamilton, Mrs. Andrew E. Kalbach, Mrs. John R. Moore, Mrs. Albert F. Newcomb, Mrs. George H. Pell, Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, Mrs. Richard K. Schuyler, and Mrs. John W. MISS DULA WEDS MR. GARY.

Ceremony at the Home of the Bride's Parents in Fifth Avenue.

Eugene Windom Gary, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Windom Gary of North Carolina, was married to Miss Rena Dula at 8 o'clock last night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Byron Dula, formerly of St. Louis, 1,073 Fifth Avenue. The Rev. J. Ross Stevenson of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Robert Byron Dula. She wore a gown of soft white satin, with sleeves and yoke of point lace. The skirt and bodice were embroidered and touches of silver showed in the embroidery. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms.

Miss Belva Dula, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The two matrons of honor were Mrs. Orrin Wightmnn of New York and Mrs. Selwyn Clay Edgar, Jr., of St. Louis. They carried bouquets of roses and were all gowned alike in robes of white net over white satin, the skirts being trimmed with tiny garlands of pink rosebuds and forget-me-nots, tied together with pale blue ribbons. The robes were covered by Directoire coats, with sash ends of pale blue silk.

Miss Josephine Edgar of St. Louis was the flower girl at the wedding. She wore a gown of white mulle trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and carried a basket of flowers. Henry Buell was best man and the ushers were Manly Whedbee, George Minnigerode, Alexander Gerry, and Robert L. Dula. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Gary will travel for a time and make their future home in New York.

HUTTON—WOOLWORTH.

Franklyn Laws Hutton was married to Miss Edna Woolworth, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn W. Woolworth, yesterday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, the Rev. Herbert Shipman officiating. The chancel of the church where the ceremony took place was decorated with lilacs, bouganvillia, and palms, with several large palm trees forming a background. Standards supporting baskets of Easter lilies, bouganvillia, lilacs, and a variety of flowers were put at intervals on each side of the nave, and clusters of lilacs and stocks were put at the ends of the pews.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown, with panel, yoke, and sleeves of point lace, and a point lace veil. She carried orchids and lilies.

Miss Jessie Woolworth, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and another sister, Mrs. Charles E. F. McCann, was matron of honor. Miss Woolworth wore white chiffon and lace and a large white hat, and Mrs. McCann wore a lilac flowered, white chiffon, with touches of lilac, and a leghorn hat, with quantities of lilac plumes.

Edward F. Hutton, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the ushers were Ernest M. Lockwood, John Sayre Martin, Benjamin Wood, S. S. Beardsley, Charles P. Pope, and Charles E. F. McCann. A wedding reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn W. Woolworth, Eightieth Street and Fifth Avenue.

ASPINWALL—CHRISTIAN.

The marriage of Francis E. Aspinwall, a son of Mrs. Helen Redfield, to Miss Phoebe Christian, daughter of the Rev. Dr. George Martin Christian of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, took place at 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the bride's father officiating. Only intimate friends and relatives of the families were present owing to the recent death of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. William Weir of Philadelphia.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret Douglas Christian. Breck Aspinwall, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Dr. Robert M. Jones, William Quaid, and Edward Ten Broeck. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast and small reception were held in the rectory of the church, 144 West Forty-seventh Street.

FOOTE—COWAN.

Henry Allen Foote, a son of Emerson Foote of this city, was married to Miss Ada M. Cowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisher Cowan, yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Halsey, 22 West Fifty-third Street.

Miss Cowan, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a trained white satin robe trimmed with point lace and a tulle veil. She carried lilies of the valley.

There were no bridesmaids. Emerson Foote, Jr., was best man. The ushers were Lynford M. Dickinson, Graham Brush, John Godfrey Saxe, and Harold Imbrie. The wedding was followed by a large reception.

BRYANT—OAKLEY.

The marriage of Robert T. Bryant and Miss Grace Oakley, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Oakley, took place last evening at 8 o'clock in St. Stephens's Church, in West Sixty-ninth Street, the Rev. Nathan A. Seagle officiating. A reception at the home of the bride's parents, 203 West Seventieth Street, followed the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of white satin brocade, trimmed with duchesse lace. She was given in marriage by her father. She was attended by Miss Clara Thomson as maid of honor. Mr. Bryant's best man was William F. French, and the ushers were Leroy Coventry, Dr. E. P. McGavock, Warren Lillard, and Mr. Foulion.

TAYLOR—CAMPBELL.

Miss Mary D. Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, and James G. Taylor, were married in the North Reformed Church, Newark, yesterday afternoon. The Rev. James I. Vance, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Donald Sage Mackay, pastor of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, in the city. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, 515 Mt. Prospect Avenue, Newark.

PLANS FOR FOWLER WEDDING.

Will Take Place at the Bride's Home on June 1.

The wedding of Miss Harriot McLean Fowler and Dr. Sinclair Toucey of West Forty-sixth Street will take place at Babylnn, L. I., the home of the bride, on Saturday, June 1. Miss Fowler will have as bridesmaids Miss Helen Rutgers Sturgis, Miss Caroline Alden Weir, and the Misses Helen and Mildred Harbeck.

Dr. Toucey's best man will be his brother, Dr. Ralph Toucey, and the ushers will be Dr. Herbert C. de V. Cornwell, Thomas Hopper Beardsley, Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., and Alexander V. Blake, the latter a cousin of Miss Fowler. Owing to the death last October of Dr. Toucey's father the guests will be limited to relatives and intimate friends.

L. L. HYDE ENGAGED.

Announcement was made in Winchester, Va., early in the week of the engagement of Miss Lelia Moss McGuire, a daughter of Dr. William P. McGuire of that place, to Lewis Livingston Hyde of this city. The wedding will probably take place in June.

Mr. Hyde's fiancée is a cousin of his first wife, who was Miss Mary M. McGuire, whose first husband was John Stevens, of Castle Point, and whose daughter by Mr. Stevens, Miss Mary Picton Stevens, married Ogden H. Hammond at Castle Point about two weeks ago. Mr. Hyde is a member of the University and other clubs, and was graduated from Yale in 1879.

JOHN MITCHELL ILL.

Has a Cold Complicating an Old Ailment—Operation Necessary.

CHICAGO, April 24.—John Mitchell, President of the United Mine Workers of America, is suffering with a severe cold at the home of Frank Scheil in this city. The labor leader reached Chicago three days ago on his way to Washington. It was learned to-day that the cold had aggravated an old trouble to which Mr. Mitchell has been subject, and that an operation will be necessary. Dr. W. W. McCleary, who is attending the patient, expects to perform the operation early next week. Mrs. Mitchell is expected at her husband's bedside to-night from Spring Valey, Ill.

"If the operation is successful," said Dr. McCleary to-day, "Mr. Mitchell ought to recover completely, and be in shape to resume his work within a short time. The patient is in little pain to-day, and is improving all the time.

Dorothy Tennant Ill.

MILWAUKEE, April 24.—Dorothy Tennant, formerly leading woman in "The College Widow," was taken ill here today and will be forced to spend the next three months in a local sanitarium under treatment for nervous prostration. Mme. Donalda to Sing Here To-night.

Mme. Pauline Donalda, late of the Manhattan Opera House, returned yesterday from Montreal, where she gave a song recital last Monday evening. This is the second recital she has given in Montreal, her birthplace, this season. To-night she appears in New York at Mendelssohn Hall, and sails on Saturday on the Etruria. She and her husband, Paul Sevelhac, are to join the opera company at Covent Garden.

OLD DALY EFFECTS UNDER THE HAMMER

PASSES INTO NEW HANDS

The auction in Daly's Theatre yesterday afternoon was a pathetic scene indeed. To some of those who attended it may have meant little, but to the man who has witnessed many historic productions in that most historic of New York playhouses it was sad to witness the dismantling of the theatre. The orcheetra chairs, which have seated so many distinguished and enthusiastic audiences, were occupied mainly by men who did not consider it necessary to remove their hats. They laughed as the old furniture was brought on the stage and exposed for sale. They thought it was a poor auction, because apart from the old pictures and the bric-a-brac collected by Mr. Daly there was comparatively little of intrinsic value for sale. Even the auctioneer saw only humor in the battered settings of a famous stage.

Some true lovers of the theatre were present and did their part fittingly. Though it is true that much of what was offered for sale could not be gifted with even a sentimental worth, these people sought out and paid fair prices for articles which could be said to have had personal association with Augustin Daly. The total proceeds of the sale amounted to $10,-$133.25.

The main feature of the sale was the purchase by Klaw & Erlanger in one lot of practically all the paintings, crayons, and engravings hanging in the lobby and foyer, down stairs, and around the balcony. The sum paid was $4,500, and Mr. Erlanger himself was present when the bid was made. When some one rose to question whether all these articles should be sold in one lot the auctioneer explained that they had been advertised to be disposed of in this manner. The collection included fifty-nine articles. Among the paintings and crayons were portraits of Henry Irving, Ellen Terry, John McCullough, Nell Gwyn, Fanny Davenport, Adelaide Neilsen, Sarah Bernhardt, David Garrick, Peg Woffington, James W. Wallack, Mrs. Siddons, Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson, Ada Rehan, Mrs. Gilbert, Lester Wallack, Coquelin, Eleanora Duse, and numerous other favorites past and present. Mr. Anderson, bidding for Klaw & Erlanger, also paid $220 for a pair of Chinese lanterns and $110 for a pair of Sevres vases. He also made many small purchases at liberal prices.

Frank McKee paid $350 for a beautiful clock in a mahogany case, and the Shuberts bought the plush furniture now in the lobby. Most of the articles were sold for small sums. The greater part of the stage equipment had passed beyond the period of all usefulness, but it seemed as if many of the little decorative pieces were worth more than they brought.

The auction yesterday marked an epoch in the history of Daly's Theatre. It is controlld by the Daly estate no more. It passes from the hands of the syndicate into the hands of the opposing managers, to be reopened by Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller in the Fall.

NEW GERMAN THEATRE PLANS.

Meeting of Those Interested—Prof. Mucha New Scenic Manager.

New York men and women interested in German theatricals held a meeting at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering the future of the German thentre in this city. Several hundred people were present, which, in itself is active testimony of the popular interest in reorganizing the present German theatre, under the management of the new director, Dr. Baumfeld, and the more ambitious project of establishing a new German theatre somewhere further uptown within the next year or two. Ambassador Charlemagne Tower sent a telegram explaining his inability to be present. The German Consul General, Karl Buenz, presided in his place.

Dr. Baumfeld, the new Director of the Irving Place Theatre, who has recently replaced Herr Conried in control, the principal speaker, pointed out the necessity of having a man of authoritative artistic personality and accomplishments at the head of the scenic department of the theatre, and announced that Prof. Alphonse Mucha would take charge at the opening of the coming season. Prof. Mucha will also superintend the artistic decoration of the new building, which is expected to be a monument of modern Germanic architecture.

Dr. Baumfeld also explained his plan of inviting the universities of the city and other institutions of learning into an organization for enabling the students to attend at the thentre free lecture courses on the plays of special intcrest to them.

Among the other speakers were Consul General Buenz, Prof. William H. Carpenter of Columbia, and Dr. Baruch, the German physician and dramatic author. Speeches were delivered in both the English and German languages. Tea was served after the formal meeting.

LAWSON TO BE DRAMATIZED.

His Novel, "Friday the 13th," Going on the Stage with Moral Unimpaired.

Mrs. H. C. De Mille returned from a visit to Boston, with the announcement that she had arranged for the dramatization of Thomas W. Lawson's novel, "Friday, the 13th." Mrs. De Mille also announced, with becoming gravity, that the author's only stipulation with regard to the dramatization was that the "moral" of the story should be preserved in the play.

Mrs. De Mille says that the Stock Exchange play will contain no star part, but will be produced next season by David Belasco. The production will be made by a special cast, and Mr. Belasco, though he will not himself dramatize the book, will in a general way supervise the creation of the dramatic version.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

To commemorate the final performance this season of "The Great Divide" at the Princess Theatre, souvenirs will be distributed on Saturday night. This will be the 232d performance. It will reopen at Daly's on Aug. 26.

To-night will be military night at the Lyceum Theatre. The boys of Company B, Seventh Regiment, will occupy practically the entire orchestra to see Arnold Daly in "The Boys of Company B."

Lotta Faust has been ill for the last day or two and unable to appear in the cast of "The White Hen" at the Casino. Her part has been taken by her understudy, Leona Stevens.

Margaret Wycherly's engagement in "The Primrose Path," scheduled for next Monday evening at the Majestic Theatre, has been postponed to Monday, May 6. Miss Wycherly will appear next week at the Shubert Theatre, Brooklyn, and "The Prince Chap" will continue for a week more at the Majestic.

The leading women of Keith & Proctor's two stock companies at the Harlem Opera House and the Fifth Avenue will exchange places for a week, beginning on Monday. Beatrice Morgan will appear as Dorothy Vernon at the Fifth Avenue and Henriette Browns will play Ona in "The Jungle" at the Harlem house.

Mrs. Max Stettheimer, whose husband was killed in the same railroad wreck which caused the death of Sam Shubert, will make her vaudeville debut at the Lincoln Square Theatre on Sunday in a farcical sketch entiled "A Bee in Her Bonnet."

"RIP VAN WINKLE" IN PARIS.

Thomas Jefferson to Play the Title Role in French.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 24. — "Rip Van Winkle" is to be given in Paris in the French language, and the title role is to be played by a member of the Jefferson family. Thomas Jefferson is the intrepid comedian who is to take the play to the French capital. Harry F. Greene, the business manager of the company, said to-day:

"Joseph Jefferson knew that the people of Paris were very anxious to see this play, of which they had heard so much, and at one time the elder Coquelin and Mr. Jefferson had a conference on the subject. The scheme then was for Coquelin to play the part of Rip, because Mr. Jefferson could not speak French.

"Tom Jefferson, the son, however, speaks French fluently, and will give the play at the Cluny Theatre with as much ease as he gives it in English. The French version is by Léonce Robillon, French Consul at Baltimore, and is nearly completed."

Miss Parlow Plays in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24.—Cathlesn Parlow, an American violinist, made her début in this city to-night. The critics speak favorably of her playing. Miss Parlow, who is 16 years old, studied music in San Francisco. She purposes making a tour of the capitals of Europe.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

James O. Sheldon.

James O. Sheldon, a Director in the Manhattan Trust Company, died yesterday at his home, 12 East Fortieth Street. He was born in Windsor, Conn., in 1823. His father, James Sheldon of the firm of Sheldon & Phelps, was active in mercantile affairs here and well known to men of the older generation.

At the age of 26 Mr. Sheldon became a banker and commission merchant in the firm of Wadsworth & Sheldon.

In 1855 he retired and purchased the White Spring Farm near Geneva, N. Y., where he resided for sixteen years. Here he devoted himself to breeding shorthorn cattle from his own importations and from other American herds.

In 1878 Mr. Sheldon returned to New York. Until within the last year of his life he was activs in many charities. For nine years he was a trustee of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, serving for a part of the time as President of the board. He was a member of the Union League Club, the Down Town Association, and the New England Society. He leaves a widow and three children—Mrs. Andrew H. Smith, Mrs. S. K. Walker, and James Sheldon.

Robert Estling Wescott.

Robert Estling Wescott, ex-President of the Westcott Express Company, died suddenly on Tuesday of pneumonia at his home, The Dakota, 1 West Seventy-second Street. He was the only son of the late Robert Folger Westcott, founder of the Westcott Express Company. Mr. Westcott was born in this city in 1855. He entered his father's office and later succeeded him as President. He was a pioneer in the transportation of milk to this city by rail and devoted himself for the most part to that business. He was a life member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a member of the Ardsley and Transportation Clubs, the Museum of Natural History, and the Historical and Botanical Societies. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Stephen C. Millett of Irvington-on-the-Hudson.

The Rev. John Fulton.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—The Rev. John Fulton died here to-dny from heart disease. John Fulton was born in Glasgow, Scotland, on April 2, 1834. He was educated at Aberdeen and came to the United States in 1850. He was ordained priest at New Orleans in 1857. Later he went to St. Louis, where he became rector of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church. From St. Loule he came to New York and became one of the editors of the Churchman. In 1892 he went to Philadelphia as Professor of Canon Law at the Philadelphia Divinity School.

J. Howard Lewis.

Special to The New York Times.

MEDIA, Penn., April 24.—J. Howard Lewis, President of the Rose Tree Fox Hunting Club, died to-day at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sarah Lewis Fallon. He was 92 years old. Mr. Lewis was one of the well known fox hunters in this country. A few weeks ago he was elected President of the Hunt, to succeed B. P. Saulnier, who died at the age of 97. Mr. Lewis began his hunting career in the Winter of 1852, and was one of the originators and the first President of the Rose Tree Club.

Capt. Nicholas T. Smith.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 24. — Capt. Nicholas T. Smith, the veteran Treasurer of the Southern Pacific, died last night at his home, at San Carlos, San Mateo county. He was born at Schodack, N. Y., on Nov. 29, 1829. He held only two places in his railroad career. Entering the service in 1871 as Cashier and Paymaster of the Southern Pacific, he was promoted in five years to be Treasurer of that railroad.

Col. George W. Smith.

CAPE MAY, N. J., April 24.—Col. George W. Smith, aged 79 years, died this evening after a long illness. He was born in Cincinnati, and with three brothers lived in Philadelphia from 1844 to 1850. Since then he had lived here. During the civil war he served as Captain of Company H, Seventh New Jersey Volunteer Infantry. In 1865 he was elected to the City Council, and in 1871 and 1872 was Sergeant-at-Arms of the New Jersey Senate. In 1875 he was elected Captain of Company H, Sixth New Jersey Regiment, and rose in rank until he became Lieut. Colonel, which position he resigned in 1877. For twenty-five years he was Superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School. For nearly ten years he had been confined to his room, but had a telephone connection with his church so as to hear every sermon.

NEW RACING ASSOCIATION.

Clubs on New York Bay Organize to Foster the Sport.

A new yacht racing association, said to be the largest in point of numbers and flotilla organized in the vicinity of New York, is in process of formation, to include eight clubs located on upper and lower New York Bay to foster racing and social interests of the various individual organizations. The new association will affect none of the existing associations with the exception of the Racing Association of Jamaica Bay, from which it draws one member, but is made up of clubs hitherto entirely independent. It proposes to provide a full season of racing for the clubs enlisted in it, including a series of club races and two big association championship regattas, and will provide races for both power and sail craft.

The clubs interested in the new movement are the Erie Basin Yacht Club, which formerly belonged to the Jamaica Bay association; the Newark, Passaic, Elizabeth, and Rahway Clubs, the Ocean Yacht Club, the Pavonia, and the Staten Island Clubs. Organization will be effected at an early formal meeting, and a Regatta Committee provided to arrange the schedule of racing. The committee, which is now formulating preliminary plans, includes Rear Commodore Charles F. Kelgard of the Erie Basin Club, John H. Muhlken, and Charles W. Cooper. The organization will be known as the Yacht Racing Association of New York Bay.

In every regatta both sail and motor boats will race, the sail craft being limited to the smaller classes, while it is intended that in addition to the championship events a race around Staten Island shall also be held for both kinds of craft.

READY TO LAUNCH RACERS.

New Boats Building for Coming Season to Go Overboard Next Week.

Rapid progress is being made with the new small boats building for New York yachtsmen for racing purposes this year. The four Gielow 15-footers for Lipton Cup racing and the 22-footer for the King's Cup at Jamestown are nearly ready for launching, and will go overboard within a fortnight. The two Lipton Cup boats building by Charles D. Mower are in frame and being rushed to completion, while his new 22 and his sonderklasse boat are progressing.

The Gardner and Crane sonderklasse boats will be ready about May 10 and the Hoyt 22-footer will be ready by May 15. The other boats for New York racing, including the three 57-footers building by Herreshoff, are about completed, the Pynchon and Lippitt boats being ready for rigging and the boat for Commodore Vanderbilt almost as well advanced.

Chicago Swimmers Beat New York.

CHICAGO, April 24.—The Chicago Athletic Club to-night won the aquatic meet from the New York Athletic Club. New York forfeited the last two events following a dispute over the water polo game. Of the five events decided, Chicago won three, while C. M. Daniels of New York won the 100-yard swim and the plunge for distance.

Yankees, Unable to Hit Patten, Lose to Washington, 5 to 1.

Washington yesterday defeated the "Yankees" at American League Park in the first game of the series by a score of 5 to 1. Doyle and Patten were the opposing pitchers, and the former was hit freely by the visiting batters. Patten, on the other hand, was puzzling and was splendidly supported by his teammates.

Although Doyle was hit hard he was at times effective, striking out eight men and not allowing a base on balls. He held his opponents safe until the seventh inning. After hitting Anderson he relaxed, and before he had fully recovered three of the Washington players had crossed the plate.

The absence of Keeler was severely felt. Moriarty, who took his place in right field, was responsible for the only error charged against New York. It did not, however, figure in the scoring. Elberfeld was the star fielder of the afternoon, accepting his seven chances without error. Score:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Philadelphia Won from New York in Pitchers' Battle, 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 24.—Through nine hotly contested innings the Phillies and Giants battled for supremacy to-day, and when New York was vanquished in the ninth inning, leaving two runners on the bases, and victory was tight in the clutch of the local team by the score of 3 to 1, there were few spectators who witnessed the game that did not join in a rousing cheer as the Phillies scampered to the clubhouse.

Seldom are devotees of the national game permitted to witness a battle so keenly contested, better played, or where the result is longer in doubt than to-day's game. It is only when a team of New York's calibre, with every man fighting for every inch of ground, meets an opponent determined on victory and fighting valiantly to hold an advantage gained at the start that such a contest results, and it is doubtful if a more interesting game will be witnessed in this season.

It was New York's first appearance of the season in this city, and from the first inning they were kept busy trying to hold the Phillies in check, and battling to turn inevitable defeat into victory. The score:

Beavers In Fine Form Hold Eli Down—And Soldiers Win Out in the Final Inning.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 24.—Cornell easily defeated Columbia this afternoon, winning the first baseball game of the "big six" by the score of 10 to 3. Not only did Cornell outbat Columbia, but they also fielded in fine style. Errors were inevitable in the soft condition of the diamond.

The Cornellans opened by pounding out four hits, two of them doubles, and netting 3 runs. They hit Lee in the second inning for two more singles and a tally and knocked him out of the box. O'Connell was then substituted, and for three innings did well. But in the following innings eight slashing hits were made off his delivery.

Deshon for Cornell never pitched a better game, and then did not even exert himself. He completely fooled the New Yorkers, having a total of ten strikeouts to his credit. Following is the score:

ARREST FOR MURDER IN MARVIN CASE

Butler Declares His Innocence, and Pinkertons Believe Him.

RIVAL DETECTIVES AT ODDS

Accused Man Declares Emphatically That He and Caldwell Saw the Boy on a Straw Stack.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., April 24.—Frank H. Butler, employed as a deckhand on the steamer John P. Wilson, was taken into custody to-day, and held for a hearing to-morrow, charged with the murder of Horace N. Marvin, the four-year-old son of Dr. Marvin, whose disappearance on March 4 aroused the entire country. The theory of the detectives responsible for the arrest is that the boy was murdered or accidentally killed, and that Butler knows something about the case. Butler was arrested when the steamboat was at the landing at Bowers Beach, Del.

The arrest was made principally on the strength of a statement made by Horace Caldwell, who was working with Butler the day the child disappeared.

The Delaware detectives insist that the boy was killed and his body spirited away, and that Butler knows something about the matter. The Pinkertons are just as positive in their belief that the boy was kidnapped. They ridicule the idea that Butler under the circumstances could have secreted the body, even if he had killed him, which theory they refuse to entertain. Butler says he is innocent.

Shortly after 9 o'clock to-night Caldwell was taken before Attorney General Richards, State Detectives Hawkins and Gillis, and Superintendent Diamo of the Pinkertons, and questioned as to his signed statement. He is understood to have contented himself with repeating the substance of his signed statement, in which he said he believed that the body of the boy was in a bag among others containing wheat screenings and fishing floats, which he and Butler moved in a wagon on March 4, and then added:

"If I ever carried off that kid in a bag or in any other way I did not know it. Before God and heaven, I am innocent. I would not have harmed a hair of his head for the world."

"There can be no mistake about two small boys being on the Marvin farm that morning as I saw one on the straw stack and the other in the yard of the house.

"As I drove from the barn, I saw the boy on the straw stack, and by the time I got up to the corn crib I saw the other at the house. The one at the straw stack could in no way have got to the house, so that there can be no doubt the boys were there.

"I was with the boy ten minutes or more alone before any one came. He was not near the wagon in any way, shape, or form. I was not in the barn loft at any time in the morning. I took the corks away about one week afterward, and then took them to Wodall's."

3 LOST CHILDREN FOUND.

They Left Home to Spend 50 Cents and Were Out All Night.

When Mrs. Martha Tarling, a widow who lives at 676 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, returned from work on Tuesday night she found that her daughter, Louise, aged thirteen, and her five-year-old son, Edward, were missing, and neither of her other two children had seen them since school time. She learned that Hilda Christianson, the thirteen-year-old daughter of James Christianson, a painter of 732 Washington Avenue, had called for Louise after school. She had 50 cents and told the other children that she was going out with Louise to spend it.

The children did not come home all night, and yesterday morning Mrs. Tarling informed the police, and a general alarm was sent out. A number of her neighbors came to help in the search, but the Christiansons took the absence of Hilda calmly and declared that she would come home as soon as she was ready.

Last night the people living in 1,573 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, called the attention of Policeman Murtheth to two little girls and a boy, who seemed to be preparing to camp out in the hallway. He questioned them, and took them to the East 104th Street Station.

There they acknowledged that they were from Brooklyn, and said that on Tuesday night they had received shelter from a woman, and yesterday they spent wandering about Central Park. They had begged a few cents and bought food.

Mrs. Tarling was sent for, and was so overjoyed at seeing her children that she declined to punish them.

THEATRICAL MERGER RUMORS.

Broadway Gets Them In Many Forms and Is Inclined to be Credulous.

In spite of denials issued on all sides yesterday from the men intimately concerned in the project, rumors of a probable merger between the Shubert and Klaw & Erlanger interests would not down.

When the rumors were brought to the attention of Lee Shubert he characterized them as absurd. A statement given out by George B. Cox in Cincinnati to the effect that such a merger was in contemplation met an authoritative denial from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger. After that Mr. Cox, who is one of the capitalists behind the Shuberts, declined further to discuss the matter.

A report much heard in Broadway yesterday, and which aroused the greatest interest, was to the effect that Mr. Cox and Joseph Rhinock had wearied of the theatrical war, and had opened negotiations with Klaw & Erlanger unknown to the Shuberts.

Many persons in the theatrical world utterly refused to credit yesterday's reports in any form, giving as their reason the well known hostility of the opposing managers. It is not many weeks since that Lee Shubert forbade his employés to attend a social dinner given in honor of Marc Klaw.

THEATRICAL "ANGEL" TIRES.

Mr. Largey Wants a Receiver for the Amusement Company He Backed.

M. S. Largey of Montana, who has been backing the Will J. Block Amusement Company since its formation, obtained the appointment of a temporary receiver for the corporation yesterday in the New Jersey courts. In his petition he alleges that the company, of which he was Secretary and Treasurer, owes him more than $200,000.

LOVING'S STATEMENT DENIED.

Thomas F. Ryaln, by Telegraph, Offered Bail for the Accused.

DANVILLE, Va., April 24.—A statement has been sent out to various newspapers signed by John H. Shipman of Lovingston, Nelson County, on behalf of young Theodore Estes, who was killed on Monday afternoon by Judge W. G. Loving, protesting against the accounts of the tragedy published. Mr. Shipman declares that the statement that the daughter of Judge Loving was drugged by Estes is false and that Judge Loving in his statement before the bail commissioner did not make such an allegation.

Just after Judge Loving had been released on bail yesterday afternoon a telegram was received from Thomas F. Ryan of New York, who owns Oakridge Farm, offering to stand as bondsman for Judge Loving.

TRADING PROFESSIONAL

Prices were reactionary yesterday upon the Stock Exchange, and at the close of the day active issues displayed losses running from 1 to 3 points or more. The market was extremely irregular, indulging in several periods of advancing prices, followed in each instance by reactions, and it was to such a movement that the closing fifteen minutes of trading was devoted. Business was in smaller volume than on Tuesday, and professional traders were again in full control of the situation. For the general retreat of prices profit-taking, together with short selling and substantial liquidation by London, was responsible. A matter of considerable influence was the further advance of prices upon all grain markets, July wheat on the local Produce Exchange touching the highest figure of the year. Advices from the more important sections of the wheat country continued unfavorable, the particular complaints including once more the damage alleged to have been wrought by insect pests and the absence of much-needed moisture. The weakness in several issues on the Stock Exchange also proved an unfavorable influence upon speculative sentiment. Chicago Great Western preferred A stock, fell 6 points upon transactions in a few hundred shares, presumably as a result of closer inspection of the terms of the report made to the Minnesota Legislature by the committee appointed by that body to value the railroads operating in Minnesota. This committee made horizontal reductions in the values heretofore placed upon the roads concerned, and in the case of the Chicago Great Western made the flat statement that it had been largely overcapitalized. All this has, of course, tended to set Wall Street wondering whether the Minnesota example would prove contagious, and what the outcome so far as rates and the earning power of the railroads involved will be. Brooklyn Rapid Transit dropped 2½ points upon the news that the Assembly had passed a bill which, if enacted into law, will compel the Brooklyn Rapid Transit to charge no more than a 5-cent fare upon its lines.

London advices reported money in extremely liberal supply there, and conveyed the impression that the Bank of England will find it possible to reduce its discount rate at to-day's meeting of the Directors. The interest charges for carrying over American stocks to the next settlement ruled from 1 per cent. to one-half of 1 per cent. below the present bank rate, where several fortnights ago this "carry-over" rate had touched 0 per cent. The comparatively easy charges made at this time testified to a substantial reduction in the outstanding account in American shares, a development which had been foreshadowed by the continuous and heavy offerings of stock for London account in this market, and at the same time seems to point to progressive ease in the London money market. If the bank rate is not reduced to-day it is fair to assume that a restrictive influence has been found in the falling Paris exchange on London, this indicating further takings of gold from London for French capital. In the local money market rates were again easy, but the banks continue to assume loans which out of town institutions are withdrawing from. Their gain from the Sub-Treasury has been reduced to $215,000 since last Friday as comparing with $3,700,000 in the same period a week ago.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 24.—There was but little activity, the market remaining about the same as has been the case for the past few weeks. During the first hour copper shares showed a tendency to weakness, but at this point a few buying orders made their appearance, giving the list a stronger tone. Arcadian was the feature, advancing about a point on reports of a big strike in the north drift, accompanied by rumors of a bull movement in the stock. Complete list of transactions follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Scattering sales of bonds were in evidenco on the tape during the opening trading yesterday, and to an extent not usually seen. During the day the ticker reflected an appearance of activity in that quarter of the market. An advance of a point in the Rock Island Collateral Trust 4s attracted attention, but it lacked significance. Brokerage houses report inquiries for some of the highly speculative bonds which are attractive because of the low price at which they are quoted. They combine a degree of security and a good return, which is inviting to those who have lost money in stocks.

***

Critical comment of tape analysists during the period of etrength in the market was to the effect that there were no stocks for sale, while in the ragged period before the close the word was that the room was full of stocks. Traders say that it is foolish at any time to assert that there are no stocks for sale, especially if the intention be to convey the impression that stocks are not likely to come on the market for an indefinite period. They say that such conditions are too superficial to be significant, but they pass current for effective indications nevertheless.

***

Hard luck stories are very much quoted in the financial district just now, and it seems clear that some at least are imaginative. Tangible evidence of trouble in many quarters is not wanting. The assertion is made that a certain loan institution making a specialty of catering to individual needs on personal collateral has loaned on forty automobiles and one steam yacht in a month, and that this is accepted as accurate. Some creditors are complaining that the recent panic is being worked to death as an excuse for securing an extension of time on maturing obligations.

***

One of the big banks has a chart showing the fluctuations in its deposits from country banks, and it is surprising how closely the variations in volume of such deposits agree from year to year in the matter of monthly or seasonal changes. Usually there is a decrease in such deposits beginning toward the end of March and continuing until the middle of April. Then they begin to increase, and with a slight dip at the beginning of May, show a steady advance until about the end of the third week of August. After that the tendency is to decrease. This year there was a violent drop in March to a point below those of several years past, reflecting panic conditions. Normal conditions now prevail.

***

There has been a substantial betterment in the position of out-of-town banks, and their reserves have been built up to a point that is quite comfortable. Their deposits here have been increasing for a week, and bankers point out that this will also have an effect on the loan item. The big increases in loans during the last few weeks have been ascribed to the withdrawal of funds by out-of-town institutions and the shifting of loans from country banks and trust companies to local institutions. The banks here watch the out-of-town banks very carefully and keep in close touch with their requirements. The borrowing by banks, which was so much in evidence a week or so ago, has steadily diminished until it is now normal.

Chicago Great Western preferred A fell 6 points yesterday, and less important declines occurred in the other issues of the road's stock. The significance of the decline was found in the fact that it followed closely upon the publication of the report which a committee of the Minnesota State Senate has submitted to that body setting forth the results of its investigation into the value of the railroads within that State. In the case of the Chicago Great Western, whose President, A. B. Stickney, is charged by the committee with "Harrimanizing" the road, the value set upon the company's line is $28,000 a mile compared with an existing capitalization of $143,668 a mile. Wall Street had given relatively little attention to the work of railroad valuation being done by the Sundberg committee in Minnesota, but yesterday's abrupt decline in Chicago Great Western preferred A increased the interest in the committee's findings. The discrepancy between the capitalization of the ronds and their value as determined by the committee was greater in the case of the Great Western than in tho case of any other road reported on. The Great Northern capitalized, according to the committee's figures, at $39,000 a mile, receives a valuation of $33,000 a mile, and Northern Pacific, with a capitalization of $80,000 a mile, is valued at $85,000 a mile.

"If I could be assured that the pools and industrial stocks were not likely to come to grief in the next three or four months I would be content to take a hullish position on tho market," ssid a well known broker yesterday. "Without doubt there are weak spots in these poole, and I can see no assurance that either market conditions or industrial conditions will so continue or so develop that they will be permitted to make an easy retreat. I could nnme half a dozen stocks that are not significant from the point of view of the average trader, but if anything happencd that compelled pool liquidation the influence on the market would be decidedly adverse. I am not a bear, but these conditions make me conservative, and I suppose there are many others who take a similar view of the situation."

Commission business bas dwindled in the brokerage houses until it amounts to very little, and the general statement that there is no commission business is almost accurate. This particular kind of business is particularly appreciated by brokers, as it means full commissions as distinguished from operations for brother brokers or for houses with membere of the Exchange itself. The attendance in customers' rooms is very small, and those who make it a point to come to the financial district seem to disregard market fluctuations serenely. The wire houses report that not only is their local attendance depleted but their wire business is very small, and interest in the market, as represented by queries for information, limited. This condition, however, should not be taken to indicate the complete withdrawal of the public, for a sustained active market for a few days, particularly if such market did not bear professional earmarks, would speedily stimulate interest, although it might not hear the fruition of extensive orders.

***

Ever since the panic many privatc loans have been negotiated, as distinguished from the usual collateral loan effected with the banks. These loans have been made with wealthy men more fortunate than some of their friends in being out of the market, and those requiring the loans as a general proposition have been men rated at least as well to do. One man in the financial district who has always carried a heavy line of stocks suetained a heavy loss in the panic, but it was not assumed that he was crippled in any way. Recently he requested a loan from a certain private source and the loan was made, but the collateral offered would not have passed through a bank. It was composed of odds and ends of all sorts of freak stocks and stocks whose value, even in a legitimate market, was hypothetical.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Market Sluggish and Weak with Recessions Wherever Selling Showed.

NEVADA - UTAH ACTIVE

Light Trading in International Mercantile Marine Bonds and Preferred Stock on Last Day on Curb.

Curb trading was sluggish yesterday, with prices receding whenever selling orders appeared in any considerable volume, and the result at the close showed a number of minor losses, though one or two stocks were substantially advanced. In the mining list, Boston Copper and Davis-Daly Estate were noticeably weak. The latter, after an opening ¾ above Tuesday's close, sold down from 16¼ to 15. The day's transactions of 1,900 shares left the quotation at the close 15¾. Boston Copper sold down from 29 to 28¼, closing at 28⅜. One of the exceptions to the general weakness was Nevada-Utah, which, in addition to being the most active of the established copper issues, was about the strongest. It rose from 4⅛ to 4¼, selling 7,000. Manhattan Transit was fairly active, selling 6,000 shares between 5⅛ and 5⅝. The close was at 5⅝, a net gain of ¼. The admission of the securities of the International Mercantile Marine Company to listing on the Stock Exchange takes another of the older curb stocks out of the Broad Street market. On the last day of trading yesterday 450 shares of the preferred sold at 24 for the odd lot and 23 for the 400. Thirty thousand dollars' worth of the bonds were sold at 70.

The prinoipal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

DEVLIN COAL CO. SOLVENT.

More Than $300,000 of Indebtedness Wiped Out by Referee.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 24.—More than $300,000 worth of indebtedness to-day was wiped from the records of the Devlin Coal Company and other Devlin corporations by a decision of N. H. Loomis, special referee in bankruptcy.

A large number of notes were executed by the late C. J. Devlin in bchalf of himself and jointly with certain of his corporations. By Referee Loomis's decision to-day these notes are now held to be collectible claims against the personal estate of Devlin, and the holders of the notes cannot ehare in the dividends of the companies. As a result of this decision the Devlin Coal Company will become a eolvent concern and can pay dollar for dollar.

When C. J. Devlin failed on July 3, 1905, he was at the head of twenty-six different coal mining, mercantile, and railroad companies in Kansas and Illinois, and was supposed to be worth $7,000,000. He died several months later in Chicago.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 24.—The supplies of money were abundant in the market today. Discounts were easy.

Operatore on the Stock Exchange were occupied principally with the settlement, for which the carry-over rates were light, the charge for Americans being only 4½ per cent. The amount of new business was small, but the recent firmnese of prices was maintained, with a further hardening of gilt-edged securities as well as foreigns. The features of the latter section were Japanese and Argentines. Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101½.

Americans were in steady demand during the forenoon, and advanced to over the New York equivalent, but around noon the demand slackened and prices declined half a point. Later the New York opening prices came lower and the market eased gradually. Then prices steadied, but renewed selling caused a weak close.

Bullion amounting to £84,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

Bar silver firm; 30 5-16d per ounce.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent., and for three months' bills, 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

PARIS, April 24.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were unsteady, with a downward tendency, due to the unencouraging foreign advices, and trading was inactive.

Three per cent. rentes 94 francs 50 centimes for the account. Exchange on London, 25 francs 18½ centimes for checks.

BERLIN, April 24.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weaker and trading was dull upon the declaration made by War Minister von Einem in the Reichstag yesterday regarding the necessity for reconstructing the fortifications of Germany. Americans were neglected.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 46¼ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 3½ per cent.; three months' bills, 4¼ per cent.

United Railroads Rumors Denied.

The report telegraphed from San Francisco yesterday, that control of the United Railroads of San Francisco was likely to pass from the present owners to new interests, variously reported to be H. E. Huntington and his associates, and Thomas F. Ryan, was said by representatives of the present owners to be without the least foundation.

HOLDEN'S GAME ENDED.

Driven Out of England and France—Customer is After Him Here.

When a receiver was appointed a few days ago for the E. R. Holden Company, "bankers and brokers," it marked the latest step in a series of legal actions which have pursued E. R. Holden to Europe and back again. In each instance T. M. Rowlette, a lawyer of this city, has been responsible for the action aimed at the head of the Holden Company.

Holden started husiness here seven years ago. He opened branch hou

SHIPPING TRUST SHOWS FISCAL SIDE

Submits Report of 1905 in Application for Listing Stocks on 'Change.

1906 REPORT NOT READY

Stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine who hoped to get an advance line on the progress of the company's financial affairs during 1906 from the schedules filed with the Stock Exchange when application was made on April 11 for admission to listing were disappointed yesterday when the schedules were made public following the admission of the securities to the Exchange. They found that the balance sheet submitted to the authorities was that of Dec. 31, 1905.

The apology that "the balance sheet for 1906 is not made up yet" accompanied the submission of the sixteen-month-old figuree with the schedules offered to the Stock Exchange. The annual report of the company for 1906 will not be issued until June.

One piece of information vouchsafed in the echedules has an interesting bearing on the company's current financial affairs. It is shown that the item "loans, bills payable, and foreign bank overdrafts," which in the balance sheet of Dec. 31, 1905, amounted to $6,326,989, has been reduced during 1906 to $755,000 approximately. The explanation is made in the papers submitted to the Stock Exchange that this reduction is accounted for by the fact that "the earnings of 1906 have been applied mainly to the reduction of this indebtedness."

In the 1905 annual report it was announced that $2,744,000 additional 4½ per cent. bonds had been issued during 1905 to reimburse the company for additions and bettermenta paid out of current earnings, and the proceeds applied to the floating debt "incurred by the subsidiary companies to pay for new tonnage and other property acquired under contract entered into prior to the organization of the company." At the beginning of 1905 this floating debt had stood at $10,311,190, and in addition to the payments made out of the proceeds of the bonds sold, funds applied to this purpose out of current earnings in that year reduced the item to $6,826,989.

Interesting information supplied in the schedule sets forth the security underlying the company's authorized $75,000,000 of 4½ per cent. bonds, of which there are $52,744,000 outstanding. The last of the bonds issued by the company, according to the last annual report, were put out at 88½ and accrued interest in 1905. On the Curb yesterday, the last day of these securities in the outside market, $30,000 were reported sold at 70.

According to the schedules, the mortgage underlying these securities is a lien upon stocks and properties of the various companies in the trust which have been deposited with the Trustee.

In addition the mortgage is a second lien upon the stocks and properties covered by the first lien of the International Navigation mortgage, which secures that company's outstanding $19,618,000 first mortgage 5 per cent. bonds. These are secured upon the following stocks and properties:

60,900 shares of the nominal value of £10 per share of International Navigation Company, Limited, out of a total authorized issue of 70,000 shares.

2,719 shares of the nominal value of 5,000 francs per share of Societe Anonyme de Navigation Belge-Americaine out of a total authorized issue of 2,769 shares.

Receipts for payment of $145,530 on account of a certain steamship known as No. 393, now under construction by Messrs. Harland & Wolff, Limited, of Belfast.

The steamships New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, St. Paul, Kroonland, and Finland.

WANTED—A Millionaire Philanthropist who would like to do for Pan-Americanism what Cecil Rhodes did for Anglo-Americanism, is there one who stands ready and demonstrate $20,000,000 on humanitsrian and educational investments in Latin America? If so, here are suggestions for his course of action:

1. Found scholarships in American universities and colleges for Latin-American students;

2. Establieh a bureau of university information in Columbia Univereity or in some other convenient centre;

3. Found schoole in large cities of Latin-America which will prepare students for admission to the American universities and colleges;

4. Furnish the means for an exchange of professors between the great universities and colleges of the United States and those of Latin-America;

5. Establish the American Institute of Social Science to establish branches in the large cities of Latin-America;

6. Found professional and industrial schools in the inland provincee of Latin-American countries, which shall tend to raise the moral standards of the half-breed, the Indian, and the negro, and to destroy their subjection to the military adventurers;

7. Aid in the establehment in the large cities of Latin-America of branchee of reputable trust companies and other institutions of sound finance;

8. Establih a line of fast sailing steamships between New York or New Orleans and the principal ports of South America.

The general idea and the above suggestions have been approved by Presidents of American universitiee and social institutions, the Secretary of State, and hy quite a number of eminent journalists. But before the Millionaire Philanthropist determines to devote a part of his fortune to so praiseworthy an object he should follow in the track of Secretary Root, and, hy personal visits to the countries of Latin-America, convince himself of the necessity and wisdom of loosening his purse strings and of proving for to him that his fellow-men that education makes for peace.

No objection will he offered to either an increase or a decrease in the amount suggested.

Should the Millionaire Philanthropist wish to know my reasons for inserting this advertisement, I will say that since 1902 I have been wasting time, patience, and money without resulte other than that of a very light and platonic moral support by prominent Americans. Now, if Mr. Ludech went from Rome to Rome to knock at the gate of the Quirinal and was heard and the International Institute of Agriculture was found; if Mr. John Brisben Walker calls for a permanent Peace Congress and is heard; if Mr. William T. Stead calls for a peace pilgrimage and may possibly be heard, why should I wait any longer in bringing this matter to the attention of the American people?

Will ladies and gentlemen interested in philenthropic movements aid me in securing applicants?

For further particulars apply to J. A. S., 59 West 45th St. Telephone 1346 Bryant.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

NEW YORK SUPREME COURT,
Third Judicial District,
Ulster County.
ASHOKAN RESERVOIR.
Section No. 4.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF COMMISSIONERS OF APPRAISAL.

Public notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York to make application to the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the appointment of Commissioners of Appraisal under Chapter 724 of the Laws of 1905, as amended. Such application will be made at a Special Term of the Supreme Court to be held in and for the Third Judicial District, AT THE COURT HOUSE, IN THE CITY OF KINGSTON, ULSTER COUNTY, N. Y., ON MAY 18TH, 1907, AT 10 O'CLOCK in the forenoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard. The object of such application is to obtain an order of the court appointing three disinterested and competent freeholders, one of whom shall reside in the County of New York, and at least one of whom shall reside in the county where the real estate hereinafter described is situated, to act as Commissioners of Appraisal under said act, and discharge all the duties conferred by the said law and the acts amendatory thereof, upon such Commissioners of Appraisal, for the purpose of providing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water for the City of New York.

The real estate to be acquired herein is situated in the Town of Olive, and is to be acquired in fee for the purpcee of furnishing an additional supply of pure and wholesome water to the City of New York.

The following is a statement of the boundaries of the lands to be acquired herein, with a reference to the date and place of filing of the map. The parcels herein described are to be acquired in fee and are colored pink on the map hereinafter referred to.

All those certain pieces or parcels of real estate situated in the Town of Olive, County of Ulster, and State of New York, shown on a map entitled "Reservoir Department, Section No. 4. IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Successful Opening of the Ogden Estate Sale—Broadway Building, Near Howard, Resold—Buyer for Twenty-first Street Structure.

The auction of the Ogden estate property in the Bronx was successfully begun in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday by Joseph P. Day. Of the 1,100 parcels included in the offering 214 were sold for a total of $276,775. At this rate it hardly seems probable that the sale can be finished to-day, although of the eight hours from 9 to 5, during which Mr. Day held the crowd yesterday, fully two hours were consumed by the reading of the legal notice and the making of necessary explanations and announcements. In any event selling will be resumed at 9 o'clock this morning, and if all of the lots cannot be disposed of before nightfall will be continued to-morrow.

The crowd at yesterday's session indicated that there is no lack of public interest in the sale, although the professional element took little part in the bidding and still less in the buying. Despite the fact that 9 A. M. is an unusual hour for starting a real estate auction a good-sized gathering was on hand at the beginning of the sale. Around the noon hour the attendance increased until the salesroom was well filled, and even when Mr. Day announced the adjournment at 5 o'clock there were still several hundred people on hand.

The sale began with a triangle lot, containing 750 square feet, at the north corner of Lind Avenue and 167th Street, for which the first bid was $1,000 and the final bid $1,725. J. H. Spellman was the buyer, and he got three adjoining lots, running through, for $3,423. A plot on Lind Avenue, about four lots, was sold to the Whitehall Realty Company for $4,250. Two small lots on 168th Street brought $1,025 and $900, and the plot at the junction of 168th and 167th Streets $2,025. Four little lots on 167th Street sold for $975 each. The total for the block bounded by the three streets named, sixteen lots, was $19,130.

In the block to the east of this, bounded by Lind and Ogden Avenues and 167th and 168th Streets, prices were higher, reaching $3,600 for a lot on Ogden Avenue and $13,500 for 3,800 square feet at the junction of Ogden Avenue and 167th Street. Lind Avenue lots brought $1,425 to $1,700. The total for this block, thirty lots, was $73,215.

Further north on Lind Avenue prices fell off, lots going for between $475 and $800. About the same prices prevailed on Merriam Avenue, and in this block twenty-four lots, including two corners of 169th Street, brought only $14,000.

Lots on the east side of 167th Street, north of 168th Street, sold for from $1,200 to $2,000 each, rising to $2,200 nearer Sedgwick Avenue. A gore at the corner brought $1,725, and on Sedgwick Avenue prices went well over $3,000.

For the northwest corner of Ogden Avenue and 169th Street, 25.4 by 103 by 38.10 by 99.5, the successful bid was $3,200, and for the adjoining lot on 169th Street $1,200.

A triangular plot at the junction of Lind Avenue and 169th Street, with a frontage of about 75 feet on either thoroughfare, brought $1,025. Other lots on the east side of 169th Street, north of Lind Avenue, ranged in price from $525 to $875.

The southeast corner of Lind Avenue and 170th Street sold for $2,275, and inside lots on 170th Street, between Lind and Merriam Avenues, at $1,075 each.

Among the buyers were G. F. Loudenschlager, Edwin R. Wills, John McSherry, Arthur McConnell, I. A. Mekell, B. Alexander, Henry G. Heath, and Rozzetti Brothers.

Salvatore Soracl has leased for John J. Aaron & Son to G. Attanasio the seven-story double tenement 228 East 109th Street for a term of years at an aggregate rental of $20,000.

The House and Real Estate Owners' Association will hold a mass meeting at 8 o'clock this evening in Turn Hall, Elgbty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, to protest against the proposed amendments to the tenement house law.

Sales and Resales on 12th Street.

M. Kahn & Co. have sold for Mrs. Fanny Drumstatter 317 East Twelfth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 20 by 103.3, to Benjamin Menschel, to whom they recently sold the adjoining houses, Nos. 313, 315, 319, and 321, for the Mulry estate. The same brokers have resold the entire plot, 100 by 103.3, for Mrs. Menschel to Hillman & Golding, who are said to have resold it to a builder for improvement.

Isaac Nagel has sold 59 Lewis Street to David Alhert, through S. Held and S. Lichtenstein as brokers.

Senft & Malzman have sold to A. Rosenblatt the two six-story tenements 96 and 97 Orchard Street.

Polizzi & Co. have sold for Samuel and Walter Wanderman the six-story tenement 530 and 532 East Thirteenth Street, on plot 50 by 103.3.

Does It Mean Anything to You when you buy land as an investment or for a home to deal with people that have a high purpose and the ability and determination to attain that purpose? In developing

Beechhurst on the Sound

AT WHITESTONE LANDING
(Station Right on the Property)

we have pursued a definite plan and purpose. Instead of stopping after an outlay of a quarter of a million dollars for physical improvements, streets, sewers, water mains, a sea wall along the shore front, etc., we have proceeded with the construction of handsome and attractive houses—thus establishing the nucleus of a high-grade residential colony.

Some of these houses will be ready for occupancy by June 1st. They are offered for sale on easy monthly terms.

Send for booklet "T" with photographs.

Ask the Farmers and the Market Gardeners of Long Island

Is there any money in buying acres? They are all rich.

We are actually at the dawn of Spring, and from this hour we will find sunshine and the splendor of the green fields, the earth upturned everywhere to receive the seeds which decorate the fertile fields of Long Island.

150,000 people this Spring will enjoy the comforts and pleasures of Suburban Life, suburban to New York, who were occupants of Flats and Apartment Houses a year ago. The great activity in Real Estate during the year 1906 induced them to either buy or rent in the suburbs, and before another year a greater number will emigrate. Electric car lines are building in every direction on Long Island; Rapid Transit Trains are increased, and the great reading, wage-earning public are bound to get out and breathe the air and enjoy the sunlight where life looks sweeter and homes more happy. Every paper published in Greater New York has repeatedly stated in its columns "Long Island is the one and only place to live. The best channel to place your money."

THE INVESTMENT ON LONG ISLAND WAS $600,000,000.

$250,000,000 WAS MADE BY THE MARKET GARDENER ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE REAL ESTATE OPERATOR ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE SMALL INVESTOR ON LONG ISLAND

You Knew of It. Did You Invest? You Just Simply Looked On.

BELIEVE US, DEAR READERS, TO-DAY WE ARE ACTUALLY AT THE BEGINNING

350,000 people dropped into New York last year. An equal amount will be ushered in this year. Some of them building, buying or renting. It means New York Suburban Real Estate will improve from 20 to 50 per cent. before April 1st, 1908. Have you a desire to make money? Make it quick?

LET US LEAD YOU INTO DAYLIGHT, INTO THE PROMISED LAND OF PROSPERITY

We do not ask you $500 to $1,000 a lot, or $1,000 to $2,500 per acre, but will, during this sale, show you one-half acre plots (10 city lots) at a sum less than you can buy a lot in the suburbs for, enough land to raise your own vegetables, raise your own chickens, keep a cow and a horse, if necessary; a spot large enough to receive all the pleasures Nature can give. Buy the land on your terms and in a few years build to suit yourself.

Any Wage Earner Can Buy—Any Investor Can Purchase

You are not giving up your life's earnings to pay for it. It is within your means and just what you want. Located in the most natural and fertile field of Long Island,

BAYSHORE

About one hour out by express trains now; electricity will make it 40 minutes in the near future; 6,000 people there enjoying the comforts and pleasure on the Great South Bay, where there is Rural Home Life, splendid schools, churches, hotels and over 100 business houses; just far enough away to be strictly suburban to New York, with many trains to and from the city.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

SELIGMAN, JACOB.—The people of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to William Ottensooser, Herman Ottensooser, the heirs and next of kin of Jacob Seligman, deceased, send greeting.

Whereas, Lewis M. Hornthal and Simon R. Riem of the City of New York have lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the 31st day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Jacob Seligman, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 14th day of May, one thousand nine hundred and seven, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or, if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Frank T. [L. S.] Fitzgerald, Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 19th day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seven.
DANIEL J. DOWDNEY,
Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

BROTHER ACCUSES BROTHER.

Ungrich Estate Executors Sued for an Accounting—Fraud Charged.

An action for an accounting instituted by Martin L. Ungrich against Henry Ungrich, Jr., his brother, came before Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday on a motion made in behalf of the defendant for leave to file a supplemental answer.

Henry Ungrich, Jr., and Martin Ungrich, a cousin, are executors of the will of Henry Ungrich, a wealthy Harlem real estate speculator. It is alleged in the complaint that the executors have failed to account for a large amount of personal property that came into their hands, and that by a series of fraudulent conveyances the defendant, Henry Ungrich, Jr., has obtained absolute ownership of the property. The motion was granted. The suit will be tried some time in May.

JUDGE CRAIN MOVED TO WARM DEFENSE

Impassioned Speech from the Bench on the Sullivan Sentence.

HIS HEART WAS MOVED

"Possibly Wrongly," He Admits, but He Wanted to Give the Prisoner Another Chance.

In an impassioned speech, delivered with frequent and impressive gestures, and with a force which revealed the depth of feeling from which it had sprung, Judge Crain, from his seat on the bench in General Sessions, denied yesterday that any but proper influences had swayed him in the matter of the Sullivan sentence last Friday. On that day Judge Crain first suspended sentence and then later, after a protest from the District Attorney, sentenced Daniel Sullivan, convicted before him of robbery in the second degree, to two months' imprisonment, although a sentence of fifteen years might have been given for the crime. Far from having yielded to political pressure, he fervently asserted, he had only followed the dictates of a kindly heart when he extended mercy to the man whose record showed that, although once acquitted, he had thrice been convicted of the crime of assault.

Judge Crain's speech followed the presentment by District Attorney Jerome of a motion to revoke the sentence imposed upon Sullivan and to replace it with a sentence adequate to the crime of which he was convicted. Since Friday Mr. Jerome has obtained five affidavits, two of them from policemen, and all dealing with previous cases with which Sullivan has been connected. In one case in which Sullivan was convicted in 1901, and Judge Foster, not Judge Newburger, as has been stated, suspended sentence upon him, Judge Foster desired to give him another chance because it was his first offense. These Mr. Jerome presented to the court, and closed his argument on the action with the declaration:

Evidently eager to proclaim his reasons for acting as he did, Judge Crain cut short the long argument into which Mr. Sullivan's attorney immediately launched in opposing the motion of the District Attorney, promising to consider carefully any papers which might be submitted to him.

"If I act at all in this matter I must act by Friday," declared the court, "and I think if you submit your papers by Friday morning that will do."

Judge Crain's Explanation.

Then Judge Crain began his explanation.

"Now, I desire at this time to state very briefly the considerations which led to the action that the court took. I consider it is a matter of public importance that certain erroneous statements in connection with this case should be officially corrected.

"In all matters which come before the court the desire of the court is to do right, uninfluenced by any considerations of fear or favor, and guided solely by an earnest wish in each matter to so act that right may prevail and wrong be punished.

"It is a matter of public concern that the public should know that no outside influence of any sort whatsoever moves a Judge of this court; neither influences which are social, influences which are denominational, or influences which are political have the slightest weight inside of this courtroom. The Court may err. It may inadvertently depart from the right, and record a judgment which should not be recorded, but the impulse is to administer the law impartially to every man.

"No one was upon the bench with me when sentence was imposed in this case. No one could have sat upon the bench with me when sentence was imposed in this case. No one intervened with me in behalf of Daniel Sullivan. I never knew Daniel Sullivan, and so far as I know today, I know no one who ever knew him. The matter is not of the slightest importance, as affects the individuality of the Judge. The matter is of the gravest importance as affects the respect which the public may have for an impartial, God-fearing administration of the law.

"Now, very frankly and fully, the considerations which influenced me in my action in this particular case: First, as to the general right to suspend sentence, considered as a question of law."

Referring to the Penal Code, Judge Crain read Section 12, elaborating upon it and citing in support of the legality of suspending sentence in the case of robbery in the second degree, the case of the People against Forsythe in the Court of General Sessions. He went on:

"I think that many men are snatched as brands from the burning by the mighty influence exerted for good through the agency of suspended sentences. I think that it happens not infrequently that sentences are suspended when they should not be, when harm is done by doing it and not good, but on the whole the men that go out under suspended sentences, with the supervisory power of the court over them, are under a restraining influence which keeps them in the paths of rectitude and prevents their enlarging that ever-increasing army of criminals which has already become a menace to society.

"Whether a particular sentence ought to be suspended, in my judgment, depends in part upon the crime for which the man is convicted; the evidence adduced at the trial against him and his previous record. In the trial of Daniel Sullivan I had the benefit of seeing the witnesses and hearing them, of watching their manner, and of gauging the credibility of their story, by an observation of the way in which they told it. The complaining witness in the Sullivan case was intoxicated at the time of the alleged occurrence. In three separate instances he denied that he had ever seen the defendant.

"The wife's testimony did not altogether harmonize with the testimony of her husband. The defendant did not take the stand in his own behalf. He did not attempt to tell any story not consistent with the truth. The money, and mind you, the gist of the charge was robbery, no verdict being brought in on the charge of assault, the money, so far as the complaining witness could testify to any given amount that he had, was restored to him before the defendant was placed under arrest.

"A record more inconclusive as to the guilt of the defendant could scarcely be presented, which, at the same time, would be legally sufficient to carry the case to a jury. It was upon this border line. There was evidence enough to take it to a jury under a charge not excepted to.

"The circumstances of the case were circumstances that were calculated to move the court to leniency toward the man that the court did not know, and the man for whom no one had interceded, but, on the other hand, there was the past record of this defendant, imperfectly known to the court. I had the record of these convictions. Now, what did they impart to my mind? Well, it was a bad record."

There came to him in open court, declared Judge Crain, a man with whom he was unacquainted, but who he had every reason to believe was an honorable business man, and who spoke for Sullivan saying that he had formerly been in his employ, and that if he were acquitted, he would employ him again.

How Judge's Heart Was Moved.

Judge Crain's voice was husky with emotion as he raised his hand above him and exclaimed:

"Sullivan stood at the parting of the ways. On the one hand, there was the power in the court to say, 'Fifteen years inside of a State's prison for Sullivan, because of Sullivan's record.' On the other hand, there was, seemingly at first blush, on the basis of the decision of the Court of Appeals, the power to say to Daniel Sullivan as he stood at the bar, 'Sentence is suspended; you may go to the workshop in which you worked; you may resume the labors which have supported you and your young wife; you may be classed among those who are honest, instead of joining the ranks of that pallid army of malefactors, swelling the number in our States' prisons,' and my heart was moved."

Judge Crain raised his right arm above his head, and his voice rising to a shrill treble, seemed about to break as he repeated:

"God knows my heart was moved, possibly wrongly moved, but moved, if perchance I could take that man and put his feet again upon the solid rock, so that he might look others in the face and be reckoned at least among the honest in the community. And I was about to do it. I was about to do it. And the reading of Section 12 halted me.

"I could not suspend sentence on the man. The law shut the door in my face. I wanted to give him a sentence that would be so light, and I wanted to give him a sentence that would be so small, that he would still come out feeling like going back to work, feeling like going back to his wife, feeling like returning to an honest course. I may have erred. If I have done wrong in the case of Daniel Sullivan, as indicated by the record submitted to me through the industry and zeal of the District Attorney, and the law permits me to undo the wrong, it will be undone.

"My only justification for this long statement is that our courts must be beyond suspicion. God helping me, my motive here, first, last and all the time, as the cases come, is to do what is right. If I erred, I erred from the head and not from the heart."

CENSURES OTHER COURTS.

Magistrate Cornell Says There Are Too Many Suspended Sentences.

Magistrate Cornell had another case yesterday which caused him to censure the higher courts for their action in suspending sentences and fixing light penalties for crimes.

Policeman Byrne of the East 104th Street Station lives at 149 East 109th Street. The tailor shop of Isidor Thaler is directly opposite, at No. 150. Byrne's sister, Gertrude, told him Tuesday night that she saw two men acting suspiciously around the tailor shop, and Byrne arrested them and had them in Harlem Court yesterday. They said they were John Farrell of 214 East 108th Street and Patrick Kane of 217 East Ninety-fourth Street. The police say that Farrell is known under the alias of Lawrence Mulrooney and John Mulrooney.

When the men were arraigned Magistrate Cornell was told by Byrne that the record at Headquarters showed that Farrell, under the name of Mulrooney, had been sentenced to the Elmira Reformatory on Feb. 20 and that sentence had been suspended. The policeman's information brought the Magistrate to his feet instantly, and, leaning way over the bench, he asked the prisoner:

"Were you convicted of burglary?"

"Yes," answered the prisoner, "eight weeks ago."

"What was done to you?"

"Sentence was suspended."

"What Judge suspended sentence?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know," sarcastically repeated the Magistrate. "You can't remember the Judge that was so kind to you as to suspend sentence?"

"I guess it was Judge O'Sullivan," said the prisoner.

District Attorney Jerome had the case of Farrel looked up and found that he had been sentenced to serve a term in Elmira Reformatory by Judge O'Sullivan, sitting in Part 4 of the Court of General Sessions.

On April 12 Judge O'Sullivan, in Part I. of the Court of General Sessions, suspended sentence on Farrel upon reports submitted to him by Nora T. Burke, a probation officer, and a statement of the boy's mother, that he was her sole support, her husband having died several months ago. There were also some letters from a number of citizens who said they'd be glad to give the man work.

COULDN'T HELP STEALING.

Reilly Turned Burglar Again as Soon as He Gave Bail—Gets Ten Years.

Believing that James Reilly, 28 years old, of 220 East 120th Street, has a propensity for crime which is absolutely beyond his control, Judge O'Sullivan, in General Sessions yesterday, sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary for burglary. The crime was committed on March 11 last, but since his arrest and release on bail the young man had added another to his list, and besides has been found to be the man wanted for an assault and burglary committed in February.

Assistant District Attorney Marshall had been warned to investigate Reilly's career since his release on bail, and to his surprise discovered that Reilly and William Kelly, also charged with robbery, were one and the same man. The records showed that Reilly had obtained his release on April 11, and six days later had been unable to resist his old impulses.

He visited the house at 228 East 115th Street, and breaking into the flat of Lena Engelbrecht had collected about $100 worth of clothing and jewelry when he was arrested. He gave the name of Kelly, but by mistake gave his true address.

SHONTS TELLS WHY INTERBOROUGH QUIT

Conditions of the New Subway Contract Too Onerous, He Writes Transit Commission.

THE BOARD IN A QUANDARY

Four Years of Work Thrown Away—Interborough Would Extend Present Route.

Contending that the conditions under whicb the new subways were to bave been built were too onerous, and tbat the estimated cost would be so great that it would be practically impossible for an operating company to meet even its fixed charges, the Interborough-Metropolitan Company yesterday declined to bid on the new subways, and no bids of any description were received by the Rapid Transit Commission, as had been foretold in THE TIMES.

In lieu of a bid, Theodore P. Shonts, President of tbe traction company, sent to the commission a long letter in which he set forth the reasons why tbe company bad found it inadviaable to bid. This letter suggested tbat the officials of the company and the members of the board get together and discuss terms on which parts of each proposed route might be built by the company. In brief, the conditions proposed by the company included a guarantee that the company should earn at least enough to meet its interest debt to the city and a reasonable interest on its own investment.

Commission in a Qnandary.

By tbe developments of yesterday, the Commissioners find their work of the last four years practically wasted, and the city is confronted witb three alternatives—the acceptance for an indefinite period of prevailing conditions, frequently termed intolerable; the building of such subways as the Interborough-Metropolitan Company is willing to construct at terms to be decided upon by that company, or the construction of new lines with the city's money, either in the hope of obtaining independent bids later, or with the intention of introducing municipal operation.

While it was almost impossible to obtain calm expressions of opinion yesterday after the meeting at which the Shonts letter was read, the general impression among those who have followed the transit situation carefully was that the attitude of the Interborough would result, though not immediately, in municipal construction, if not in municipal operation. It was agreed, too, that the present Rapid Transit Commission, should the Public Service Commissions bill pass the Legislature, would not have the contracting to do for any more subways. The most it could do, it was asserted, was to allow the building of an additional track on the Third Avenue elevated line and of two additional tracks on the Second Avenue line; an old proposal, which, seemingly by pure coincidence, was brought up at yesterday's meeting.

When Vice President John H. Starin and one or two members of the board gathered to open the bids at noon yesterday, they found two injunctions awaiting them prohibiting action. One was from the Broadway merchants who objected to the cut-and-cover method of construction, and the other was from G. H. Kramer, a property owner of 639 Lexington Avenue, who enjoined the board from receiving bids or contracting for the construction of the "link" which, had the Interborough obtained the contract, would have connected the present Subway with the upper part of the Lexington Avenue route. This injunction, it was generally believed, was instigated by the Transit Committee of the Republican County Committee, which went into this particular matter at some length some months ago.

No Bids to Open.

As it proved, the suing out of the injunctions had been a waste of time, as there were no bids in the box. In the minds of some of the board members there had been a hope that the Interborough would submit some kind of a bid, but they were disappointed. Not even a proposal to construct the smallest section of one of the lines was submitted. After four years of planning, the commission found itself facing a blank wall.

At the meeting at 3 o'clock there was a distinct air of gloom. The room was filled to overflowing with mono-rail enthusiasts and with men who had come to learn the result of the bidding. Mr. Shonts and William Barclay Parsons, ex-Chief Engineer of the board, but now Chief Engineer of the Interborough-Metropolitan, arrived just before the meeting started. After a few formalities a report of the Vice President stating that no bids had been received, was read, and then Mr. Starin asked Mr. Shonts if he had anything to say. For answer Mr. Shonts handed the Secretary the following letter:

"New York, April 24, 1907.

"Alexander E. Orr, President, Board of Rapid Transit Commissioners.

"Dear Sir: Ever since the opening of the existing subway this company has hoped that it would have an opportunity of completing the system of municipal rapid transit subways by continuing the East Side line north of Forty-second Street to the Bronx, and, by continuing the West Side line south from Forty-second Street to the Battery, so that there would be, as originally planned by your Board, two complete longitudinal rapid transit lines, connected by a cross-town line under Forty-second Street. The increasing congestion in the subway, particularly on the express trains during the rush hours, has emphasized the need of these additional lines, and this company had fully intended to submit a bid for their construction and operation, which, it was hoped, would be acceptable to your Board.

"It is, therefore, with great regret that I have now to advise you that, after very careful study by our engineers and officers of the plans and specifications for the new subways and the proposed form of contract for their construction and operation, the Directors of our company have been forced to conclude that the building of the proposed four-track double-deck Lexington Avenue subway, north of Forty-second Street, and the four-track West Side subway south of

UNION PLOT TO MURDER.

Charged Against San Francisco Electrical Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—A sensational conspiracy on the part of members of the Electrical Workers' Union of this city to kidnap and murder P. M. McCarthy, President of the Building Trades Council, was revealed at the meeting of the council to-night. Several of the alleged conspirators are in jail. The charge is based on the affidavit of H. Sbuckley, a member of the Electrical Workers' Union, who refused to sanction the campaign of murder.

An attempt wes made to carry out the plan last Sunday, when a number of the men selected to kill McCarthy went to his bouse with an automobile. Their plan was to induce their victim to go with them for an outing to the beach. When they reached a lonely place it was intended to cbloroform McCarthy and throw his body into the ocean, where the strong currents would carry it down the coast, and it would not be found for months, if at all. McCarthy suspected that there was some sort of a plot on foot and refused to leave the house.

The matter was placed in tbe hands of the police to-night, and several of the accused men were put behind tbe bars.

Tho plot to murder McCartby had its origin in the war between the Electrical Workers' Union and the Building Trades' Council which resulted in tbe expulsion of tbe Electrical Workers. McCarthy was blamed by the Electrical Workers, and there has been mucb bitter feeling.

PENROSE SEES ROOSEVELT.

Senator Was the Author of the $5,000,000 Conspiracy Story.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Senator Penrose made his long-expected visit to the White House to-day, and was there for an hour. He saw both the President and Secretary Loeb—separately, however. Senator Bourne, bis host at the dinner where the five-million-dollar plot was sprung on Loeb by Penrose, was in the visitors' room, waiting to see tbe President, at about the same time Penrose was there, but both denied that they saw the President together.

Mr. Penrose said his call was social and that he enjoyed it, and denied that he talked about the five-million-dollar plot either to the President or to Loeb. Mr. Loeb was equally reticent. It is the first time Penrose has seen either Loeb or the President since the news of the great plot was given out.

Representative Burton, the Taft leader in Ohio, also called on the President, and so did Acting Chairman New of the Republican National Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina voiced his views on the next Presidential possibilities here to-day while waiting for a train to take him to Butler, where he lectures to-night.

"The Presidential election is far away," he said, "and I am content to stand by at present and watch tbe game as the cards are dealt. My opinion is that Roosevelt is pulling every wire in his power to have himself nominated for a third term.

"The Taft boom is merely a preliminary skirmish to give Roosevelt an inkling of how the political winds are blowing. He wants to find out just how strong Taft really is, particularly in Ohio."

HERE TO LEARN RAILROADING.

Complete Course for Filipino Protege of E. H. Harriman.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 25.—Raphael Augliera Dimayuga, a member of a prominent Filipino family of Lipa, Batanzas, Island of Luzon, and a protégé of E. H. Harriman, is in this city to study the building and operation of the Erie Railroad, with a view to turning his knowledge to account in the building of railroads in the Philippines.

Mr. Dimayuga was formerly one of the right-hand men of Aguinaldo, who caused the American army so much trouble in the Philippines. He still corresponds with Aguinaldo. In 1896 a brother of Mr. Dimayuga, who had been educated in Germany and returned to the Philippines to lead a revolt against the Spaniards, was captured and shot on the spot without trial.

Mr. Dimayuga has already worked as a section hand and has been in the offices of the company at Jersey City. Beginning next week, he will enter the large freight house in this city, and remain until he understands the work thoroughly. Then he will enter the passenger station and learn the duties of a station agent and ticket seller.

After this knowledge is gained, it is believed he will go to a division headquarters and learn how trains are dispatched and kept in order along a great railroad system. He will go out with wrecking crews and investigate the causes of wrecks and how they are taken care of when they occur. With his railroad work Mr. Dimayuga is studying civil engineering.

500,000 LBS. OF LARD ABLAZE.

$300,000 Fire in Allegheny—Four Firemen Injured.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Fire started last night in the William Zoeller Packing Company's plants, in Allegheny, opposite this city. Early to-day when it was thought to be under control a large and supposedly fireproof warehouse, in which was stored 500,000 pounds of lard, suddenly burst into flames. The firemen finally fastened the iron doors of the building, shutting in the burning lard. Tbe interior of the building soon became a seething furnace. Spurting from crevices, doors, and windows, streams of hot grease ran into a sort of trench hurriedly prepared in an endeavor to prevent the hot fluid from spreading over surrounding territory.

Shortly after the fire was discovered a dozen large ammonia tanks exploded with terrific force. At 8 o'clock this morning the fire had practically burned itself out. The loss is put at $300,000; partly covered by insurance.

During the fire Assistant Chief Engineer William Graham and three firemen were injured by falling walls and broken glass, but all will recover.

BOND THEFT GROWS TO OVER $400,000

After Last Haul, Douglas Sought Josiah Quincy's Aid in Restoring Securities.

HE WANTED IMMUNITY

Boston's ex-Mayor Declined to Enter Case, but His Brother-in-Law Appears for Douglas.

It came out yesterday that Josiah Quincy, ex-Mayor of Boston, had been asked by William O. Douglas, the bank clerk now in jail for robbing the Trust Company of America, to negotiate with the company for the return of the stolen securities. According to William F. Sheehan, counsel for the company, Mr. Quincy declined to have anything to do with the case. Since then his brother-in-law, Robertson Honey, a Newport lawyer, bas come into it as counsel for Douglas.

Other developments of yesterday made it appear that the emount of bonds stolen was vastly in excess of any figure hitherto published, and generally ripped the lid off the robbery after officials of the trust company had fastened it down with sedulous care only the night before. Incidentally there was developed for the first time publicly the real story of the robbery as revealed by Douglas on the day after his arrest.

This was not because of any change of attitude by those who have had official charge of the matter. On the contrary, the trust company officials and their various coinvestigators were as close mouthed as ever and put in one of the busiest days they have spent since the original discovery that the trust company had been robbed. As a result of their work it is not improbable that papers will be prepared for the arrest of a Boston man whoso name has not yet been mentioned, but who is believed to be the actual "man higher up," the principal of Dennett and Douglas in one of the most ingenious schemes of bank robbery with which the metropolitan police have ever had to deal.

To understand the situation as it developed from yesterday's disclosures it is necessary to turn first to that part of the confession of Douglas which puts his thefts back over the period of a year. To this confession has been added information obtained by the investigators from many brokerage houses, most of them members of the New York Stock Exchange, that Dennett for months has maintained loan accounts in amounts from $1,000 up to $5,000, with satisfactory collateral. Some of the houses, to be sure, did not like the look of the proposed operations and declined to do business with Dennett, but that he was successful in establishing business relations with several is one of the admitted facts of the case.

Douglas Took Over $400,000.

The peculations of Douglas, it now appears, were not of large individual amounts until the latter part of last week, although aggregating a considerable sum variously put at from $30,000 to $50,000. He had been able to carry them on with greater ease than would otherwise have been the case by reason of the fact that the consolidation of the Trust Company of America and the Colonial Trust Company brought with it an incidental, though temporary, relaxation of the routine followed by large Wall Street institutions.

But last Friday, according to the confession, Douglas realized that his game was up. Accordingly he took no less than $400,000 in bonds, conveyed them temporarily to a third person, said to be Dennett. Then on Saturday he made away with an additional $50,000 more, as told by President Thorne in the story he gave out on Sunday of the detection of the theft. Meantime Douglas, according to the information which some of the Trust Company officials have, communicated with Mr. Quincy, whether by letter or telegram does not appear, and asked him to undertake to negotiate for the return of the securities on condition that immunity be given to Douglas and to Dennett.

His Summons to Quincy.

Accounts vary as to the mode of this communication. William F. Shechan declared yesterday that his understanding was that Dennett wrote or telegraphed to Mr. Quincy, and that Mr. Quincy, who was once a Director of the Seventh National Bank, had declined to have anything to do with the pair. However this may be, on Sunday a Newport lawyer appeared in New York and sought out President Thorne of the trust company to undertake the negotiation which Mr. Sheehan said yesterday Mr. Quincy declined.

Mr. Tborne, it is understood, asked this lawyer if he were ready to produce the two individuals mentioned in connection with the theft. The lawyer answered in the affirmative, whereupon Mr. Thorne replied that both Douglas and Dennett were in custody, Douglas being then actually under arrest and Dennett under police surveillance. This put a different phase on the matter, and fresh negotiations were undertaken which have continued in various stages down to the present time.

On Monday, however, Robertson Honey, whose home is in Newport and who is a brother-in-law of Josiah Quincy, turned up as attorney for Douglas. To reporters he made the statement that he was not retained by the prisoner directly, but through a third person whose name he would not give. He has continued to represent Douglas ever since, and caused some comment when he made an application to Magistrate Wnish on Wednesday to have the two men placed in different parts of the West Side Court Prison. At that time Mr. Honcy made no effort to have Douglas admitted to bail. Both Douglas and Dennett were lodged in the Tombs yesterday.

The Company's Probable Loss.

Mr. Sheehan was positive, in talking with reporters yesterday, that tbe loss to the trust company could not exceed the $140,000 at which it was placed in Mr. Thorne's statement of Tuesday. But Mr. Sheehan would not say wbat amount of bonds had been taken altogether, nor how many of tbem had been returned, either in value or in number. There was an impression in Wall Street, after it became known that upward of $400,000 bonds had been taken from the trust company altogether, that the company had not succeeded in recovering anything like tbe amount represented in official statements unless a very much larger amount of the bonds was recovered in Dennett's quarters at the Manhattan Club than was first reported.

In fact, it is known now that some of the Directors of the trust company have not been kept better informed of the situation than was conveyed in the statement that the loss would not exceed $140,-

AUTO CABS FOR NEW YORK.

Probability That French Taxameter Vehicles Will Be Used Here.

Special Cablegram.

PARIS, April 25.—There is a probability, according to G. W. Sands, who came to Paris on behnif of the American Motor Carriage Company, that taxameter auto cabs will be plying for hire in the streets of New York within a few months.

Mr. Sands lost no time after his arrival last Friday in making an extensive examination of different makes of automobile cabs. He has practically decided in favor of the Darracq type, and only awaits a cablegram from New York to complete a contract under which the Darracq Company would supply 100 taxameter motor cabs, part at the end of May, part at the end of June, and the remainder in July.

These taxameters are of a different type from those known in Paris, and Mr. Sands considers them superior. There are two types—a two-cylinder ten to twelve horse power machine for a cab seating two persons, and a four-cylinder fourteen to eighteen horse power machine for the landau style of vehicle.

TEACHERS' BILL PASSED.

Measure Increasing Salaries Now Goes to the Mayor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 25.—By a vote of 105 to 15 the Assembly to-day passed the New York School Teachers' Salary Increase bill. The substance of the brief debate on the measure was that too much money would have to be raised to meet the increased salaries, and an injustice would be done to the men teachers. Several Senators who have aided the teachers' steering committee from the start came over to the Assembly end were at once surrounded by women. The Senators enjoyed it hugely, and now and then whispered loudly to Assemblymen to get on the band wagon for them and vote for the bill. Encouraged by the smiles of the teachers and the urging of the Senators, several changed their votes to the affirmative.

The bill goes to Mayor McClellan, who has fifteen days in which to approve or veto it. At best, it is the general opinion that the measure's troubles have only just begun. In view of Gov. Hughes's attitude about bills that upset the principle of home rule Assemblymen have been telling the teachers that they should devote their attention to convincing the executive that they had a good bill. After its passage a delegation from the teachers called at the Executive Chambers, but failed to see the Governor.

NEW POST FOR LOEB.

Will Head Washington Railway and Electric Company, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—An announcement was published here to-day that William Loeb, Jr., secretary to the President, is to become President of the Washington Railway & Electric Company. This did not become generally known until Mr. Loeb had left the city for the Jamestown Exposition, so that it could not be verified from him.

From other sources, however, it is known that the interests in control of the railroad are anxious to get Mr. Loeb for the place. These interests consist chiefly of W. B. Hibbs & Co., who have been buying in stock for months, and who will be in control by the first of June, the date when the present trusteeship expires and the stockholders resume control.

The relations of Mr. Loeb and Mr. Hibbs have been close for some time, and there seems to be no doubt that if Mr. Loeb desires the presidency he can have it. It is said that if he takes the place it will not be until the beginning of next year.

Allan L. McDermott of Jersey City, President of the Washington Railway & Electric Company of Washington, when questioned yesterday concerning the report that Mr. Loeb would succeed him as head of the company next January, said:

"There is no understanding of that kind. Better see Loeb. There is nothing that I can say."

SLEUTHS TO BE SCREENED.

Curtain with Peepholes to be Used in "Sizing Up" Prisoners.

Beginning this morning, the detectives in the Detective Bureau will be concealed behind large screens while they "size up" tho crooks and the alleged crooks who have been caught in the police dragnet.

Capt. McCafferty, the new head of the Detective Bureau, decided that by the old method used at Police Headquarters the prisoners profited as much as the detectives did. It has been the custom in the past to line up the prisoners at Headquarters and the detectives then looked them over. By this method, however, the crooks could also see the policemen and know whom to shun when liberated.

Now the prisoners will not see the detectives at all. The large room at Police Headquarters has been divided off by a large curtain. The curtain has a number of small holes through which the detectives can take a mental photograph of the prisoners.

BRYAN IN A RUNAWAY.

He Jumps from Carriage, and No One Is Injured.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., April 25.—William J. Bryan, who lectured here last night, was in a runaway accident to-day. Neither Mr. Bryan nor any one with him was in any way injured, and little harm was done. The harness broke and the horses started to run down hill. The animals were brought under control just as they dashed up to the railroad station.

Mr. Bryan but a moment before had seized a chance to jump from the vehicle. He landed without harm. The others in the carriage stepped out after the horses stopped. One man in the crowd at the station was knocked down, but was not hurt.

BARRE, Vt., April 25.—William J. Bryan continued his Vermont tour today, delivering formal addresses to great audiences in Burlington and this city and also speaking briefly to crowds which gathered about his train at Morrisville and Richmond.

REFORM PLANS MENACED

Utilities Bill the Next Point of Attack, Perhaps—Hughes Is Prepared.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 25.—With the end of the legislative session only three weeks off, and the most important of the reform measures of Gov. Hughes yet to be acted upon by the Legislature, Senator John Raines, Republican leader of the upper house, to-day came out in opposition to the Governor's recommendation to have Otto Kelsey, State Superintendent of Insurance, removed from office.

It was learned later that Senator Raines had broken with the Governor, not only over the Kelsey case, but on other matters of at least as great importance to the Administration. To-night the Governor's friends admit that a crisis is at hand, and that the entire reform programme of the Governor may be in jeopardy.

To-night all the talk at the Capitol is of war. It is rumored that this war may be carried beyond the Kelsey case and that the "Old Guerd" in the Senate may attempt to bring about a line-up to defeat the Public Utilities bill.

It is known that the Governor is preparing to meet any emergency that may arise. While not looking for trouble, he is ready for the frey, and if war should come he will enter upon no compromises. He will fight it out to the bitter end with the same unconcern for consequences which has marked his conduct in reference to Mr. Kelsey, whose removal be asked for, though he knew he would antagonize every Republican of importance in the State by doing so.

The declaration of Senator Raines followed a meeting held this afternoon by the Senate Judiciary Committee. As the majority leader, who is a member of the committee, left the committee room he was asked:

"Is Mr. Kelsey going to be removed?"

"Not by any vote of mine. You may quote me as saying so, and make it as strong as you choose."

"Will you vote for Kelsey being retained in his office?"

"I have read every line of the testimony given at the hearing, and I can see no reason why he should be removed," Mr. Raines replied.

"How do the other members stand?"

"Some are with Kelsey; others are like pigs in a pen, wiggling their little tails so fast that it is impossible to see what way they are pointing."

At the meeting of the Judiciary Committee, which was held behind closed doors, Senator Page moved that the case be taken up for final consideration, and that the committee sustain the Governor's recommendation that Kelsey be removed. There was considerable discussion on this. No formel vote was taken, however.

Senator Page then brought about a line-up, resulting in a dead-lock, by moving that the committee consider the testimony and make a report to the Senate recommending some definite line of action. This has been the policy of the Governor's friends on the committee all along, but Senator Raines and the "Old Guard" members have been in favor of letting the Senate decide the case without a committee recommendation. The vote taken on the motion was six to six.

Those against were Allds, Smith, Grattan, Raines, McCarren, end Cohalan.

Grady, the only absentee, would have made a majority for Kelsey if he had been present to vote, as he will be Tuesday when the case will be taken up for final consideration.

The Governor was informed of what had occurred in the committee room shortly afterward, but made no comment. His friends left the committee meeting in a state of the greatest concern. They had believed that even despite the vote of Grady, whose attitude of hostility to the removal of Kelsey is well known, they would win. The surprise was furnished by Senator Grattan. He is the representative of Boss Barnes of Albany. It is known that Grattan, both personally and through Barnes, had pledged his support to the Governor. Cohalan also had been expected to vote with the Governor's friends. The friends of the Governor saw in his change of heart, an evidence that the Tammany leader, Charles F. Murphy, had issued orders to the Senator. Cohalan, heretofore, however, has shown independence of boss rule.

That unless some extraordinary change is brought about between now and the time when the Kelsey case comes before the Senate that body will vote against his removal was taken for granted to-day even by the Governor's friends. Whether the opposition would be carried further was a matter of speculation.

"It will depend," said one Republican legislator, "upon whether the combination against Hughes, which to my mind now exists, feels assured that it is stronger than the Governor."

He added to this somewhat Delphic utterance that the Governor, without the slightest doubt, was the strongest man "in the State." All the emphasis was on "State," and the inference from his utterance unmistakably pointed to the President and his attitude. While visitors at the White House who have come to the Capitol have been a unit in declaring that the President is heart and soul with the Governor, and the President himself has announced the same thing, it has been a matter of much comment here that, almost simultaneously with an inspired indorsement of the policy of Gov. Hughes from the White House, came the removal of Archie Sanders, the Wadsworth Collector. Some of the politicians at the Capitol wag their heads knowingly as they point out that both the indorsement of Hughes and the swatting of Wadsworth with the big stick came at the time when they were calculated to do the most good—but not to Hughes.

Just now the Governor is in a manner dependent upon the House of Wadsworth. Young "Jim" Wadsworth, son of the ex-Congressman and the President's enemy, is Speaker of the Assembly, which so far has been the mainstay of the Governor in connection with his reform programme.

HENRY CLAY WADE ARRESTED.

Friede Globe Tower Co. Charges Him with Not Accounting for $15,000.

Henry Clay Wade, for whose arrest a reward was recently offered by the Friede Globe Tower Company, was taken into custody yesterday by a private detective agency and turned over to the police of this city charged, it is said, with having retained about $15,000, representing the proceeds of stock of the Friede Company sold by him and not accounted for to the satisfaction of the company.

This charge against Wade and the subsequent offer of a reward for his arrest followed the filing of a suit by Wade against the Friede Globe Tower Company, in which he claimed from the company $36,000 in cash and $55,000 in stock as commission on stock sold by him, for the selling of which Wade claimed he had not been paid.

The Friede Globe Tower Company is engaged in the construction of a 700-foot tower at Coney Island, a project which has been widely advertised in connection with the efforts that have been made to float the stock of the company.

Samuel M. Friede is the head of the Friede Globe Tower enterprise and the action against Wade is said to have been prompted by Friede with the purpose of straightening out the affairs of the company.

CAUGHT BALL, LOST LEG.

Harris Waded Into a Bayou and Was Bitten by a Snake.

Special to The New York Times.

MONROE, La., April 25.—Benjamin Harris, star outfielder of the Rayville baseball team, completed a marvelous catch of a ball from the bat of one of the players of the rival team from Lake Providence township, saving the game, on which a good deal of money had been wagered. The feat cost him his right leg, and may possibly cost him his life.

To catch the ball he had to wade out into a bayou skirting the outfield. Harris was carried off on the shoulders of his admirers. Soon afterward his leg commenced to swell and amputation became necessary.

According to the physician he was bitten by a deadly moccasin. Harris does not remember any pain, so intent was he on catching the ball.

WOMAN CHOKED BY BURGLAR.

Miss Holmes Found Him Rifling a Bedroom—Assailant Escapes.

When Elsie Holmes, daughter of a manufacturer living at 657 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, returned home from a shopping tour last night about 7:30 o'clock she found the dining room in a disorderly condition. It looked as though a thief had rifled every drawer in the room.

Miss Holmes heard a noise upstairs, and left the dining room to investigate. In a bedroom on the second floor she found a tall, strong men. She demanded what he was doing. In reply the man seized her by the throat and tried to choke her. She broke loose and he fled, dropping some jewelry as he left the room.

"Don't give the alarm, or I'll kill you," he shouted in a German accent as he bounded down the stairs.

Miss Holmes made no outcry, and for an hour stayed in the bedroom, fearing to move. Then, gathering courage, she went below into the dining room. The man had disappeared. Miss Holmes then complained to the Ralph Avenue Police Station. She did not know what loot the robber had obtained.

RAILROAD BARS BEARDS.

Burlington Conductors Must Be Clean Shaven and Wear White Vests.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., April 25.—Burlington Railroad conductors must not wear whiskers nor mustaches, and they must wear white linen collars, ties, and vests while on duty. This order has been issued to all portions of the system, and will go into effect on May I of this year.

The railroad is making an effort to have all the conductors of a uniform appearance, and to that end the "no whiskers" rule has been promulgated. It is also argued that the men are more likely to carry germs and contagion with them when they have beards than when they are clean shaven.

MARVIN SUSPECT RELEASED.

No Evidence Against Man Accused of Murdering the Boy.

DOVER, Del., April 25.—Frank H. Butler, the steamboat deckhand, who was arrested yesterday on the charge of murdering four-year-old Horace Marvin, who disappeared March 4, was released from custody to-day because of insufficient evidence.

Detective Lore of New Jersey adheres to his theory of death, and having been privately engaged will dig for the body of the boy. He will first explore the David Moore woods near where Butler, in his statement, told of stopping to fix a broken wagon bolt and where Caldwell, his companion, last remembers having seen the bag of "net corks."

TRIBUTE TO THE NEW FUEL.

Quickly Consumes Some Farm Building and a Crop of Whiskers.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., April 25.—Charles Stinson, a well-known farmer, whose home is near Woodbury, has been trying the new mixed fuel, and with good success in farm cooking. He made a fire with it yesterday to try out some hog fat. The fire became so hot that it ignited a wooden box near the improvised oven. Then the shed building caught fire, and this and the old barn nearby and a big hennery were consumed. Stinson saved nothing but his opinion of the new compound, losing nearly all of his whiskers in the struggle to subdue the flames. Nearly all the farmers in this section are neglecting their crops to pay homage to the new fuel.

Socialist Colony a Failure.

BELLINGHAM, Washington, April 25.—"Equality," a Socialistic colony established in 1897, was wiped out of existence by a court order yesterday, Judge Joyner of Skagit County directing that the property be sold to pay the colony's debts. The property consists of 600 acres of land, a saw mill, a printing plant, and twenty dwellings.

JAMESTOWN SHOW FAR FROM READY

Not a Single Building Is Finished and Few Exhibits Are in Place.

NAVY ALONE IS PREPARED

President Will Have to Speak Outdoors To-day — Intending Visitors Advised to Wait.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, April 25.—It is difficult for one who wants to be fair to both the Jamestown Tri-centenary Exposition and the people who are planning to visit it, to find anything to write about it in the present tense. The plain fact is, there is no Jamestown Exposition now, and there will not be for some time to come. If one undertakes to describe the glories of the show he will be limited to the use of the future tense.

That may be a hard thing to say about it on the evening before President Roosevelt, a distinguished company of foreign representatives, the Governors of several States, a delegation of Senators and Representatives in Congress are to arrive for the formal ceremonies of officially opening the Exposition for its advertised business of showing to the world the progress in every line of development that this country has made in the three centuries since Capt. John Smith came asbore on April 26, 1607. But it is the truth, and the people who are making arrangements to visit the Exposition are just as much entitled to know the real state of affairs here as the managers of the Exposition are entitled not to have the condition misrepresented.

There is but one thing to be said to persons planning to visit the Jamestown Exposition, and that is, "Wait." The foundation of a great Exposition is here. The plan is comprehensive, and the means taken to carry it out afford justification for saying that in time there will be a display here well worth coming to see. But it is idle for any one to say now that there is anything here that will repay any visitor for the trouble and expense of travel from any distance.

The Navy Alone Is Ready.

Only one feature of the whole show is ready, and that is the navy. Well, the navy is always ready. Jack's home is his ship, and when his ship comes to Hampton Roads to take part in the Jamestown Exposition there is not enough change in the routine of Jack's life to make it noticeable, except that when things get into full swing he will have a little more fun out of it than in the ordinaray business of drill and target practice.

Admiral Evans's big fleet of white-sided warships is lying in long double lines in Hampton Roads, hobnobbing cheerily with representatives of the British, German, Argentine, Brazilian, and Chilean Navies, and in the parade of land and naval forces that will follow the speech-making and button pushing to-morrow they will all take part.

For the second time in our recent history the fighting men of several different nations will march under arms in a column headed by the Star-Spangled Banner. The parade in New York City in celebration of the World's Fair at Chicago was the other occasion.

The management of the Exposition has been working very hard lately to get the grounds into as presentable condition as possible for the opening ceremonies to-morrow. But it was an impossible task. Very much more work was undertaken than could be accomplished in the time available. It seems to have become the accepted condition of American Expositions that they shall be formally opened before they have been brought to complete preparation for business. But no other Exposition, in recent years at least, has undertaken to go ahead with its elaborate inaugural programme without having at least some of its buildings finished and some of the exhibits installed.

Not One Building Finished.

A protracted tour of the grounds of the Jamestown show to-day failed to disclose one building entirely complete. Some of them are finished as far as exterior is concerned, but floors are not laid, wiring is not finished, interior work is not completed, and they are still days, if not weeks, removed from readiness for occupancy. Even the big auditorium where it was planned to hold the inaugural exercises is not in condition, and the President will have to deliver his speech from the grand stand before the parade ground.

The principal buildings, including those in which the Government is interested, are nearest completion, but all over the grounds, and especially along the Warpath and among the concessionaire districts, there are many buildings which have progressed only as far as their framework. Not even the entrances are ready. The ticket sellers' booths are only half finished. The turnstiles are installed in temporary structures, and even the caretakers are not housed as they will be ultimately. But to-day they were busily charging full price and selling tickets to all who wanted to go in and see how unprepared the whole place is.

Representatives of the Exposition say that a great deal of work has been done on the grounds. Not much of it shows. The streets are far from being in a proper condition. They are cluttered with piles of building material, and for the most part unpaved. Stretches of sidewalk are ready here and there, disconnected and not very serviceable, but hopeful of things that are to be. Of all the grounds, only the parade ground is fit for service, and around that notices are posted on the trees warning visitors that it has been "seeded down," and is not to be crossed.

The managers of the Exposition say they expect to have it in presentable shape by the middle of May. It is probable that by that time most of the main buildings will be in a condition approaching that in which they will continue with exhibits installed. The Warpath will be whooping it up fairly well by then, the restaurants will be ready for business, and visitors will be able to see a good deal without having to go hungry. But it will take considrably more than a month yet to bring the show into a general state of readiness for business. The big Voet Pier, for which Congress appropriated $400,000, with an additional $65,000 for dredging a channel to it, will require several weeks for completion, and the channel is far from being dredged out as it is to be.

Norfolk Already Crowded.

That is the condition all about the Exposition. To-morrow the President will come down from Washington and go through the formal programme of inaugural ceremonies. Already Norfolk is filled to overflowing with men and women who have come down to see the opening, all of them knowing that the Exposition was not ready, but still expecting to see it in such shape as to present a fair idea as to what it is going to be. To realize the glories that are to be one must have the eye of faith very largely developed, and be ready to accept at par the descriptions of the prospectus.

As usual on such occasions, the hotel keepers are acting as if they had no expectation of seeing a single guest after the close of the Exposition, and propose to pay for plant and equipment and make their fortunes besides out of those who come now, before they are duly warned. To-day a single small room, bare floor, cot, chair, table, and washstand, in what is called the Annex, near the Exposition grounds, was held at $5, and that is a sample. The facilities for reaching the Exposition grounds are neither ample nor adequate. There "will be," some time, ferries from Newport News and Old Point. Now everybody has to coma to Norfolk, whence the trolley lines lead out to the grounds, six or seven miles in an hour and a quarter. The promise is that all this will be changed with the approaching completion of the Exposition. But until it is changed the only thing to say to any one contemplating visiting the show is "Wait."

Lieut. Gov. Chanler and the New York Commission to the Exposition, accompanied by Adjt. Gen. Henry, members of Gov. Hughes's staff, and others, arrived to-day by special train. They will participate to-night in the first official function incident to the opening of the Exposition, which will take the form of a reception to be tendered by the Governor of Virginia and Mrs. Swanson incident to the dedication of tha Virginia State Building.

Among others who arrived to-day for the opening were Gov. Higgins of Rhode Island, his staff, the Rhode Island State Commission, and the Judges of tha Supreme Court of Rhode Island; Gov. Stokes and staff of New Jersey, Gov. Woodruff and the Connecticut party, Gov. Swanson of Virginia and party, Gov. Ansell and staff of South Carolina, the Ohio State Commission, with special representatives of the Ohio Executive Department, and the Louisiana Commission to the Exposition.

All of the United States regular troops that are to participats in the opening ceremonies to-morrow have arrived on the Exposition grounds, the last having come this afternoon.

PRESIDENT'S PARTY STARTS.

Distinguished Representation Leaves Washington for Jamestown.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—President Roosevelt, members of his family, and a party of friends left the Washington Navy Yard at 3:10 o'clock this afternoon on the yacht Mayflower for a visit to the Jamestown Exposition. They are to return on Sunday morning.

The Congressional party, comprising a joint committee of the Senate and the House and their families, preceded the Presidential party this morning; Secretary and Mrs. Metcalf and others left earlier in the afternoon on the Dolphin, and the Diplomatic Corps, whose members are to be the guests of the Jamestown Commission, followed to-night.

The President's party included Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Roosevelt, Masters Archie and Quentin Roosevelt, Justice Moody of the Supreme Court, Secretary Loeb, Assistant Secretary Bacon and Mrs. Bacon, Assistant Secretary Latta, Mrs. Ralph N. Cross Johnson, Capt. Lee, one of the President's military aides; Capt. Key, one of the President's naval aides; Lieut. Commander Long, and Dr. Ohnesorg, U. S. N.

Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Cortelyou, Assistant Secretary of War, Mrs. Oliver and the Misses Oliver, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Garfield, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Straus, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Winthrop, the Chief of the Staff of the Army and Mrs. Bell, Assistant Secretary Stata and Mrs. Wilson, and many others left Washington at 6 o'clock this evening on the steamer Newport News. They will arrive in Norfolk shortly before 8 o'clock to-morrow morning.

OFF TO THE EXPOSITION.

Pennsylvania Commission Will Try to Have the Liberty Bell Taken There

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The Pennsylvania Commission to the Jamestown Exposition, which includes many prominent men of the State, left here at 10 o'clock this morning for Jamestown in a special train. Gov. Stuart was unable to accompany the party. He is represented by Lieut. Gov. Robert S. Murphy. The commission will officiate at the dedication of the Pennsylvania Building on Saturday at noon.

Though the Liberty Bell is not going to Jamestown with tha Commissioners, they hope that City Councils will comply with their request to allow the bell to be taken to the Exposition later.

Mrs. McLean Returns Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Mrs. Donald McLean, President General of the Daughters of the American Revolution, left Washington for her home in New York this morning, contrary to her original plan of attending the opening of the Jamestown Exposition. This change was necessary because of the incomplete condition of the building being erected there by the State of New York. Mrs. McLean will go to Jamestown when the building is finished.

COURT SETS FREE ARMED ITALIANS

RAISE TECHNICAL POINT

Say Their Court Hasn't Jurisdiction, but Do Not Exercise Right of Recommitment.

The Justices of Special Sessions in Staten Island rendered a decision yesterday which, if it is upheld, will make of no avail all the efforts of the police to check the carrying of concealed weapons by Italians. Several men were arraigned before them upon the charge of illegally carrying knives and revolvers. District Attorney Kenny pressed the charges, but upon technicalities all the indictments were dismissed.

A few days ago Capt. Gallagher of the West Brighton Precinct raided the saloons where tha Italians congregate. He found a number of men drinking and playing cards in them, and he lined them up to find what weapons they were carrying.

It is not suggested that at the time of his visit there was any violence, but after the murder of Policemen Sechler and Selleck by Italians, every policeman has been determined to stop the carrying of knives and revolvers by Italians. In Staten Island there is a great deal of construction work under way, and the influx of newly-arrived immigrants has been very large.

Justices John Fleming, Patrick Keady, and Howard J. Forker were on the bench yesterday when the prisoners were arraigned before them. They were charged with carrying concealed weapons, and the police produced in court the weapons they had taken from them. One had a revolver, another a razor, and two or three murderous looking knives about three or four inches long while another had a knife which could only be shut up by pressing a spring.

One of the prisoners was prepared to plead guilty at once, but the court would not receive the plea. Hermann S. Butler was assigned to all the defendants as their counsel, and the court proceeded to hear the cases.

District Attorney Kenny made a strong plea for their conviction and pointed out the danger which the carrying of weapons capable of being used in attacking citizens inflicted upon the community. The Justices, however, took a different view of the matter.

Presiding Justice Fleming raised the question of the intent of the defendants in having in their possession dangerous weapons. He urged that according to Section 410 of the Penal Code it was unlawful to conceal upon the person knives, dirks, slungshots and other offensive articles only if the intention of the carrier was to inflict personal harm upon someone else.

He argued that their men were sitting quietly in saloons, and when the police raid was made there was no disturbance. Among the Justices a prolonged discussion took place as to what a "dirk" meant. They were inclined to accept the theory that tha Italians use the long knives they carry for the innocent purpose of cutting up bread and meat at their meals, and not to carve each other or Americans with them.

Justices Keady and Forker, however, raised a purely technical point, which forced into the background the question of the use to which the Italian, as a rule, devotes his knife. They urged that even if he contemplated sticking his neighbor at some future date the Court of Special Sessions had no jurisdiction in the matter.

By a peculiarity of the Penal Code, carrying concealed knives of illegal length is a felony, but if a man puts a revolver in his pocket he is guilty only of a misdemeanor. They argued that as the prisoners were charged with carrying knives, they were accused of being felons, and it was no part of the duty of Special Sessions to say whether they were or were not guilty.

District Attorney Kenny pointed out that by another clause of the same section it was laid down that no alien might carry concealed weapons, but that it was not stated whether if he did so he was to be considered guilty of a misdemeanor or a felony.

But he argued that it was also stated in the Penal Code that when a crime was enumerated in the code without explicit specification as a felony or a misdemeanor it was always to be held in the mercy of the law as of the lesser degree. Consequently, he maintained, the prisoners were accused of misdemeanors and the Court of Special Sessions had jurisdiction.

However, tha court did not agree with him, and all the prisoners were discharged. No attempt was made to hold them for the Grand Jury.

District Attorney Kenny said last night: "I don't know what the effect upon the Italians will be of this decision. It is absurd to suppose that they will understand the fine technicalities of the law. One of them was ready to plead guilty, but ths court interfered, and then turned all ths defendants out upon a fine distinction. All the prisoners will understand is that it is not a crime in Staten Island for them to carry concealed weapons.

"I had a talk with the Justices afterward. One of them said to me that the benoh in Staten Island had no intention of being carried awey by the hysteria about concealed weapons which had swept over New York.

"I do not see why if a technical mistake had been made in bringing the cases before Special Sessiona instead of the Grand Jury, ths whole matter was not sent back to the Magistrate for a new commitment."

Justice Forker waa seen at his home last night by a TIMES reporter. He admitted that it might have been possibls for any of the Justices of Special Sessions, acting as a Magistrate, to recommit the defendants to the Grand Jury, although he was inclined to think that the court, aa a court, could do nothing but dismiss the cases.

On the point of what does or does not constitute in the eye of the law a dangerous weapon District Attorney Kenny had something to say.

"There's no doubt," he remarked, "a very dangerous wound might be effected by the knives these Italians were carrying. But, according to Justice Fleming, unless they had been actually used to do wrong they are not illegal. A man must first be attacked and stabbed with one of them before the court will declare that they are weapons at all. It is a rather curious decision it seems to me. But I suppose a court may know the law."

CRITICISED JURY'S VERDICT.

Ex-Alderman Ware Cited for Contempt in Judge O'Sullivan's Court.

Because he permitted himself an outspoken expression of opinion upon the verdict found by a jury in General Sessions yesterday, Frederick H. Ware, an ex-Alderman and a lawyer, will have to answer to-day to a charge of contempt of court. The statement upon which this charge is based was made by Mr. Ware in Judge O'Sullivan's court.

Cono Sapienzo, 18 years old, of 164 Villa Avenue, the Bronx, had been caught a week ago in the police drag net, and when a razor was found upon him he was tried for carrying concealed weapons. Yesterday the case was given to the jury and a few minutes later a verdict of guilty was found.

Mr. Ware, who had not been connected with Sapienzo's defense, had been seated at one side of the courtroom, and as the foreman of the jury announced the verdict he arose from his chair, and taking a toothpick, which he had held from between his teeth, tossed it to the floor, remarking in a voice audible throughout the courtroom:

"It's about time that such verdicts as this should be stopped. They'll be saying pretty soon that a man can't chew a toothpick."

His tone was eloquent of disgust. Assistant District Attorney Marshall heard the remark, and immediately stepping forward, exclaimed to Judge O'Sullivan:

"There are a number of these cases yet to be tried, your Honor. This jury must pass upon them and they have heard this outrageous statement. The man is an officer of this court and he should be punished. If your Honor will so direct I shall prefer a charge of contempt of court against him."

ENGINEERS' NEW HOME.

1,500 Members and Their Friends Attend the Big Housewarming.

The new building of the Engineers' Club, at 32 and 34 West Fortieth Street, was opened to 1,500 members and their friends last night. The club closed its old building in Fifth Avenue, near Thirty-fifth Street, in the morning.

The house and property, which cost the club nearly $1,000,000, were obtained largely through the aid of Mr. Carnegie, who subscribed $450,000 toward the new home. The house itself is thirteen stories in height and is said to be one of tha finest club buildings in the country.

Eleven floors, containing six rooms each, have forty-four baths in connection, and some of these rooms may be rented at as low a rate as $1 a day. The first floor is devoted to tha foyer, reception and cloak rooms, and the grill room. A grand staircase of marble and bronzs leads to the second floor, which contains the billiard and card room, the board room, and several committee rooms.

The next six floors are entirely devoted to bedrooms, singly and en suite. The next floor is devoted to the breakfast room and the private dining rooms, one of which, the "Tapestry Room," is notable for its tapestry furnishings. The eleventh floor is given over to the main dinner hall, which is panoled in oak and bronze, with delicate paintings of the Louis XIV and Louis XV periods.

In spite of its roominess the new house was crowded at the housewarming. Mr. Carnegie was unable to be present, but almost every other New Yorker interested in the profession was there.

Representatives of Russia, Austria, England, New Zealand, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, and Japan were there also; professors of engineering without number, among them being Prof. Hatfield of England and Dr. Kerchoff of Germany. Mr. Martin, the President, was highly complimented by his fellow-members on the result of his active campaign for the new quarters.

At the turn of the stairs from the ground floor is an excellent portrait of Mr. Carnegie by Prof. Butler. It is set in a frame of bronzs in the wall. The billiard room also contains many thousands of dollars' worth of paintings.

There are bridges connecting the house with the recently opened Electrical, Civil, Mining and Mechanical Engineers' Building in Thirty-ninth Street. It is proposed, as the members of one club are eligible to membership in the other, to have all the technical works in the older building free to the members of both clubs, and to make the Engineers' the social club or playhouse.

SAW HIS SON KILLED.

Father Was Passenger on Car That Struck Young Brooklyn Boy.

When Edward Thomas Kelly of 104 Wythe Avenue, Brooklyn, one of fifty passengers who saw a boy killed by a Coney Island-bound car at Wythe Avenue and Penn Street, Brooklyn, last night, looked at the body he fell over in a faint. The boy was his son.

It was just 9 o'clock, and young Kelly, who was 16 years old, in trying to cross the tracks fell in front of the approaching car.

George Butler of 76 Franklin Avenue, the motorman, did his best to stop the car, but its momentum was too great, and it ran over the boy. The people in the car screamed, and the crowd which gathered became so threatening in its demonstrations against the motorman that Policemen Mahoney and Ferguson of tha Clymer Street Station had to defend him with their clubs.

Although the police tried to prevent him, the father, when he recovered, insisted on accompanying the body of his son to the Clymer Street Station. His condition was such that the police telephoned for an ambulance from the Cumberland Street Hospital, in which Dr. Huyler took the grief-stricken man home.

Butler, the motorman, was locked up on a charge of homicide.

CORNELL'S TENT COLLAPSES.

Erected to Seat 5,000 Persons at the Centennial Exercises.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 25.—The huge tent which had been erected by the Cornell authorities on Alumni Field to hold the 5,000 auditors who are expected to attend the centennial exercises to-morrow and Saturday, collapsed to-day.

No one was injured, as the tent was unoccupied. The cause of the collapse is believed to be earth worms loosening tha earth at the base of the poles which supported the great canvas structure.

STORER TO LIVE IN BOSTON.

Ex-Ambassador to Austria Leases a Place from F. B. Crowninshield.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 25.—The residence, 164 Marlboro Street, at the corner of Dartmouth Street, has been leased by Francis B. Crowninshield to Bellamy Storer, ex-Ambassador to Austria. The lease was made by J. Murray Howe.

Mr. Storer, who is in Europe, will return to America in the early Fall and will take up his residence for the Winter here.

SLAYER'S SKELETON IN ADIRONDACKS

Mr. Cleveland's Guide Killed a Hotel Keeper Twenty Years Ago.

FINDER CLAIMS REWARD

Tragedy of 1887, Which Caused Great Excitement, Is Recalled Again.

Special to The New York Times.

NORTHVILLE, N. Y., April 25.—The finding of the skeleton of a man, believed to be that of Charles Brown, who was President Cleveland's guide in the Adirondacks for two seasons, and who shot and killed George A. Berkeley, one of tha wealthiest and most popular hotel men of the region, in 1887, at Saranac Lake, has revived the story of the tragedy. Brown disappeared in the woods on the day of the murder, and nothing has been heard of him since.

Berkeley and Brown had always been good friends, and the latter was at one time engaged to marry one of Berkeley's sisters. This affair, however, was ended some years before the tragedy, and apparently had no bearing upon it.

On the afternoon of Oct. 9, 1887, Brown was drinking heavily, and had been refused a drink by the bartender of Berkeley's hotel. The guide appealed to the landlord, but Berkeley stood by his employe and advised Brown to go home.

Brown left the place, and getting his rifle returned to a position on a veranda opposite the hotel. In a few minutes Berkeley came out on his own veranda and was killed by the guide.

The murder created great excitement throughout the region, and hundreds of friends of Berkeley started out to look for Brown. Rewards aggregating $5,500 were offered, and detectives from many parts of this country and Canada were attracted to the case. Nothing, however, was heard of the fugitive. Predictions were made that Brown would come out of the woods before Spring, but others averred that he was too experienced a guide and hunter to let himself be forced by hunger to face a murder charge, and that he could support himself indefinitely in the woods.

Thomas Haffen of North Township is the discoverer of the skeleton. Yesterday he started for Schroon Lake by the old Indian trail through Newman. When about seven miles from Newman he was attracted by his dog to tho left of the road. He followed and came upon a small well, around which were a number of fresh bear tracks. Mr. Haffen searched about and came upon the scattered parts of a human skeleton. Leaning against a half-dead tree, which had grown partly around the muzzle, was a rifle, and near by were other articles, a metal pocketbook, a box compass, knife, and key ring without keys. The articles were brittle with rust and tha rifle almost fell apart when he lifted it.

Haffen immediately started back for Northville, bringing all ths relics with him. Arriving here, he at once filed a claim for the reward of $2,000 offered by the widow of Berkeley and never withdrawn, and in which it was stated that the money would be paid "for the arrest of Charles Brown, the finding and production of his body, or proof of his death."

As two of the smaller articles have the letters "C. B." stamped upon them, and the rifle barrel is marked "120," Brown's number in the Adirondack Guides' Association, Haffen is sure he has found the remains of the woodsman.

BUOY NEAR AN ICEBERG.

The Scandinavian Line steamer C. F. Tietgen, while passing a large iceberg last Saturday evening in latitude 45.22 north, longitude 41:25 west, discovered a light close to the edge of the berg. Capt. Thompson believed it to be a signal of distress and ran as near the light as he dared to go.

It waa then dark and the passengers crowded the rail in expectation of a rescue. Preparations were made to lower a boat when the officers made out through their night glasses that the light was that of a gasoline buoy. It was impossible to make out its number and so it could not be discovered where the buoy had originally been stationed.

CITIZENS CUT DOWN POLES.

Volunteer Axe Brigade at Mineola Removes Old Telephone Line.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., April 25.—The village Board of Trustees, aided by citizens armed with axes, turned out to-night and last night and cut down over 100 telephone poles.

At a recent meeting of the trustees it was decided to cut down a number of telephone poles and remove wires which were endangering the lives of citizens by falling across the roads. The wires are not in use, having formerly belonged to ths South Shore Telephone Company, which was absorbed by the trust.

As the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company, the purchaser of the line, did not seem to care what happened to the poles and wires, the residents decided to take the matter into their own hands at once, so Joseph Smith, Thomas Albertson, and Frank P. Krug, composing the Board of Trustees, started out at the head of a big crowd of citizens, all of whom carried axes.

There were expert woodchoppers in the crowd, and when they got to work the poles fell quickly. Then ths wires were cut and loaded into wagons and the poles were hauled off the roadway.

INQUIRY HOLDS UP THEIR PAY.

Employes of Jersey Assembly Must Wait a Committee's Action.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 25.—The officers, pages, doorkeepers, and sergeant-at-arms of the last House of Assembly were disappointed to-day when it was unofficially given out by Controller Morgan that none of them would be paid until the legislative committee to investigate extravagances has done its work and reported to the House when it reassembles on June 18.

These expenses are usually paid as soon as the Governor signs the Incidental bill, and this bill is by custom one of the earliest signed. It is possible that Gov. Stokes will think it only courteous to hold up the bill until the investigation is made. The House officers are, of course, clamoring for their pay.

Forty-second Street, and the operation of those lines in connection with the existing subway under the burdens imposed by your proposed contract and the existing law, are financial impossibilities.

"There are several reasons for this conclusion. In the first place, as will be seen from the report submitted herewith, our engineering advisers, including Mr. William Barclay Parsons and Mr. John B. McDonald, agree in the conclusion that the proposed extensions, (exclusive of pipe galleries,) built in conformity with the plans and specifications of your commission would, under existing conditions, cost (including an allowance for easements and interest during construction) not less than $64,000,000, without equipment, and that the necessary equipment, including tracks, rolling stock, power plant, &c., would involve an additional expenditure of not less than $24,000,000, making the aggregate cost of building and equipping about thirty-nine miles (single track) of rapid transit subway approximately $88,000,000, as compared with the cost of about $71,000,000 for building and equipping the existing rapid transit lines, (including the extension to the Battery,) comprising about sixty-three miles of single track.

Increase in Cost of Construction.

"This increase in cost is due partly to the requirements of the present law, the increase in the price of materials and labor, and the fact that about fourteen miles (single track) of the existing line is on an elevated structure, while all the new lines are underground, but the increasa in cost is chiefly dua to onerous provisions (not required by the existing law) of the new contract, and of the new plans and specifications which provide, first, for unnecessary increase of cost of construction; second, for adding the cost of all easements to the cost of the subway; third, for the purchase of private property for station entrances; fourth, for a greatly increased responsibility for damages, and, fifth, for an increase in the diameter of the tunnels—an increase which will be of no value for extensions of the existing subway system. The fact that tha express and local tracks on Lexington Avenue are upon different levels also adds materially to the cost. The result is that our engineers estimate that the cost of the new subways fully equipped will be at the rate of $2,250,000 per mile of single track as compared with the cost of $1,130,000 per mile for ths existing rapid transit lines, an increasa of about 100 per cent. This estimate is more than substantiated by the contract recently let for the construction of the Manhattan section of the city's subway loop between the bridges.

"Not only would the construction of tha proposed extensions involva a capital outlay per mile of track double that involved in the original subway lines, but under the proposed form of contract and the existing law, the expenses which must be provided out of income are very much increased as compared with the original subway contract. In the first place, it may be assumed that tha interest upon city bonds issued for the cost of the proposed subways will be from one-half to three-quarters of 1 per cent. higher than in the case of the original rapid-transit bonds, and this conclusion is based on the supposition that the city can sell its bonds on a 4 per cent. basis. In the second place, unlike the original subway, the entire investment in the new subway, including the lessee's property in the streets and equipment, will be subject to taxation. In the third place, various advantages conferred by the original contract are now eliminated; and, finally, the lease is limited to twenty years, (subject to a renewal upon a revaluation the terms of which cannot be fixed in advance,) making it necessary to increase the annual charges by an amount sufficient to provide for the difference between the original cost of such of the equipment and other property as may be taken over by the city at the expiration of the lease and the probable value at which such property will be appraised at the end of the twenty years.

"Another important consideration is the exceptionally broad power conferred by your form of contract upon the public authorities to require from time to time any changes in the construction of the subway and in the equipment and other appliances used therein, as shall to them seem proper. Such a requirement, especially in the case of a subway operated under a lease for only twenty years, creates a serious liability for additional expenditures for which adequate allowance would have to ba made under any conservative financial plan.

No Profit for Interborough Company

"For the reasons briefly summarized above we have concluded that if we were to build the proposed extensions in conformity with your plans and specifications and the proposed contracts, using the city's credit for the entire cost of construction under the contract, (about $64,000,000,) and outside investment capital (approximately $24,000,000) in the equipment, etc., and assuming that the new lines received all the traffic which it would be feasible for them to carry under the limitations imposed by traffic conditions in New York, it would not be possible to make net earnings above operating and maintennace expenses, sinking fund payments, and taxes, sufficient to provide the interest upon the city's bonds and five per cent. upon the additional capital invested. Indeed, a study of the rsports of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on file in your office will demonstrate that a subway costing twice as much per mile as the existing rapid transit lines, operated under a lease less than half as long, subject to much higher taxation, and operated under a distinctly less liberal contract, would not earn even the rate of interest payable upon the city's bonds.

"While for these reasons it is impossible for us to make a bid for the construction and operation of the subways required to complete our present system, if they are to be constructed and operated under the proposed plans and specifications and contracts, we recognize that in view of the imperative need for greater rapid transit facilities in New York—a need which is becoming more urgent every year—it is due the city that as lessees of the existing municipal subway system, we should do whatever is in our power to complete that system and otherwise increase our facilities.

"I have, therefore, to advise you that we are prepared to enter into a contract for the construction, at actual cost, of two extensions of the existing municipal subway, ona upon tha west side extending south from Forty-second Street to the Battery, the other upon the east side extending north from Forty-second Street into the Bronx, and for the equipment and operation of such extensions, provided the cost of construction can be brought within the city's borrowing capacity, and provided the terms of the contract are such that we may reasonably expect the earnings from these additional subways to be sufficient to cover the interest and sinking fund upon the bonds of the city issued for their cost, a proper annual charge for depreciation in equipment and other property which the city may take over at an appraised value at the end of the twenty years' lease, and interest upon our additional investment for which city bonds would not be issued. In other words, we are willing to complete the existing rapid transit system so that there shall be, as originally planned by your Board, two complete longitudinal lines, one upon the east side and the other upon the west side of the city, without any prospect of profit beyond a fair rate of interest upon the additional investment involved, and obviously without an expectation of such a return no capital could be secured for additional subway construction.

"We shall be very glad to co-operate in carrying out some such plan as is above outlined if the opportunity is offered. Very respectfully yours,

"THEODORE P. SHONTS,
"Chairman of the Executive Committee."

Estimates by Interborough Engineers.

Attached to this was a letter to Mr. Shonts signed by the various engineers employed by the company, setting forth that the estimates of cost had been made as low as was safe and that the cost of lands for stations and terminals, which would be charged as part of the cost of the railroad, had also been included in the estimate. Equipment charges had been estimated on the basis of five-car locals and eight-car expresses, and not according to the ten-car basis set forth in the form of contract. The conclusions of the engineers were as follows:

To construct a four-track railway northerly from connection with the present Subway near Forty-first Street and Park Avenue via Lexington Avenue to the Harlem River, and thence a two-track railway to 156th Street, in the Bronx, and a four-track railway southerly from a connection with the present Subway near Forty-second Street and Broadway, via Seventh Avenue and West Broadway to the Battery, in accordance with the contracts, plans, and specifications of the Rapid Transit Commission, will cost $56,200,000
Easements 2,500,000
Terminals 1,300,000
Interest during construction 4,000,000 $64,000,000
Equipment 24,000,000
Total $88,000,000

This, it was learned later, was divided on the basis of $22,161,752 for the lower half of the Seventh Avenue route and $29,780,004 for the upper half of the Lexington Avenue route, with seven per cent. added as interest on investment for construction.

Following the reading of the letters, Mr. Starin asked Mr. Shonts if he had anything further to say. The latter replied that he had not. Then Charles S. Smith somewhat angrily asked him if he thought it would ba well to try and build extensions without amending the Elsberg bill. Mr. Shonts replied that while the amendment of the Elsberg bill might make a difference, there were conditions contained in the present form of contract which would still be onerous.

Controller Metz asked Mr. Parsons what, in his opinion, it would cost to build the existing subway at the present time, compared to the original cost. After a moment's thought Mr. Parsons replied that the cost would be between fifteen and twenty per cent. greater. Then the Controller declared that it was a shame the company or the city should have to pay for easements in outlying sections when the result of the building of the road would be to enhance real estate values greatly. Then an Independence Leegue delegate wanted an assurance that his organization should be heard if the Board considered Mr. Shonts's alternative proposition, and got it, and the matter was dropped for a time. Later, at an executive session, the Board referred the whole matter to Counsel Rives, with instructions to make out a comparative statement as to the conditions proposed for the new routes and those under which the present Subway was built. This will be submitted at the next meeting and compared with Mr. Shonts's statements.

A communication from the Committee of One Hundred of the Bronx, asking for a hearing on the third-tracking of the Third Avenue elevated and the four-tracking of the Second Avenue elevated, was next considered; Mr. Starin and Mr. Smith were of the opinion that the board should refuse to do anything, as its prospective life was so short. The Mayor and Mr. Metz thought the board should not take official cognizance of legislation pending at Albany, and it was finally agreed to hold a hearing next Thursday. The mono-rail proposal was then brought up, and after Mr. Metz had declared that he would vote for airships now, a hearing on that proposition was set for May 9 at 4:30 o'clock. A hearing on the Delancey Street end of the subway loop will be held May 16. After it was all over Mr. Metz said:

"We will go into the proposition made by Mr. Shonts thoroughly. For my part I am going to advocate the extension of the east side elevated lines. I believe that the city ought to give the Interborough what it wants there under a ten-cent franchise. As things stand at present we ought to take up everything we can and get action. For Brooklyn, I think the city should build the Fourth Avenue line, which will build up outlying sections and increase the city's borrowing capacity, enabling it to build lines in Manhattan, which can be run in competition to the Interborough."

Mr. Shonts Disappointed.

Mr. Shonts gave a long interview after the meeting. He said, in part:

"This is a keen personal disappointment to me. I had no idea but that we could frame up a proposition for new subways that we could stand by. Although we instructed the engineers to make their estimates as low as possible, the aggregate cost of the proposed subway would bs at least double that of the present one."

Mr. Shonts went on to say that the increased cost of labor and material, the conditions of the contract and the additional legislation were responsible. The officials of the company, he said, had devoted hours and days of tima to meet the situation because they believed there was a moral obligation on the lessees of the present lines to build new roads, but it was a financial impossibility to build the road proposed.

Asked as to the conditions of the contract to which specific objection was made he mentioned easements, private property for stations, the method of construction, meaning the cut and cover, as against the open ditch, the increase in the size of the tunnels and the liability of the contractors for all damage to abutting property of every description. Speaking of the Lexington Avenue route he said that the company had no definite proposal to make as yet, but that the proposed double-decked Subway was an "operating monstrosity." To provide for the operation of ten car trains, he said, would practically bankrupt the existing property, the stations of which would have to be reconstructed if the two systems were connected.

"Don't think we don't want to build new subways," he concluded. "We do; we want to complete our system."

The whole argument advanced by the Interborough was considered by many a severa arraignment of George S. Rice, the chief engineer of the board, who succeeded Mr. Parsons, and who prepared the contract under discussion. As a matter of fact, however, nearly every provision in the new contract was proposed originally by Mr. Parsons. Of the "operating monstrosity" in Lexington Avenue he said in his report dated Dec. 20, 1904: "It would be possible and desirable to construct four tracks, placing them in tiers, the local tracks above and the express tracks below."

MAIL DELAYS DEUTSCHLAND.

Simon Lake, Submarine Boat Inventor, Here to Test Craft at Newport.

The big Hamburg-American liner Deutschland did not reach her pier until long after 8 o'clock last evening. She entered Quarantine in tha late afternoon, but was delayed on her trip up tha bay by the transferring of the mail from the liner to the mailboat Postmaster General.

Simon Lake, the inventor of the Lake submarine boat, was among the arrivals. Mr. Lake went abroad in the latter part of December. Most of his time since then was spent in St. Petersburg and in Pola, Austria, where the company is building a number of submarines. He returns to attend the trial of The Lake, or No. 15, which is now at Newport. The vessel is of the harbor defense type, and is not constructed for great speed. The trials will be held on the 30th of this month.

Mrs. James H. Eckels, widow of the former Controller of the Currency, who died in Chicago ten days ago, arrived with her daughter and her mother, Mrs. John F. Reed. They were in Paris when the news of Mr. Eckels's death was received, and they started for this country on tho first available steamship. Mrs. Eckels was confined to her stateroom by illness, and when the vessel reached quarantine she was still so prostrated that her customs declaration had to be taken in her room.

Other passengers on the Deutschland were: Oliver Harriman, Mrs. George Amory Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rose, John M. Ferguson, and Mrs. T. St. John Gaffney.

000 and the sometimes misleading declarations of the officials about the various important questions in the defalcation which had not been cleared up. Some reason appeared for the policy pursued for the last few days when it was learned yesterday that the direction of the whole detective end of the case has been in the hands of the Pinkertons from the beginning, although it had previously been understood that the trust company officials, headed by President Thorne, had been the men who engineered the job.

The "Man Higher Up."

The pursuit of the "man higher up," of which much has been heard for the past two days, took an additional interest yesterday when it developed that this man, whose name has been known since Sunday, is a Bostonian; he was brought over to New York by Perry Heath when the former Assistant Postmaster General was one of the leading stockholders in tha Seventh National Bank, and had a variegated career here about the time of the failure in 1901.

In New York the interesting "man higher up" wound up with a little trouble about a hotel bill; then he went back to Boston and has since been more or less active in financial and political affairs of a certain order there.

There were all sorts of rumors attending the search made here yesterday of Dennett's offices by Assistant District Attorney Murphy, who is handling the case for Mr. Jerome, President Thorne, and several detectives. That a thorough search was made appeared from the ripped-up condition of the furniture, and while the office was under close guard all day color wes given to one report that the detectives had gone so far as to tear up the floor. None would deny this, nor that the investigators had found some interesting information in the books and papers of the office, leading to the "man higher up" with even greater directness than any hitherto obtained, but it was strenuously denied that any bonds had been found beneath the flooring.

Mr. Thorne remained in seclusion from the newspaper reporters all day. There was a report in Wall Street that the trust company had been buying Rock Island bonds, which advanced a point tha day before in a dull bond market, and this was generally credited on the theory that some of the borrowers who had put up the bonds as collateral had taken up their loans and wanted their collateral back, the trust company in that instance being obliged to return the same kind of collateral as that put up.

SCRUB FORCE USED TO LIGHT THE CITY

Regular Torch Bearers Gaining Recruits Steadily for Their New Union.

LAMPS LIT BY DAYLIGHT

Clerks in Welsbach Offices Pressed Into Service—Whole Country to be Unionized Soon.

The last bulletin from the front last night said that the great strike of the lamplightere wes still raging. Most of the torchbearere are Itslians, and most of them are at least janitors. The strike began Wednesday night. Union men say it will go on for a long time. Men connected with the Welsbach Street Lighting Company of America, which has the contract to furnish the lightere, eay that they have hardly notioed that there was a strike.

There are some 000 men to light the 25,000 gas and naphtha lamps in the five boroughs every night. Union leaders say that betwsen 400 and 500 of thsm struck Wednssday night, and more joined the strike yesterday. The compeny inspectors deciere that only a very few struck Wednesday night, and a good part of thsm reported for work yeeterday.

As a matter of fect, however, the company started men around yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock to light up the streets. Wagons were sent out from 80 Elizabeth Street, West End Avenue, and Sixty-sixth Street and First Avenue and 111th Street. A policeman went with eech wagon. Before the eun hed set lines of sickly lights ran down the eide streets.

In all the five boroughs an early start was made in lighting the lamps. The Consolidated Gae Company, which eublets the lighting to the Welsbach people, and which furnishes the gas, wanted all the lighte lit before night. That would enable the policemen to keep watch if efforts should be made to extinguisb them. The Conaolidated Company offered their men to help with tho lighting. Daniel Prendergast, Superintendent for the Welsbach concern, said that they would not be needed.

But Mr. Prendergaet was too optimistic. Union men said that not only were Consolidated Gas men used, but that Inspectors whose usual duty it is to manage a branch office were pressed into service. "And then they hed to etart at 2 o'clock," argued a union man. "Oh, we didn't really have to start at 2 o'clock," said Mr. Prendergast.

The headquarters of the two-weeks-old union is at 12 St. Mark's Place, and thither yesterday hurried the lamplighters. They carried no ladders nor torches nor matches, but they were prepared to set fire to things with eloquence.

"Listen!" shouted one of them. "Da union is two weeks here. When he find out we are da union men he begin to fira us. Wednesday da union bosses go over dere. Prendergast, he say no man is fired because he is union man. Da Inspectors tole our men when dey are bounced dat dey are demn union men, and das why dey are bounced."

Trials of a Lamplighter.

This speaker went on. He said the life of a lamplighter, while it may seem to the casual observer to be one of little labor and luxurious ease, was really filled with long hours and mountains of work. Firstly, he pointed out, the lamplighters have to furnish tho matches with which to light their torches and lights. Secondly, they have to furnish the oil to keep their torches burning. Thirdly, they have to clean the lemps and keep them in order.

Moreover, he argued, while each lamplighter is supposed to get through with his series of lamps within one hour, it really takes most of them two hours to do the work. Then it requires an average of two hours a day to keep the lights clean and in good condition.

And for all that the lamplighters get only 98 cents a day, or a cent or two over thet. They average only $30 a month, he said, and few of them can do anything else on the side, because what with going from lamp to lamp and cleaning them they are tired out.

Supt. Prendergast paints the picture another way. "These fellows get $30 a month for one or two hours a day," he says. "Now and then they have to put in some extra hours cleaning their lemps, but that time is inconsiderable. They get up early in the morning before they could do anything else, and they do their lighting at night when they are through with most other things.

"They can carry along other jobs if they want to. Many of them do. Why, one of our veteran lighters came in here the other day with six cheeks in his hands. He was holding one or two other small jobs. Any lamplighter can make from $50 to $60 a month if he is of any account at all."

Mr. Prendergaet went on to say that none of his Inspectors had discharged any lamplighters because they were union men. Some men had been dismissed, but it was because they had neglected their work. It was just a question of veracity between the lamplighters and tho Inspectors, said Mr. Prendergast.

Then Mr. Prendergast praised the rank and file of real lamplighters. "They are the most peaceable lot of men in the world," he declared. "I have been in the lighting business for years, from Frisco to Portland, and I know lighters. Just think now: Do you remember ever reading in the paper where a prisoner's business was reported as that of a lamplighter? No. They don't get into trouble.

"We've got some twenty Inspectors who have worked up from the ranks. They have all been with us eight and ten years. Ninety-five per cent. of our rank and file have been with us for at least five years. Most peaceable and faithful and fine lot of folks—if they are just let alone.

"Some of the city officials seem to think there will be trouble because most of the lamplighters are Italians. I know better. They are as peaceful, I tell you, as doves. Ha, ha, ha, there will not be any trouble, no trouble at all."

Joseph Torrilo, the special organizer of this newest of unions, says that now that the lamplighters have got out they will ask for $8 a month more wages.

The Union's Side.

"But the public will side with us against this grasping monopoly," he said. "The public will demand that its street lamps be lighted, and we are sure that we can win out. The gas and Welsbach companies can't go on sending out men at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to light the lamps. And $30 a month jobs are not so attractive that the companies can get men to take the place of 500 or 600 men who will be on strike by-to-morrow."

Organizer Torrillo, who addreeeed the lamplighters yeeterday morning, said that this new union was but a pioneer of its kind. The first thing anybody knew, the strike would extend to Yonkers, he said, and then from there it would extend all over the United States until every city, however small, should be in darkness or meet their demands.

At yesterday morning's mass meeting all the five boroughs were represented and the audience was enthusiaetic. New men were coming over to the union every minute, said Mr. Torrillo, and before many days victory would perch upon the newmade banner of the organized lamplighters of New York, and, presently, of the United States of America.

Some of the torchbearers, however, were a little less enthusiaetic than Mr. Torrillo. They pointed out that the strike should have been called upon the dark of the moon. Wednesday night the moon was nearly full, and laet night it was altogether full. It wae a bad plan not to get the moon on the side of the organized lamplighters, it wae argued. But generally the new union men are confident that they will win.

General Organizer Robinson of the American Federation of Labor said yesterday afternoon that affidavits had been gathered from men who swore that Welsbach Inspectors had told them that they were being discharged because they were union men. These affidavits would be turned over to a law firm, he eald, and something would be attempted in the courts. What could he done, he could not say. No violence would be attempted, he was sure, and very little turning out of lights and breaking of lamps would be attempted by the organized lamplighters.

Wednesday night there was a good deal of that. There was some last night. Most of the striking lamplighters have the ladders they use in their trade and the sticks with which the gas is turned on and off. The police have been specially instructed to see to it that no lights are turned out at an improper time. But any one who has seen a lighter race from one lamppost to another and turn out the lights knows what chance the ordinary policeman has to catch him.

The prophecy about Yonkers was only too true. Word came from there last night that even on Wednesday night Yonkers lamplighters refused to go out with their torches. Clerks, coal heavers, and others had been pressed into service, however, and the lights were left burning all day yesterday.

Up in Harlem in several sections the new lamplighters' union found allies in crowds of boys who were out looking for fun. The youngsters would climb lamposts, turn out the lights and then run. When policemen saw them sometimes they could catch the boys and sometimes they couldn't. The West 100th Street Station had a few such prieonere.

All the lamps in Manhattan and the Bronx hed not been reached by midnight. There were more lampe lit than on Wednesday night, however, and the Inspectors say they will not be turned out until the etrike is over.

Most of the lights in Central Park, Van Cortlandt Park, and the Bronx Park burn naphtha, and few of them burned last night. They are fed by tanke, and they could not be attended to by the lessened force of lighters, most of whom did not know how to go about the task.

Many of the couplee who sat on the seats in Central Park lest night were esked jokingly by the policemen if they sided with the Lamplighters' Union. They said they did. Only a few of the transveree roads in the Park, which are supplied with electric lights, and the paths and roade were brightened with nothing more than full moon and full hearts.

Michael and Joseph Morrel of 249 Eaat 113th Street were arreeted by Policeman Wahrenburg of the East 126th Street Station last night, charged with interfering with a policeman in the discharge of his duty. Wahrenburg had been detailed to light some of the lamps which had been put out by strikers. At 128th Street and Park Avenue he attempted to relight a lamp when the Morrel Brothers, he declares, pulled him from the ladder. After a struggle he arrested them.

SAYS WE'RE MONEY MAD.

World's In a Wild Race for It, Confederate Daughters Hear.

Confederate flags played an important part in the decorations of the large ballroom of the Hotel Astor yesterdey, where the New York Chapter of ths United Daughters of the Confederacy held their annual luncheon. There were the Stars and Stripes and bars over the speakers' table, and small Confederate flags on the other rables were carried away as souvenirs by the Daughters and their gueets. Deep red roses were the flowers, and there were negro recitations and songs with other music, the Twelfth Regiment Band playing "Annie Laurie" and familiar aire throughout the luncheon.

Different visiting Presidents spoke. Mr. Moore made the principal speech of the afternoon. He thinks people are money mad.

"The whole world is out in a mad race for money," he said, "and manhood and honor, womanhood, and virtue are coined into gold. I read the other day that one woman thought $200,000 was not too much to spend annually for dress. I am glad to say the daughtere of the South don't have to spend as much as that to make themselves look pretty. But whst can you expect of a world where the men spend their time in reading the ticker and the women in reading tho fashion magazines?"

Mr. Moore has not much of an opinion of the average family tree.

"It is good sometimes to sit in its shade," he told the Daughters, "but you get very little fruit from it except an occasional lemon."

Mrs. Parkor told tho society that a monument is to be raised to the Daughters of the Confederacy. It is the idea of Gen. Irving Walker of Charleston, and it is not yet decided where it is to be erected. It will be possible to make casts from it, and any of the original thirteen States desiring to havo a replica can do so if they desire.

WOMEN REPUBLICANS MEET.

Hear from James S. Lemaler on the Enforcement of the Law.

All the Presidents of women's clubs in New York who were not at the Daughters of the Confedracy luncheon yesterday were at the meeting of the West End Woman's Republican Club, which held its last meeting of the season in the college room of the Hotel Astor. Some of the club Presidents went from one gethering to the other.

The Repuolican Club heard James S. Lemaler talk upon the "Enforcement of Laws." It was to have had Mrs. Isaac L. Rice to tell about her campaign against noise, but she was ill and could not come. There was a good musical programme, with the visiting Presidents lined up to receive members and guests. Mr. Lemaier told the club that women did much toward crystallizing and inspiring public sentiment.

Democrats and Republicans were among the guests, and Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, as a good Democrat, told the club about her success some years ago in holding a position as teacher in a school in Ohio with the same salary as a man. The pupils had asked the previous teacher to leave, and assisted him into a snow bank by way of the window.

"The Trustees objected to paying a woman so much," said Mrs. Bates, "but they didn't invite the man in from the snow bank."

"Ohio," said Miss Helen Varick Boswell, speaking a word for the cause, "is a Republican State."

"But it was a Democratic State when Mrs. Bates taught there," said Miss Jennie Pomerine of the College Woman's Club, one of the visiting Presidents.

LABOR MEN ABANDON VISIT TO ROOSEVELT

Central Federated Union Decides His Reply in Moyer Controversy Renders Trip Useless.

MEETINGS OF PROTEST

Resolutions Condemning the President Passed by Various Bodies—Plans for Great Parades.

The committee appointed by the Central Fedcrated Union last Sunday to go to Washington and seek a conference with President Roosevelt to esk him to take back his statement that Moyer, Haywood, and Debs were undesirable citizens, have, it was announced yesterday, decided to abandon the trip.

The members of the committee are highly incensed at the letter of the President to the Chairman of the Moyer-Haywood Conference of Chicago, made public on Wednesday, and it is accepted by the delegates generally as a reply also to the criticisms of the labor unions in this city, especially thoae in the Central Federated Union.

Secretary Bohm of ths Central Federated Union, it was stated, telegraphed twice to Washington to the President asking when it would be convenient for him to meet the labor committee, but could get no satisfaction. When Mr. Roosevelt's letter to the Chairman of the Chicago organization appeared it was considered useless to go to Washington.

The parade and mass meeting arranged by the Moyer-Haywood conference of Manhattan, to take place on May 4, as a protest against the arreet and long imprisonment of Moyer, Heywood, and Pettibone, were arranged before President Roosevelt's allusion to Moyer and Heywood as undesirable citizens was made public. The delegatea said yesterday that it went without saying that at the mess meeting, which would be in Grand Central Palace, President Roosevelt's utterances would be condemned.

The Central Federated Union delegates will march in a body in the parade, as well as the members of the largest of the affiliated unions. The parade will consist of eleven divisions, and the unions taking part in it will represent a membership of 60,000. The movement was started originally by the Socialists, but the unions afterward fell into line.

The speakers at tho mass meeting will be Morris Hillquit, Joseph Wauhope, Benjemin Hanford, Alexander Jones, and Abraham Cahan, representing the Moyer-Haywood Conference, and Morris Brown of Cigarmakers' Union No. 144, representing the Central Federated Union. If possible, Eugene V. Debe also will be present and speak.

Daniel H. Featherson, Secretary of the New York District Council of the Brotherhood of Carpenters, will be Grand Marshal of the parade, the principal unions in which will assemble along First and Second Avenues, from Seventy-third Street to Eighty-sixth Street. About twenty bands of music will be in the line of march.

On the same day the Brooklyn unions will hold a protest parade under the auspices of the Moyer-Haywood conference of Brooklyn, followed by a mass meeting in the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum, at which speeches will be made denouncing the arrest of Moyer, Haywood, and Pettibone, and the attitude of President Roosevelt toward the unions will be condemned.

The Socialist Labor Party of Manhattan will have a parade on May 1 followed by a mass meeting in Cooper Union, at which resolutione will be passed in condemnation of the arrest of the three men and of President Roosevelt's refusal to withdraw his remark about Moyer and Haywood.

District No. 15 of the International Association of Machinists made public yeeterday a resolution passed on behalf of its 15,000 members denouncing the President's action as being "altogether unworthy of the position he occupies, and, indeed, unworthy of any fair-minded man."

The Executive Committee of the Moyer-Haywood Conference passed a resolution on Thureday condemning the President's reply and adding:

"There is nothing extravagant in the prediction that it marks the beginning of the end of that misplaced confidence which has heretfore been reposed in him by large numbers of workingmen."

LOW UPHOLDS ROOSEVELT.

Ex-Mayor Says Republicans Should Support His Railroad Policy.

At a dinner given to Harvey T. Andrews, Republican leader of the Thirty-first Aesembly District, last night at the Harlem Casino, ex-Mayor Seth Low said that in his belief the Republicans should support President Roosevelt in his policy toward the railroads, as they supported Gov. Hughes in his public utilities legislation. To a certain extent, State Senator Alfred R. Page differed with Mr. Low, asserting that the States should have control of the railroads within their own boundaries.

The dinner was given to Mr. Andrews by his fellow workers in the district, and there were about five hundred present, among them Samuel Strasbourger, who conteeted the district with Mr. Andrews at the last primary election. A loving cup was presented to the gueet of the evening, the presentation speech being made by Assemblyman Reese. The toastmaster was William Sherer.

Mr. Low began by asserting that he had believed he was attending the Peace Conference when he saw Mr. Strasbourger and Mr. Andrews sitting down together. He suggested that all matters of dispute between nations hereafter be submitted to the district organization instead of to the Hague Conference. From thie he went on to commend highly Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward the railroads and to say that good Republicans should uphold his hands, as they hed Mr. Hughes'. More power, he said, should be given to the Federal authorities, as matters developed, to supervise Inter-State commerce, and there should be thorough supervision by the Government of the railroads, though not neeessarily absolute control.

To these utterances Mr. Page took exception, to the extent of saying that each individual State had its own issues concerning the railroads, and that it was necessary that the States be left to pass legislation governing these matters. He said that there was a bill now in Albany, presumably the Public Utilities bill, which aimed to give the "silent partner" in all railroads a voice in the management. The silent partner, he went on to say, was the public, which, though it was vitally interested, had heretofore had no voice. With the public given a chanee to make its demands felt, he claimed, the State should be left to manage the railroads within their own boundaries.

Hamilton Fish, another of the speakers, told the guests that it was a mistake to think that Wall Street, as generally undersood, was composed of utterly bad men. Thero were as many good, honorable, upright men there, he said, as there were anywhere elee, and the discovery of this exception simply proved the rule. Wall Street, he said, should not be abused as a whole for the shortcomings of a few of thoee who did business there.

Tho dinner was attended by a great many local politicians, as well as by all the district workers of the Thirtieth. Among those who were present were County Chairman Herbert Parsons, Congressman William S. Bennet, Senator Alfred R. Page, Magistrate LeRoy B. Crane, Seth Low, and Hamilton Fish.

Masked Men Assault Shepherds.

MONTROSE, Col., April 25.—While on their way to the sheep range in this county with a large herd from Frisco, Utah, three herders, Grover Cornell, Peter Swanson, and Al Swanson, were set upon by seven masked men last night at Whitewater, Col., fifty-five miles west of here. Peter Swanson was mortally wounded and his companions bound hand and foot and left helpless on the prairie.

Sources of Distinctiveness in Saks Clothes

Talk Number Three Relative to Precision in Cutting.

The Saks system in cutting drafts each pattern individually and completes each size in itself, even to its most minor parts, including canvas and linings. The result must be positive exactness in each garment.

The Saks method does not permit the Cutter to change trousers or sleeve lengths at his option, or to alter any single dimension. For instance—there is no attempt to stretch a 32-inch trousers pattern into a 34-inch size by simply annexing two inches to the length.

Thus each size in Saks Clothes is individual, and never varies. In all the shifting of styles the dimensions will conform to standard. Your size to-day must be the same to-morrow.

After this manner do we arrive at absolute mathematical precision in each garment. We judge this to be another good reason to justify a preference.

GETTING AROUND THE PURE FOOD LAW

Manufacturers Booming a Meat Preservative Which Evades It, They Say.

INSPECTION BOARD MADE

Dr. Wiley Heads It—Secretary Wilson Found It Impossible to Do All the Work.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 25.—Dr. S. J. Crumbine, Secretary of the State Board of Health announced to-day that he had discovered in use here a preservative for meats, the manufacturers of which, he asserts, are openly defying the State and Federal pure food laws. The preservative is made in the East, and chemical tests show that it contains charcoal and pure sulphur which, when burned, form a sulphur dioxide gas that is absorbed by the meat, and has the same effect as borax. The manufacturers state in their circulars that the preservative makes it possible for butchers to evade the law, contending that the powder itself does not touch the meat.

Secretary Crumbine says he will submit the matter to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry at Washington.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Secretary Wilson created to-day by executive order, the Board of Food and Drug Inspection, whose duty it shall be to administer the National pure food law. The board consists of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, Chairman; Dr. Frederick L. Dunlap, whose commission as associate chemist dates from to-day, and George R. McCabe, Solicitor of the Department of Agriculture.

Secretary Wilson has found it practically impossible to take the required time to go into all the necessary details imposed by the administration of the pure food law. President Roosevelt was consulted, and at once gave hearty assent to the plan of putting the administration of the lawe in the hande of a board. The appointment of Dr. Dunlap was the direct result of correspondence the President has had with Presidents of the larger colleges of the country. Dr. Dunlap leaves an important post in the University of Michigan. He will receive $3,500 a year, the highest that can be paid under the law, and will devote his entire time to the administration of the pure food law.

THIRD TERM? CAN'T STOP IT.

Tale of a Railroad Test of Sentiment Sets Wall Street Chuckling.

A number of the railroads gave prompt denial to a story circulated yeaterday that through their agents they had been sounding the sentiment of the public regarding a third term for President Roosevelt. The story had it that the result of the canvass had been an overwhelming expression of approval of President Roosevelt's policies.

Whatever other effect it may have had, the story amused Wall Street. It told how instructions had been sent to every station agent along the line to sound public opinion on the question of a third Roosevelt term and to report back immediately to headquarters, thus informing the heads of the railroads of the political feeling throughout the country. From the story itself, however, interest was diverted to the statistics compiled in connection with it. These made it out that in the West there were four railroad stations to a mile, hence the railroad managements had a great many agents through whom the feeling regarding Mr. Roosevelt could be learned.

This average of four stations to a mile would give the roade aoross the prairies about as many stations as there are, say, on the Sixth Avenue elevated here. What could not be accomplished in the way of sounding public sentiment by a railroad which had a station agent at every quarter of a milo of its line? Wall Street asked. As it repeated the question to itself the Street began to wonder what it had been doing while the prairies of the West were gathering together a population so dense that it required a railroad station every quarter of a mile.

MEYER'S SUDDEN TRIP.

Postmaster General Gives Up Jamestown Visit to Come Here.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 25.—Postmaster General Meyer will leave here for New York to-morrow, where he will stay until Saturday and then go to Boston. The reason for his sudden trip east could not be ascertained, as Mr. Meyer declined to discuss the matter. The trip is regarded as having significance from the fact that the Postmaster General had made all arrangements to represent his department at the Jamestown Exposition to-morrow, and was to have left this afternoon with the official party and Diplomatic Corps. Instead he deputed First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock to go to Jamestown and officially represent the department.

Postmaster Willcox said last night:

"I do not think there is any especial significanee to be attached to the Postmaster General's coming visit. I saw him a short time ago in Washington and he said he was coming this way in a few daye. Of couree, there are always important matters that can be taken up here and we are only too glad to have the Washington authorities here so that we can bring such matters to their direct attention."

100,000 Immigrants This Month.

Indications are that during this month there will have arrived at this port over 100,000 immigrants. So strong has the tide already set in that a majority of those who arrived yesterday in the steerage of incoming liners will not be landed at Ellis Island until Saturday. There are now waiting in the harbor 10,496 steerage passengers.

CZAR'S REBUKE IS EFFECTIVE IN DUMA

RADICAL MOTION PASSED

Poles Desert Constitutional Democrats—Emperor to Receive Twenty-two Peasant Deputies To-day.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—In the session of the lower house of the Duma to-day M. Golovin, the President, showed that he had taken to heart the Emperor's rebuke at the audience he had of his Majesty yesterday. As a result of the Emperor's expressed displeasure at the Radical harangues in the house, M. Golovin kept a special watch on M. Alexinsky and a dozen times called him to order. M. Alexinsky was specially mentioned by the Emperor as an orator some of whose speeches should not have been allowed.

M. Golovin refused to allow M. Alexinsky to read a letter from M. Purishkevich, Vice President of the Union of True Russians, until he himself had perused it.

J. G. Tzeretell, a Georgian from Kutais, in the name of the Social Democrats submitted to Parliament interpellations concerning the repressive measures adopted by Gen. Dracheffski, Prefect of St. Petersburg, against the professional organizations and the sympathetic strike which began yesterday in a factory at Viborg, a suburb of St. Petersburg. He declared that the latter question required urgent action and demanded it.

The Social Democrats vehemently denounced Gen. Dracheffski, saying that his foolish proceedings were calculated to create an intolerable situation for the workmen, and might cause further sanguinary encounters with the police. The Social Democrats of all sections voted solidly against the Constitutional Democrats and the members of the Right, thus obtaining the adoption of the urgency proposal and finally of the interpellation.

The deciding votes were cast by the Poles, who hitherto had voted consistently with the Constitutional Democrats, but who supported the Radicals solidly in this instance in revenge for the attitude of the Constitutional Democrats on the question of Polish autonomy. This indicates that the Constitutional Democrats are powerless in Parliament without the assistance of the Poles.

M. Alexinsky accused the members of the Right of intriguing to set the police upon the workmen, and quoted a letter from M. Purishkevich to Gen. Dracheffski, urging the stern repression of workmen and intimating that the laxness of the former Prefect, M. von der Launitz, rewarded assassination.

The bill providing for Polish autonomy, introduced in the lower house by the Polish delegation, is encountering opposition from the Constitutional Democrats. An article in the Reob, organ of the Constitutional Democrats, apparently written by the editor of the paper, Prof. Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democratic Party, criticises the project as based on the principle of federation instead of provincial autonomy, and announces that it has no chance of adoption in its present form.

Opposition to the Polish desires had been expected from the Conservatives, but not from the Constitutional Democrats, who, however, found that, though autonomy was a good battle cry against the Government, its realization would not be popular with the Russian masses.

The Emperor will receive to-morrow twenty-two peasant Deputies, belonging to the Right Party and to the Moderates, who will present an address expressing their desire to work in harmony with the Emperor and their hope of a speedy introduction of a system of general education.

Pending the result of the interpellation in the Duma the strikers in most of the factories have resumed work.

Seven Men to Die at Odessa.

ODESSA, April 25.—A military court to-day sentenced to death seven men accused of murdering a family of five persons.

MADRID IN SUSPENSE.

Populace Greatly Excited Over Expected Birth of Heir to Throne.

MADRID, April 25.—Public suspense has reached the highest point, and every unusual noise is mistaken by the excited populace for the booming of a royal salute announcing the birth of an heir to the throne. Crowds follow the carriage of every Minister seen in the vicinity of the Palace, supposing that he has been summoned to see the newly-born child.

The physicians in attendance upon Queen Victoria report that her condition is normal. There was a brilliant concert at the Palace last night. Queen Victoria attended and remained up until 11 o'clock To-day she took her usual morning and afternoon drives and was greeted everywhere by the warm-hearted people with affectionate demonstrations.

All the ancient ceremonies in connection with the birth of a child to the King and Queen have been prepared for. Many holy relics and symbols have arrived at the Palace, including the "Girdle of Tortosa," which dates from the twelfth century, and is supposed to be of particular virtue to women about to become mothers.

ST. LUCIA RIOTERS KILLED.

ST. THOMAS, D. W. I., April 25.—Advices from Cnatries, St. Lucia, say that discontented laborers and porters created serious disturbances on Tuesday, and business was suspended yesterday. In the rioting several persons, including the manager of the Colonial Bank, were injured.

Castries was quiet last night, but there were grave disturbances in the country districts, where conditions are much unsettled. The Riot Act was read at the Roseau factory, where a mob of 2,000 persons was endeavoring to overpower the police. Four rioters were killed, nineteen were wounded, and the others were dispersed. The Riot Act was also read at Castries.

FRENCH MONARCHISTS MEET.

2,000 Persons Engage in a Demonstration at Bordeaux.

BORDEAUX, April 25.—An anti-Dreyfusard meeting attended by 2,000 persons and presided over by the Royalist Count de Lur-Saluces to-night developed into a lively monarchist demonstration. A lantern picture of the Duke of Orleans thrown on a screen was received with cries of "Long live the King!"

A few dissentients were thrown out of the hall. The police arrested one person on the outside who persisted in shouting, "Down with the Republic!"

French Letter Carriers May Strike.

PARIS, April 25.—The Secretaries of the Postmen's and Telegraph Operators' Trades Unions were dismissed this afternoon from the employ of the Government because they signed the recent violent manifesto against Premier Clemenceau. The postmen have called a mass meeting to protest against the Secretaires' dismissal, and it is feared that they may strike out of sympathy for their discharged comrades.

DEFENDED MR. BRYCE.

Secretary of Carnegie Institute Board Cabled to Sir Edward Grey.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Secretary Church of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Institute made public to-day cable messages that passed between him and Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Secretary, following the discussion in the Houses of Commons and Lords last week over the manner of inviting foreign guests to the dedication of the Institute. Mr. Church says:

"After the discussion it was deemed hardly fair from an American standpoint to permit Ambassador Bryce to rest under a stigma of inattention to his duties, and the following cablegram was sent to Sir Edward Grey:

"Will you permit me to explain in a public way or through your press that the invitations to the dedication of Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg were entirely unofficial, and none was sent abroad except to persons of individual achievement. While German guests were kindly suggested by the Emperor, they came to Pittsburg on precisely the same footing as English visitors. We all understand that Mr. Bryce, who has endeared himself as a brother to our people, was absent for unavoidable reasons. England and the other countries sent us the finest group in modern civilization, and our people are grateful to the Motherland for contributing so many of her eminent sons at our celebration.

"Sir Edward Grey replied:

"'Many thanks for your telegram, which I appreciate very much.'"

PALMER ACCUSED OF MURDER.

Ex-Champion Featherweight Charged with Beating a Man to Death.

LONDON, April 25.—"Pedlar" Palmer, the English pugilist, who with another man was arrested yesterday on suspicion of having caused the death of Robert Choat, a gashouse stoker of Deptford, whose body was found in a railroad car coming from Epsom, after the races, was charged at the Croydon Police Court this morning, with murder. After a passenger on the train had testified that he saw Palmer strike the deceased several blows because he refused to stop singing, the prisoner was remanded.

Palmer was formerly featherweight champion of England. He fought a draw with George Dixon in the United States in 1896, beat Plimmer, the English champion, in 1897, in England, came to the United States again in 1899, and was defeated by Terry McGovern in one round for the championship of the world. After Harry Ware had gained a decision over Palmer and Harry Harris had outpointed him, respectively, in 1900 and 1901, in England, Palmer was defeated by Jim Williams in two rounds in London on Jan. 27, 1902.

On Sept. 8, 1902, Palmer met George Dixon before the National Sporting Club in London, and defeated him in a fifteen-round bout. Dixon and Palmer met again in London on June 27, 1903, and the latter won on points in an eight-round match. The next time Dixon and Palmer met, in Newcastle, Nov. 9, 1903, in a twenty-round contest, Dixon won.

Palmer was defeated by Ben Jordan on Dec. 12, 1904, on points, in a fifteen-round contest before the National Sporting Club, London. Since then Palmer has not done anything of importance in the ring.

3,150 PERSONS ON LINER.

The Baltic, on Her Way Here, Had to Leave 200 Passengers Behind.

QUEENSTOWN, April 25.—The White Star liner Baltic, which sailed from here to-day for New York, had on board so many passengers that the record was nearly broken. Every berth was filled and the Baltic had to leave 200 steerage passengers at Queenstown, there being no room for them. In all, the Baltic carries 2,760 passengers, and, with her crew, has on board 3,150 persons.

The emigration from Ireland to the United States continues on a large scale. About 800 passengers boarded the Baltic here, and the Caronia of the Cunard Line, which sailed from here yesterday for New York, was also fully booked.

BIG MISSIONARY GATHERING.

SHANGHAI, April 25.—The opening of the Protestant Missionary Conference today in celebration of the centenary of the landing of Robert Morrison, the English missionary, at Canton, was marked by the assemblage of the largest body of missionaries ever witnessed in the Far East. The missionaries met in the splendid auditorium of the new Chinese Young Men's Christian Association building. About 1,000 missionaries and foreign visitors were present, including the Secretaries or representatives of thirty missionary boards, and ministers and laymen from the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Germany, France, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Australia, Finland, Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines, Siam, India, Korea, Ceylon, and the Malayan Archipelago.

About two thousand persons were present at a reception this evening, when Viceroy Tuan-Fang of Nanking was represented by Taotai Wong, who welcomed the members of the conference and assured them of his friendliness to missionaries.

A feature of the day's proceedings was the opening of the new hall erected in memory of the missionaries and others who lost their lives in the Boxer uprising.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

MADRID, April 25.—The revision in the City Hall here to-day of ballots cast in the recent elections for members of the Chamber of Deputies led to violent disputes between the revisers and the candidates. The crowds outside the building were most disorderly, and attempts were made to break into the Hall. These, however, were frustrated by the police, who charged the crowd and made five arrests. The revision resulted in the return of five Conservatives and three Republicans.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 25.—It is announced that the wedding of the Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, second cousin of Emperor Nicholas and Commander in Chief of the St. Petersburg military district, and Princess Anastasia of Montenegro, divorced wife of the Grand Duke of George of Leuchtenberg, will take place in the Crimea on May 12.

PARIS, April 25.—President Fallieres and Foreign Minister Pichon went to Bourget, near Chambrey, to-day to meet the Dowager Empress of Russia, who is passing through France from Biarritz on her way to Russia. Cordial greetings were exchanged, and the harmonious relations existing between Russia and France were dwelt upon at length.

MADRID, April 25.—The Cabinet has approved the marine budget, which amounts to $10,000,000, an increase of $3,000,000 over the preceding budget. The increase will be continued for eight years. The Minister of Marine explains that his scheme comprises the construction of docks, fortifications, and ports, as well as new warships.

BERLIN, April 25.—Emperor William has ordered that the field guns, gun carriages, and ammunition wagons of the German artillery be painted a dull gray. The change is based upon the experiences of the Russo-Japanese war.

STOCKHOLM, April 25.—The Swedish armored cruiser Fylgia, which is going to Hampton Roads in July, had her maiden trip yesterday, and proved herself to be the fastest cruiser in the Swedish Navy.

ROME, April 25.—The Pope to-day received in private farewell audience Mgr. Sbarretti, the Papal Delegate at Ottawa, who is returning to his post.

HAVRE, April 25.—Paul Doumer, ex-President of the Chamber of Deputies, arrived here to-day from New York on the Savoie. He reports having had a pleasant trip.

ROME, April 25.—It is now reported that the transportation of the body of Pope Leo XIII. from St. Peter's to the Church of St. John Lateran will take place on May 10.

BRUSSELS, April 25.—Minister of the Interior De Troos has not yet succeeded in obtaining the support necessary to enable him to form a Cabinet.

ANARCHIST PLOT TO KILL A PRINCE

Heir to the Belgian Throne Escapes Through an Accident.

MAN HID IN CONFESSIONAL

Church Attendant Found Him—Three Other Armed Anarchists Arrested Later.

BRUSSELS, April 25.—An Anarchist, armed with a dagger, a loaded revolver, and other weapons, was arrested to-day in the Hal Church, near Brussels, which Prince Albert of Belgium, nephew of King Leopold and Heir Presumptive to the throne, was about to visit.

One of the attendants of the church accidentally discovered the man hidden in a confessional box, locked the door, and called the police.

Later three other Anarchists, similarly armed, were arrested in the vicinity of the church. Two of them admitted that they were French Anarchists. The authorities are convinced that the prisoners were engaged in a plot to assassinate the Prince.

The Hal Church, or Church of Our Lady and St. Martin, is celebrated on account of an image of the Virgin in one of the chapels, which is said to work miracles. This image, which is of black wood, is visited by crowds of people, and has received offerings of great value from Kings and Emperors.

Prince Albert is the son of the late Count of Flanders, brother of King Leopold. He was born in 1875, and was married in 1900 to Princess Elizabeth of Bavaria. They have two sons.

HORSE THROWS PRINCE EITEL

Condition of the Kaiser's Second Son Is Said Not to be Serious.

BERLIN, April 25.—Prince Eitel Frederick, Emperor William's second son, fell from his horse in the course of a cavalry drill yesterday afternoon on the Döbritz grounds, near Potsdam.

Alarming reports were spread here this morning regarding his condition. It was alleged that the Prince was suffering from concussion of the brain and that he had also been kicked in the face by his horse. It is learned, however, that these reports were exaggerated and that there is no cause to fear serious results. A message from Potsdam to-day says:

"The Prince's horse took fright upon hearing a bugle signal, suddenly reared up, and threw back its head, striking the Prince in the face and knocking him unconscious from the saddle. When the Prince revived he suffered from a violent headache, which has now abated. He probably will remain in the barracks adjacent to the drill grounds until Saturday, and will then come to Potsdam."

Emperor William's physicians lay emphasis on the statement that the Prince did not suffer concussion of the brain and declare that he will probably be able to perform his duties soon.

GERMANY'S DEAL WITH US.

The Entire Conventional Tariff Is Not Conceded.

COLOGNE, April 25.—An inspired telegram from Berlin regarding the provisional tariff arrangement between Germany and the United States is printed by the Cologne Gazette.

It says that, considering how little the United States was able to offer Germany at the present time, it was impossible for Germany to discuss again the concession of the entire German conventional tariff, but though this was conceded only in parts American interests and wishes were considered to such an extent that an unhindered development in the exchange of goods is expected.

PEACE DELEGATE'S FAREWELL

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant Says Conference Accomplished Much.

Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, member of the French Senate and one of the prominent delegates to the recent Peace Conference, sailed for Havre yesterday morning on the French liner La Provence. He left this message as his parting comment on the conference:

"I feel very happy at the reception I met, and especially at the deep and clever way the American people understand the question of organization for peace. In Europe it is a new question, but here it seems to be taken as a natural course of events. From the children to citizens of all classes the American people, without distinction, rank, or party, display a genuine interest in the peace question.

"The result of tho recent peace conference is not what was voted for, but rather what was accomplished in the way of educating public opinion in favor of the movement."

King of Siam in Naples.

NAPLES, April 25.—The King of Siam arrived here to-day on the specially chartered steamer Sachsen, from Singapore April 2, on a tour of the world. It is expected that he will visit the United States in May, on his way back to Bangkok.

CENTRAL AMERICA CONGRESS.

Republics Will Try Once More to Arrange Permanent Peace.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Details of the treaty of peace between Nicaragua and Salvador, which was signed at Amapala on Tuesday, were received at the State Department to-day in a cablegram from Philip Brown, Chargé of the American Legation at Guatemala.

The treaty is similar to that entered into a year ago and known as the Marblehead treaty. It includes provisions for a general Central American Peace Congress to be held in Nicaragua in the near future, and for a special commercial treaty between Nicaragua and Salvador.

The conference to be held in Nicaragua will be the third of a series of such gatherings of the republics of Central America; all for the same purpose, namely, to conserve the peace of that section of the world. The first was held at Corinto in 1905, and resulted in the adoption of a scheme for the settlement of issues between the little republics which, if it had been adhered to, would have put an end to the frequent wars that have ravaged that section. Within a year friction again developed, and war between two of the republics was prevented only by the intervention of Secretary Root. This took the form of proposals for another conference, which was held on board the Marblehead. The outcome was another agreement, to which four of the republics were parties, to preserve the peace on well-defined principles. Nicaragua did not adhere to that arrangement, taking the ground that it was unnecessary because she had already subscribed to the Corinto convention. In the course of another year trouble again developed, this time between Nicaragua and Honduras, and Salvador was dragged into the war that followed.

SAN SALVADOR, April 25.—A revolutionary plot, headed by Gen. Potenciano Escalon and an American citizen named Georgo Noisant, was discovered on Tuesday at Sonsonate, fifty miles from this city.

Noisant and others implicated were arrested here. Escalon fled, but was later captured. His plan was to surprise the troops at Sonsonate and capture the arms stored there.

PANAMAN ENVOY'S MISSION.

It Is to Help Settle the Trouble Between His Country and Colombia.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—It is learned that the visit to the United States of José Augustin Arango, Special Envoy of Panama, who arrived in New York yesterday, is for the purpose of assisting in the preparation of a treaty between Colombia and Panama, to settle the differences between the two republics resulting from the creation of the Republic of Panama.

These negotiations have been drifting along in Washington and Bogota for more than a year. It is believed that they have not progressed in a degree satisfactory to the principals, and it is hoped that the arrival of Señor Arango will mark a change in the character of the negotiations that will insure their success.

EARTHQUAKES IN CHILE.

Three Strong Shocks Yesterday—No Damage So Far Reported.

VALPARAISO, Chile, April 25.—Three vigorous earthquake shocks were felt here this morning.

No damage has thus far been reported.

ACCOUNTS SHORT $92,000.

Stockholders of Woonsocket Electric Company May Have to Cover It.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., April 25.—A shortage of about $92,000 in the accounts of the Woonsocket Electric Machine and Power Company was revealed to-day by the issuance to the stockholders of the company of a circular letter, announcing that a heavy shortage had been discovered. The letter, which was issued by order of the Directors, further stated that the resignation of Levi Cook Lincoln, Secretary-Treasurer and General Manager of the company, had been accepted.

John J. Heffernan, counsel for the Directors of the company, said to-day:

"I believe the amount of the shortage is about $92,000. Mr. Lincoln has resigned, and has turned over to the company property which, he claims, is worth $40,000."

Recently negotiations have been under way for the sale of the business to the firm of Estabrook & Co., and the circular says that the alleged embezzlement will not interfere with this sale, although the stockholders may be called upon to make good any deficiency.

JUDGE SUSPECTS JURY.

Stops Trial of Two Men Accused of Highway Robbery.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—Judge Marshall Brown to-day, in the Criminal Courts, stopped the trial of Isadore Cutler and Walter Davis, charged with highway robbery, because he suspected some of the jurors had been approached by friends of the defendants.

The officers who are prosecuting the men reported to Judge Brown that they saw friends of the defendants talking to the jurors during the noon recess. The case was immediately postponed until next week, when a new panel of jurors will be summoned.

The District Attorney's office alleges that a well-known politician tampered with the jury. Arrests are expected in the case.

LADY COOPER HERE FOR SMITH FUNERAL

Her Husband, in Charge of Her Brother's Will, Says There Won't Be a Contest.

REFUSES TO TELL TERMS

Beyond Saying His Wife Is a Beneficiary, Sir George Refuses to Discuss the Document.

Among those who arrived late last night on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland from Hamburg were Sir Georgo Alexander Cooper and Lady Cooper. They are here to attend the funeral of Lady Cooper's brother, James Henry Smith, who died in Japan on March 27 while on a honeymoon trip aroud the world. Sir George is said to bring with him the will of Mr. Smith, which was in his care, and he will aid in the settlement of the estate. With them came their young daughter.

The family were in mourning, and Lady Cooper looked as though she had not recovered from the shock of her brother's death. For most of the trip from Quarantine to the pier Lady Cooper sat in her deck chair, apparently not interested in her surroundings. When it got too dark on deck for comfort she joined her husband and daughter in the saloon, and they stayed together until the gangplanks were put out.

Sir George was not inclined to discuss the will of Mr. Smith. He declared, however, in reply to many questions, that the talk of a contest was absurd. So far as he knew, he said, there was not the slightest chance of a contest.

"We have come over," he said, "to attend the funeral of Mr. Smith. When the funeral is held and the will read of course depends on when the body arrives from Japan. I cannot say how long we shall stay in this country."

It was then that Sir George was asked as to the possible chance of the will being contested. He did not appear surprised when told that it had been learned that Mr. Smith had a mother and other relatives living.

"There is nothing very surprising in that," he said. "There was never an attempt to hide the fact that Mr. Smith had relatives."

"Then if Mr. Smith had relatives, and you say there will be no contest of his will, does that imply that all these relatives have been taken care of?"

To this question Sir George would not reply except to say that he could not discuss what was in the will. The document will be read after the funeral, he said, and so far as he knew it would be probated in this city. He was asked whether Lady Cooper, who is Mr. Smith's sister, would receive the greater part of the estate, an amount estimated to be about $70,000,000.

"She will be a beneficiary," was his reply. "She was his sister, you know."

Sir George told of the story that had found its way into print that the settlement of Mr. Smith's estate might be complicated by the birth of an heir. On hearing this just a shadow of a smile crossed the face of the baronet, and he replied: "I know nothing about that."

Sir George and Lady Cooper and their daughter were met by a nephew of Lady Cooper, George Mason of South Dakota; George Eddy, another relative, H. S. Le Roy, the confidential business man of the late James Henry Smith, and others. They went to the Gotham.

James Henry Smith and Lady Cooper were children of George S. Smith of Evanston, Ill., a cousin of George S. Smith, the Chicago real estate owner and railroad promoter who died leaving a fortune of $50,000,000.

LAWYER SLAYS A MAN.

Also Accidentally Wounds Himself and Brother-in-Law.

FRIAR'S POINT, Miss., April 25.—Gerald Fitzgerald, a young lawyer, shot and killed W. F. Opp, the proprietor of a billiard hall here to-day. The young men had had words several days ago, and when they met to-day both drew revolvers.

Fitzgerald shot himself in the right leg, but is not dangerously wounded. He then killed Opp. Another bullet from Fitzgerald's revolver struck his brother-in-law, Ben Booth, in the hand.

FREMONT TRIAL ENDS.

Major's Attorney Denies He Misled Bankers to Get Loans.

The court-martial which has been hearing the charges made against Major Francis P. Fremont, U. S. A., for the non-payment of loans made to him by two Plattsburg, N. Y., banks concluded yeaterday with the summing up of Mr. Loftus, counsel for Major Fremont, and of Capt. Glasgow of the Thirteenth Cavalry, the Judge Advocate, who prosecuted the case for the Government.

Mr. Loftus declared that Major Fremont had never intended trying to avoid payment of the notes he had given the banks. He also denied that the Major had ever told the bankers that he was the owner of certain valuable water front property in the City of San Francisco.

Capt. Glasgow contended that the Government had proved that Major Fremont had claimed a part or full ownership in the property. The bankers, he said, were correct in the interpretation they put on the remarks that Major Fremont is alleged to have made to them when he applied for the various loans.

"Should Major Fremont pay his debts to-day," Capt. Glasgow said, "it would not wipe out the disgrace which attaches to his efforts to evade the payment of his debts, and would only be an excuse for leniency."

The findings of the court-martial will be sent to the Military Secretary of the General Staff, who will forward the findings to the Secretary of War and the President for review.

NEW JERSEY'S DEATHHOUSE.

Executions by Electricity Will Be Held at Trenton.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 25.—Gov. Stokes affixed his signature to-day to the bill of Senator Wakelee making it the duty of the State Prison Inspectors to provide a suitable deathhouse in the State Prison grounds here, to be used in putting murderers to death by electricity.

The decision was fought very hard. Trenton being the State capital, the Legislature said this was the place for such things, and the signature of the Governor makes the will of the Legislature law. Work on the new deathhouse will be commenced at once.

CANADA GETS BUFFALO HERD.

DENVER, Col., April 25.—A message received here announces that the Pablo herd of buffalo on the Flathead reservation, Montana, has been sold to the Canadian Government. The bulls will be removed to Canada about May 1, and the cows and calves will be sent north in July.

There are between 400 and 500 buffaloes in the herd, which is the largest in the world. The price is said to be $150,000.

Head-and-Hand-Tailored Suits for Men

at $20.00, $25.00, and $30.00

A man may mix his colors perfectly and select his brushes with a fine discrimination—would that earn for him a niche in the Hall of Fame as an artist?

Nor do we invite your interest in our summer suits at $20, $25 and $30 because the fabrics are all-wool and thoroughly shrunken, or because the designs are to some degree exclusive, and to the last degree, in good taste.

Such are merely the precautionary measures to insure the result and incidental to the Big Essential—the tailoring of our garments. That is where you will find our main strength—in the head-and-hand tailoring. Were the fabrics but half as good as they are, still would the tailoring more than justify the prices.

Saving Expensive Time

MANY men spend as much time correcting the letters they have written as they do in dictating them. Letters dictated to an Edison Business Phonograph need no proof-reading. Putting them in type-written form is as simple as copying them from a book. No chance for mistakes to creep in—the operator merely writes what she hears.

The Edison Commercial System sees the work through without the supervision of high-priced men. We want permission to prove this, not by testimonials or exhibits, but by actual demonstration in any business house.

AMAZING INCREASE IN BROKEN RAILS

3,014 in First Quarter of 1907 in This State — 826 in Same Period of 1906.

STEEL RAIL MEN ANGRY

Deny Railway Association's Declaration That Most Wrecks Are Due to Defective Products.

ALBANY, April 25.—Broken rails removed from the tracks of the railroads of this State in the first three months of this year were many times more than in the corresponding three months of either of the last two years, according to a bulletin issued to-night by the State Commissioner. "The Board has just completed," says this bulletin, "an investigation of breakage of rails in the tracks of the principal steam railroad companies of the State.

"The unusual number reported during the past Winter," the bulletin says, "caused the investigation at this time. The Board has found that during the three months ending March 31, 1907, there was a total of 3,014 breakages on the principal steam lines of the State; during the corresponding three months of 1906 there was a total of 826, and during the corresponding three months of 1905 there was a total of 1,331.

"The matter in detail has been presented to the American Railway Association, which is now holding its convention in Chicago, and it has been requested that the matter be taken up for discussion and action by the various railroad managers. It is probable that the convention will go into the causes of the greatly increasing number of breakages, and a conference arranged with rail manufacturers with a view to discovering if the alarming number of breakages is due to method of manufacture or metal composition."

Elaborate tables accompanying the bulletin give the figures of rail breakage for the principal railroad systems of the State for the first quarter of each of the last three years:

Railroad.	1905.	1906.	1907.
Delaware & Hudson	69	90	93
Lehigh Valley	125	59	103
Rutland	10	7	20
New York, N. H & Hartford	10	2	29
Boston & Maine	34	7	5
Buffalo, Rochester & Pitts	27	4	256
New York, Ontario & Western	..	24	10
Pennsylvania	149	186	205
Lake Shore	227	34	505
N. Y. Cen. & Hudson River	463	288	1,241
Erie	76	142	429
Del., Lackawanna & Western	153	22	115
Total	1,331	826	3,014

One of the commissions' tables analyzes the totals as to weight of the rails, and appears to show that while the breakage in 1905 and 1906 was chiefly in the eighty-pound rails, the largest number in the quarter just past was in the 100-pound rail, of which 1,205 were removed—495 from the Lake Shore main line, and from the New York Central eastern main line, 475; Mohawk division, 217, and Western main line, 107.

The other table analyzes the figures as to the dates when the removed rails were rolled, and apparently shows the heaviest breakage totals in rails rolled since 1899, and especially in those rolled in 1904, 1905, and 1906.

This table shows also that some rails are in use, especially on branch lines, which were manufactured as long ago as 1872.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—The Carnegie Steel Company of Pittsburg, as well as other independent steel rail interests of this district, have sent to Chicago several experts on rails to show the railroad men there that the statement emanating from the American Railway Association there some days ago, that most of the wrecks of the country were due to defective rails, was not only misleading, but untrue. It is understood that the rail men carried with them from the Pennsylvania Railroad a statement in effect that none of the wrecks on that line within the last six months, so far as could be learned, was due in any way to defective rails.

The understanding in Pittsburg among steel rail men is that the railroads which have long been fighting for the open-hearth rail, but which have been held back by the larger rail interests refusing to embark in their manufacture until the close of 1907, have taken this way of decrying the Bessemer steel rail and forcing the manufacture of the hard or open-hearth rail. The rail mills of the United States Steel Corporation are not yet ready to make this rail, and anger in the Pittsburg district over the attack on steel rails as made at present knows no bounds. The Carnegie Steel Company, which runs the rail department of the United States Steel Corporation, is this year turning out 1,100,000 tons of rails, which are used on the principal railroads of the country, and the statement coming from the American Railway Association is resented particularly here.

President Alva C. Dinkey of the Carnegie Steel Company says regarding the Chicago story:

"The best steel rail that was ever made is being made at the present time. The story from Chicago is absurd. That the best of care is being taken and the best rails turned out in all the mills of the country can be proved to any one who cares to look into it. There was never a time when so small a percentage of wrecks from broken or defective rails was seen as now."

HOBSON AS AGRICULTURIST.

Gets Scientists to Teach His Constituents a Thing or Two.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, one time hero of a little incident for which he was much applauded and affectionately caressed, now descended into a member of the lower house of Congress, declares that he is not willing to be just an ordinary, common Congressman. He proposes now to build up the industries of his district, and to this end will give a series of lessons upon agriculture during the balmy May days.

He needs assistants, though, and he has got assistants. He has come to Washington, carefully scrutinized the collection of once half-starved but now fat and chubby scientists in the Agricultural Department, selected him some four or five biologists, entomologists, agriculturists, bacteriologists, microscopists, foresters, and other kinds of gists and pists and rists and sters, got permission from the Secretary of Agriculture for them to go down and help him, and now he is busy with preparations for them to fill the people of the Sixth Alabama District brimful of all kinds of scientific lore.

Meetings will be held in various parts of the Sixth Alabama, beginning May 5, and the gists, rists, &c., Capt. R. P. in their midst, will hold forth in full and impressive view before the people. The farmers will be told all about how to get rich, how to plant wheat, and how, when, and where and to what extent, and practical demonstrations will be given of how to make one blade of grass grow where two grew before. Incidentally the new and enterprising Congressman will have an opportunity to preach the blessed doctrine of free seed in all its purity and power.

Alfred H. Morris Arraigned.

NEW ORLEANS, April 25.—Alfred Hennen Morris of New York, who was recently indicted by the United States Grand Jury at Mobile, Ala., for alleged violation of the anti-lottery laws, was arraigned before the United States Commissioner here to-day. He waived examination and was released after giving bond for his appearance in the United States Court at Mobile.

TO WITHDRAW FROM TEXAS.

Life Insurance Companies Will Not Do Business Under New Law.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 25.—A number of foreign life insurance companies, including the New York Life, to-day informally notified the State Department of Insurance that they would withdraw from the State when the new reserve investment law went into effect on July 12.

It is stated that every foreign insurance company now doing business in Texas will leave the State on account of this law, which requires them to invest 75 per cent. of their accumulated and future reserve from Texas business in securities of this State. The first investment of 25 per cent. must be made on July 12, when the law becomes effective, and the balance by January next.

The withdrawal of these companies will mean a loss of $200,000 in revenue to the State annually.

HITS FIRE INSURANCE POOL.

Assembly Passes Smith's Measure by 93 to 13.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 25.—The Smith Anti-Fire Insurance Pool bill was passed in the Assembly to-day by 93 to 13. Party lines were lost sight of in the fight. Hoey and Schultz, Democrats, of New York, and Prentice, Republican, of New York, fought the measure. Prentice declared the bill would prevent the fire insurance companies from ever getting together to lower rates. The idea of fire insurance companies combining to lower rates apparently struck the Assembly as a huge joke, from the roar that went up in some parts of the Ghamber.

Hoey thought it a bad bill generally, that the "integrity" might be affected if the companies could not get together to protect the interests of the public. Schultz spoke against the bill from the insurance broker's standpoint.

Smith declared that the measure, even though not yet a law, already had benefited the New York public, because when passed by the Assembly last year, it had prevented the fire insurance companies from going to extreme lengths to recoup their San Francisco losses out of the New York public.

The up-State legislators voted almost unanimously for the bill.

MORE PAY FOR WHITE WINGS.

Bill Passed by Assembly Has Been Before Legislature Five Years.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 25. — Assemblyman Hackett's New York Street Cleaners' bill was passed by the Assembly to-day. The bill provides that the pay of all street cleaners and drivers and stablemen in the Street Cleaning Department shall be $800 a year, on the basis of a forty-eight-hour week, and that they shall be paid for all overtime work.

At present they receive $720 a year and are not allowed compensation for overtime. The bill has been before the Legislature for five years.

HUGHES CONSULTED ROE.

Governor Says Reports That the General Was Ignored Are Unjust.

ALBANY, April 25.—Gov. Hughes this afternoon made the following statement:

"I greatly regret that statements have been made in the public press to the effect that Gen. Roe was ignored or his recommendations overruled in the orders recently issued relating to a detail of a portion of the National Guard.

"In fact, the action finally taken was after conference with Gen. Roe, and was in accordance with his own recommendations as expressed in his letter.

"The published statements to which I have referred are unjust, and it is only fair to say that there was entire harmony as to the conclusion reached, and that there is no friction between Gen. Roe and myself."

WENDEL CASE UP TO-DAY.

Indicted ex-Officer of Militia May Be Sentenced on Misdemeanor Charge.

The case of Louis Wendel, former Captain of the First Battery of the New York National Guard, who is under indictment for grand larceny on two counts in connection with his handling of the funds of the battery, and for the filing of false claims before the Audit Board, will come up before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions to-day. Owing to the presentment to Judge Rosalsky of a recommendation stating that the sentencing of Wendel for a misdemeanor instead of for a felony, in the event of his pleading guilty to the charges, would meet with no opposition from the District Attorney, it has been generally expected that the Wendel case would never come to trial.

It is possible that Wendel may take advantage of this recommendation to-day. The case has been frequently postponed since the indictments were found. In several instances this delay has been occasioned by the desire of Judge Rosalsky to allow time for the military court-martial, before which Wendel was recently tried, to act, before considering the criminal charges against him. Wendel has now been dismissed from the National Guard.

FOR PUBLIC OPINION BILL.

President Eliot Favors Referendum by Demand of Voters.

BOSTON, April 25.—President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University was one of the speakers at a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall to-day for the purpose of advancing the cause of the Public Opinion bill now before the Legislature. The bill provides that if a certain number of voters desire it, a question of public policy may be placed upon the ballot and voted on by the people at the annual State election.

Robert Treat Paine, Jr., presided. President Eliot said he was not prepared to state that the bill as drawn was in the best form, but in principle it was right. He thought that 10,000 signatures should be required instead of 5,000, as provided by the bill, and he also thought that it might be better to limit the number of questions to two instead of four, as the bill provides.

LOVE TEST MET; WINS HIS BRIDE

After Seeing the World Viscount de Romanet Still Loved Mlle. d'Avenel.

FATHER SET CONDITIONS

Viscount d'Avenel Brought Daughter's Suitor to This Country to Test the Strength of His Affection.

Never did a happier pair sail on the same steamship than Mlle. Regina d'Avenel and the Viscount de Romanet, who yesterday departed for France on the steamer La Provence. Side by side they stood at the rail smiling down upon the crowd who were there to see friends off. To the young couple it seemed as though all the world had united to shout its congratulations at them. Somewhere down on the lower deck was the Viscount Georges d'Avenel, the father of the young woman. Their happiness was due to the engagement of Viscount de Romanet and Mlle. d'Avenel.

The young people had known each other for years, and so when some months ago young de Romanet asked the Viscount d'Avenel for the hand of his daughter it was not a surprise. The girl was just 18 and the young man 26.

"I have but two objections to offer," said the father to the suitor. "In the first place, my daughter is too young, and again you have seen nothing of this world, and so cannot be sure that you are in love. Go out and see the women of other lands, learn life, and then, if at the end of that time you are still of the same opinion, I will consent to your engagement."

The Viscount d'Avenel at that time contemplated coming to this country on a lecture tour, so he suggested that his would-be son-in-law come with him and see the world as he had suggested. So it came about that three months ago Viscount d'Avenel, his daughter, and the Viscount de Romanet arrived in New York.

In the time they were on this side the Viscount de Romanet, accompanied by his prospective father-in-law and his future bride, traveled the country from the Pacific to the Atlantic. The wily father of Mlle. d'Avenel gave the young man every opportunity to study American beauty at close range, but he stood firm at every test, and at last declared that he had had enough.

"I have seen the world," he said to the Viscount two days before he sailed for Havre, "and I am satisfied. The women of America are beautiful, but Regina is, to me, far more beautiful. Again I ask your consent to our engagement."

This was too much for fatherly opposition, and so he gave his consent. This is the true reason why Mlle. Regina d'Avenel and the Viscount de Romanet stood side by side at the ship's side smiling down in happy content on the crowd on the pier.

"I am very happy," said the Viscount to a friend. "We are both happy," he added, and they looked it.

Before sailing the Viscount said that their marriage would take place soon after their return to France.

ATTACK FORESTRY MEASURE.

Adirondacks Protective Society Protests Against Merritt-O'Neil Plan.

The Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks entered an earnest protest last night against the Merritt-O'Neil resolution, providing for storage of water for public purposes in the State forest preserves of the Adirondacks. Several speakers pointed out that the proposed amendment to the Constitution, which is championed by Assemblyman Merritt and Senator O'Neil, is actuated solely by selfish ends, and that the two representatives have admitted that they are financially interested in the passage of the resolution.

The meeting last night was held in the American Museum of Natural History, John G. Agar presiding.

S. R. Stoddard of Glen's Falls, N. Y., said:

"The hills are sick with the sins of the lumberman—and we are advised that storage reservoirs will correct the evil. They would cure leprosy by covering the raw spots with becoming plasters. They would kill typhoid by straining the contaminated water through a rag. They would stamp out malaria by extending the borders of the affected parts. In applying their remedy they ask the privilege of making other sores and permission to dig out other bits of healthy flesh "in the construction of dams therefor."

"Who favors the movement?

"The lumberman, the pulp-wood man, the paper-making man, the dynamo man—enthusiastically.

"Who is official spokesman of the combine?

"The Forestry, Water Storage, and Manufacturing Association.

"What does the Forestry, Water Storage, and Manufacturing Association manufacture?

"News.

"Where may the Forestry, Water Storage and Manufacturing Association be found?

"At 30 Broad Street, New York City, where it has been kindly provided with desk room by the International Paper Company.

"Who pays the bills?

IMPORTANT BILLS REPORTED.

Department Investigation Measure Is Out in the Assembly.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 25.—A large number of important bills were reported to-day by the Legislative committees, several of which worked until a late hour last night to clear up their dockets in preparation for the expected assumption of power by the Committee on Rules.

One of the most important bills reported by the Ways and Means Committee is that of Assemblyman Moreland, authorizing the investigation of each State department, board, or commission, at the instance of the Governor, at intervals not exceeding three years.

The Senate Committee on Codes reported the Phillips bill regulating the election expenses of candidates for public office.

One of the most interesting bills reported may have an important bearing upon the next trial of Harry K. Thaw for the killing of Stanford White, is its proposed stringent limitation upon the testimony of expert witnesses. It is the bill of Assemblyman Moreland, which would amend the Code of Criminal Procedure so as to limit the testimony of insanity experts to such persons as actually saw the defendant at the time to which their testimony relates.

The Assembly Codes Committee reported the bill of Senator Page, which would make it punishable for a railroad corporation to employ more than sixteen hours in any twenty-four any employe whose duties have to do with the movement of trains.

RISE IN COTTON TIES.

Steel Trust Makes an Unexpected Advance of 10 Cents a Bundle.

PITTSBURG, April 25.—The cotton tie market was opened to-day by the United States Steel Corporation, and prices were advanced 10 cents a bundle. Last year the price per bundle was 85 cents.

There are 2,500,000 bundles of cotton ties ready for shipment from this city to the South.

The advance, which affects the entire Southern cotton-growing communities, came as a surprise. It is estimated by the Steel Corporation that the cotton crop will be 20 per cent. larger than that of last year.

A swift-moving story, thrilling with interest, bright with "the glory that was Greece." The plot holds the attention without slackening through every scene. The excitement of the Isthmian games, Athens under the cloud of certain hopelessly unequal war, give way to the pageantry of the Persian camp before Thermopylae. Later the scene shifts to the land-locked bay where the little, overmatched but cornered ships of allied Greece fought the navies of the world. Picture follows picture, strong, clear, alive with color and motion. But through it all runs unbroken the thread of tense interest in the fate of Glaucon, winner in the Isthmian games, outlawed as traitor, yet—

BOY PICKS ITALIAN AS HIS KIDNAPPER

Police Think in Di Leonardo They Have Leader of the Black Hand.

CAPTURED AFTER A FIGHT

Six-Year-Old Sammy Saitti Picks Him Out of a Line of Prisoners—Suspected of Other Crimes.

The Italian squad at Detective Headquarters believes it is at last on the trail of a band of kidnappers which for many months has been at work in the Italian district of this city. In the capture yesterday of Ignazio Di Leonardo, a Sicilian, after a fight in the rear of 253 Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn, the detectives say they probably have one of the leaders of the gang. They say they have pinned one kidnapping upon him, and expect in the next few days to identify him with several more abductions of children from Little Italy.

The detectives expect to prove that the prisoner is the author of a number of Black Hand letters which are now in the possession of the Central Office men. They will obtain specimens of Di Leonardo's handwriting and compare them with the Black Hand letters. Through the prisoner and his wife the detectives expect to hit the trail of the other members of the gang. At least one woman is said to be in the band. Several of the kidnappers are believed to be living in Brooklyn.

Di Leonardo was identified yesterday by Sammy Saitti, 6 years old, as the man who kidnapped him last January and held him prisoner three weeks, while Black Hand letters demanding ransom were sent to the boy's father, Antonio Saitti, a prosperous money lender and barber-shop broker of 365 West 125th Street. Di Leonardo was lined up with a score of other prisoners at Police Headquarters yesterday morning. Sammy and his father were called into the room. The child was led by his father down the long row of prisoners, and Sammy was told to pick out the man who had kidnapped him. As he walked down the line the child scanned each face carefully. In front of Di Leonardo he paused and his little brow wrinkled. Suddenly he exclaimed:

"That's the man. He took me away."

Just then Sammy's father held him up, so that he could see the prisoner's face more clearly. The child struck the prisoner in the face and cried:

"There, you naughty man."

Di Leonardo said not a word. He shielded his face with his hand and tried to turn away. Later, in the Harlem Court, he was held in $1,000 bail, while the detectives are continuing their investigations.

Di Leonardo's wife was also taken to Headquarters, and Sammy, after looking at her, said that she was not the woman in whose charge he was given by Di Leonardo shortly after having been kidnapped. The lad's memory is hazy. He does not know where he was taken. He says that he was carried to a room "somewhere downtown," and later took a trip "over the water." This is supposed by the detectives to have been a trip to Brooklyn.

The detectives say that Di Leonardo had made preparations to sail for Sicily in a few days. They say that a purse had been raised for him by other members of the Black Hand gang. They had learned that the police were hot on the trail, and had thought it wise to get Di Leonardo out of the way, say the detectives. All of the gang are believed to be acquaintances of Saitti, the father of Sammy. Mr. Saitti said yesterday that he had known Di Leonardo for many years, knew him, in fact, before they left Sicily.

The capture of Di Leonardo came about through the identification by Sammy Saitti of a photograph. Detective Petrosino and his staff had been at work on the case ever since Sammy disappeared on Jan. 9, although the boy's father asked Petrosino to drop it after Sammy returned.

Petrosino obtained photographs of several hundred Italians whose reputation was not good. These he showed to the Saitti lad.

"That's the man. That is the shoemaker," cried the child when the photograph of Di Leonardo was reached. So Petrosino and his men began the hunt for him. They located him on Hamilton Avenue, Brooklyn. He had formerly lived at 135 Cherry Street, but is said to have disappeared from there about the time the Saitti lad was kidnapped. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning Detectives Archiopoli and Micelli rapped on Di Leonardo's bedroom door.

There was a sound of breaking glass inside the room. Archiopoli forced his way in and found that Di Leonardo had jumped through the window. Micelli rushed into the yard just in time to block the way to an alley in the rear. There was a fight, and Di Leonardo was overpowered. He is 28 years old, and is a shoemaker. He admits knowing the Saitti lad, and said in Harlem Court yesterday that the child came to his house and stayed there for several weeks. He explained that he knew the child's father in Sicily.

"It was just because we were such good friends that the boy came to me," he excitedly told the Magistrate. The prisoner denied that he had kidnapped the child.

Five other Italian children who have been kidnapped recently and afterward mysteriously returned to their parents will be taken to see Di Leonardo to-day on the chance that they may identify him as their kidnapper. The children are Ann Manini of Amity Street, Brooklyn; Tony Morandino of Brooklyn, Joseph Bazzuffi of Sixty-third Street and First Avenue, Manhattan; Willie La Bera of Second Avenue, near Forty-fourth Street, and George Brocato of 39 Stanton Street.

One letter which was sent to the father of Sammy Saitti, and which is now in the detectives' possession, is as follows:

"You must know your son is in our hands, and we want $10,000. The sooner you pay this the better for you. Do not confide with the police, for if you do it will be the worse for you, and the innocent will suffer."

This was written in Italian and bore no signature. Although Mr. Saitti denies that he granted the kidnapper's demands, the detectives think that the money was paid before the child was freed, and that Saitti is afraid to tell all he knows.

Detectives Archiopoli and Micelli of Petrosino's staff last night arrested Granglo Alfio, a saloon keeper, 32 years old, of 18 Hamilton Street, who they say is implicated in the kidnapping of Saitti. The man was locked up at Police Headquarters.

EARLY AMERICAN ART.

Colonial and Later Painters Represented at the Ehrich Galleries.

Ehrich Galleries are holding an exhibition, in the main of portraits, which recall Colonial days and the period just after the Revolution, when the United States had recovered sufficiently from the miseries of the struggle to permit the existence of artists. Curious and a trifle pathetic is the effect of a collection like this, when one comes from galleries filled with work of a later day, produced by artists who have had the advantage of a century of active, strenuous experiments in painting.

Singularly enough, one of the best canvases here is from the brush of a Colonial who made a great place for himself in London by his historical works, obtained its charter for the Royal Academy, and became its second President, and yet for the past half century has had little credit either in England or his native land. This is an early canvas by Benjamin West, containing five portraits of Colonial Britons, who were staying in London at the time. The centre of the group is Ralph Izard of South Carolina, a young man in a red coat, with a cricket bat in his hand. Another is Beckford, a young planter from the Island of Jamaica; a third is Wormeley of Philadelphia, and the two others are young men named Allen. Izard must have footed the bill and included his fellow-cricketers and friends. We see the Thames with the colossally ugly Kew Bridge in the background.

What surprises one is the vigor and expressivsness of the heads, the easy composition, the richness of color—for Benjamin West. It is a youthful work, considerably earlier than 1776, in which we feel the effect on the young painter of that trip to Italy which he was enabled to make through the kindness of a patron. The shape of the bats will interest cricketers.

The exhibition contains portraits of no less than five Presidents, and that suggests the opportunity some municipality might seize to become the owner of them at one swoop, for all these pictures are presumably for sale, none of them being marked in the catalogue as loans. Here are George and Martha Washington, by Gilbert Stuart, and the same couple by Rembrandt Peale, and still other George Washingtons by Charles Wilson Peale, (the elder Peale,) by Jonathan Trumbull, and by Matthew Henry Jowett. James Madison is painted by Gilbert Stuart, and Andrew Jackson—a remarkably fine bust—by Charles Wilson Peale. Martin Van Buren is here from Henry Inman's brush, and Zachary Taylor from that of an unknown. These five would look very well in the City Hall, or at Albany in the Capitol.

Notable figures are Henry Clay, by Rembrandt Peale; De Witt Clinton, (well suited for the De Witt Clinton High School, in Manhattan,) painted by Charles C. Ingham, who died an old man in 1863; Timothy Pickering, a fine head, by Gilbert Stuart; Judge G. Ross and David Clinton Jones, the first Corporation Counsel of New York City, both painted by Thomas Sully; Daniel Webster and John Jay, by artists unknown, and John C. Calhoun and Washington Irving, by two painters working together, viz.: Samuel Waldo and William S. Jewett. From John Wesley Jarvis, the precedessor of Henry Inman as the leading portrait painter in old New York, come likenesses of William Clark, the man who made the venturesome exploring trip with Lewis, and Col. James Burn. There are likenesses of Baron and Baroness von Seeger, by Gilbert Stuart, and Charles Carroll of Carrollton, by Wilson Peale. Chester Harding is another artist of the early half of the last century represented by portraits.

Among the historical pictures is a "Battle of Princeton," by Henry Inman, which consists mostly of Gen. Washington on a prancing steed; a "Death of Wolfe," attributed to Benjamin West, but more likely the work of a pupil; a "De Soto Discovering the Mississippi," painted by Rothermel of Philadelphia, who died at an advanced age in 1895, and a characteristic genre piece by William S. Mount, a tavern scene, with dilapidated dancing reveler, onlookers white and black, and old-fashioned bar, called "The Breakdown."

BANKER MOROSINI INJURED.

Former Business Associate of Jay Gould Falls and Cuts His Head.

Giovanni P. Morosini, the banker and former business associate of Jay Gould, is confined to bed at his country seat in Riverdale by the effects of a fall he had while dressing for dinner at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening. His family physician, Dr. Henry Moffat of 139 Park Avenue, Yonkers, called on the patient twice yesterday, and while he said there was no danger of fatal results, Mr. Morosini was found to be suffering much from shock. It will be at least a fortnight before he can leave his bed.

In the meantime the aged banker is being nursed by his daughter, Miss Giulia Morosini, who has abandoned for the time all her social engagements.

Mr. Morosini had returned from business and was dressing for dinner when he lost his balance, falling heavily backward and striking his head on the sharp corner of a chair.

He cried out as he fell, and the crash of his falling body also was heard by Miss Morosini and his son, Giovanni P. Morosini, Jr., who were awaiting their parent downstairs. They rushed to his aid, and found Mr. Morosini lying on the floor. Blood was flowing freely from a small, incised wound near the base of the skull. He was stunned and was able to render little assistance to his children as they raised him to the bed.

A very detailed rumor that Mr. Morosini had succumbed to a stroke of apoplexy obtained wide credence in Riverdale, Yonkers, and Kingsbridge, and brought many callers to the financier's mansion.

Dr. Moffat assured the inquirers that Mr. Morosini had not been stricken and was doing as well as could be expected considering the nature of his injury, which, he also said, would have been a comparatively slight matter were it not for the advanced age of the sufferer.

STATES AND CONSTITUTION.

Feeling Against Secession Came After War of 1812, Wilson Says.

President Woodrow Wilson lectured at Columbia University yesterday on "The Relation of States and the Federal Government." At the beginning he emphasized the necessity for a proper outlook from which to discuss this question, which, he said, was looming up as though it were to be a party question. "It cannot be properly discussed," he said, "if heated by party feeling, however, and it is best when approaching it in search of truth to dismiss recent controversies from our minds."

Dr. Wilson pointed out how the pressure of political life was constantly exerting a change in the Constitution, which was always being altered according to the views of one party or the other to meet the exigencies of the time, much to the disadvantage of the fundamental document of the United States Government. This was particularly true in times of violent excitemnt, when there was always a tendency to put into the Constitution what was not there. The changes found expression not in actual alterations of the document, but in the ways in which it was interpreted.

Dr. Wilson said that all historians were united in feeling that the Constitution as it was originally conceived was not intended to prevent the secession of the separate States. He said that so far as the newspapers and public documents showed there was no question as to the power of the States to withdraw from the Union prior to the war of 1812. It was this war, with the National spirit that it created, which was responsible for the ideas that have become fixed on this point.

Didn't Separate the Roxburys.

The decision of Supreme Court Justice Dowling on Tuesday in the suit brought by Mrs. Sarah M. Roxbury for a separation from Theodore H. Roxbury, contractor, did not as reported in the newspapers grant a separation decree to Mrs. Roxbury, but overruled a demurrer by the defendant to the aufficiency of his wife's complaint. He must now answer the complaint and pay the costs or submit to a judgment against him.

WITNESS ACTS SIMON SHOOTING

Miss Hale Tells of Shirtwaist Maker's Murder with Dramatic Effect.

DEFENDANT STILL CALM

Mrs. De Massy Unmoved by Accounts of Simon's Identification of Her as His Murderess.

There was only one dramatic moment yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Anisia Louise du Vernon De Massy for the murder of Gustav Simon, the rich Broadway shirtwaist manufacturer, to relieve it from the commonplace police court hearing. It came when Elizabeth Veronica Hale, head designer of waists for the Queen Shirt Waist Company, Mr. Simon's concern, depicted with the eloquence and gestures of an emotional actress the scene in Simon's private office when he accused the Freinchwoman of having shot him.

Miss Hale has large, expressive eyes, and her voice is well modulated and flexible. She used these qualities to good advantage, when, almost rising from the witness chair, her eyes flashing, she flung out her right arm, hand, and forefinger extended toward Mrs. De Massy, and, in a voice which shook with well-feigned passion and terror, repeated the words which, she said, had been Simon's:

"Yes; that is the woman who shot me. Oh, take her away! Take her away!"

Miss Hale's voice rose almost to a shriek as she uttered the accusation, and those in the courtroom looked their surprise at the vehemence and note of personal feeling reflected in the young woman's voice. Later, indeed, Mr. Le Barbier, Mrs. De Massy's counsel, took occasion to ask Miss Hale if she had any animus against his client. Only the little Frenchwoman herself appeared utterly unmoved by Miss Hale's acting. Not by so much as a gesture or a movement of her head did she show that she had even heard the accusing words.

"Did Mrs. De Massy reply?" demanded Mr. Le Barbier.

"She simply smiled and answered, 'I did not shoot him,'" said Miss Hale.

Defendant's Calm Unbroken.

A glance at the little Frenchwoman showed that she was even then smiling, and this smile and a slight shake of her head, as though in denial, were the only evidences that she had heard Miss Hale at all. She was dressed as she had been on the two previous days when she showed her anxiety that her apparel should be correctly described in the newspapers. She removed her short jacket, however, when the warmth of the day made the atmosphere of the courtroom almost oppressive. As she has done on previous days, Mrs. De Massy busied herself with pencil and notebook, in which she was almost constantly writing. But if the defendant herself appeared careless of her own interests, Mr. Le Barbier guarded them for her zealously.

Under his cross-examination, Miss Hale admitted that Simon had used the defendant's name in accusing her of the shooting, and excused herself for not so testifying at first, by stating that she had not been asked the question.

"Have you not an unfriendly feeling toward the defendant by reason of rivalry as designers, or for any other cause?" demanded Mr. Le Barbier. Miss Hale declared that she had not.

From a photograph of Mr. Simon's office, which he exhibited to the jury, Mr. Le Barbier called attention to the fact that two doors, opening in opposite directions effectually cut off a view of the elevator entrance from the office, although Miss Hale had just testified that Mr. Simon from his office had seen Mrs. De Massy as she stepped from the elevator after the shooting. She had been very positive in this statement, explaining to Mr. Le Barbier:

"I know because I saw Mr. Simon looking townrd the elevator."

Mr. Le Barbier was unable to shake her testimony in other respects. He cross-examined at length Miss Theresa Jacobs, another of the employes of the shirtwaist factory. Miss Jacobs had testified that after hearing three shots fired in rapid succession she had run into the office, where she saw Mr. Simon walking up and down the room. At last he took a seat at a desk, and the witness stated that she supported his head. Five minutes later Mrs. De Massy was brought in. Then, Miss Jacobs testified, she heard Mr. Simon speak. Under Mr. Le Barbier's cross-examination, however, Miss Jacobs was unable to say just what Mr. Simon had said. She had heard him speak, but his voice had gurgled and come in a murmur, she admitted.

"I think, however, that I could distinguish what he said," she declared. Miss Jacobs was questioned at length then by Juror 10, who appeared to wish to try the case then and there for himself.

Anna Polanczi, forswoman in the factory, was another witness who declared that she had heard Mr. Simon say:

"Yes, this is the woman—Mme. De Massy shot me."

Events After the Shooting.

"The policeman who brought Mrs. De Massy into the room asked her either if or why she shot Simon, I cannot tell which," said Miss Polanczi, "and Mrs. De Massy declared that she had not shot him. Then the policeman asked her for the revolver, and she said she had none."

Recess was taken when Miss Polanczi had made these statements, and afterward Assistant District Attorney Ely, who is prosecuting the case, offered no objection to Mr. Le Barbier's request that the declaration of Mr. Simon and the conversation between Mrs. De Massy and the policeman be stricken from the record. Justice Blanchard ordered this done.

At the opening of the trial in the morning Miss Rae Forsher was recalled to the stand, but under cross-examination Mr. Le Barbier developed nothing new. Mrs. Anna Mack was also a witness, telling briefly of her visit to Simon's office in search of a position. She denied that she had ever carried a pistol, in response to a question by Mr. Ely.

Each of the witnesses admitted that there had been a crowd of perhaps twenty-five or thirty persons in the office when Mrs. De Massy was brought in, and Mr. Le Barbier was particular to learn just how far each witness had stood from the defendant and from Simon. The trial will be resumed this morning.

READER TRIAL BEGUN.

Husband of Woman Financier Charged with Perjury.

The trial of Althole B. Reader on a charge of perjury because of his testimony before Judge Platt in the United States Circuit Court in December in a suit to recover from J. B. Haggin commissions alleged to be due him on the sale of certain copper mines in Peru amounting to about $250,000, was begun yesterday before Judge Chatfield and a jury in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court. Mr. Reader is the husband of Ella Rawles Reader, the woman financier.

Ex-Assistant United States District Attorney William M. Byrnes of the firm of Marx, Houghton & Byrnes represented Mr. Reader. Francis L. Wellman, ex-Assistant District Attorney, conducted this case for the Government as a special Assistant District Attorney. Mr. Wellman is the general counsel for J. B. Haggin, whom Mr. Reader aued.

Mr. Stimson, United States District Attorney, in his opening said that Mr. Reader had denied on the stand that he had shared in the commissions paid by the sellers of the mines to Juan Garland, a native of Peru, who acted as the representative of the sellers. Continuing, Mr. Stimson said that when letters written by Mr. Reader to Garland, which contained statements directly opposite to those sworn to by Mr. Reader on the witness stand, were introduced, Mr. Reader reluctantly admitted the genuineness of the letters. This constitutes the alleged perjury.

Several stenographers who took the notes of the Reader-Haggin trial were called. Mr. Wellman tried to introduce the letters written by Mr. Reader to Garland. Mr. Byrnes objected to those parts of the letters which referred to personal and family affairs being admitted. These told of Mrs. Reader's fame as a financier and diplomatist, her wonderful "pull" with prominent men in America, and her refusals of marriage with such men as Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Thomas Dewar, the late W. C. Whitney, and others. Only those parts which bore on the perjury charge were admitted.

The case will be continued to-day.

JEROME SUSPENDS A CLERK.

He Gave Away Poker Chips Held as Evidence in Gambling House Raid.

Adolf Sanger, a clerk in the District Attorney's office, has been suspended by District Attorney Jerome pending an investigation. No charge has been preferred against him. His suspension is the result of the disappearance of a bag of poker chips which had been held as evidence since the gambling house raids of a year ago. These chips have since been returned.

The chips were kept in a canvas bag marked C, and stored in a closet in Chief Clerk Henneberry's office. On Monday he noticed that the bag of chips was in its place. On the following day it had disappeared.

An investigation developed the fact, it is stated, that Sanger had taken the chips and given them to a friend, who in turn gave them to another friend. The chips were regained and Sanger suspended. He has been connected with the District Attorney's office since June 1, 1894, and lives at 80 East 111th Street.

Although actually under Mr. Henneberry, Sanger has been assigned to work with Chief Clerk Carroll of General Sessions, and in his office has had charge of the copying of the indictments which have been used by the District Attorney. He has of course had access to the original papers.

It is understood that the present investigation will be a detailed one. There have been frequent rumors about the Criminal Court Building of peculiar happenings, and these will all be investigated at this time.

WOULD HAVE REJECTED ROSS.

Bride-to-Be Ignorant of Situation That Led to Oil City Tragedy.

OIL CITY, Penn., April 25.—The body of Miss M. Belle Stroup, who yesterday shot Thaddeus E. Ross, her former sweetheart, eight hours before the time fixed for Ross's marriage to another woman, was taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Fred Ebret of Coal Hill, this county, today. Ross's body was taken to the home of his parents, next door to the house which he had prepared for himself and bride-to-be, Miss Edith Sampsell.

Mrs. Mary Mable, a sister of Miss Sampsell, recognized in the dead woman a fellow-traveler who rode with her yesterday on the train from Titusville to this city. Mrs. Mable was accompanied by her daughter and together they discussed the coming event. Miss Stroup attracted the attention of the mother and daughter by her evident desire to overhear their conversation, changing her position in the car so as the better to hear them talking.

Miss Sampsell, who was to have been Mrs. Ross, said to-day:

"I did not know Miss Stroup. I was aware Mr. Ross kept company with her before he commenced calling on me, four years ago, but I was under the impression he had stopped, and never dreamed of his corresponding with her. Had Miss Stroup come to me Wednesday, when she arrived in Oil City, or at any time after she first learned of our proposed marriage, and told her story, I should never have consented to marry him. If he had promised to marry this girl she should have been his wife."

Columbia

THIS week our New York branch has one 1907 40-45 horse power Columbia which it can offer for immediate delivery at $4,500. You may not get another chance to secure a Mark XLIX this season for immediate delivery.

ASK our salesmen about the new Columbia multiple-jet carburetor. Through this very clever device, the big car is propelled at the rate of thirty miles an hour on no more gasolene than it takes for a tiny two-passenger runabout. When you come to the hills the same carburetor sends you past every machine you meet.

THERE are two carburetors for two purposes. The little one is to save fuel and enable you to run your engine slowly in the city, and the big one is for speeding and hill climbing. But it is impossible to explain all the features of our Mark XLIX here. You must see it for yourself at our New York branch, No. 134 West Thirty-ninth Street.

DESPITE the increased demand for our light Electric Victoria-Phaeton, which sells for $1,600, our New York house will be able to offer a few more this week for immediate delivery. When these are gone we cannot promise immediate delivery, because the season is now at its height and our agents and branch houses in all parts of the country are calling for "rush shipments."

JUST a few second-hand cars, which we have recently taken in exchange, are offered by the New York branch. There is a Columbia Electric Runabout for $450. Fresh from the painting department and is as good as new. There is also a 24-28 gasolene touring car for $2,200. This is also like new.

Other bargains are a 40-45 horse power gasolene touring car for $1,500 and a 45-horse power gasolene touring car for $2,500.

IF YOU want a 24-28 horse power car which will seat five persons comfortably don't fail to see the Columbia Mark LXVIII. This is another one of our cars which is selling itself. It was one of the hits of the Madison Square Garden show last January and it created such a sensation when we began demonstrating with it the result is our output is already nearly exhausted and in a very short time you will not be able to get one, even at a premium.

OUR 45 h. p. gasolene touring car with direct electric transmission is still attracting a great deal of interest among our most exclusive patrons. In this machine you get in reality a gasolene car which is controlled as easily as a little electric runabout. There is no noisy sliding-gear transmission. It is a charming car for city use, when fitted with a limousine body. Fitted with a touring body it is a fine car for long trips, and so simple that a child can drive it without a lesson.

WE have also for immediate delivery a Columbia Electric Landaulet, done in dark blue, for $4,000.

OUR New York branch, No. 134 West 39th Street, near Broadway, will be pleased to give demonstrations of any of our cars, either new or used. The telephone number is 4090—38th Street.

ACCIDENT BLOCKS SUBWAY FOR HOURS

Car "Split" a Switch at Ninety-sixth Street, and All Trains Were Stopped.

CAME IN THE RUSH HOURS

Thousands Were Kept In Stalled Trains—Delay in Stopping Sale of Tickets Packed the Stations.

Thousands of homeward-bound persons fumed and fretted in the rush hours yesterday afternoon, owing to a block in the Subway, due to an accident at Ninety-sixth Street and Broadway. The accident occurred at 4:20 o'clock. The rear truck of a north-bound Kingsbridge express of eight cars "split a switch" at the Ninety-sixth Street station in switching to the single tracks just north of the curve that goes under Central Park.

The train was thronged with passengers, and the motorman was approaching slowly the curve between Ninety-sixth and Ninety-seventh Streets, over which the expresses switch from the Broadway to the Lenox Avenue line, when suddenly there was a crashing noise, followed immediately by the sudden stopping of the train. Men and women were thrown from their seats and strap hangers were tossed about. Exactly what caused the trouble was not known last night. Mr. Headley, the General Manager of the line, said he would investigate it to-day.

It was hot in the train, and the fifteen minutes following the accident the passengers spent in denouncing the railroad company. Finally the train was backed so that the rear doors of the last car were opposite the platform of the Ninety-sixth Street station. Then the passengers hurried from the train to continue their journey by either the surface or elevated lines.

The block affected the express and local services of the entire system, and in half an hour after the accident one man who came uptown on a local said that he counted sixteen stalled express trains between the Fourteenth and Ninety-sixth Street stations. When the trains did move, it was at a snail's pace, the journey from City Hall to the Grand Central Station requiring from twenty to forty-five minutes. At the Grand Central, where the passengers leave the expresses for the locals to Times Square, there was an interval of over fifteen minutes between local trains.

The stations became congested, and thousands anxious to get home to their dinners had to hide their time in the hot, uncomfortable stations waiting for a chance to get a train. It was some time after the accident before the sale of tickets was stopped by order of Mr. Headley. It was after 7 o'clock before the service was resumed on regular schedule.

After the accident a hurried examination was made at the scene in the hope of ascertaining the cause of the trouble. Contrary to general impression none of the wheels of the wrecked car left the rails. The accident, one of the railroad men said, was probably due to what is known among railroad men as "splitting the switch." The switch did not work properly, and the first truck of a car went on one set of rails and the second on the other. While the wheels did not leave the rails the body of the car was diagonally across the local and express tracks. As soon as possible the wrecking crews got to work, and finally jacked the car back in position, after which the train was sent to the repair yards.

BENSEL IN CONTEMPT.

Dock Commissioner Must Not Oust Murphy Company from Pier.

Dock Commissioner John A. Bensel was adjudged to be in contempt of court yesterday by Supreme Court Justice MacLean, for violating the order of Justice Fitzgerald restraining his predecessor, McDougall Hawkes, from interfering with the New York Contracting Company in their possession of the pier at the foot of Seventy-ninth Street. Justice MacLean declares that the order on Commissioner Bensel's predecessor was binding on him.

The Dock Commissioner may now purge himself of contempt by abandoning all proceedings to oust the New York Contracting Company from the pier.

The whole litigation is generally ascribed to Mayor McClellan's attempt to oust Charles F. Murphy from the leadership of Tammany Hall. Mr. Murphy and his relatives control the New York Contracting Company.

Olney Murder Suspect Coming East.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 25.—Charles Henry Rogers, arrested here two weeks ago, charged with the Olney murders at Middletown, N. Y., in October, 1905, started back to New York to-day in custody of Sheriff Becker and Under Sheriff Hock of Orange county and Chief of Police McCoach of Middletown. Rogers still denies his guilt.

B. R. T. LOSES DAMAGE SUIT.

Company Must Pay Large Sums Under Referee's Decision.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is likely to be compelled to pay several hundred thousand dollars damages to the property owners in Union Street, Brooklyn, unless the higher courts refuse to sustain an opinion filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office, in which ex-Supreme Court Justice Lawrence, as referee, decided that the railroad company must pay Lorenzo Duncan of 885 Union Street $7,333.33.

In his opinion the referee holds that Mr. Duncan, whose property has a twenty-one-foot frontage in Union Street, is the owner in fee to the middle of the thoroughfare, and that the Nassau Electric Railroad Company and the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company had no right to lay rails on his property without his consent. Once the rails were down, ex-Justice Lawrence says, the property owner was entitled to damages for trespass.

Mr. Duncan first began action to recover damages from the railroad company in 1902. About the same time a Mr. Adee, another property owner, began suit to have the railroad company enjoined from running its cars through Union Street. On Jan. 4, 1904, the Court of Appeals denied the application of Mr. Adee and decided that the company could build the line. The Judge who wrote the decision of that court intimated that the Union Street property owners were entitled to damages.

Mr. Duncan then pressed his action, and the case was referred to ex-Justice Lawrence. It is likely that the attorneys for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company will appeal and carry the case to the Court of Appeals if the opinion of the referee is upheld in the lower courts.

TO BE YOUNG, AVOID THE OLD.

Dr. Rich, Aged 97, Advises Members of a Health Culture Club.

Dr. John B. Rich, introduced at a meeting of the Health Culture Club in Tuxedo Hall, Madison Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street, last evening as "the oldest man born in New York now living in New York, being in his ninety-seventh year," said that he owed his age to the observance of the rules with which everybody was familiar, and to the further fact that all his life he had kept away from old people.

"I have never had," he said, "in my whole life a friend among the old. They are too apt to be whiners and grumblers. I would advise anyone who wishes to live to a good old age to cultivate the acquaintance of the young.

"It is a very easy matter to live to a ripe old age. The main trouble with people is that they eat about twice as much as is needed to nourish and sustain life. Also, I have never put into my stomach anything that I knew that it could not digest."

Sol Oppenheimer spoke on the relation of character and conversation to health. The conversation of old people, he said, sometimes concerned itself with approaching death until they had frightened themselves so that they made their condition worse.

"Conversation at the table," he said, "should never concern itself with the poor quality of the food. Whole boarding houses have fled when the wit of the place pretended to draw a hair from the hash, and they have returned to be again disgusted when the things that were in the sausage were mentioned."

WOMEN ATTACK DETECTIVE.

Reeth Arrests Boy for "Hitching" on Street Car and Is Beset by Mob.

State Railway Detective F. Reeth, whose business it is also to look after violations of the law on street cars, saw two boys jump on the side of a north-bound car at Eighth Avenue and 125th Street last night at 8 o'clock to steal a ride. They were on the inside of the track, so that a south-bound car could have knocked them off if it had come along.

Reeth rushed and caught one of the boys; the other was too quick. The prisoner said he was John Crawley of 503 West 163d Street. Crawley seemed to be no more than 12 years old, though he said he was 17. A crowd began to collect at the corner and to threaten the detective if he did not turn the boy loose.

Within a few minutes Reeth was unable to move, being surrounded by a rapidly growing crowd. Most of the agitators were women.

"Oh, turn de kid loose; he didn't do anything," was the demand.

Reeth refused to yield, whereupon women tore his clothes and spat in his face. Finally two young men sided with the women. They later turned out to be Thomas Burke of 2,521 Eighth Avenue and Fred Gavin of 306 West 134th Street.

Detectives Beeman and Brawley of the West 125th Street Station came along, and rescued Reeth and his prisoner and arrested Burke and Gavin.

STOPS SALE OF OLD CHURCH.

Mrs. Mackay Feared Roslyn Edifice Would Be Converted Into a Saloon.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., April 25.—Fearing that the old Trinity Church building might be converted into a saloon, Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay has reconsidered her action in selling the edifice to a village liveryman for $25 and has given it away to James K. Mason, a contracting mason, with the understanding that he demolish it at once and use the material for building purposes.

The old edifice contained material estimated to be worth several thousand dollars. The bell of the old church will go to the Episcopal Church of the Nativity at Mineola, of which the Rev. Norman O. Hutton, rector of the new Trinity Church, had charge before going to Roslyn.

COLLEGE GOLFERS WIN AT LAKEWOOD

LOW SCORE BY HERRESHOFF

Garden City Player Leads Big Field in Qualifying Round—Three Cups for Contestants.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 25.—Fred Herreshoff, the young Garden City golfer, who has been winning prizes during the Winter on the Pinehurst and Hot Springs links, won the cup for the low score to-day in the qualifying round of the Lakewood Country Club's golf tournament. His score for the double round, 36 holes, was 164 strokes, his card of 84 being the best of the morning round, while in the afternoon he played the course in 80 strokes. Next to him, but eight strokes behind, three players were tied at 172, C. West Taintor of the Richmond Country Club, W. T. West of Princeton, and Jasper Lynch of the home club.

The course was in splendid condition and a field of sixty-four golfers started for the three cups, the first set qualifying for the Lakewood trophy. John Miley, one of the organizers of the club, started the contestants, and there was a big gallery around the first tee to witness the opening drives. The Princeton collegians sent up a strong team to meet the Lakewood four, and the college lads won the match by 17 strokes, but they will not be drawn for the match play rounds as they returned to Princeton in automobiles immediately after the contest. The team results were:

The high wind bothered the players considerably and was responsible for the general high character of the scores. C. A. Spofford, an English golfer from the Harger Hill Club qualified with 184 for the chief cup, and Harold A. Sands, who won the Southern Cross cup at Aiken last month, got a place well up in the first set. Those who qualified for the three cups were:

To Investigate A. A. U. Basket Ballers

Thomas J. Nevins, Chairman of the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, is investigating the status of several of the basket ball players who played in the recent metropolitan Amateur Athletic Union basket ball championships who are said to have played professionally in a match between the Fourths and the Metropolitans on Saturday, Nov. 25, 1905. A thorough investigation of the personnel of the two professional teams will be made, and if any are now masquerading as amateurs they will be summarily dealt with.

The following catches of cod and black fish were made yesterday on the steamer Angler off the Farms Banks: C. Tuno, 13 blackfish, 1 cod; St. Gunduson, 14 blackfish, 2 cod; D. Cakill, 7 blackfish, 1 cod; O. Margolies, 15 blackfish, 1 cod; T. Lyons, 16 blackfish, 2 cod; C. Koop, 10 blackfish, 1 cod; L. Schmidt, 9 blackfish, 1 cod; A. Sapnim, 8 blackfish, 2 cod; P. Johnson, 20 blackfish, 1 cod; G. Polka, 11 blackfish, 2 cod; S. Dumper, 17 blackfish, 1 cod; F. Hoops, 15 blackfish, 1 cod; P. Rosenthal, 12 blackfish, 1 cod; C. Brandt, 19 blackfish, 3 cod.

Good fishing is reported at the Coney Island piers. Excellent catches of codfish and some blackfish were made there this week.

W. J. Tinsley of Brooklyn, who has returned from Jamaica Bay, says that the fishing season has opened there, and the coming Summer promises to be a busy one. Mr. Tinsley says that there is a large demand for permits to build clubhouses.

The Lafayette Fishing Club has secured a fine site for a clubhouse on Jamaica Bay, and will build a large house at Broad Channel. The members of the club have made some good catches of flounders there this season.

The steamer Angler will make daily trips to the Fishing Banks on and after April 30. The steamer will leave the Eighteenth Street Pier at 7:15 A. M., and Battery Landing at 8:00. The fishing during the past week has been unusually good, the catches including codfish, blackfish, hake, ling, whiting, and cummers. A number of big lobsters have been caught.

Military Hurdle Race Not Run Over.

Considerable surprise was expressed last night at the review of the Thirteenth Regiment, Brooklyn, when it was announced that the 220-yard hurdle race for the military championship would not be run over again, as had generally been expected. In view of the statements made by the committee on April 9, when the race was originally run, it had been universally believed by military athletes that the results at that time would be declared null and void. In that race Eller of the Seventy-first Regiment was placed first, Bacon of the Twenty-third Regiment second, and Hillman of the Thirteenth Regiment third. C. B. Towle of the Twenty-second Regiment had, because of a misunderstanding, been left out of the original race, and it was on account of his consequent protest that it was decided to re-run the event, and the statements of those in charge at that time and afterward clearly implied that the event would be run over. Last night, however, it was stated that the committee held a meeting on Wednesday night and decided to let the original result stand. No further information was vouchsafed, and the action of the committee, in view of its previous declarations, appeared to those outside of the regiment as decidedly mysterious in character.

Non-Stop Record Run from Boston.

A. M. Robbins, manager of the Aerocar agency in this city, made a new record yesterday for a non-stop run with a car of moderate horse power from Boston to New York.

With George Van Cleve he left Boston in a 20 horse power air-cooled Aerocar at 8:10 o'clock yesterday morning, and arrived at the headquarters in this city, Broadway and Seventy-third Street, shortly before 9 o'clock. The actual running time was 9 hours and 23 minutes. The engine was not stopped on the entire trip, about 250 miles, nor were any repairs or replacements necessary. Mr. Robbins came by way of Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, and Greenwich. The roads, he said, were very fair, with the exception of a short stretch between Hartford and New Haven.

N. Y. A. C. Handicap Billiards.

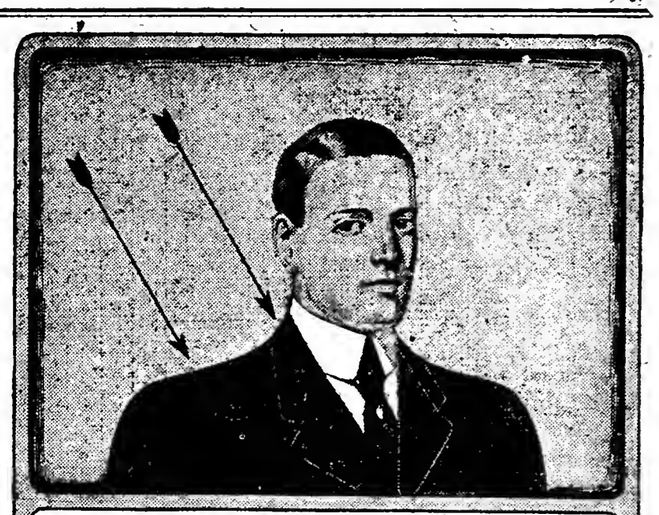
The 14.2 balk-line handicap billiard tournament of the New York Athletic Club was continued last night at the clubhouse, Fifty-ninth Street and Central Park South. Two matches were played, Dr. W. G. Douglas (200) defeating W. M. Leslie, Jr., (115) by the score of 200 to 63, and Dr. F. McCullagh (75) winning from Charles C. Rossier, (100,) by the score of 75 to 85. Dr. Douglas played the best game of the tournament, averaging 5⅝, with high runs of 34, 54, 20, and 24. The schedule to-night will bring together Robert Weld (100) and W. F. Wilson, (50,) and W. H. Flynn (150) and H. H. Man (125.)

Jockey Coke Badly Injured.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 23.—While exercising at the running track here to-day the two-year-old gelding Straw Leaf, owned by Major P. P. Johnston, fell in the stretch and broke its left foreleg. Jockey Will Coke, colored, who rode the horse, fell on his head and shoulders and the horse rolled over him. Coke was badly injured and may die. Straw Leaf was shot.

Horseman Robert Bradley Dies.

RICHMOND, Va., April 25.—Robert Bradley, generally referred to as "Virginia" Bradley, one of the most widely known horsemen in the country, died at his home, Greenway Stock Farm, Charles City County, last night.



Men's Suits & Overcoats at $18

THIS showing goes far beyond the scope of the usual showing of ready-for-wear clothes in point of diversity. Its main strength, however, is not represented by numbers, but by the clever fashioning and tailoring of each individual garment.

The suits at $18 take form in a series of single-breasted models, fashioned of plain and fancy worsteds, cassimeres and blue and black thibets.

The overcoats at $18 involve a series of favored models in all the new tans, grays and blacks, in a diversity of weaves.

REPUBLICAN STATISTICS.

The industrious boomers of the Dingley tariff at Washington have just issued an eagle's scream. We learn that the international commerce of the world now exceeds $26,000,000,000, of which $13,750,000,000 are imports and $12,250,000,000 exports. Of the imports of countries other than the United States, 14 1-3 per cent. are drawn from this country, and of their exports, 9½ per cent. are sent to us. Elaborate percentages are appended showing how considerable a portion of each nation's trade is with this great and happy people.

If we are to admit that the Dingley tariff is the cause of our prosperity, it then becomes a simple matter to make ourselves even more prosperous. If it is the Dingley tariff which causes us to buy and sell so tremendously, then we have only to raise the rates to increase our commerce, just as the railways—as is well known—increase their capitalization whenever they wish to raise their rates upon freight and passenger traffic. It is at once apparent that there is no limit except the sky to the prosperity which the Republicans can enact, and to the extortion which the railways can practice. Considering the facts, what puzzles us is that the railway charges and the railway capitalization are about the lowest in the world, and that the enormous figures of foreign trade cipher out less for each of us, and less in proportion to our total wealth, than for many other nations. The Republicans have a profound conviction in the truth and significance of the figures they publish, or they would not go on publishing them. They are very good Republican figures, but naturally they are less convincing to Democrats.

They are also losing something of their attraction even for the faithful. Here comes, for instance, Mr. WHITMAN, President of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, and a front-row standpatter. He is impious enough to examine the figures which most Republicans are content to admire. Addressing fellow-standpatters at Philadelphia on Thursday, he objected to padding the exports of manufactures with crude materials. It produces such an excess of prosperity—or shall we say such an appearance of excessive prosperity—that "the opponents of protection claim the removal or material reduction of customs duties along the whole line of manufactured goods."

That is a calamity indeed. The increase in the tariff has worked so well that it has made out a case for reducing it, according to one who loves it. But if we reduced the tariff we should import more goods, and we should also export more goods. If the combined result were to make the present set of statistics appear old-fashioned, mere relics of a bygone age, when it was thought good policy to penalize commerce, why not even the Republicans could regret it, although their beautiful tables and percentages would be "scrapped." Their delight in big figures would allay their anguish at everything except the damage done to the home market.

Now the home market, Mr. WHITMAN tells us, is fifteen times the foreign market, and he warns us against destroying the greater in reaching after the less. But how shall we spoil the home market by increasing our exports? Is there any less labor in a watch or a typewriter sold to a consumer abroad at a low price than to a consumer at home at a high price? And if imports are stimulated, does it not imply an increase of labor employed to produce goods to pay for the imports? People who differ from Mr. WHITMAN'S adherents of high prices find another interpretation for his 15-to-1 ratio. In order to keep out one foreign unit the price is raised upon fifteen domestic units. Mr. FRANKLIN PIERCE in his book, "The Tariff and the Trusts," puts the point thus: "The purchasers of $570,000,000 of imports pay into the Treasury of the United States an average duty of 45.24 per cent., while the domestic producer, by reason of the tariff restricting foreign importations, raises the price of like products up to the duty line, and actually sells a considerable proportion of the $20,000,000,000 of domestic products at a price enhanced by the amount of the tariff." In other words, the tariff skims off the cream for the producers, just as Wall Street manipulators are said to skim off the cream from the very lips of the thirsty lambs. It is a long time since the standpatters have "loosened up" as they have lately. What can the portent be?

THE MAYOR'S MAGISTRATES.

In any great city there is hardly a branch of the public service more important than the Magistrates "of first instance" for the trial of criminal cases. But more important than in almost any other great city is the choice of such Magistrates in New York. With our enormous alien population the conviction that what they will get from the courts and, most of all, from the courts with which they are most frequently brought into contact, will be justice is especially necessary. Recorder SMYTH once recommended a man, who was a small politician not of very good fame, for a Magistracy on the ground of the man's essential integrity and also of his varied knowledge of the kinds of suitors or defendants who were likeliest to appear before him. Though much berated at the time for his recommendation, the Recorder always professed his sincere impenitence for having made it, and argued ingeniously if not convincingly that the man he favored would have been the right man in the right place.

However that may be, incorruptibility and disinterestedness are the very first qualities which should be sought and insisted on in the appointment of Magistrates. These involve freedom from any entangling alliances with politicians of "influence." This requirement the Mayor has very conspicuously fulfilled in the appointment of three new City Magistrates to succeed those whose terms are about to expire. The city has suffered terribly in the past by the appointment of Police Justices who were justly suspected of being the "henchmen" of local political bosses. The Mayor has gone for advice to a source from which he had reason to suppose that he could get disinterested advice, namely, to the Corporation Counsel. We may suppose that he has made it a condition that none of the appointees should have any affiliations with local politics which would either affect his judicial impartiality or which might be supposed to affect it. At any rate, he seems to have secured that condition. It appears that he has secured three honest, intelligent, and energetic young lawyers who will have no object except to make good names for themselves by dispensing justice without fear or favor.

LEGISLATION FOR THE PEOPLE.

Time may show that the gentlemen who insist upon the enactment of the Public Utilities bill without amendment are possessed of more zeal than wisdom. For instance, they oppose strenuously any qualification of the Governor's absolute power to remove Commissioners. A moderate ability to picture forth conditions likely or certain to arise under such an act should create some doubt whether under the power of absolute removal the interests of the people would be safeguarded.

Gov. HUGHES may succeed himself or he may be succeeded by a man no less upright and independent than he is, but in the course of events and of politics we shall have Governors of a very different type, Governors intent upon building up a personal machine, upon intrenching themselves in power, upon controlling elections and the succession to the Gubernatorial office. Such a Governor would make no bones of removing all or a majority of the members of both Commissions. He would be accountable to nobody and there would be no check upon his action. He would then appoint Commissioners accountable and obedient to him, men who would stand ready to build up and operate the machine. The public service corporations would be quick to perceive that with Commissioners of that stamp they could make arrangements highly favorable to themselves. They could easily procure or purchase freedom from molestation. A measure like the Public Utilities bill necessarily, inevitably, invites the corporations to go into politics. They would eagerly accept the invitation whenever the character of the Commissions should open the way to profitable trading on a political business basis.

The champions of the people might rave, but they would be impotent. With the unchecked power of removal a scheming Governor could turn the act to his own advantage by putting his workers into the Commissionerships and by making concessions to corporate interests that would purchase their support for himself and his plans, and the dear people would be cheated of the protective benefits of the act. It would appear, therefore, that in the public interest there should be a candid weighing of the merits of the suggestion made by the Merchants' Association and by the City Club, that the power of removal be qualified by providing for a hearing upon charges. That would make even the most reckless Governor a little cautious in his procedure.

The theory that the wisdom of the people's champions sometimes shows itself to be finite is sustained by current experience. Mr. ELSBERG, who is a most valiant champion of the people against the corporations, got a bill passed changing the manner of letting contracts for subway construction and providing that contracts for building and for operation might be separately let. The intent of the bill was to provide not only for municipal ownership but for municipal operation. All the Socialists, semi-Socialists, and professional friends of man approved the measure. It opened the way to municipal trading, but since the Elsberg act went upon the statute books municipal trading has got a black eye—several black eyes. London repudiated it, alarmed at its frightful cost and unsatisfactory results. Chicago has voted against it. In smaller cities the counting of the cost created a general desire to get out of a losing business. The clouds of delusion have been dispelled and men are beginning to see what a sham the thing is. There is no danger that the Elsberg act will commit us to municipal operation, but the mischief it has done is revealed in the fiasco of the new subway letting. Mr. ELSBERG thought it would be a good thing to reduce the term of contract to twenty years, with a provision for renewal that gave a bidder no assurance whatever of fair terms at the expiration of the first contract. The consequence is that the Rapid Transit Commission had no bids to open yesterday. Even had there been no injunction issued the absence of bids would have shown that capitalists and contractors took very little interest in the undertaking. The hands of the city have been tied in such a way that it is not free to make fair offers, and so the satisfaction of an urgent public need is deferred. The people have been cheated by their zealous friends. They will be subject to like deception and injury if the Public Utilities bill is passed as drawn.

THE CZARDOM.

Nothing of better augury for Russia in general, and for what can be preserved of the Czardom in particular, has happended than the report, of course given out by Imperial authority, of the conversation of the Czar with M. GOLOVIN. After these weeks of the second Duma, and after the bombardment of the throne with Reactionary entreaties, backed by the dignitaries of the Orthodox Church, to disperse the Duma, the publication of this report can have but one signification. It is an authentic and authoritative declaration that the Czar means to keep the promises of the October manifesto. It contains also a distinct admonition to go slowly and warily to those who have been bent upon showing themselves more Royalist than the King. He means, he notifies whom it may concern, to get on with the Duma, not to break with the Duma. And this consideration will beget consideration in all that part of the Duma which is neither hopelessly Reactionary nor hopelessly Revolutionary, in all that part of it which prefers peace to strife, which is accessible to reason and not solely to passion. It is a patriotic work on the part of the Czar, as well as a measure of enlightened self-interest.

Naturally, we ascribe this result to the good counsel of M. STOLYPIN. M. STOLYPIN surely seems to have held the confidence of the Czar longer than any one of his predecessors since the troubles of the Czardom were precipitated by the military defeat of Russia. And it also appears that he has gained the confidence of the second Duma much more thoroughly than M. WITTE, his predecessor, managed to do of the first Duma. This may not have been altogether M. WITTE'S fault. It recalls what Gen. GRANT generously said of Gen. MCCLELLAN—"He came too early." Truly, it is a Herculean task to attempt to mediate between the old Russia and the new, and to manage the inevitable modernization by other ways than those of "fire and blood." It will not discredit M. STOLYPIN wholly if he fails; it will make him one of the most shining figures in the history of Russia or of any nation if he succeeds. But it should be evident to him, if he be the man for his place it will be evident to him, that such stories as were told in the Duma on Tuesday of the torture of prisoners must not continue to be told. He promised, it is true, manfully admitting the facts, to prosecute the offenders. But his singular and unaccountable refusal to abandon the "field courts-martial" of political captives must naturally have made the Duma give less full faith and credit than it otherwise would have given to his words. It is really necessary for him, in order to have a fair chance of success in the great work to which he has set himself, that he should break as decisively with the Extreme Right as with the Extreme Left, and that he should aim to build up a following of the men who, like himself, recognize that Russia must be transformed, but who also, with himself, will do what they can to see that the transformation is effected without avoidable violence.

DALY'S THEATRE.

The dismantling of Daly's Theatre recalls pleasant memories, which need not be mournful ones. We have no mind to shed tears over the mutability of human affairs. Nor need we, in recalling the fact that from the early eighties to the early nineties, of the last century, Daly's Theatre was the foremost playhouse in this country, disregard the merits of the theatre managers of this hour of vigorous competition in the theatrical market.

Mr. DALY was, indeed, the forerunner of the present captains of theatrical industry. In his beginning (in 1869) he was jeered at as an innovator and reckless revolutionary by the eminent hasbeens of that moment. He was the first manager to organize a "corner" in actors. He was one of the first to send completely equipped companies of actors "on tour"—almost the first to do that sort of thing properly, with a keen commercial understanding that money courageously invested would make money.

He was an artist among theatre managers, adjusting himself and his ideals, as he developed, to the requirements of his time. He had an eye for the beautiful, and a soul far above buttons and nightly receipts. He collected rare first editions and Angelica Kauffmann screens, accumulated one of the finest private libraries in the world, and learned much as he went along. He knew good plays, when they came his way, and he knew how to produce them properly. He had the dramatic instinct, an eye for color, an ear for harmony, a correct sense of artistic proportion.

Daly's Theatre was the abiding place of good plays well acted by a permanent company, which included many actors of the stature of "stars." For some years, since the manager's death, and the dispersal of most of his estate, the pictures and furniture, and ornaments, kept in their old places in the spacious foyer, have served to make old playgoers feel that the house was still DALY'S. The name will remain in the future, we believe, and it is a good name for theatrical uses, a name with a rich perspective of dramatic associations, like GARRICK, or SIDDONS, or WALLACK.

But the foyer has now been dismantled and the name is but a trademark.

We have said that there is no excuse for shedding tears in this, and, indeed, the great majority of playgoers will not pause to think about the matter. The playgoers of the prime of Daly's Theatre are already old enough to prefer to spend their leisure at home with good books. After all, the theatre is for the young, and youth in this period monopolizes it, makes it successful, multiplies its playhouses and its actors a hundredfold, and supports it royally when it appeals to the ideals of youth, and smartly reflects the whims and fancies of the hour.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"An Important Step of Interest to Women."

What one of our special cable dispatches from Berlin well calls "an important step of wide interest to women"—it might with accuracy have added "and to men"—has been announced by the Prussian Minister of Education. He has discovered, it seems, or somebody has discovered for him—we vehemently suspect a certain Most Eminent Personage, it would be so very much like him—that there are, or ought to be, (which said M. E. P. would consider much the same thing,) two kinds of girls, those who wish to become, as the Minister tactfully puts it, "merely housewives," and the others who have ambitions to be something else, or at least to be something besides.

Therefore it is the Minister's determination, or, rather, his announcement, that hereafter girls of the exclusively housewife inclination shall be educated at lyceums, where they will be taught all that is known—or imagined—about cooking, domestic hygiene and economy, the care of infants, and—well, it is not necessary to go through the whole list as set forth by the Prussian Minister, while the girls in the other class are to go to gymnasiums and study academic subjects, taught in the same manner as in the similar institutions provided for boys. Curiously enough, there is no mention in the dispatch of a like division of the boys, whence must one conclude either that there was an oversight on the part of our correspondent or else that there are no boys—in Germany—who limit their aspirations to a career as "merely househusbands." That, however, is immaterial to our serious consideration of the Prussian Minister's plan, and certainly shall not prevent us from admitting that it is an excellent plan so to educate girls who are to be merely housewives that they shall be good ones.

But it occurs to us, as it evidently hasn't occurred to the zealous Minister, that there is in his otherwise admirable scheme a defect which may be fatal to its permanent success. How, we would very solemnly ask him if we had a chance, how is he going to prevent the male youth of Germany from finding the graduatesses, or graduatrixes, of the gymnasiums more attractive than those of the lyceums; how prevent them from marrying the former and leaving the latter to grow up old maids, despite their vast knowledge of cooking, domestic hygiene and economy, the care of infants, and the other things we leave unenumerated? That is just what the male youth of this country would do, anyhow, and we doubt if those of Germany are much different or wiser. This danger should not be ignored. Still another school must be established to make the Minister's plan really hopeful—a school in which young men can be persuaded that the only girls worth failing in love with are those who after marriage will be "merely housewives."

Eskimos and Explorers.

Dr. GRENFELL, who by his work as a medical and general missionary on the Labrador and thereabout has won fame almost as wide as enviable, offers a new and curious argument against arctic exploration. It is that the explorers are introducing new vices and diseases among the Eskimos, with the result that the latter are rapidly dying off, and are doomed to speedy extermination if the quest of the pole continues.

This is startling news, and hardly to be believed, even on such good authority as that of Dr. GRENFELL. That the Eskimos, like other tribes of their sort, will prove unable to survive prolonged contact with the outer fringe of a higher and more complex civilization is a probability amounting almost to a certainty. This has been seen so often in all parts of the world that it can be taken for granted that all except exceptionally adaptable savages are doomed to extinction from the moment of their discovery by a stronger race with a hunger for their land. That the Eskimos are ethnic weaklings is evidenced plainly enough by the fact that nobody knows how many centuries ago they were driven or fled to the far North, and have since lived in a region that invited no competitors more intelligent than bears and seals.

But it seems dubious that the explorers have done the Eskimos any except very indirect harm. Perhaps not as much can be said for the whalers, but the leaders of arctic expeditions, properly so-called, have always been men, so far as we know, of higher than ordinary character, who kept their crews in better than common discipline, and any intentional or conscious demoralization or injury of the natives by them is almost unthinkable. The explorers have always spoken rather well of the Eskimos, charging them with a tendency toward petty theft, indeed, but describing them as, on the whole, an amiable and useful people. However this may be, the Eskimos will have to take their chances and the search for the pole will not be abandoned for fear their protective isolation may be destroyed. The world is not run that way—yet.

Bridge Problems Unsolved.

Wednesday evening's dangerous exaggeration of the usual crush at the Brooklyn Bridge terminal illustrated two phases of incompetency or carelessness that have been in almost daily evidence there ever since the bridge was opened. The police, instead of preventing the jamming of the platforms by action taken as soon as the derailment occurred, began work only after the crowd had formed, and then, naturally, were almost helpless, while the ticket sellers paid no attention at all to the accident, but continued to sell tickets and add to the trouble, until a policeman, acting on his own good sense, fought his way to the booths and threatened the agents with personal violence if they did not stop.

Surely, at a place where even a minute's interruption of traffic threatens serious disaster and the facilities are constantly strained almost to their breaking point, no giant intellect is required to see that the stream of entering passengers should be stopped the moment the way becomes no thoroughfare. Neither would it require a giant intellect to devise means for doing this. The telephone was invented some years ago, so that police and ticket agents could be instantly notified of any accident to the rolling stock. As it is, the tumultuous heaping up of the living river is the only notification to anybody, apparently, and till then it seems to be taken for granted by everybody in authority that things will always go smoothly.

SEVEN FOR SICILY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We, Sicilians, proud of being such, proud of our native land, indignant, disgusted, and incensed by the vile, libelous, uncalled for and unjustifiable insulting letter published in yesterday's issue of your newspaper against all Sicilians, do hereby, for ourselves and thousands of others, repel said insult and throw it back on the face of its sender, and assert:

1. That the Sicilians have never been bloodthirsty cowards, treacherous thieves, overpowering liars, counterfeiters, or dogs, but on the contrary they have always been, and are, at home and abroad, here and everywhere, the most fearless, generous, chivalrous, faithful, peace-loving, law-abiding people, strong defenders of liberty, fierce enemies of all forms of oppression, public and private.

2. That we do not believe that the letter-insult hereinabove referred to was really signed by any 200, or 50, or 5 Italian women, but that it is the work of the sick, demented mind of an hysterical female without nationality.

3. That if the said letter was really sent to Coroner P. Acritelli, he has grossly erred, and deserves our heartful scorn and despite, for having rendered it public, and in such case we do freely bestow it on him.

And firmly convinced that said letter will not receive the slightest belief or consideration by any sound mind, we thank you for your space, and set hereunto our names, as we are not used to send out anonymous communications, as the wretched writer of said letter.

Wall Street Not Local.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with much interest the editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES of last Monday, the 22d inst., on the subject of the Public Utilities bill.

The thing that is lost sight of is the significance of the term "Wall Street." Wall Street is but the machine which distributes and attends to the detail of buying, selling, and investment for the entire country. What is called "Wall Street" represents as much the investment of the individual in St. Lawrence County or Niagara County as it does to the so-called railroad magnate. The merchant who lives up the State, or in other States, when he has surplus money invests it in the bonds or stock of a railroad or other corporation. If the securities of this corporation are dealt in on the Stock Exchange, then the individual maker of this investment is for the time being an integral part of that which is commonly called Wall Street. That which affects the security or stability of the corporation cannot injure or affect an investment in New York any more than it does the investment up the State or through the country. These investments of persons throughout the country are as purely the business interests of the country as though those same investments had been made in merchandise or real estate. It is a fallacy to think that an attack on Wall Street is not an attack at the same time on investors' wealth throughout the community.

To be Diluted with Understanding.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Peripatetic" has actually witnessed what most of us who read THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS no doubt feared, that should Mr. Huneker's able article on Max Stirner be read by any not sufficiently mature in their mental development it would have just the effect demonstrated by the actions of this particular disciple. Fortunately, "Peripatetic's" aged acquaintance limited his enjoyment of the "Ego and His Own" to open air gambols; let us hope none will go further.

I recall reading in Adrian H. Joline's "Diversions of a Booklover" that whenever he happened to be where he could not get his NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS regularly it left a very distinct void in his literary palate. There are many who feel with me as he does, but I am obliged to admit that articles such as this of Mr. Huneker's and Miss Hawthorne's of two weeks ago must be administered to the immature mind strongly diluted with the proper understanding.

Suggestive Posters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there nothing that can be done to prevent the placing of obscene posters in our city? My indignation and horror rise to the point where words fail me when I think of one I saw this morning as I came from the Twenty-third Street ferry slip of the Lackawanna Railroad. It advertises a tobacco. Is there any wonder that there is a "wave of crime," that the Judges are asking for more courts, when such incentives to vice are before our citizens? It is mere cant to cry "Honi soit qui mal y pense," for that is just what happens—evil does come to the man who thinks evil—but is there no responsibility to be put on the brain that caused the evil thought to come?

A Great Benefactor.

From The London Telegraph.

If people of other countries were asked the name of the Englishman whom they hold in greatest respect that of Lord Lister would rise spontaneously to their lips. This, at least, is literally true, that no man alive has by a single discovery conferred upon the whole of mankind a greater boon than did the surgeon who discovered the antiseptic treatment of wounds.

FAVORS THE POULSON PLAN.

Coler Says Creuzbaur Modifications Would Relieve Bridge Crush.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being very much impressed by the intelligent manner in which you handled the attempt at a test of the so-called Poulson plan of relieving the crush at the bridge in THE TIMES yesterday, I have taken the liberty of asking you to consider further the points in favor of the scheme of operation of cars in the Manhattan terminal of the bridge, for which in its main features we give credit to Mr. Poulson. This plan was studied last June by R. W. Creuzbaur, the consulting engineer of this office, and in October he wrote a report strongly advocating its adoption as the means of not only relieving to a considerable extent the bridge crush, but also of saving the city a very considerable amount of money, which it was proposed to expend upon other relief schemes, involving the practical reconstruction of the entire terminal. I submitted Mr. Creuzbaur's report to the Bridge Commissioner, strongly indorsing it, because I was thoroughly convinced it was a safe and workable scheme of operation. With your views, as expressed in the editorial yesterday, I agree to this extent:

That the switching of trains after entering the terminal, with several stops, involving delays and shortening of the time allowed for loading and unloading, is the main cause of the car-door crush from which the Brooklyn public has been suffering so long.

I believe the proposed extension of the two westerly tracks into City Hall Park is unwise, and that, as I stated in a formal communication to the Bridge Commissioner last October, much better and more effective service can be secured by an adaptation of a four-track stub-end terminal.

You state that the Poulson plan provides for switching trains before they enter the terminal, with only one stop within it, loading and unloading being a single operation, both sides of the trains being used. This is true of the modified plan providing an ample central platform, which I have been urging on the Bridge Department since last October. The manner in which this scheme will work is set forth in the report of Mr. Creuzbaur, from which I quote:

Utilizing the two loading platforms at the same time for the four tracks, and providing in addition a continuous platform for the full width of the terminal for an unbroken stretch of 100 feet or more leading from Park Row. (This platform takes the place of part of the switching space now taken up in the heart of the terminal.)

Assuming, as in tests conducted by Mr. Lewis last Sunday, that there are two main divisions of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit service, which he designated as "A," embracing trains of the Fulton Street and Lexington Avenue lines, and "B," embracing trains of the Bay Ridge, Ulmer Park, Brighton Beach, Culver, and Ridgewood lines, such divisions having been submitted by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company as typical in an hour's run under heaviest traffic, we will, for illustration, say that we are looking at the adopted four-track stub-end terminal to hold four six-car trains, and number the train pockets 1, 2, 3, and 4 toward the Battery. Pocket No. 1 is empty. Commencing operation of terminal the only requirement is that two trains of the "A" division must be followed by two trains of "B" division, or if not so divided at the Brooklyn end of the bridge, the trains must be dispatched in this order: As train A-1 enters Pocket No. 1, train A-2 simultaneously moves by its independent track out of Pocket No. 2, where it has received passengers for at least two and a half minutes, (on a forty-five-second schedule.) This empty Pocket No. 2 is immediately filled by train we may call AA-2, during which movement train B-3 is running on an independent track out of the station, Pocket No. 3 being filled by a B train, while a B train is also leaving Pocket No. 4, being immediately followed by a second entering B train for Pocket No. 4, causing the first crossover and block against an outgoing loaded train. On clearance of block at crossover made by the tail of B train entering Pocket No. 4, the succeeding trains leaving Pockets 1, 2, 3, and 4 have then in succession an unobstructed run to the outbound track, with nothing to prevent the closest operation consistent with the strength of the bridge.

This description is, of course, technical, and from the nature of the case it has to be. If, however, you take a diagram, such as the diagrams that have been published in connection with this matter in The City Record, and in various reports since last October, and a number of matches, moving them in the order given for the movement of the trains by Mr. Creuzbaur, you will be surprised at the simplicity of the scheme and the convincing demonstration of the certainty of its practical operation. The matter is coming up before the Board of Estimate to-morrow morning, and as your paper has taken an interest in it and treated it intelligently, I would be very glad if you could give space to this communication.

Lawmakers and "Political Judges."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Last Saturday you published a news item to the effect that a man who had been convicted three times for robbery and assault was fined in a nominal sum on two charges and sentence suspended on another charge. The same man was found guilty of robbery in the second degree for the fourth time, and on account of his "political" pull was about to be released when the District Attorney interfered, and then the friendly Judge imposed a sentence of two months. You also published another account of a forger who was sentenced to eighteen months in State prison. He appealed the case, but the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court affirmed the sentence. But in spite of this, our forger gets an order for a new trial. The friendly Judge wanted to dispose of it in Chambers on a Saturday, but our alert District Attorney got wind of this and had the case postponed until Monday. Now, is there any wonder if our good law-breakers take heart and break into our houses and steal as much as they like, besides assaulting a great many persons, as long as they know they have powerful political friends who can prevail on machine Judges to act in a very lenient manner when they appear before them? It is about time that the people at large should rise and protest against such judicial indifference, or rather, protection, for criminals.

English Edition of Starke on Alcohol.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES of Tuesday you found occasion to make reference on the editorial page to the recent treatise by Starke on the justification for the use of alcohol, and to certain comments that had been made upon Starke's book by The Medical Record. The writer of your paragraph seems to have had the impression that the review in The Record was based upon the original German version of Starke's book. We should be glad to have it made clear to the readers of THE TIMES that an English version of this book, published under arrangement with the author, is issued by our house in New York and in London, and that the discussion of the subject which is now coming into print is connected, not with the German, but with the American edition. Present-Day Dinner Talk.

Nowadays a dinner party never passes without allusions to clutches, sparking plugs, and the merits of four or six cylinders. Indeed, to be a good conversationist to-day one wants to be as au fait with motoring as one has to about golf or bridge.

WHY A LEGISLATURE?

The Inquiry of a Correspondent Who Resents Executive Interference.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not abolish the Legislature? If laws are to be enacted solely on the say-so of the Governor, there is no reason to continue institutions so expensive as the Senate and Assembly.

The original idea, as I recall it, was that the Governor was the Executive and the Legislature the law-making power. But now we are told that the Governor is and ought to be the sole judge as to what laws we should have. Any private individual who does not agree with him is probably a scoundrel, and any member of the Legislature who presumes to hold an opinion of his own becomes at once a representative of "sinister forces."

Nor does the new order of things stop at taking away the right of the Legislature to legislate. The next thing proposed is to take away the right of the courts to pass upon the justice and constitutionality of laws, (as proposed in the Public Utilities bill,) leaving everything, that is, the interpretation as well as the enactment of laws, in the hands of the Governor or his appointees—whom he may remove at pleasure.

Is not all this symptomatic of the kind of spasms the Nation has had over President Roosevelt? Those who do not share his opinions are a menace to the public, (he has told us so.) It has even gone so far that any one who disagrees with him as to who shall be his successor is a "conspirator." Gov. Hughes has not yet provided what Col. Harvey describes as "the marvelous spectacle of blatant probity yawping from the pinnacle of self-appreciation." But the result, so far as orderly government is concerned, bids fair to be the same in this State as it is in the Nation at large. H. H. PIERCE.

Tariff Extortion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Justice Gaynor says: "Does not Mr. Cleveland think that if the $25,000,000 of freight rate favoritism which the beef monopoly has been and is now receiving from the railroads in various ways, and the similar amounts which other monopolies are receiving in the same way, including the $50,000,000 which one monopoly alone has received in about ten years, in rebates and rate favors were received by the railroads and declared out dividends on railroad stocks that the stockholders, including the widows and orphans, would be better off"? "The notion that the tariff is the mother of monopolies is true in a limited sense if at all."

Will somebody tell us how much money has been taken from the pockets of the people by means of that legalized robbery called the Dingley tariff, and transferred to the coffers of the trusts and other "protected" industries?

If these figures could be correctly given, there would be as much disproportion in size between them and the amount of these railroad rebates, as there is between a cat and an elephant, or an elephant and a mouse.

A Chance for the Inventor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The ingenuity of the American mechanic is remarkable. It needs only the suggestion of a necessary invention to have the want supplied. Here is such a necessity:

If the telephone rings a business man will interrupt a most important conference to learn who wants him and what for. After a talk on the 'phone, more or less protracted, the broken conversation is picked up at a disadvantage. The transaction in hand is disjointed and unsatisfactory.

All this might be obviated by trusting the matter to the discretion of the lady at the "switch." But she is not always discreet.

A device by which on touching a button the correspondent would be informed through a conventional signal that his message would be recorded and considered later might answer the purpose. The record might be made in a private drawer. Such records could be made in the absence of their recipient.

Now let the ingenious inventor go ahead. I make no claim to the suggestion. It may be that an adaptation of the stock telegraph will do.

Americanized Englishman Speaks.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That's a sensible talk of yours on the new British preacher, name of Aked, who seems to think he has come to a heathen country to enlighten our darkness and teach us poor benighted people how to live and do our work.

When an Englishman has been here a few years he becomes a pretty good citizen, and probably Mr. Aked may in time do some very good work, but he must have his eyeteeth cut, and a journey West would harden his feet.

It is just this sort of thing which makes the Englishman so thoroughly and universally disliked, and which makes those of a more sensible and modest mind deplore that their native country should be so grossly misrepresented. And I write as an Americanized Englishman. Thank God we are not all Akeds or Stands!

Corporate Money in Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit a citizen and reader to take exception to the position of your clerical correspondent, the Rev. Mr. Prout, who seeks to justify the action of contributive corporations or companies whose money is held as a sacred trust and who are not empowered to make use of it for the furtherance of any campaign whatever.

To engage in such business is assuming that it has the concurrence of those whose money is involved, and that the proceeding is wholly warranted. Can this be so when at all times there exists a variance of political opinion?

Money appropriated in this manner, for the benefit or advantage of any party interest, is altogether censurable and should be positively prohibited. The expenditure of money for purposes of this character is entirely unavoidable, but its provision should be confined alone to the individual adherents or organizations of each political faith and unobtainable elsewhere.

A German patent covers the employment of egg shells as gas mantles. The two ends of the shell having been removed, it is to be supported by a gas burner, so that it may be heated to incandescence from the inside. Eggs are getting scarcer; and this may throw a little light on the subject.

MISS BOLDT TO WED ALFRED G. MILES

Daughter of the President of the Waldorf Company Will Marry Spanish War Veteran.

MISS G. L. FARGO MARRIES

United to Daniel Chauncey, Jr., in St. Thomas's—New England Women Elect Officers.

The engagement is announced of Miss Clover Boldt, only daughter of George C. Boldt, to Alfred Graham Miles of New York. Mr. Boldt is President of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Company

Mr. Miles is a son of the late William A. Miles of New York. He is a member of the banking firm of Millett, Roe & Hagan of New York and Boston. He is a Cornell graduate. He was a member of Troop A of Cleveland, Ohio, and served through the Spanish-American war as Color Sergeant of the First Ohio Volunteer Cavalry. He is also a member of the Society of Colonial Wars and of the Sons of the Revolution, of the Alpha Delta Phi, and of the Knollwood Club.

Miss Boldt is, like her fiancé, fond of athletic sports and outdoor life generally. She was educated at the Spence School. No date has been set for the wedding.

MISS GRACE L. FARGO WEDS.

Marries Daniel Chauncey, Jr., in St. Thomas's.

Daniel Chauncey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chauncey of Brooklyn, was married to Miss Grace L. Fargo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Fargo, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chancel of St. Thomas's Church, Fifth Avenue and West Fifty-third Street. Bishop Frederick Courtney and the Rev. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church, officiated.

The chancel of the church was decorated with palms and palm trees and Alabama smilax. Apple boughs and blossoms were upon the altar. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, James F. Fargo, wore a gown of white chiffon over white satin, with point lace about the yoke and sleeves. Her tulle veil was fastened with orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley and white orchids.

The bridesmaids were Miss Kate De Forest Prentice, Miss Madeleine Chauncey, a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Olive Schley, and Miss Helen Judson. They wore white chiffon gowns, with Italian filet lace insertions, topped by white straw hats, trimmed with white camellias. They carried white flowers. The maid of honor was Miss Clara Fargo, a sister of the bride, who is not yet out. She was in white organdie, with many insertions and ruffles of valenciennes.

Rene La Montagne, Jr., was best man. The ushers were Sheldon Chauncey, a cousin of the bridegroom; Bernard Prentice, Woodward Babcock, Frederick C. Inman, Stanley Fargo and James C. Fargo, brothers of the bride; Halstead Vanderpoel, and James Pierce.

Following the wedding ceremony a large reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 120 East Thirty-seventh Street. The drawing room, where the reception took place, was decorated with palms, marguerites, apple blossoms, and pink and white roses.

Among those asked to the reception were James C. Fargo, Mrs. George W. King, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Chauncey, Mr. and Mrs. George Chauncey, the Misses Raymond, the Misses Chauncey, Mr. and Mrs. George A. H. Churchill, Mrs. W. C. Fargo, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brokaw, Miss Hardenbergh, Miss Beatrice Carpenter Miss Agnes Edgar, George Hedges, Miss Lucy Inman. John H. Inman, Frederick Inman, Miss Leanore Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. George Legg, and Mr. and Mrs. William T. Sedgwick.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey will travel for a time and afterward they will live in New York.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN MEET.

Officers for Next Year Elected at Delmonico's.

The National Society of New England Women held its annual meeting yesterday at Delmonico's and elected officers for the ensuing year.

Mrs. Charles Gilmore Kerley was elected President, Miss Elizabeth Woodbury Law First Vice President, and Mrs. Thomas A. Fair Second Vice President.

The following were elected to the Board of Managers: Mrs. D. H. Clement, Mrs. H. B. Shute, Mrs. R. H. Greene, Miss Sarah A. Palmer, Mrs. Charles Park Logan, Mrs. George T. Stevens, Mrs. James A. Lehmaire, and Mrs. Theodore F. McDonald.

Mrs. J. Woolsey Shepard, who was formerly President of the society, was elected honorary Chairman of a charitable trust fund, which she herself established. Another fund established by the society is the Barnard Scholarship.

BARKER GUMMERE ENGAGED.

Jersey Political Leader to Wed Mrs. Andrew Simonds.

TRENTON, N. J., April 25.—The engagement of ex-County Clerk Barker Gummere to Mrs. Andrew Simonds of Charleston, S. C., was announced here this evening at a dinner given by Mr. Gummere. Barker Gummere is the son of ex-Clerk in Chancery Barker Gummere, a well-known corporation lawyer in his lifetime. Samuel Gummere, his brother, is United States Minister to Morocco.

Mr. Gummere was formerly a power in Jersey State politics, and held until the last the South Jersey votes as a candidate for United States Senntor when Kean was elected five years ago. Mrs. Simonds comes of an old Southern family prominent socially in Charleston, Atlanta, and New Orleans. They met on the Cannon trip to the Isthmus of Panama. No date has been set for the wedding.

GAUSLER—STEVENS.

Special to The New York Times.

MALDEN, Mass., April 25.—Miss Helen Morette Stevens, the youngest and only unmarried daughter of ex-Mayor and Mrs. Everett J. Stevens of this city, was married to Russell Gausler, a prominent manufacturer, of Philadelphia, last evening. The Rev. H. H. French officiated. The ushers were George C. Dutton of Malden and Paul T. Wise, Wilbur Cook, and Edward Humphries of Philadelphia. The best man was Nathan Schaffer of Philadelphia. The matrons of honor were Mrs. George C. Dutton of Malden and Mrs. Paul T. Wise, of Philadelphia, two sisters of the bride.

LINDHEIM—LEVY.

Norvin Rudolph Lindheim was married to Miss Irma Levy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Levy, last night in Delmonico's. The Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman officiated. Mrs. Milton Bernstein was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Irene Kohn, Miriam Waters, Irma Steinbach, Henrietta Schlisky, and Elsie Engle. Clarence Guggenheim was best man.

The ushers were Arthur Hays, Bernard Kohn, Lester Bernstein, Milton Bernstein, and Allen Bernstein.

A reception and dinner followed the ceremony.

Miss Dryfoos Engaged.

The engagement is announced of Miss Nell Z. Dryfoos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dryfoos of 1,129 Madison Avenue, to Max Magnus.

CUTS DANCER'S AWARD.

Judge Holt Gives Miss Fuller $3,200 for Violation of Her Patent.

A sweeping reduction was made yesterday by Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court in the case of Ida May Fuller against Eugene Tompkins and Edward G. Gilmore, proprietors of the Academy of Music, and Frank McKee, owner of the play "The Ninety-and-Nine." An award of $22,000 made in her favor was reduced by the Court to $3,200.

The suit was brought by Miss Fuller, a sister of Lole Fuller, the dancer of the same name, as the owner of a patent device to imitate fire by means of white silken streamers upon which red lights were thrown. Miss Fuller came to America from France to offer her vaudeville "Fire Dance," but failed to obtain engagements, contending her failure was due to the usurpation of her device by the defendants in their great locomotive-prairie fire scene in "The Ninety-and-Nine" at the Academy. The defendants withdrew the device at once after being sued, but not until it had been in use for sixteen weeks. Miss Fuller asked to be reimbursed for the engaements she had lost, and other tentative damages, including her expenses from Paris. In all, the sum of $22,000 was allowed Miss Fuller by the Master.

Judge Holt in his opinion states that the success of the play did not depend entirely upon the 'nine minute fire scene, and that she was not entitled to participate in the entire profits of the play. She appeared with her dance for one week in Brooklyn, receiving $300, and she testified it cost her $250 a week to produce the act. Allowing $200 a week as a fair royalty, Judge Holt thought $3,200 for the sixteen weeks the defendants used the patent ample.

HAMMERSTEIN AS THEATRE CENSOR

HIS ANSWERS RAISE LAUGH

Oscar Hammerstein, theatre builder and impresario, took the stand yesterday at the hearing of the action brought against the proprietors of the Victoria Theatre to show cause why its license should not be revoked, and his illuminating answers brought many roars of laughter from the auditors.

The hearing took place before the Referee, ex-Justice Lawrence, in his chambers at 135 Broadway yesterday afternoon. Several previous sessions had been held, at which policemen and other witnesses provided by the Federation of Church Clubs testified to certain acts at the theatre on the Sunday nights of Nov. 25 and Dec. 2 last. Yesterday the defense began, Louis J. Vorhaus appearing for the theatre interests. Seymour P. Danzig, Assistant Corporation Counsel, represented the city.

William Hammerstein, son of Oscar, and the present lessee of the Victoria, was sworn first. He said he gave the performers at the Sunday night concerts at the theatre specific directions not to violate the law.

Then his father was sworn. The impresario said he lived at Forty-second Street and Seventh Avenue.

"What is your occupation?" asked Mr. Vorhaus.

"I am a director of grand opera," said Mr. Hammerstein.

He added that he was manager and lessee of the Victoria for many years, and had witnessed both the performances made the basis of the action. In the first one it had been alleged that two performers sang and danced a clog.

"One of the performers sang but they did not dance," said Hammerstein.

"Do you know a clog dance when you see one?" Hammerstein was asked.

"Yes," he answered with a look of surprise. "The dancer wears wooden shoes, to which little cymbals are fastened. Generally he bleckens up. He gives exhibitions of his skill as a dancer of rapidity, using the whole of the stage, end making evolutions from one end to the other."

"Did these performers have clog shoes?"

"No, they had shoes with hard toes. They tapped the toes on the stage floor. It wes not a clog. I should call it a tattoo of the toes."

Asked to describe the dance, Mr. Hammerstein evidently misunderstood the question, for he replied:

"I fear that I nm not as you might say fleet enough upon my feet to give the artistic effect these people produced with their tattoo. It was like a drum.

"But it was not clog dancing. Tbat is no more. It is obsolete from the stage. It is no more these three years."

Mr. Hammerstein made the hit of the afternoon when he wns asked to describe the act of a troop of trained elephants, who have a colored trainer. He was asked if the elephants did certsin acrobatic feats.

"I saw the impresario of the elephants," he said, und then halted as everybody, including the lawyers and the referee, laughed.

"It was the impresario, I think," went on the witness unperturbed, "who brought a pail with what looked like lather, and tied what might be a razor to the trunk of the elephant so that the elephant might shave. I don't think the elephant liked it, for he went away."

"You have seen that act many times before on Sunday night?"

"Yes, and with no objections from the police."

Asked if he knew what a circus act wns, the witness gave this description:

"An act that takes place within an inclosure, in which men, horses, and other animals disport themselves."

Then he went on to reveal some of the inner secrets of the theatre, and to the amusement of his hearers drew the cloak from a vaudeville act which attracted a good deal of attention last Autumn and Winter. It was that of a man who, after performing seemingly impossible physical feats, capped the climax by being run over by an automobile.

"It looked as if he was run over," said Mr. Hammerstein. "To my mind it did not touch him. I understand that he lay quite safely and securely between two boards, which formed a wide flange and protected him."

"You are quite certain?" queried the referee.

"I am more or less certain," said the witness.

"The same man," he continued, "was supposed to lift three men on a bicycle. He certainly did not carry that bicycle. I thought he did at first. But I found the bicycle was suspended from wires. He was, I might say, what you would call a gay deceiver."

When the programme of the second performance was reached the referee called attention to the words, "Grand Sacred Concert," and wnnted to know why they were used.

"The law," said the witness, "evidently required it. It has been an old custom since the law has been in existence. I think there is a law. I remember the title for twenty years; always, yes."

"The word 'sacred' covers many things," said the Assistant Corporation Counsel.

"A multitude of sins, yes," broke in Mr. Hammerstein.

The hearing will be continued on Monday.

FARCE AT THE ASTOR.

"Before and After" Revived with an Excellent Company.

The Astor Theatre's season of farce was inaugurated last night with a revival of "Before and After," the composition of Leo Ditrichstein, who found in Hennequin and Bilhaud's "Le Poudre Descampette" the central motive upon which the complications are founded. The farce was originally presented at the Manhattan Theatre on Dec. 11, 1905. Among the actors then in the cest who do not now appear were Fritz Williams, Thomas A. Wise, and Katherine Florence. The present substitutes are altogether satisfactory.

Mr. Ditrichstein now appears as Dr. Page, the part originally played by Mr. Williams, and his performance is admirable in its expression of exhuberant humor. R. C. Herz, who succeeds to the part of the excitable Frenchman, is admirable, and Miss Julia Taylor plays Mrs. Page very charmingly. Charles Dickson, Belle Daube, and Henry V. Donnelly, other newcomers, are equal to every demand.

The farce throughout is played with much vivacity, and served to amuse a large audience last night. It should prove a popular bill for a few weeke at leaet.

COMEDY BY LOUIS PARKER.

"Mr. George" Scores a Great Success at the Vaudeville, London.

LONDON, April 25.—The brightest and quaintest comedy London has witnessed in many days was produced at the Vaudeville Theatre to-night by Charles Hawtrey. Its title is "Mr. George," and the author is Louis Parker, the American playwright. The scene is laid in Boston at the time of the Revolutionary "Tea Party," which furnishes the background for the last act.

Miss Billie Burke, an American, made her first appearance in legitimate comedy as the heroine. Mr. Hawtrey was the hero. The plot of the comedy is novel and the lince are sparkling. There waa not a dull minute throughout the three acts. Miss Burke proved herself a charming comedienne.

MAY YOHE MAY WED.

Talks Matrimony as a Preliminary to Return to the Stage.

May Yohe, actress, and erstwhile spouse of Lord Francis Hope and Putnam Bradlee Strong, contemplated a third dive into the sea of matrimony last night. At last reports she said the bridegroom-elect was looking for a clergyman who would perform the ceremony. With her was I. Newton Brown of Philadelphia and New York and her Japanese maid, Yoni. Incidentally, and quite extreneously, it should be mentioned that it was reported last night, and not denied by Miss Yohe herself, that she bad just signed a contract to reappear on the stage.

About 10 o'clock last night the telephone wires leading into the newspaper offices were laden with messages to the effect that May Yohe was to be married—again. The Hotel Dunlop in Forty-fourth Street was the place designated. There, in the back dining room, no signs of a dinner or any other meal being apparent, Miss Yohe, Mr. Brown, and the Japanese maid were found. After preliminary remarks Miss Yohe announced that she had known Mr. Brown:

"Since we were children together in Philadelphia—eight years old—and we used to make tents out of our mother's sheets and charge 2 cents admission. We have met each other in between times ever since, and now we are going to be married. We have telephoned for a minister, and he will be here presently. Last night 'Newt' said to me: 'May, we've known each other a long time. Now I am free and you are free. What's the matter with our getting spliced?'"

To all of this Mr. Brown replied:

"Last night I spilled on a step in the Subway and went swimming along the platform. Gee, but my eye is sore! I've just been up in Albany trying to get a bill introduced to appoint ten free chiropodists. The people of Albany have to climb hills all the time and their feet should be attended to by the State. I want to have ten chiropodists appointed at $5,000 each, and when I am through with that I'm going to try and pass a bill to prevent the sele of oranges on the street. It was an orange peel I slipped on last night."

So the conversation went while the trio waited for the minister who did not come. Soon it was announced that the clergyman at the "Little Church Around the Corner" would not perform the ceremony. Miss Yohe wes in despair. Not so Mr. Brown. He telephoned to the Rev. Dr. Henry Marsh Warren, the hotel Chaplain. After that another wait ensued.

Finally Mr. Dunlop, who owns the hotel, said Dr. Warren had telephoned that he could not perform the ceremony.

"Well, I never!" remarked Miss Yohe. "Isn't that too bad? You know Mr. Strong and I were married in Buenos Ayres. He is in Manila. He has not supported me for a year. I've tried to make a settlement with the Strong family, but they told me to go away for a year. After eeven months they said they wished I was dead. What about Jersey?"

A general discussion as to the advisability of going to Jersey as against having an Alderman perform the ceremony followed. In lieu of going to Jersey it was finally proposed that the party go to Churchill's restaurant. Thither they went in a cab, reporters following. At a late hour they were still in the restaurant.

"Nothing doing," said Mr. Brown at this time. "Do you think I'm crazy?"

The Rev. Dr. Warren, when asked if he had been asked to marry Miss Yohe and Mr. Brown, replied that he had received a telephone message from Mr. Dunlop earlier in the evening, but the names of the contracting parties were not mentioned to him and he was simply told that he might be needed later.

MME. DONALDA IN RECITAL.

Canadian Soprano Heard in an Interesting Programme.

As the virtual end to the New York music season, Pauline Donalda, who has appeared this Winter at the Manhattan Opera House, gave a belated song recital in Mendelssohn Hall. Tho Canadian soprano has been heard in many operatic roles, und has sung at Sunday night concerts, but this was the first opportunity for New Yorkers to judge her as the interpreter of an entire programme.

The recital opened with three classic airs—one from "Nozze di Figaro," ono from Glück's "Iphigénie," nnd the third by Haydn. A German group followed, which included "Der Nusshaum," "Du bist die Ruh'," and "Meine Liebe ist grün." Next came a French group, and the programme concluded with four English songs, to which Mme. Donalda added an encore, Tosti's "Serenata."

She proved herself a most interesting singer in this genre, and it is likely that she will give further song recitals in the future with even greater success. As was to have been expected, she was more at home in the French and English songs than in tho German. "Si j'etais jardinier" was so exquisitely done that the audience demanded a repetition, which was granted, end Messenet's "Pleurez Mes Yeux" is an aria well within the singer's best manner. Another attractive number which was sung with the greatest amount of delicacy was Haydn's "My mother bids me bind my hair."

Arthur Rosenstein was at the piano. He is sufficiently forcible, and yet his personality is never obtrusive.

SUIT OVER BONCI SETTLED.

Tenor Pays Hammerstein's Costs, and Now Conried Can Have Him.

The legal difficulties of Oscar Hammerstein and Alessandro Bonci have finally been settled amiebly out of court. Mr. Bonci has agreed to pay all the expenses of the suit so far, and Mr. Hammerstein will drop the contention. Consequently the tenor will be heard next season at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Bonci sails for Europe on April 30 on the steamer Deutschland, and will return in the Fall.

HOMESICK FOR HER SONS.

Schumann-Heink Coming from Nebraska Just to See Them.

Mme. Schumann-Heink telegraphed her manager yesterday:

"I am homesick, and will arrive in New York Friday. I must see my children."

The contralto sang in Lincoln, Neb., night before last, and is taking the long trip back to Singac, N. J., to spend a few hours with her sons. Then she must take a train for Winnipeg, Canada.

BELASCO PLAY FOR CALVERT.

London Manager to Open His New Theatre with "Sweet Kitty Bellairs."

LONDON, April 25.—When Louis Calvert, the London manager, wae in the United Statee recently, it was reported that his object was to solect an American play for the opening of his new theatre in this city. The choice has fallen upon a Belasco play, and contracts have just been signed for "Sweet Kitty Bellairs."

Mr. Calvert offered Mr. Belasco strong inducemente to personally superintend the production of his play. Mr. Belasco had to decline the offer, as the opening of his new Stuyvesant Theatre with a comedy which he is now writing for David Warfield takes place about the same time Mistress Kitty Bellairs will be played in the London production by Miss Eva Moore.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Frances Ring, who is playing the leading feminine role in "The Boys of Company B" at the Lyceum Theatre, is soon to leave that company to join the Western "Man of the Hour" organization, which is to open in Chicago on May 12.

A reception will be given for Rachel Crothers, author of "The Three of Us," on the stage of the Madison Square Theatre on Saturday night at the close of the final New York performance of the season. Miss Crothers will be the guest of the company and of the manager, Walter N. Lawrence.

The boys of Company B, Seventh Regiment, went to see Arnold Daly in "The Boys of Company B" last night at the Lyceum. Mr. Daly interpolated a few references to members of the regiment.

The New York Chapter of the Actors' Church Alliance held a reception at St. Chrysostom's Parish Hall yesterday afternoon. A programme of songs and recitations was given under the direction of Irene Ackerman.

THEATRICAL MERGER NO AMALGAMATION

But the Shuberts and Klaw & Erlanger May Arrange a Vaudeville Deal.

FOR LESSER THEATRES ONLY

Shuberts and Syndicate May Combine in Some Houses—Vaudeville in Others.

The arrival in town last night of George B. Cox, one of the Cincinnati backers of the Shuberts, increased interest in the reports of a possible merger between that firm and Klaw & Erlanger. Yesterday it was admitted also for the first time by persons interested that some negotiations to this end hed been entered into, even if no definite arrangement has been reached.

The facts in the case, briefly told by men who should know, seem to be that Klaw & Erlanger would like some of the Shubert houses for the further extension of their new vaudeville circuit, and that the Shuberts would not be unwilling to discontinue their dramatic and musical productions in some of their less remunerative theatres. A prominent official of the Shubert company, however, while admitting this much, said that the idea of any actual amalgamation of the two interests was out of the question.

"You can take it directly from me," he said, "that the Shuberts are not going to give up any of the ground they have gained, and that there is no chance whatever of their being merged into any other firm so as to lose their identity. In spite of reports to the contrary the firm has made money this year, and will pay a legitimate dividend. Many of the musical offerings which have not been successes in New York have made money on the road, and the profit at the Hippodrome has been very great.

"So far as I understand the situation—and I do not believe that anything would be done without my knowledge—there is no chance that the leading theatres in the big cities will change hands. There are a certain number of smaller cities and towns where the establishment of two rival houses has only served to cut down profits for both managerial firms. It might be possible for both Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts to book their regular attractions in one of these theatres and to devote the other to the Klaw & Erlanger vaudeville purposes. This would relieve the problem of finding suitable attractions for all the houses which the two combines are booking.

"It is not true, however, that Mr. Cox and Mr. Rhinock have been meking plans behind the back of Mr. Shubert. Mr. Cox's statement, as it was probably actually made, does not essentially differ from Mr. Shubert's assertions that nothing has been settled. It all hinges on what one means by 'negotiations.' It is public property that both of the factions interested in the vaudeville war have sent men to the Shuberts to sound the situation. Nothing has yet been settled, and, though it seems to me desirable that some such booking arrangement as I mention should be made, I feel that the chances are against the accomplishment of any practical results at present."

One of the first questions asked by theatrical men on Broadway was the prospective position of Fiske, Belasco, Lawrence and Miller, the independent managers who book through the Shuberts, if such an arrangement as is being discussed is entered into. Mr. Belasco has an interest in several of the most prominent Shubert theatres outside New York, and he is certainly not likely to pool interests with Klaw & Erlanger. In many places Mr. Shubert is understood to be under bond not to compound with the "syndicate." The Lyric Theatre, Philadelphia, where the bond is said to be $100,000, is cited as a specific example. In a similar manner it is said that the "syndicate" has a contract by which it cannot compromise matters with the Shubert theatres. The general feeling among the independent managers seems to be that any merger on a large scale, affecting the large cities and the leading investments, is practically impossible.

Harrison Grey Fiske said yesterday afternoon that he felt perfectly assured of the good faith of Lee Shubert.

"I never discuss my business until I get to it," he said, "if anything extreme should actually occur. I think my line of conduct for the last twelve years is sufficient proof of what I am likely to do in the future. I am not bound to the Shuberts or any other firm. I am absolutely an 'independent' manager in the full sense of the word."

Walter Lawrence, after going over the situation, said that he was not in the least disturbed by the prospect of a new arrengement, as he considered any complete merger doing away with the separate identity of the Shuberts out of all belief. When the matter of making some arrangement for booking Klaw & Erlanger vaudeville in some of the out-of-town theatres was suggested, he replied that such an idea was preposterous.

"I have never taken active part in the struggle," said Mr. Lawrence. "I have more offers of time than I know what to do with. When I could not get the time I wanted from the syndicate and got it from the Shuberts, I booked through them, and have since continued to do so. No great merger can be in prospect, for the Shuberts are making out my bookings for next season at present."

Mr. Albee, representing the Keith & Proctor-Hammerstein & Williams vaudeville combine said that the United Booking Office was not at all interested in the matter. "I deny that we have made any advances to the Shuberts or have had any intention of so doing," he said. "All we have to do is to mind our own business and give the public the kind of shows it likes."

Lee Shubert professed last night not to know that Mr. Cox had arrived in New York, and said that if any negotiations had been opened the action had been taken by the Western men in the firm. Joseph Rhinock, who was with Mr. Shubert, refused to talk. Mr. Cox also would not be interviewed.

DENNIS KEARNEY DEAD.

He Headed the "Sand Lot" Agitation Against the Chinese.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25.—Dennis Kearney, who in the late seventies headed the Sand Lot agitntion against the Chinese in this State, died last night at his home in Alameda. Kearney at one time had a large following in this city, the political affairs of which he dominated for a period. Of late years he had not taken any active part in politics.

Dennis Kearney was born in Oakmount, County Cork, Ireland. In early life he set out on a senfaring career, and came to New York when 11 years old. Even then he was a good sailor. At 19 he was Captain of one of the largest foreign trading vessels.

In 1868 he nrrived in San Francisco as the officer of a large ship, and after living there seven years, became active in the anti-Chinese movement. After delivering an address on this movement in 1877, a party known as the Workingman's Party was formed, and Kearney was elected its President.

The meetings of the new party were held in a vacant lot in San Francisco known as "Sand Lot," on Sundays. Here Kearney appeared in front of his audience in a workingmann's garb, usually with uprolled sleeves, and, after delivering an address, would dismiss his followers.

In 1881 a conspiracy was formed against Kearney by one of his lieutenants, nnd at the next convention he was dethroned from the Presidency of the organization. This did not stop him, however, for at the next "Sand Lot" meeting he appeared again, and while attempting to make himself heard was almost killed.

Losing in the West he returned to the East for the second time. In an address before a large audience in Cooper Union in 1887 he bitterly denounced the Chinese. He addressed the House Committee on Foreign Affairs in 1888 to prohibit immigration of the Chinese, stating that the Chinese had acquired the pioneer district of San Francisco, and that our people were being ignored.

Not being successful in the East, he denounced several members on the committee and gave up his work.

JERSEY WAR SENATOR DIES.

Dr. Leaming Badly Burned—Daughter, Who Tried to Save Him, Also Dead.

CAPE MAY, N. J., April 25.—Dr. Jonathan F. Leaming, aged eighty-five years, well known throughout the State, died to-day of burns he sustained in a fire which damaged his home here on Monday. His daughter, Helen F. Leaming, who was badly burned in trying to save the old man from the flames, died on Tuesday night. Miss Elizabeth D. Shreve of Bordentown, N. J., who also went to the rescue, was seriously burned.

Dr. Leaming was the last of the war State Senators of New Jersey. He served in the New Jersey Senate from 1862 to 1865, and again from 1877 to 1880. In the intervening period he served a term in the lower house of the Assembly. He leaves one son, Vice Chancellor Edmund B. Leaming of New Jersey.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Sarah F. Buckelow.

Sarah F. Buckelow, for forty years Principal of the primary department of Public School 49, East Thirty-seventh Street, Manhattan, died on Tuesday at her home, 27 Cranberry Street, Brooklyn. She was taken ill last Thursday while in her office in the school building, and when she was removed to her home it was found that she was suffering from pneumonia.

Miss Buckelow was born in Brooklyn seventy-three years ago. After she was graduated from the public schools of that borough, she taught for a few years before entering the Albany Normal School. Miss Buckelow was an authority on phonetics and had published several books on the subject.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon from the Second Presbyterian Church, Clinton and Remsen Streets, Brooklyn.

Gen. Henry R. Guss.

WESTCHESTER, Penn., April 25.—Gen. Henry R. Guss, who commanded the Ninety-seventh Pennsylvania Regiment in the civil war, and who was commissioned a Major General in 1867, died at his home here to-day. He was 82 years old. He was prominently mentioned for Commissioner of Pensions in President Cleveland's second term.

Sensational Batting Rally in Eighth Lands Game for "Yankees."

In a sensational batting rally to which Washington contributed timely fielding and several battery errors, the New York Americans rolled up a total of nine runs in the eighth inning of yesterday's game at American League Park and smothered Washington by a score of 11 to 2. The game for eight innings was the closest kind of a contest, with the score tied all the way. No runs were made until the sixth inning, and then each gathered two. In the seventh the "Yankees" missed a chance, setting the cranks grumbling, but in the eighth—well, they were the greatest hitting team of the day, with one exception, the youngsters of the High School of Commerce, in the game at Macomb's Dam Park, an account of which will be found in another column.

For five innings "Long" Tom Hughes had the Yankees buffaloed. He did not yield a hit. They let loose a bit in the sixth, and gathered three singles in the seventh, but in the eighth they smashed the season's record for rallies. There was one gone, Hughes hit La Porte and allowed him to walk; then Moriarty placed a pretty single in left and sent La Porte to third. Kleinow lined out a double, too short to do more than send La Porte home, but Moriarty followed on Brockett's short single back of third. Hickman returned Orth's hit to him too low to catch Kleinow at the plate, and Hoffman and Conroy followed with singles.

The fanatics began to lose count of the runs, and there was a sigh of relief when Elberfeld was second out on a grounder to Hickman, but Chase singled and La Porte drove one to the fence for two bases, while Moriarty scored him with a slashing single. Fearing that the fusillade would never stop, Moriarty was caught stealing second, and the smoke cleared with nine runs on the score board.

There was nothing to the game after that sensational rally. The early difficulties with Hughes were forgotten. The batting spurt of both teams which landed the two runs for each in the sixth was lost sight of, and even the failure to tally from three singles in the seventh was overlooked. The lucky eighth was all that was thought of.

Both "Willie" Keeler and Williams were out of the game. Moriarty was on second base, and played a splendid game, accepting some difficult chances finely. Brockett played right field. Orth's work in the box was excellent outside of the sixth inning. The score follows:

"Giants" Find Corridon Easy and Beat "Phillies" Handily.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 25.—New York had no trouble winning today the second game of the series from the Phillies by the score of 6 to 3. Pitcher Corridon, who was selected for the box, was hit hard from the start. New York scored three runs in the third inning, but the Phillies came back with two runs in their turn at bat, but Corridon got another bad start in the fourth, and then the home team went to pieces, and the issue was decided.

Corridon gave way to Moren in the sixth, and the youngster held the Giants safe during the remainder of the game, but the Phillies were unable to pull out a victory, although they hit McGinnity freely in the late innings and outbatted the Giants in the total. Whenever men were on bases McGinnity invariably pulled himself together and retired the side.

Shannon drew a base on balls in the third, and Strang beat out a slow hit. Bresnahan sacrificed. Bansfield threw low to the plate on Seymour's grounder, allowing Shannon and Strang to score. Seymour reached second and scored on Bowerman's single.

In the Phillies' half Corridon walked and scored on Thomas's three-bagger. Gleason singled. The Phillies then filled the bases, but could not get any one in. Dahlen walked in the fourth, and was forced by Corcoran. McGinnity singled. Bransfield's error filled the bases, and Strang's fly scored Corcoran. Singles by Bowerman and McGinnity, a double steal, and Courtney's muff of Jacklitsch's throw added the last two runs in the fifth. Score:

Boston Surprises Brooklyn.

Boston surprised the Brooklyn team to-day by winning by a score of 6 to 1. Lindsmap held the locals to five hits, while Pastorius was batted safely a dozen times. There was ragged fielding on both sides, and Lumley's absence from right field on the home team was a considerable drawback. Score:

EASTERN LEAGUE.

Jersey City and Newark Lose Opening Games by Close Scores.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 25.—Providence opened the Eastern League championship season here to-day, defeating Jersey City 6 to 5. The usual opening ceremonies of band concert, flag raising, and address by Mayor P. J. McCarthy were held.

Barry, who pitched for Providence, was fairly effective until the eighth inning, when two bases on balls and lively hitting by the visitors caused Manager Duffy to send Clinton into the box to finish the game.

Lake was hit freely, and was replaced by Foxen in the fifth. The playing of both teams was ragged at times. Providence piling up five errors to the visitors' three. Halligan was put out of the game in the third for talking back to Conway. Seventeen thousand persons saw the game. Score:

Opening Day at Newark.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 25.—Nearly 10,000 people witnessed the opening game in the Eastern League series at Weldenmayer's Park, Newark, to-day, when the home team lost to Baltimore by a score of 2 to 1. It was a gala day, and many places throughout the city, including the baseball park, were decorated with flags and bunting.

The game was close throughout and but for Baltimore's lucky stroke in the second inning the score might have been different. Demmitt sent a safe hit over Sharpe's head at first, was advanced by Hunter and Byers, and scored on a bad throw to the plate. Byers was scored on Burrel's hit.

Newark's only run was made in the third. Carrick went to first on called balls, Engle sacrificed, and Cockman sent a long hit to left field, scoring Carrick. Score:

A Game Full of Figures.

The second baseball team of the Stuyvesant High School yesterday in a game with the High School of Commerce second team gave a splendid diversified illustration of the National game. It probably holds the schoolboy record. Commerce made forty-two runs from twenty hits, and an equal number of errors, it being an accepted fact that during the game a hit by Commerce was to be followed by an error by one of the Stuyvesant players. In spite of the fusillade of hits the Stuyvesant Captain did not weaken, and kept Pitcher Vanderof in the box throughout the contest, which lasted two and a half hours, and an equal time was consumed by the official scorer trying to balance his score sheet. No return game has been scheduled. Score:

GRAPPLE DEFEATED IN SELLING RACE

Metropolitan Handicap Winner a Head Behind Campaigner for Flushing Stakes.

HOT SHOT'S STEEPLECHASE

Newcastle Stable's Two-year-olds Twice First for Aqueduct Purses —Three Choices First.

For the wind-up of the Aqueduct race meeting yesterday an especially innocent-looking programme turned up quite a few surprises, the chief of which was the defeat of the Matropolitan Handicap winner of a year ago, Grapple, in a selling race.

The defeat of Grapple really was a blow to the ring, mitigated somewhat by as much of a plunge as the layers would permit David Johnson to make at the "sure-thing" price, 6 to 1 on. "It's giving money away," said the layers when they accepted fractions of the sums that Johnson and his agents offered to bet on Grapple, and the crowd, while not caring to back Grapple at the price, agreed that the race was as good as won fur the Farrell stable before the horses went to the post.

The race, the Flushing Selling Stakes, at one mile, was run as the third event, on a track that was moderately fast, only three horses starting, with the speculation confined principally to whether Marster or Campaigner would be second to Grapple. J. Martin was up on Grapple for his first mount since he secured a riding license, and with the idea of starting in with a winner Martin was keenly eager at the post and broke first. Grapple went on to make the running, but as he tried to move away Campaigner, the same horse that only tbe day before was badly beaten by the malden three-year-old Royal Onyx, went up to Grapple, and on the far turn actually headed the favorite. Grapple closed on Campaigner again when they entered the stretch, but was under pressure to do it, and tiring in the final strides, he hung back at the finish, and the well-seasoned Campaigner beat him a head on the post in a hard-fought finish.

The reverse to the stable shook the confidence of the Johnson cumbination in Jucquin in a later race, and Jacquin, also ridden by Martin, went out and won all the way, practically unbacked, in a selling race for which he was entered to sell for $800. Juhnson, owner of Jacquin, gave it up then, and did not even make a protecting bid when, on Robert Tucker's offer of $1,500, Jacquin found a new owner after the race.

In the Glendale Steeplechase Handicap, Thomas Hitchock, Jr.'s, newest jumper Hot Shot showed an improvement that seemed to justify all the praise that the patrons of cross-country sport bestowed on him after his first win, and, taking the lead in the last round of the field, won over the two-mile-and-a-half course in fine style, far away from Yama Christy, second.

The colors of the Newcastle Stable were out for the first time this season in the opening event, and though the stable had no confidence in the entry, Paul Pry, the Newcastle Stable won from end to end in a four-and-a-half-furlong sprint for two-year-olds, Miller, on the winner, being in a great measure responsible for the result. Paul Pry's showing warmed up the stable confidence in the next horse that carried the colors, and Wave Crest, at odds on, won the stable's second victory of the day very easily in the last race. EXCELSIOR HANDICAP TO-DAY.

Sixteen Horses Named for $10,000 Race at Jamaica Track's Opening.

The $10,000 Excelsior Handicap, second in the schedule of the great Spring handicaps of the New York racing season, will be run for to-day, as the feature event of the opening of the Metropolitan Jockey Club's meeting on the Jamaica race course.

The Excelsior, though it is the youngest of the important and valuable handicaps, this season has attracted a field of decidedly better quality than that which ran for the Carter Handicap, and the sixteen horses that are named to start in the official list of entries for the opening programme at Jamaica include about all the best that have raced so far this Spring, with the addition of several horses fresh to this season's racing.

In the estimates of the probabilities of the race, from the standpoint of the betting men last night, the choices for the contest were T. D. Sullivan's Dr. Gardner, the top weight of the horses named to run, and the Western horse W. H. Carey, the unbeaten champion of the Aqueduct meeting.

The more notable of the other horses that have run this Spring are Glorifier, winner of

STATE MOTOR LAW STAYS UNCHANGED

Legislature Will Adjourn Without Attempting to Pass Objectionable Bills.

STRIVING FOR UNIFORMITY

Request for Inter-State Conference on Highway and Auto Subjects Issued by Connecticut.

There is practically no possibility that any of the objectionable automobile bills that are still before the Albany Legislature will pass before the present session adjourns within the next two weeks.

"I doubt if any of them will be even seriously considered," said Charles T. Terry, Chairman of the American Automobile Association's Legislative Committee, yesterday. "This means that motor car users in the State will have the same automobile law for another year that has been in existence for the last two years. The only objectionable bill that may yet demand a show of opposition from motorists is Senator McManus's bill enabling any driver of an automobile to offer the car as bail in case of arrest. The objections that have been made against this provision have caused Senator McManus to change the tenor of his bill somewhat so as to enable chauffeurs to offer surety bonds as bail, which at the present time is restricted to owners. As the hearing that was to have been held a week ago was postponed, and as the bill has met with more opposition than favor, I do not think at this late date that it will be presented for action."

Every effort to alter the present State automobile law has been successfully combatted this season by the legislative delegates from the New York State Association, assisted by Mr. Terry's committee from the National Association. Over fifteen bills in all were introduced, but with two or three exceptions none of them was ever reported outside of their respective committees.

Now that the New York legislative difficulties are over, attention will be chiefly directed to the bills in the neighboring States, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Pennsylvania. All hope has been abandoned of obtaining more lenient touring conditions in New Jersey. The Legislature there has adjourned until June, and despite the pressure brought to bear to permit tourists from outside States to travel in New Jersey without paying additional fees for registration, no change was made in the old law. In Pennsylvania and Connecticut, however, greater leniency has been shown, both States having acted favorably on bills allowing tourists whose cars are registered in their home States to travel for ten days without taking out new licenses.

"Uniform automobile laws are bound to come in the near future," said Mr. Terry, "and the most marked illustration that the legislators themselves are taking this view of the case has just come from Connecticut, where Chairman Buell of the Legislative Committee has lately sent requests to the Secretaries of State of New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and a few other States for a joint conference on topics connected with automobiles, highways, canals, and bridges. Whether this conference can be arranged or not is another question, but the fact that the necessity has been recognized for some uniform action by neighboring States on these subjects of importance to all residents is a good sign for greater harmony in the near future.

MISS SUTTON IN FINALS.

California Tennis Girl Listless at Start —Miss Moore Outplayed.

Although Miss May Sutton, California's tennis champion, was far off her true form yesterday, she more than furnished her share in the victory of her side against Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, ex-National champion, and Miss Evelyn MacVeigh on the courts at St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue. Miss Sutton's partner was Mrs. J. V. L. Pruyn, and they won their semi-final round in the women's doubles by a score of 6—2, 6—3.

During the opening game Miss Sutton was listless and allowed her partner to do the playing. With the score of 5 to 0 against them, Miss Moore and Miss MacVeigh began a rattling attack on Mrs. Pruyn's side of the court, and they won two games before Miss Sutton set out to check the attack. Then Miss Sutton directed her attention to Miss Moore, and the two did some long and brilliant volleying. The power of Miss Sutton's strokes and her accuracy beat Miss Moore, despite some splendid playing on her part. The second set produced better tennis. Miss Sutton took no chances, but kept forcing Miss Moore through all of the games.

The other semi-final was won in straight sets by Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Nora Iselin, who defeated Miss Juliet Adee and Miss Martha Coster, 6—2, 6—2. The final will be played to-day. The summary:

Women's Doubles.—Semi-Final Round — Miss May K. Sutton and Mrs. J. V. L. Pruyn defeated Miss Evelyn MacVeigh and Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, 6—2, 6—3; Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Nora Iselin defeated Miss Juliet Adee and Miss Martha Coster, 6—2, 6—2.

HARVARD'S FOOTBALL DATES.

Crimson to Play Ten Games as Last Year—Navy Included.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 25.—The Harvard football schedule to which so much interest has recently attached was announced to-day. There was no change made in the number of games from last year, in spite of the general recommendation of restriction by the Board of Overseers.

There has been considerable talk recently of the arrangement of a game with Princeton and the formation of a triple alliance with the Tigers and Yale. This even went so far as to name the date—Nov. 9—on which the game would be played, but that date is occupied, as last year, by the Carlisle Indians. There is only one change in the schedule from that of last year, in fact. This is the substitution of a game with the Naval Cadets instead of one with the army at West Point, growing out of the differences that arose last Fall between the two institutions.

Bowdoin opens the season at Cambridge on Oct. 2. The other games follow thus, all being played at Cambridge, with the exception of the Annapolis contest:

Oct. 5—University of Maine, at Cambridge.
Oct. 9—Bates at Cambridge.
Oct. 12—Williams at Cambridge.
Oct. 19—Annapolis at Annapolis.
Oct. 26—Springfield Manual Training School at Cambridge.
Nov. 2—Brown at Cambridge.
Nov. 9—Carlisle at Cambridge.
Nov. 16—Dartmouth at Cambridge.
Nov. 23—Yale at Cambridge.

NEW SWIMMING POOL.

Many Novel Contests Planned for the Natatorium at Columbus Circle.

The first public swimming pool ever built in New York was opened for inspection last night, and the Circle Swimming Pool at Fifty-ninth Street and Columbus Avenue fills a long-felt want. The pool is one of the most complete in the United States, and will be the scene of a number of swimming and diving contests, in which C. M. Daniels, L. B. Goodwin, Dan Renear, and other prominent swimmers will take part.

A feature about the new pool, which is the only one in New York open to the public, is that it is supplied with thoroughly filtered water, continually flowing in and out, like a running stream, heated to a proper temperature by an automatic heater.

All the latest appliances will be used in connection with the natatorium, which will be under the direct supervision of Dr. Watson L. Savage. Friday evenings will be set apart for clubs and entertainments, and it is the intention of Dr. Savage to arrange a series of races between all of the fast swimmers.

Prof. Charles Holroyd, late instructor at Columbia, and who has developed many of the fastest college swimmers in the country, has been engaged as head instructor.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Stuffed Ducklings May Be Entered Free of Duty—Other Decisions.

In a decision by Charles P. McClelland, the Board of United States General Appraisers sustained yesterday a protest filed by M. Seller & Co. of Portland, Oregon, it being held that skins of ducklings which have been stuffed and wired to form their natural shape and size, are not "toys," as assessed by the customs authorities.

On the contrary, the board holds that the duoklings are free of duty under the provision in the Dingley tariff for "birds, stuffed, not suitable for millinery ornaments." The board reaches its conclusion in harmony with a decision of the Federal court.

Other importers' claims sustained yesterday were filed by Calhoun, Robbins & Co. and Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne, New York; Enrico Biggio and others, San Francisco; Newman Post Card Company, Lbs Angeles, and Richard Behrendt, San Francisco.

The board overruled protests filed by R. H. Mncy & Co., Bamberger, Stern & Co., Lamb, Finley & Co., W. B. Quaintance and others, New York; C. H. Wyman & Co. and the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney Dry Goods Company, St. Louis; Edward James, San Francisco, and Meyer, Wilson & Co., Portland, Oregon.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

MORRIS WEISS.—Morris Weiss, mnnufacturer of cloaks and suits at 15 West Seventeenth Street, mnde an assignment yesterday to Oliver L. Goldsmith. He started the business in December, 1906, asserting that he had $9,000 capital.

HERMAN HERTZBERG.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Herman Hertzberg, dealer in cloaks and suits at 252 Sixth Avenue, by these creditors: Cohen & Pollak, $008; L. Sheinhouse & Son, $220, and Samuel Frankel, $76. Liabilities ars $18,735 and assets $6,459.

HANSON DRUG COMPANY.—A psition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Hanson Drug Company of 244 Sixth Avenue by these creditors: Commons Brothers, $738; Hydrox Chemical Company, $11, and Alexander Samak, $22. It was alleged that the company is insolvent and transferred assets to creditors to prefer them. Liabilities are $6,000 and stock on hand $1,000. This business was started in 1888.

CARPENTER & MILLER.—Howard A. Carpenter and Adam S. Miller, composing the firm of Carpenter & Miller, grocers at Valhalla, N. Y., have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $4,384 and assets $2,784.

STARKE ADVERTISING AGENCY.—Thomas D. Hewitt, receiver in bankruptcy for the Starke Advertising Agency of 5 Beekman Street, hos filed a list of creditors to the number of 680, mainly newspapers all over the United States. The claims aggregate about $20,000. Mrs. Mabel Storke is the largest creditor with a $5,000 claim.

ADOLPH DRILLMAN.—Adolph Drillman, a retail dealer in furs, formerly at 641 Madison Avenue, against whom creditors filed a petition in bankruptcy on Dec. 22, 1903, has been denied a discharge from bankruptcy by Judge Hough of the United States District Court. John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, reported against o dischorge principally on the ground of concealment of $17,000 assets from the trustee, based on a statement to Bradstreet's in 1903 showing n surplus of $15,200. His only explonation of ths disappearance of this surplus was a loss of one year was losses by purchase of bad skins and thefts of goods by his employes. Judge Hough said that the bankrupt's story wos so extraordinary that he refused the discharge.

A. V. BENOIT.—Stroock & Stroock of 320 Broadway, representing a majority of creditors, and Mr. Leesler, trustee in bankruptcy of A. V. Benoit, (corporation,) formerly dealing in artists' materiols at 10 West Thirty-third Street, sold that they brought suit on behalf of the trustee tn compel the officers nnd Directors of the corporation to make restitution for funds of the corporation which it was alleged had been withdrawn for personal use instead of for corporate purposes. The case came to trial before Judge MacLean of the Supreme Court last week and after the plaintiff's case had been presented the attorneys for both sides concluded to settle the matter, and the case was withdrawn from the court's consideration. The proposed settlement will shortly be presented at a meeting of creditors in the Bankruptcy Court for their approval. The business was established in 1901. Liabilities were $55,436 and assets $32,900.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull and Firm — Call Money Rates, 2½@2 Per Cent.

ENGLISH BANK RATE DOWN

Market Professional Again and Uninfluenced by Outside News—The Lake Shore Syndicate Dissolution.

While yesterday's reduction in the Bank of England rate to 4 per cent. had been generally looked for, and was, therefore, without effect upon stock markets, either here or in London itself, it was nevertheless an important development in its bearing upon international money markets. In the first place, it made the third interest reduction by a European Government bank within the week, and it occurred in spite of the fact that Paris is withdrawing from London the gold put at the service of the latter city in the stringent money period of last Winter. There is thus indicated a general easing of conditions surrounding money markets abroad, a fact further testified to during the day by the publication of favorable weekly statements by the three great banks of England, France, and Germany. In each instance large additions were made to cash, while loans were proportionately reduced. Confidence must run unusually high in London when the Directors of the English Bank deemed it feasible to lower the discount rate while the Paris cheque on London is moving in such fashion as to suggest further takings of English gold. The 4 per cent. rate, like the 5½ per cent. rate in Berlin, is still stiff for this season of the year, but the margin of improvement over recent conditions is so great as to meke even this conservative action of the bank management a real gain to money markets. If the stock market, which relapsed into its inert condition of the closing days of last week, failed to find cause for cheer in the reduction of the Bank of England's rate, it found no occasion for anxiety in the unfavorable developments of the day. One of the matters falling within the second class was the announcement of the wind-up of the Lake Shore $35,000,000 4 per cent. debenture syndicate through the return of all but a small percentage of the securities underwritten to the syndicate members. This, however, is only the latest of a number of syndicates of a similar nature to come to a close since the first of the year with the securities underwritten thus distributed, and it throws an interesting sidelight upon both the money and bond markets. It is hardly strange that the investor should find a 5 per cent. Lake Shore note as attractive as a 4 per cent. Lake Shore debenture.

Crop news was no more cheerful than on the earlier days of the week, but the dullness upon the Stock Exchange was too great to be affected. A somewhat unusuel announcement was thet of the Westinghouse Electric offer of new stock at a price well above that at which the old stock is selling in the market. After several conflicting movements forward and back, prices closed in general somewhat above the quotations of Wednesday night.

Rates on time and call loans in the local money market underwent little change, but the feeling seems to be spreading in banking quarters that present quotations are not reflective of actual conditions. While quotations for nine months' money are reported as 5¼ per cent., actual loans of satisfactory character are being made for this period at 6 per cent. and better. The superficial ease in money, however, is resulting in the shifting of loans to local banks by interior institutions, which find more remunerative employment for their money at home. This is likely to find reflection in further increase in the loan item in to-morrow's bank statement, and will have little in the way of offset in cash gains by the banks, owing to the smaller amount received from the Sub-Treasury. So far as the outlook for gold exports is concerned, the reduction in the English bank rate seems to work against them, although Paris continues to seek the yellow metal.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

There were one or two pathetic attempts to develop interest in the stock market yesterday, but the apathy was so pronounced that they were entirely ineffectual. A reduction in the Bank of England rate was accepted as a matter of course, and the professional element ignored it entirely. Some traders who purchased Amalgamated Copper in the hops that it would recover its dividend were disappointed. Another flurry in the Great Western issues stimulated no interest. The character of the floor crowd gave clear indication of what the market might be expected to do. The trading for the most part originated on the floor. One big professional, who stuck to his office, indulged in 100 shares of Brooklyn Rapid Transit and closed out his trade before the end of the day.

***

Pressure on preferred stocks of the Erie caused a substantial reaction in these issues. The pessimistic attitude of certain traders is probably the result of a feeling that there is a safe scalping profit in these securities. That there is any concerted bear attack cannot be deduced from the trading, nor is it likely that any interests of importance are responsible for the selling. There was a transaction in 100 shares of New Haven stock at a two-point advance and 100 shares of United States Express at a five-point advance.

***

When the report appeared that the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern syndicate in the 4 per cent. debenture bonds had been dissolved, an attempt was made to figure the losses of the participants. This is a very difficult matter, as the exact cost to the syndicate members cannot be figured out. The bonds sold down sharply on the board more than two points, but the transactions were very small. These particular bonds will find a ready market should any revival develop in the bond business, and holders are apparently content with the situation. Syndicate operations have not been profitable for a long time, and the bad feature of the participation in many instances is the fact that the syndicate securities are not generally attractive, which makes their ultimate disposition after the syndicate dissolution all the more difficult.

No particular attention was attracted to the securities of the International Mercantile Marine Company on their first appearance on the board. Traders seem to think that in a good market these stocks would prove comparatively popular. For the present at least, it is improbable that they will do more than follow the general trend of prices, and they are likely to lag in point of activity. There is not the widespread knowledge of this corporation that might have been expected from the popular excitement created on its organization, but when a stock is placed on the trading list it does not take long for the rank and file of traders to be introduced to it.

Apropos of the distinction between lake copper and electrolytic and the difference in price, a man who has just returned from the lake region voiced decided views yesterday as to the sentimental absurdity of lake copper commanding a distinctly higher price. This is an old question and he raised a point that attracted some attention in confidential copper circles some time ago, but which failed to reach public discussion. It is suggested, and, in fact, stated very positively that electrolytic copper has been shipped to the lake regions, reshipped from there as lake copper, and, coming by way of water to Buffalo, reaches New York as genuine lake product. The name of the offending company is withheld, but it is said that this practice is likely to be stopped summarily. Electrolytic copper as it comes from the converter in anodes and before being submitted to the refining process, contains about six-tenths of one per cent. of foreign mater, which in the case of the Butte camps is principally gold and silver. The anodes are shipped East for refining, and freight paid on the impurities because it is cheaper to pay that freight than it would be subsequently, if the refining were done in the West, to pay insurance and expressage on the $400,000,000 of gold and silver annually extracted from these anodes.

***

Within the last two or three weeks one or two houses in the financial district have developed quite a trade in Cuban five per cent. bonds. The demand seems to come from individual investors, and the point is made in some instances that the bonds are purchased primarily because the American influence in the island is regarded as likely to be permanent and direct, as it is at present. This fact itself merely shows that the investing public is taking note of things, scrutinizing all possible situations and making its own deductions. The transactions in these bonds have been largely over the counter, and another curious feature of it is that some of the demand is for individual foreigners, or, to make it more specific, for European account.

***

"I do not pay much attention to ordinary crop news, especially that emanating from Chicago and transmitted wholesale for stock market consumption, but I do pay attention to the individual opinion of the members of some Chicago firms who have kept thoroughly posted on the real situation," said a banker yesterday. "Analyzing the significant matter in the various interviews I have had, it looks to me as if Winter wheat, at harvest, would show a very substantial reduction in yield when compared with last year. Then, again, the Spring crops are late, and seeding has been delayed. Perhaps this condition is not serious, but it is at all events a poor start, and should weather conditions prevail that are really adverse to the growing crops later in the year, the lateness of the seeding may emphasize their sensitiveness to these conditions. The fruit crop, if reports be true, will suffer, and a very pessimistic friend of mine has called attention to the fact that the price of potatoes has been doubled in the last week. Just how he can reconcile an advance in the price of last year's crop with the prospective yield of potatoes this year is a little too much for me to figure out."

***

Men identified with copper in any of its aspects are enthusiastic over the outlook for the metal. This enthusiasm and these man must be distinguished from the much-exploited propositions in mining of which so much is heard nowadays. When they speak of copper they are talking of the big companies and their outlook, and they consider the situation from a detached point of view so far as up-to-date mining enthusiasm is concerned. Men who are familiar with the affairs of the big selling agencies say that they cannot see any possible reduction in the price of the metal, and figure out that if the consumers who have been holding off come into the market together, they will force the price of the metal to a new high figure.

INCORPORATED IN KENTUCKY.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKFORT, April 25.—Articles have been filed with the Secretary of State as follows:

New Domain Oil and Gas Company, Fayette County; capital stock increased from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Snead Realty Company, Louisville; capital stock, $67,000.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 25.—Money was in poor demand in the market to-day and discounts were weak.

On the Stock Exchange the reduction of the Bank of England's rate of discount had generally been anticipated, and added to the recent cheerfulness, but prices were not appreciably affected nor was the volume of business, which is still small, increased.

Mexican rails fell 5 points on the publication of the report of proposals to spend $1,500,000 in improvements.

Foreigns were cheerful. Russians and Japanese received considerable attention from investors. Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101½.

Americans relapsed into dullness, the bad crop reports being the chief adverse influence. Prices hung around parity during the forenoon, and hardened in places prior to the receipt of the New York opening prices. These brought no material help, and the market became inactive and closed easy after the transaction of a small amount of business.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 10.75; Lisbon, 2.75.

Bullion amounting to £19,000 was taken into the Bank of England to-day and £100,000 was withdrawn for shipment to Constantinople.

Bar silver firm; 30 5-16d per ounce.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2⅝@3 per cent., and for three months' bills is 3 1-16@3¼ per cent.

The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

Total reserve increased	£110,000
Circulation increased	186,000
Bullion increased	296,198
Other securities decreased	994,000
Other deposits decreased	484,000
Public deposits decreased	131,000
Notes reserve increased	271,000
Government securities decreased	126,000

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability this week is 45.32 per cent., as compared with 44.65 per cent. last week.

The Bank of England's rate of discount was reduced to-day from 4½ to 4 per cent. The action of the Board of Directors of the bank was anticipated, owing to the extremo ease of the money market and the increasing strength of the bank's reserve. This, doubtless, will be further increased by the absorption of the bulk of £1,000,000 in gold, which will be available in the market in the coming week.

PARIS, April 25.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm throughout in consequence of the lowering of the Bank of England's rate of discount. Trading was inactive.

Russian Imperial fours closed at 73.70 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 408.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f-97½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 17½c for checks.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes:

	Francs.
Notes in circulation decreased	84,023,000
Treasury deposits increased	39,925,000
General deposits decreased	23,675,000
Gold in hand increased	5,350,000
Silver in hand increased	50,000
Bills discounted decreased	77,725,000
Advances decreased	17,000,000

BERLIN, April 25.—Business on the Boerse to-day was stagnant and prices generally were lower.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 46½ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 3½ per cent.; three months bills, 4⅛ per cent.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes:

	Marks.
Cash in hand increased	58,020,000
Treasury notes increased	1,560,000
Other securities decreased	66,540,000
Notes in circulation decreased	58,200,000

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Thomas S. Adams was elected yesterday to membership in the Stock Exchange.

G. H. Fearons has been elected a Director of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, caused by the death of Russell Sage. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange to list the following securities: New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, $3,254,500 additional capital stock, and the Providence Securities Company $19,911,000 4 per cent. fifty-year gold debentures of 1917.

Talter & Co., having sold all but $500,000 of the $3,350,000 Missouri Pacific Railway Company 5 per cent. equipment trust bonds and of the $693,000 Missouri Pacific Association 5 per cent. certificates, they offer the balance subject to previous sale, to net 5½ per cent.

The Mutual Alliance Trust Company has taken title to the property 266 and 268 Grand Street, where it will erect a new building for its own use. The new office to be opened at Lenox Avenue and 116th Street will be ready for occupancy on June 1.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Stocks Move Within Narrow Limits in Sluggish Market, with Prices Well Held.

UNITED COPPER STRONG

Curb stocks moved within the narrowest limits yesterday in a dull market. Except in the cents-per-share stocks trading was practically at a standstill, even those issues in which speculation has been active recently slowing down in proportion. Prices were well maintained, despite the lack of interest, and in Boston Copper a substantial advance was made apparently at the expense of shorts. This issue opened ½ up at 28½. The close, after transactions of 1,600 shares, was at 29⅛. Davis-Daly, Greene-Cananea, and Nipissing made slight recessions in the light trading. United Copper was about the strongest issue in the mining list, going steadily upward from 61 to 62⅜ on transactions of 4,400.

R. C. Caples a N. Y. Central Special Agent.

Ralph C. Caples, who was for several years in charge of the traffic department of the National Steel & Wire Company, has been appointed Special Agent of all the New York Central Lines with headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Caples's services were obtained for the road by B. B. Mitchell, Freight Traffic Manager of the lines east of Buffalo. Mr. Mitchell is said to be slated to succeed the late Capt. G. J. Grammer, who was Vice President, in charge of freight traffic.

St. Paul Work Not Suspended.

The Directors of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul held their regular monthly meeting yesterday, but gave no consideration, it was announced, to the question of suspending work on the extension to the Pacific coast. The management is known to have been considering this step in the belief that the line can be built to better advantage later.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Strong, More Active—Closes Steady, at 3 to 5 Points Gain.

WEATHER IN COTTON STATES.

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The Federal Weather Bureau issues the following forecast for the cotton States for Friday and Saturday:

North Carolina—Fair Friday, except rain in extreme western portion. Saturday showers and colder; light variable winds, becoming fresh northerly.

South Carolina—Rain Friday, colder in northwest portion. Saturday rain, colder on the coast; fresh southerly, shifting to northerly, winds.

Eastern Florida—Fair in southern, rain in northern portion Friday and probably Saturday; light variable winds.

Western Florida—Rain Friday. Saturday fair and colder; light to fresh southerly winds, becoming northerly.

Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana—Showers Friday; colder in the interior. Saturday, fair; colder on the coast; fresh northwesterly winds.

Eastern Texas—Fair to northern, showers and colder in southern portion. Friday. Saturday, fair and warmer; fresh northerly winds.

Western Texas, Oklahoma, and Indian Territory—Fair Friday and Saturday; warmer.

Arkansas—Rain and colder Friday. Saturday, fair and warmer.

Tennessee—Rain Friday, with colder in western and central portions. Saturday, fair; colder in extreme eastern portions.

West Virginia—Rain Friday, followed by fair and colder in the afternoon. Saturday, fair and warmer.

The cotton market was still more active. The close was steady at a net advance of 36@36 points and sales were estimated at 225,000 bales. After the close a rumor was circulating that big long interests in the near months had sold at least 100,000 bales.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1@4 points in response to higher cables and big English spot sales. Early fluctuations were somewhat irregular, but the market soon firmed up on fresh reports of a bullish character as to the new crop start. There were heavy offerings on a scale up, but there was ample demand.

To-day will be the first May notice day. Estimates as to the amount of cotton likely to be tendered vary from about 40,000 to 75,000 bales.

BOND SYNDICATE QUITS WITH LOSS

Only 1 Per Cent. Sold of the $35,000000 Lake Shore Issue.

DECLINE ON THE MARKET

Underwriters Believed to Have Lost in the Neighborhood of $1,225,000 on the Deal.

The syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., which underwrote $35,000,000 of Lake Shore 4 per cent. debentures in February, 1906, is to be dissolved on May 1. Notice of the dissolution of the syndicate was sent out yesterday to its members. From these notices it was learned that only 1 per cent. of the issue had been placed by the bankers, the balance of the bonds being distributed to the syndicate members in settlement of account with the syndicate.

On this basis a subscriber to $100,000 of the bonds will receive payment in cash for $1,000, or one bond, and will have to take over the other $99,000 in bonds and hold them or sell them out.

That some of the syndicate members have chosen the latter course even in advance of the actual delivery of the bonds was indicated yesterday by the fact that the similar Lake Shore debentures of a previous issue listed on the Stock Exchange declined yesterday from 97 to 95. The syndicate subscribers paid 98½ for their bonds, so at yesterday's closing price there was an apparent loss to the syndicate of $1,225,000, less the amount realized from the 1 per cent. of bonds disposed of by the managers.

The fact that only an insignificant proportion of this issue was disposed of by the bankers who purchased the bonds from the Lake Shore Railroad was the subject of wide comment yesterday as an indication of the extreme difficulty that has been encountered for a year past in selling bonds even of the class of this Lake Shore issue.

NEW BOND ISSUE RATIFIED.

Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg Plans Many Improvements.

At a special meeting yesterday, the stockholders of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg Railroad ratified the proposed issue of $35,000,000 fifty-year 4½ per cent. bonds to provide for the refunding of the road's existing bonds and to raise funds for extensions, double tracking, and other improvements.

Of the total issue, $3,000,000 is to be released for immediate use, $18,145,000 is to be reserved to refund existing bonds, and the balance, amounting to $13,855,000, is to be set aside, to be issued for improvements after July 1, 1908, at not to exceed $1,500,000 a year, unless a larger issue in any one year should be ordered by the stockholders.

UNIFORM INSURANCE LAWS.

Recommendations of American Bar Association Committee.

PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—The Insurance Law Committee of the American Bar Association, which has been in session here devising a system of uniform laws for the government of insurance business in this country, has adopted a series of recommendations, which will be presented to the association as embodying its ideas of what such laws should contain.

Following is a list of the recommendations, the elaboration of which will constitute the report:

First—The appointment of State Insurance Commissioners for fitness and expert qualifications for the position rather than as a reward for political services.

Second—That all companies created outside of the United States make deposits in at least one State. This chief motive for this recommendation was the action of certain German companies after the San Francisco fire, which repudiated their policies.

Third—The repeal of the retaliatory tax laws.

Fourth—The repeal of the valued policy laws.

Fifth—The creation in each State of the office of Fire Marshal. This exists at present in only about one-third of the States.

Sixth—The enactment of a Federal statute prohibiting the use of the mails by wildcat insurance companies and by any company not authorized by the law of the State of its origin.

Seventh—The apportionment and contingent distribution of deferred dividend surplus on policies now in force as a precedent to the right to do business outside of the State in which the company is created.

The American Bar Association will meet in Portland, Maine, next August to discuss the suggestions.

BAHIA TRAMWAY CO. FORMED.

Street Railway for Brazilian City to Cost $10,000,000.

The Bahia Tramway, Light and Power Company, recently incorporated in Maine with a capital of $3,500,000, it was reported in Wall Street yesterday, has completed arrangements for the construction and operation of a street railway system in the Brazilian city which will call for an expenditure of $10,000,000.

The company has an authorized issue of $7,500,000 fifty-year 5 per cent. bonds, of which $3,500,000 have been offered in London and Brussels at 90%. Some of the financing, it is said, will be undertaken in New York, and among the New Yorkers mentioned as interested in the enterprise is W. Lanman Bull, who has already large interests in Latin America.

COTTON MAKERS' PRESIDENT.

William D. Hartshorne Elected by the National Association.

BOSTON, April 25.—William D. Hartshorne of Lawrence was chosen President of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers at the closing session of the convention in Huntington Hall to-day. Mr. Hartshorne is agent of the Arlington Mills. Charles T. Plunkett of Adams and George Otis Draper of Hopedale were elected vice presidents, and among the directors elected were William Loftus of Newark, N. J., and Henry F. Mansfield of Utica, N. Y., for three years.

Resolutions were adopted opposing the taxation of college property, in favor of co-operation with the growers, to bring the present railroad causes relative to the shipment and transportation of cotton to the attention of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, and indorsing the proposed international conference at Atlanta in the Fall.

TO END LOAN ASSOCIATION.

Trustees Appointed to Close Jersey State Mutual Concern.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 25.—A meeting of the stockholders of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association of New Jersey was held here to-day, and three trustees were appointed to wind up the affairs of the association. The trustees are Addison D. Mulford of Elizabeth, Benjamin F. Fowler, Woodbury, and C. S. Stanger, Woodbury. The association is said to be the largest of its kind in the State, and has a membership throughout New Jersey of 27,000. At the meeting today, which was attended by more than 1,000 stockholders, E. Ambler Armstrong, President of the association, presented a report showing the assets of the concern to be $1,202,66?, and the liabilities about the same. Joseph Sommerville, a Director, protested against the appointment of trustees, saying that a receiver should be appointed. He said bad loans and poor management were responsible for the present condition of the association.

An application for a receiver for the concern is pending before Vice Chancellor Leaming, who will make known his decision next Monday. The Vice Chancellor, when the application was made, said he would postpone action until after the meeting of the stockholders

"LARGE RETURNS ON INVESTMENTS."

THE CANADIAN COMPANY

Controlling Water Power for Use in Towns and Mines of Cobalt.

This investment will bear the closest scrutiny. It has a foundation of absolute earning power. It is proposed to supply a demand for power which is in excess of the total possible supply. This is an unfailing source of revenue, the proceeds of which can be exactly computed, as the following schedule shows:—

The Company has obtained a concession from the Canadian government to install a power plant on the Montreal River, which will develop electric power and light for the towns and mines of the Cobalt district.

10,000 H. P.	is the maximum development.
5,000 H. P. PLANT BEGUN. CONTRACTS LET.	The contract has been let for a plant developing 5,000 h. p., which in distribution under contracts will supply 7,000 h. p.
DEMAND FOR POWER.	Over 7,000 steam h. p. is now in use at a cost of over 100% in excess of the power this Company will supply. Three towns also require light and power. The demand for the power which this Company will supply DOES NOT HAVE TO BE CREATED—IT ALREADY EXISTS. More than this, THE DEMAND IS URGENT AND INSISTENT. In commercial terms, there is a market eagerly waiting for the goods we can supply before the manufacture of them is begun.
INCOME	7,000 horse power, at $50.....$350,000 10% on the stock.....$150,000
SURPLUS	$200,000, lese expenses of $50,000.

LEAK ON PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

Contents Known Long In Advance In Wall Street, as Is Not Unusual.

It was discovered yesterday that advance copies of the speech which President Roosevelt is to make at the opening of the Jamestown Exposition to-day had found their way into Wall Street, and an effort was made to connect this fact with speculation in the stock market. Wall Street has become so accustomed to hearing that copies of the President's speeches have reached bankers and others that it is taken almost as a matter of course that knowledge of the President's utterances on formal occasions is had in advance of their delivery.

The secret of the contents of speeches by the President, copies of which are distributed in advance, if a secret it can be called, is known to be so carelessly guarded that the Street expresses no surprise that extracts from such speeches or, in fact, the full text of them is known before delivery.

Reports similar to those of yesterday suggesting that there had been "a leak" in connection with the distribution of copies of the President's Jamestown speech were heard in advance of the President's last message to Congress, and on numerous previous occasions. In fact it has come to be taken for granted by the Street that the distribution in advance of copies of the President's speeches results in bankers and others interested learning their contents.

RAILROAD'S MOTION DENIED.

Indicted Central Officials Not Permitted to Examine Grand Jury's Minutes.

After several days of deliberation, Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions denied yesterday the motion of counsel for Ira McCormack and A. H. Smith, Superintendent and General Manager of the New York Central Railroad, to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury which recently handed down indictments charging them with manslaughter in connection with the wreck of the Central's Brewster electric express at Woodlawn in February, in which twenty-four persons were killed.

John D. Lindsay and former Borough President Martin W. Littleton appeared for the indicted men. Their motion was made upon the ground that the constitutional rights of their clients had been ignored when a Grand Jury before which they had personally testified found indictments against them.

In opposing the motion Assistant District Attorney Smyth pointed out that their testimony had been given voluntarily.

LIMOGES FACTORIES IDLE.

The Action of Our Customs Authorities Creates a Crisis.

PARIS, April 25.—The action of the United States customs authorities in refusing admission to consignments of Limoges porcelain in consequence of reports that the goods were wrongly invoiced, has created such a crisis in the porcelain factories that deputations, consisting of the departmental authorities, the Deputies from the Limoges district, and representatives of the manufacturers and workmen, are about to wait on Foreign Minister Pichon and Minister of Commerce Doumergue and demand that the Government take up the question with the Government of the United States.

The factories are now idle, and the workmen are clamoring for a settlement of the dispute.

SEEK TO STOP TUNNEL WORK.

Storage House Says It's Losing Business Through McAdoo Terminal

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman was asked yesterday to grant a temporary injunction restraining the Hudson River Tunnel Company and the George A. Fuller Construction Company from continuing the building of the Manhattan terminal of the McAdoo tunnel under the Hudson River from Jersey City and the station at Cortlandt, Dey, and Church Streets.

The application was made on behalf of David Grinberg and Adolph Morris, who handle the affairs of the Manhattan Storage Company at 44 Cortlandt Street. They declare that the work is injuring their business, and that if continued their business will be destroyed. A derrick and traveler attached to it, they declare, is especially injurious.

The defendants declared that it would be a great public misfortune if the injunction was granted. The McAdoo tunnel concern had invested $20,000,000 in the construction and had offered the plaintiffs sufficient compensation for their lease. Justice O'Gorman reserved decision.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

No Scarcity of Buyers at Second Session of Ogden Sale—Operator Resells 574 Fifth Avenue—Buyer for Eighty-eighth Street Residence.

The sale of the Ogden estate property in the Bronx was continued yesterday by Auctioneer Day in the Vesey Street salesroom with the same success as characterized the event on Wednesday.

The auction room was comfortably filled when selling was resumed at 9 A. M., and there was a good-sized crowd in attendance until 3 P. M., when the day's session ended. The sale will be continued at 9 o'clock this morning.

The lots offered yesterday were 223 in number, and that they were generally in the more desirable parts of the tract is shown by the fact that $392,225 was realized, as against the $276,775 paid for the 214 lots sold on Wednesday.

A high record for the sale so far was established by the lots facing Boscobel Place, betwen Ogden and Plympton Avenues. For the southeast corner of Ogden Avenue and Boscobel Place, an irregular parcel, with frontage of 100 feet and an area of about 1,600 square feet, $15,800 was paid—or at the rate of about $25,000 for a full lot. The buyer, the Provincial Realty Alliance, also took the adjoining lots on Boscobel Place and Plympton Avenue, paying $47,300 for the entire plot, containing a little over three and one-half lots.

South of this, lots 25 by 125, running through from Ogden to Plympton Avenue, ranged in price from $3,700 to $4,550.

The first parcels put up yesterday were in the block bounded by Ogden and Merriam Avenues and 169th and 170th Streets. On Ogden Avenue nine lots were sold at $950 each, two others at $1,125. The corner of 170th Street brought $2,750 and the adjoining lot $1,550.

The southwest corner of Merriam Avenue and 170th Street brought $1,225 and the lot adjoining on the street, $775. Along Merriam Avenue prices ranged from $550 to $800, and the corner of 169th Street sold for $1,500.

The southenst corner of Ogden Avenue and 170th Street brought $3,100, and the lots to the south of it, along the avenue, went for $2,075, $1,750, $1,475, $1,300, and $1,200. Between 170th and 171st Streets the twelve inside lots on the west side of Ogden Avenue brought $2,200 to $2,225 each and the corners $2,800 and $2,500. The lots in the rear, on Merriam Avenue, brought $800 each, with $1,225 and $1,600 for the corners. All these are short lots.

The northeast corner of Ogden Avenue and 170th Street sold for $3,325 and twenty-one lots lying north of it brought $2,000 to $2,575 each. On Plympton Avenue, the 170th Street corner brought $2,800, and the inside lots $1,575 to $2,000.

At Boscobel and Plimpton Avenues, an irregular corner, about a lot in area, went for $2,850. On Plympton Avenue, north of Boscobel Avenue, the bids ranged from $800 to $1,150. The price for the southeast corner of Plympton Avenue and 172d Street, 25 by 96, was $2,125. Along Nelson Avenue, between Boscobel Avenue and 172d Street, lots were struck down at from $800 to $1,100 each.

Another Sale of 574 Fifth Avenue.

Tucker, Speyers & Co. have sold for C. Grayson Martin to R. M. Haan, proprietor of the Hotel St. Regis, 574 Fifth Avenue, a six-story business building, on plot 25 by 100, adjoining the new Howard Building, at the southwest corner of Forty-seventh Street and Fifth Avenue, for $425,000. These brokers have sold this property four times in the last four years, the first sale having been made for Miss Cornelia B. Nash to Jessie C. Woodhull on April 29, 1903, for $222,500. MORTGAGE CONDITIONS.

Contention That Statistics Do Not Reflect Present Situation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Tuesday, April 23, you published a letter from Mr. John L. Parish. Mr. Parish's figures are undoubtedly occurote, and if they were to be taken on their face would seem to disprove the repeated cry of "tight money." But Mr. Parish overlooks in his comparisons between 1906 and 1907 two all-important facts—first, that the quoiity and not quantity of the mortgages recorded indicate occurately what money conditions are, and, second, how great the demaod is for mortgages at this time, as compared with that of a year ago. As to quality, interest rates are higher this year than last, but the main difference lies in the fact that, whereas under normal conditions a loan of two-thirds of o fair valuation was olways obtainable, a much larger margin is demanded at present, excopt on very high-closs property.

Although the total in dollars and cents of mortgages recorded so far this year may be greater than for the same period last year, the demand and need for loans is far in excess of last year's. If the supply were equal to the demand the total of recorded mortgages for this year would show an even greater excess over that of last year. The outcry, therefore, of tight money seems to be justified becnuse builders, operators, and investors are obliged to take small loans, pay high interest rates and liberal fees for procuring them, whereas if money were plentiful these conditions would not exist.

Another very important item which Mr. Parish overlooks is the enormous number of second mortgages recorded this year, as compared with last year, and included in the figures quoted by him. This latter phase must be seriously considered, in discussing whether money is hard to get or plentiful.

G. RICHARD DAVIS.

is the synonym for all that "Country Life" implies, yet it is NOT TOO COUNTRY. It stands for the locality where all the healthfulness of out-door living is combined with city conveniences. No "roughing it" in any sense of the term. Beautiful streets, macadamized; sewers, cement sidewalks and gutters; shade trees in abundance. The homes are artistic, comfortable, and roomy. Every possible want forestalled.

We offer you a nine-room house, brick, steam heat, quartered oak, parquet floors on first floor, selected oak and chestnut trim throughout. Cemented cellars. Decorations, fixtures, mantels, etc., combining usefulness with good taste. Plot 75x100 ft. Price $8,750. Liberal discount or rental payments.

Highly restricted property. Fine schools; low taxes. Uptown New York in twenty minutes via Trolley to 130th Street Ferry, and downtown in forty-five minutes, by same route and Subway at Manhattan Street (125th Street,) or Northern R. R. to Jersey City.

Ask the Farmers and the Market Gardeners of Long Island

Is there any money in buying acres? They are all rich.

We are actually at the dawn of Spring, and from this hour we will find sunshine and the splendor of the green fields, the earth upturned everywhere to receive the seeds which decorate the fertile fields of Long Island.

150,000 people this Spring will enjoy the comforts and pleasures of Suburban Life, suburban to New York, who were occupants of Flats and Apartment Houses a year ago. The great activity in Real Estate during the year 1906 induced them to either buy or rent in the suburbs, and before another year a greater number will emigrate. Electric car lines are building in every direction on Long Island; Rapid Transit Trains are increased, and the great reading, wage-earning public are bound to get out and breathe the air and enjoy the sunlight where life looks sweeter and homes more happy. Every paper published in Greater New York has repeatedly stated in its columns "Long Island is the one and only place to live. The best channel to place your money."

THE INVESTMENT ON LONG ISLAND WAS $600,000,000.

$250,000,000 WAS MADE BY THE MARKET GARDENER ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE REAL ESTATE OPERATOR ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE SMALL INVESTOR ON LONG ISLAND

BELIEVE US, DEAR READERS, TO-DAY WE ARE ACTUALLY AT THE BEGINNING

350,000 people dropped into New York last year. An equal amount will be ushered in this year. Some of them building, buying or renting. It means New York Suburban Real Estate will improve from 20 to 50 per cent. before April 1st, 1908. Have you a desire to make money? Make it quick?

LET US LEAD YOU INTO DAYLIGHT, INTO THE PROMISED LAND OF PROSPERITY

We do not ask you $500 to $1,000 a lot, or $1,000 to $2,500 per acre, but will, during this sale, show you one-half acre plots (10 city lots) at a sum less than you can buy a lot in the suburbs for,

enough land to raise your own vegetables, raise your own chickens, keep a cow and a horse, if necessary; a spot large enough to receive all the pleasures Nature can give. Buy the land on your terms and in a few years build to suit yourself.

Any Wage Earner Can Buy—Any Investor Can Purchase

You are not giving up your life's earnings to pay for it. It is within your means and just what you want. Located in the most natural and fertile field of Long Island,

BAYSHORE

About one hour out by express trains now; electricity will make it 40 minutes in the near future; 6,000 people there enjoying the comforts and pleasure on the Great South Bay, where there is Rural Home Life, splendid schools, churches, hotels and over 100 business houses; just far enough away to be strictly suburban to New York, with many trains to and from the city.

POLICE ACCUSED OF AIDING CROOKS

Jerome Seizes Blotter of the Church Street Station in Graft Inquiry.

IMMIGRANTS ARE ROBBED

Prisoners Bailed on Minor Charge and Disappear—Grand Jury Will Hear Case To-day.

By probing what appears to be a "doctored" entry on the blotter of the Church Street Police Station, District Attorney Jerome, aided by Assistant District Attorney Garvan, opened yesterday a strange case, which upon closer investigation seems to indicate an understanding between the police and the confidence men who are fleecing ignorant immigrants, for the protection of the crooks.

For several hours in the District Attorney's office yesterday Mr. Jerome and his assistant subjected everybody concerned with the entry to a severe grilling, and then announced that all those examined had been subpoenaed to appear befors the Grand Jury to-day to tell what they know of the case. This move was made in an effort to facilitate the exposition of the supposed conspiracy. Mr. Garvan also said that information would be furnished Commissioner Bingham about affairs in the Church Street Station that would lead to a housecleaning there.

The entry recorded the arrest on Wednesday afternoon of Frank Garibaldi, Joseph Getner, and Tony Klan at Rector and West Streets. "The prisoners are charged with fighting with each other, caueing a orowd to collect," it reads. "The first two named are also charged with attempting to flim-flam Klan." Charges of disorderly conduct are entered against all three. The arrest is credited to Detectives Crowley and Larken. The entry was made by Lieut. George Haerle, Jr.

Bail Accepted; Men Disappear.

According to the information gathered by Mr. Jerome yesterday, Garibaldi and Getner should have been held on charges of grand larceny. It is said that the two, who are supposed to be confidence men, masquerading under fictitious namee, stole $300 from Klan, whose real name is Kleinunuas, and from a friend of his named Sam Franz. Although Kleinunuas and Policemen George F. Herold and Abraham Minnerly of the Traffic Squad are said to have declared in the police station that thie robbery was committed, Lieut. Haerle entered merely the disorderly conduct charges.

Bail at the rate of $500 each was accepted for Garibaldi and Getner by Lieut. Haerle from Joseph Natale, a saloonkeeper of 18 Trinity Place. They were immediately liberated, while Kleinunuas was kept in a cell all night. The acceptance of thia bail was perfectly regular in a disorderly conduct case, but decidedly irregular in a grand larceny casc. A lieutennnt behind the desk in a police station is prohibited by law from taking such bail in a grand larceny case.

Both Garibaldi and Getner have disappeared. The bail offered for them by Natale was declared forfeited by Magistrate House in the Tombs Police Court yesterday. When their disappearance became known, an order is said to have gone forth from Police Headquarters to the police of the Church Street Station to find them within twenty-four hours under pain of "being broken." Mr. Garvan said yesterday afternoon that they undoubtedly would be found before this morning.

Lieut. Haerle's Explanation.

In explaining the entry to Mr. Jeroms, Lieut. Haerle declared that Kleinunuas told him several times that he had not been robbed. Under ths circumstances, Haerle said, he entered only a charge of disorderly conduct against the prisoners. Mr. Jerome demanded an explanation of how the bondsman was obtained for Garibaldi and Getner. He asked Haerle if a letter had been sent to Natalc. Haerle replied that none had been sent with his knowledge. When Natale was examined he declared that he had received a letter.

An explanntion of what be meant by saying that Garibaldi and Getner had tried to "flim-flam" Kleinunuas was demanded of Haerle by Mr. Jerome. Finally he said that he supposed that Garibaldi and Getner had tried to throw the responsibility of their disorderly conduct on Kleinunuas.

The Church Street Station is now in charge of Capt. Edward Gallagher, who in the recent shake-up was transferred there from an uptown precinct. Mr. Jerome said that he had received many complaints about the police in this station in the past, but had never been able to obtain anything definite about their actions. Mr. Jeromo also said that Harold and Minnerly have good records on the police force and are thoroughly reliable men.

It was Magistrats House who caused Mr. Jerome's investigation. He scentcd something suspicious in the case when Kleinunuas was arraigned before bim yesterday morning in the Tombs Police Court on the disorderly conduct charge, and notified the District Attorney'e offics of his suspicions. Magistrate House said later that he had been told by a friendly policeman that the entry on the blotter in the case had been "doctored."

How the Game Was Worked.

What appears to be the true story behind the entry that Mr. Jerome unearthed is a phase of the "lemon" game, and is as follows:

Two Russians, Tony Kleinunuas and Sam Franz, who had lived in this country two years, decided to return to their native land. During their sojourn here they had always lived in Russian communities, and consequently had learned little English. They came to New York from East St. Louis with the intention of sailing to-day on a steamer bound for Europe.

On Wednesday afternoon they went to Bischoff's money exchange, at Broadway and Park Place, and sxchanged their American money for Russian rubles. They received about 600 rubles, which in our money is worth about $300. Tony took 416 of the rubles and gave his friend the rest. As they emerged from the exchange store they were approached by Garibaldi and Getner.

Learning from the emigrants that they were going to Europe on a certain steamer, Garibaldi said that he and Getner had engaged passage on the same vessel. Garibaldi discussed the trip in a friendly way, and it was finally decided that he and his friend should join forces with Kleinunuas and Franz. Garibaldi suggested that they make Getner treasurer for the party and turn over to him all the funds. Ths rubles were handed ovsr without hesitation.

While the party were walking through Rector Street, Tony suddenly reconsidered his action in delivering ths rubles to his new friends and demanded them back. A quarrel ensued, and a blow made Tony's nose bleed.

"There's your money!" said Garibaldi, thrusting a newspaper into Tony's pocket, and he and Getner started to run down Rector Street. But Tony was not convinced that he had his monsy. He started off in pursuit and Franz joined in the chase.

Traffic Policeman Herold, who ie assigned to duty in front of Pier 4, saw the party running As they came nearer Garibaldi darted off in one direction and Getner in the opposite. Herold pursued Garibaldi and caught him in a saloon. Traffic Policeman Minnerly, on duty at ths foot of Reotor Street, saw the trouble and chased Getner, catching him after a brief run. Kleinunuas also was arrested.

The policemen took their prisoners to the Church Street Station, where Lieut. Haerle sat behind ths desk. It was 4:15 by ths clock on the wall when they entered the station. There they searched the prisoners. On Kleinunuas they found the newspaper Garibaldi had thrust into his pocket. It contained some stage money. On Garibaldi they found a note for 100 rubles, some Confederate money, and some imitation banknote certificates issued as advertisements by a firm that makes banknotes. Nothing was found on Getner.

Then, according to Mr. Garvan, who gave out the story of the investigation, William H. Crowley, a plain-clothes man attached to the Church Street Police Station, appeared. He told Herold and Minnerly that he and his partner, Larken, would take charge of the case. He said that Herold and Minnerly could act as witnesscs when the case came up in court. Then the entry was made on the blotter the prisonere were taken back to the cells, and Herold and Minnerly left.

When the case was called in the Tombs Court yesterday only Kleinunuas appeared. According to Mr. Garvan, Crowley told Minnerly to make an affidavit charging Kleinunuas with disorderly conduct, and Minnerly did so. Magietrato House questioned the prisoner, and then discharged him. Without betraying his intentions to the policemen, Magistrate House then notified the District Attorney's office about the case, and Mr. Jerome turned it over to Mr. Garvan for investigation.

Police Blotter Seized.

Mr. Garvan immediately disturbed the quiet of the Church Street Station. He seized the blotter and other evidencs and carried it away with him to his office. Then he summoned Lieut. Haerle, the four policemen, and the two emigrants. Mr. Jerome and he then examined them one at a time. All the statements conflicted. But sufficient informnfion was received to warrant Mr. Jerome's presenting the case to the Grand Jury and furnishing Commissioner Bingham with some interesting data about the way the game was worked.

While the investigation was in progress Mr. Jerome had occasion to leave the room in which it was being held. In the elevator he discovered Lieut. Haerle, who had been put in another room and told to stay there until he was called.

"Where did you get on this car?" demanded Mr. Jerome.

Lieut Haerle wns confused. He muttered some reply.

"Come with me," said Mr. Jeroms, taking him to the room in which the investigation was being held.

The elevator man said Lieut. Haerle had entered the car on the General Sessions floor, which is one floor below where the investigation was held.

ASK $8,000 FOR MILK BOOTHS.

League Wants City's Aid in the Free Distribution in Parks This Summer.

For the purpose of distributing pasteurized milk during the Summer to as many babies and children as possible, a committee from the Pure Milk League, headed by its physician, Dr. John A. Hsydan, attended the meeting of the Park Board yesterday and presented this resolution for indorsement by tho Commissioners:

Whereas, The Board of Park Commissioners has been urged by the Woman's Municipal League, the Little Mothers' Aid Association, the People's Institute, and the Cooper Civic Club to increase the number of milk stations in the public parks in order to put supplies of pasteurized milk within the reach of the thousands of babies and children who congregate in the parks;

And Whereas, Mr. Nathan Straus has consented to increase the supplies of milk for such stations, to provide pasteurized milk in nursing bottles as well as by the glass, and to bear all the cost of supplying the pasteurized and modified milk and attendance;

And Whereas, The Summer season is close at hand when such provision of pasteurized milk will greatly lessen the prevalence of disease in the congested sections of the city; therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Board of Park Commissioners make application to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for an emergency appropriation of $8,000 to erect booths in the parks of the city in which facilities can be had for the dispensing of milk to infants and children.

Resolved, That the Board of Estimate be urged to give speedy and favorable action to this request in order that such boothe may be ready for us early in June, when the use of impure milk becomes most serious to the healtb and lives of tho children.

The committee explained that tho league would give special care to cases of poverty. Where parents were unabls to provide pasteurized milk ordered by physicians, tickets would be obtainable from the league for a free supply. In any case the cost of the milk would not be higher than 1 cent a glass.

W. W. Mills said he supposed the appropriation would have to come from revenue bonds.

"In that case the quickest way to start the matter would be to have the appropriation go through the Board of Aldermen," suggested Commissioner Michael J. Kennedy of Brooklyn. "In fact, that is the only way the appropriation can be made."

President Herrman and Commissioner Kennedy assured the committes that the project had the sympathy and approval of the board.

ALIENISTS SEE J. B. HAMMOND.

It Seems That His Friends Were Not Consulted About Committing Him.

Drs. Smith Ely Jelliffe and Allan McLane Hamilton, the alienists, had James Bartlett Hammond, the aged inventor of the Hammond typewriter and President of the Hammond Typewriter Company, under observation in the psychopathic ward at Bellevue Hospital yesterday afternoon for half an hour. They afterward talked with Dr. M. S. Gregory, the rssident alienist.

With the alienists at the talk was Alexander Brough, a lawyer, of 150 Nassau Street, representing James B. Hammond's interests. Mr. Brough has erroneously been said to represent tbe interests of Thomas F. Hammond, the inventor's brother, on whose complaint, supported by that of Albert Bryce, a former manager of the typewriter company, he was committed to Bellevue.

Mr. Brough said yesterday that he represented James B. Hammond and tho Hammond Company and that the present proceedihg had been taken by Thomas F. Hammond without his, Mr. Brough's, knowledge and without conenltation with any of Mr. Hammond's relatives, friends, or business aesociates.

SAVED THE TENANTS WITH IRONING BOARD

Policeman Abbott Got Thirty Out of a Burning Flat-house.

BRIDGE 'TWIXT WINDOWS

Firemen and Police Got Out the Rest When the Old Chemist's Rooms Spread the Flames.

Perhaps the fire with which hie neighbors say he is trying to make diamonds burned too brightly in the room of Karl Modes, on the ground floor of the flat-house at 735 East 156th Street, yesterday morning, or perhaps something went wrong with his retorts and specimene of ore. Or even, maybe, the vulgar explanation of the policeman near Third Avenue that a lamp exploded ie correct.

Anyway, a few hours later the tenants were curiously digging over the ruins of Modes's rooms in a eearch for the fabled diamonds, while about them were others who cursed the old man in Lebanon Hospital for ths narrow escapes from death by fire which they had had. Above their heads the building for the whols of its five stories was a wreck, and many of them had lost all their household goods.

That they did not lose their livea as well was due in large measure to the action of a policeman, who went from floor to floor in the burning building, bridging ths gap to the next house with an ordinary ironing board, which he politely returned later in the day to the woman who had lent it to him on the top floor of the blazing building. Other rescues were made by a policeman, who leaped from the top of one building to a fourth-story fire escape of another. The firemen also carried down many people.

Modes, who was credited with alchemic propensities by many of the Hungarians living in the house, had long ago ceased to excite wonder. Thsy told strange tales of seeing him about the place at all houre of the night, going to the cellar with a lantern.

"Whatever he does he does at night," they decided, and then let the matter drop.

Polite and Resourceful Rescuer.

It was a little before 2 o'clock in the morning when Policeman Richard Abbott of the East 100th Street Station, who had had a night off in plain clothes to look for burglars, saw flames coming out of old Modes's windows. After sending in an alarm he dashed into the house, arousing the tenante on every floor. By the time ho rsached the top floor, he found, as he said yesterday, that the fire had kept pace with him. From Modes's outer door it had spread through the hallways to every floor of the house. On the top floor he guided William Schroff and his wife, who had a baby in her arms, to the roof of the house next door on the east.

"Is there an ironing board in your flat?" he asked Mrs. Schroff before he left her.

She said there was.

"May I borrow it for a little while? I'll return it in the morning," he asked.

Having got permission, he went back to the Schroff flat and fetched the ironing board. It was then impossible for any one in the house to use the stairways.

Abbott returned to No. 737, the house on the east of ths burning building, and, descending to the fourth floor, pushed ths board across the airshaft to a bedroom window in the house of flame. Across this bridge he traveled until he was able to break in the bedroom window. Then he entered the room. His shouts brought the tonants on ths floor into the room. Thomas Elmer, his wife, and two children were taken across, and then two women with babies and a man.

After ehe had got across to safety Mrs. Elmer discovered that one of her children, a baby, was missing. Abbott returned to her floor and brought the baby back. Then once again Abbott went across his bridge.

"Everybody off this floor?" he shouted.

Glad He Stayed on the Job.

Hearing no answer, he removed his bridge and carried it to the third floor. Here he repeated ths process, taking thie time some fifteen or twenty persone out of the building. Then he cleared the eastern sido of the second floor in the same way. In each case, after laying the ironing board bridge, he went to the floor on which he was trying to save lives before allowing any one to cross. There were twenty families in the house at the time of its burning, and it was cstimated by some of the policemen that Abbott had saved nearly thirty pereons.

"About two minutes before I heard the glass falling that told me there was a fire," said he yesterday, "I had been thinking of getting a glass of beer. If I had got that beer some of those people would have died. But Providence was good and didn't let mo drink that beer."

While Abbott was doing his share of the rescuing other policemen and firemen arrived. One of them dragged old Modes from his blazing room and sent him to Lebanon Hospital, badly burned about the face and hands. Policemnn Belton hurried to the roof of the house on the west and then leaped down toward the rear fire escape on the burning tenement. He missed it at ths fifth floor, but managed to catch it a floor lower down.

It was a muecular effort for him to keep his hold, owing to the force of his fall, but he did. When he had recovered he climbed to the rooms of August Steigert, in the third-story rear, whence he passed Mrs. Steigert to firemen below. As he was about to climb upward again, Mrs. Steigert, who speaks little English, managed to make him understand that there was a baby in her flat, too. Though his hair and eyebrows were singed in the effort, Belton went back and eaved the baby.

Then Belton, with George Mosher and Patrick Rohan of Insurance Patrol No. 6, went to the top floor. There they helped out John Crowley, his wife, and two children. Mrs. Crowley, who was the last to leave, called out to her sister, whom the rescuers did not see:

"Go to the roof!"

Country Cousin Lost in Smoke.

Mrs. McGovern, the sister, was visiting Mrs. Crowley. Not being used to the structurs of a flathouse, she had not the slightest idea of where the roof was to be found. So with a baby in her arms she groped about in the smoke-filled hallway until Mosher returned. From ths fourth floor Mosher and Rohan also carried down Mrs. Striger and two children. The woman was loath to go.

"I cannot find Emil! I cannot find Irma!" she moaned.

Once on the ground she found the two missing children, Emil, seven years old, and Irma, five.

"How did you get down?" she asked. Irma answered: "After you woke us and went in the other room Irma got Emil to go down. Emil was afraid. He nearly fell off the fire escape; but Irma wasn't afraid, and she made him go down."

To relieve her feelings Mrs. Striger spanked Emil.

"He gave his little sister so much trouble," she said.

At the front of the house firemen with a ladder rescued Joseph Zimmerman and his wife, Sarah, an aged couple, after they had become unconscious. With the exception of old Modes, all of the tenants escaped without great injury, though Mrs. McGovern and William Schroff were slightly burned.

After it was all over and some of the tenants were seeking old Modee's diamonds beneath the burned boarde, the odd-shaped receptacles, the books, and the ore specimens that covered the floor, Policeman Abbott carrying the ironing board sought Mrs. William Schroff in her new quarters next to the burned house.

"Here's your ironing board, Madam," said he, "I'm very much obliged. I said I'd return it."

SHELL GAME FOOLS COURT.

Magistrate Cornell No Sharper Than Victims—Jail for Bunko Men.

Magistrate Cornell tried his hand at an Italian substitute for the old familiar "shell game" in open court yesterday and failed to pick the winner as gracefully as any farmer who ever tried it.

It was when Carmine del Gostina of 510 East 102d Street and Luigi Natella of 2,248 First Avenue were arraigned before ths Magistrate, charged with vagrancy, that the game was worked. The police complained that the men were gamblers and worked the Italian shell game.

The police showed the court three leather covered blocks of wood, in imitation of a pocketbook, leather band and all, under one of which wae a slip of green paper in imitation of a bill. The Magistrate was interested and asked Carmine to show him how it worked. Then the Italian dexterously manoeuvred the "leathers," and the Magistrate positively declared:

"That's where it is."

But it wasn't, and after the laughter had subsided the Magistrate committed both men to the workhouse for six months and instructed the police to take the gambling tools away from the Italians, or they would get rich over on the island.

SPECIAL PANEL FOR BURNHAM

President of the Mutual Reserve Company to be Tried on May 6.

District Attorney Jerome applied yesterday to Justice O'Gorman in the Supreme Court for a special panel from which to select jurors for the trial of Frederick A. Burnham, President of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, who is under indictment for grand larceny, for the mismanagement of the company's funds, and for forgery in making false entries in the company's books. In making his application the District Attorney said that the trial of Burnham would begin before Justice Greenbaum in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on May 6. Justice O'Gorman took the District Attorney's application under consideration, and argument on it will be made to-morrow.

Justice Greenbaum, who is to preside at the trial, is already familiar with the case. It was before him that George Burnham, Jr., a brother of President Burnham, was tried and convicted of grand larceny, also in connection with his handling of the Mutual Reserve's funds. He is now in Sing Sing.

WESTINGHOUSE STOCK ISSUE.

$5,000,000 of Common Shares Offered to Present Holders at $75.

An offering of $5,000,000 of the $25,000,000 common stock of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, authorized a ycar ago when the capitalization of the company was increased to $50,000,000, was announced yesterday, giving to etockholders of record of May 4 rights to subscribe to the new securities at $75 per share.

The stock of the company, which has a par value of $50 per share, is quoted on the Stock Exchange on the percentage basis which would put the rate at which tho company offers the new stock at 150. In yesterday's market 650 shares were sold from 144¼ down to 143¼.

An officer of the company said yesterday that the Directors had full confidence that the stockholders would take the entire issue. No syndicate has been formed to underwrite it.

If the stock is all taken at the premium demanded, the issue will supply $7,500,000 of new funds which will be devoted to improvements and extensions of the Pittsburg plant.

112 BUILDINGS BURNED.

MILLER'S FALLS, Mass., April 25.—One hundred and twelve buildings at Lake Pleasant, two miles from here, were burned to-day, causing a loss estimated at $115,000. The burned buildings included a hotel, several stores, Post Office, dancing pavilion, the headquarters of the New England Spiritualist Camp Meeting Association, and about 100 cottages. The fire was caueed by the explosion of a lamp in the cottage of George F. McKinney.

The settlement is controlled by the Spiritualist Camp Meeting Association, and le divided into two sections, the Uplands and the Lowlands. Practically every building in the Lowlands was destroyed, only tho railroad station and five or six cottages remaining.

Most of the cottages were of light construction and were not appraised highly, costing probably between $300 and $400 each. The hotel, the Lake Pleasant House, was a wooden structure of 125 rooms and was valued at $10,000.

BOND THEFT PLOT TOLD TO QUINCY

SAID SUM WAS $1,000,000

Urged Quincy to Take Large Fee and Act for Those Implicated.

SOME THINGS UNEXPLAINED

Quincy Promises to Fill Gaps in Story When Fully Informed of Confessions Made.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 26.—Josiah Quincy, ex-Mayor of Boston, now a bankrupt, told to-day a strange story of his connection with the persons involved in the great Trust Company of America bond robbery, or as much of it as he thought fit to make public at this time. The chapters that were related, covering in substantial detail the events of the four days preceding the crisis and the day of the arrest of Douglas, form one of the most remarkable developments of a criminal case that is perhaps without precedent in American finance.

Broken in spirit and health as well as in fortune, the man who was once a leading Democratic figure of New England gave an account of things that made him a victim of circumstances in his temporary connection with Oliver M. Dennett and William O. Douglas, but there remained when he was done to-night some chinks to be filled.

Mr. Quincy frankly admitted this and promised more when it might appear what references to him were contained in the confessions of Dennett and Douglas to District Attorney Jerome to-day.

In fact, all that he had to say from one end of the day to the other was said in the light of his original remarkable statement to newspaper men who sought him out:

"It must be obvious to you gentlemen that I know more about this matter than has appeared thus far."

Talked of $1,000,000 Theft.

But as to the conspiracy of Douglas and Dennett to rob the Trust Company to the extent to which it was revealed to him in personal meetings with one of the principals as far back as Wednesday of last week and by subsequent interviews with them that were separated hardly by hours from the time of the exposure of last Saturday morning, Mr. Quincy was explicit. And these assertions of what Mr. Dennett told him placed the total amount of the bonds stolen at figures far in excess of any of those which have previously appeared. In fact, the first version that Mr. Quincy received from Dennett had it that $1,000,000 of bonds had been taken.

Later on this amount was reduced by a matter of $750,000, which may be traced with approximate accuracy, now that it is known that nearly $200,000 of bonds had been taken prior to the time when detection seemed assured, that $400,000 were taken on Friday, when Douglas was living in expectation of making his final break the following day, and another $50,000 on the Saturday morning of the exposure.

Incidentally Mr. Quincy cleared another point that has been figuring in the case pretty largely thus far. He admitted frankly that he was the man to whom the rumors had referred, which coupled to the Trust Company of America case the failure of the Seventh National Bank, six years ago this Summer. For he was a director of the Seventh National Bank, brought in there as a member of the syndicate which Perry Heath and Fletcher had organized. His resignation antedated by some months the failure.

There was another Bostonian in that case whose memory has lingered in Wall Street's mind. He was Harry Bates, Josiah Quincy's financial nemesis, but Bates has been dead two years, and what appears of him later in this writing is of the past and not the present. There seems now no other man "higher up," save the present self-explained victim of circumstances.

Mr. Quincy's First Statement.

Mr. Quincy was early at his office at 15 State Street this morning and received New York reporters who came to him with certain information, pointing to some positive connection between himself and the men concerned in the Trust Company of America robbery. He talked briefly to these men, said hardly more than the words quoted above, and then went into conference with his counsel, Col. William A. Gaston, now the active head of the Democratic State machine here, and the active man in the Boston traction system.

Col. Gaston, Josiah Quincy, and President Roosevelt were all at Harvard together, and the two men first mentioned have been firm friends for years through personal and social associations. At noon Mr. Quincy gave out this statement, but agreed to receive reporters later on, when more had been heard from New York:

"The little information which I have as to the Douglas-Dennett affair in New York is given an altogether exaggerated importance in the press this morning. Some eight years ago I had a very slight acquaintance with Mr. Dennett as cashier of the Beacon Trust Company here. I never saw him or knew anything of him from that time until he called himself to my recollection at the Manhattan Club on Wednesday morning, April 17, when he asked me if I was practicing law and would consider taking up a matter about which he desired to consult me. I listened to what he had to say, both then and later in the afternoon, as the situation of which he gave me a general outline, which he did without mentioning any names, either of institutions or individuals or criminally implicating himself, was evidently of a serious nature. I spent the next two days, Thursday and Friday, in Boston.

"On Saturday I met Mr. Dennett again at the club and informed him that I had EAMES DIVORCE REPORT IN.

Said to Favor the Singer—Sixty Pages of Testimony Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 26.—It became known in White Plains to-night that hearings in the divorce action brought in the Supreme Court in Westchester County by Mme. Emma Eames, the opera singer, against her husband, Julian Story, have been ended by the referee, Frank M. Buck of Mount Vernon.

It is generally believed that Mr. Buck has filed a report recommending that an interlocutory decree be issued in favor of Mme. Eames.

Mr. Buck refused to-night to tell in whose favor he had decided or whether he had filed his report with the court or not, but he admitted that the hearings had been finished. The testimony, he said, covered sixty typewritten pages.

Mr. Buck would reveal nothing whatever about the nature of the testimony, nor would he tell the name of the Philadelphia woman whom Mme. Eames is said to have named as co-respondent. It is probable that little information in regard to these matters will ever reach the public. Every effort has been made by the attorneys for both sides to keep the proceedings secret. The hearings were held in private, and the lawyers will undoubtedly ask the court to order that all the papers in the case, except the judgment be sealed, so that not even the County Clerk, with whom they must be filed, can see their contents.

The next step in the proceeding, provided, as is generally expected, that the referee has found in favor of Mme. Eames, will be for her attorneys to apply to the court for a confirmation of the report. If this is granted an interlocutory judgment will be entered, provisionally granting the divorce, but this judgment will not be final until three months have expired. The decree can then be made absolute, and the plaintiff will then be entitled to marry again.

Justice Arthur F. Tompkins granted the application appointing the referee, and it is more than likely that the case will come before him at special term, but it can be dealt with by any other Justice in the Second Department. It could not be ascertained last night whether Mr. Story had made any defense, but it is known that he was represented by counsel. Mme. Eames, it is known, however, attended the sessions and furnished a large amount of the testimony.

Mr. Story is now in Philadelphia. Mme. Eames is in Chicago with the Conried Opera Company, which is finishing its season on the road.

TUG LOST, CAME IN ALONE.

Dismasted Ship Rigged Up Sails and Got to Port Without Help.

The British ship Main, which left Bermuda on April 8 in tow of the tug Powerful, and lost the tug about 180 miles from New York, arrived in port last evening, under sail. Somewhere off the coast the tug is still cruising about trying to find her.

The Main left New York on March 3 with a load of case oil, bound for Calcutta. On March 5, when 150 miles southeast of Sandy Hook, she was dismasted in a gale, but succeeded in putting into Bermuda. There temporary repairs were made and she started for here in tow of the tug Powerful.

Continual bad weather marked the voyage and the Powerful, with only three tons of coal in her bunkers, was obliged to abandon the Main, and put in to New Bedford to fill her bunkers. The Powerful coaled and then put out to sea and spent four days trying to find her charge. In this she was unsuccessful, and on Tuesday she was obliged to run in here for more coal. She left Wednesday to renew the search.

FORCED INTO BURGLARY.

Yarn of Prisoner Caught with the Goods Fails to Impress Police.

When Mrs. Marie Weiss of 1514 Madison Avenue reached her apartment last night she found that while she had been away burglars had visited the apartment and made away with every portable thing of value. Other tenants had seen two strange men, each with a pack on his shoulder, leave the apartment house earlier in the afternoon.

Mrs. Weiss got a good description of the burglars, and then, with the aid of Policeman King of the East 104th Street Station, went burglar hunting, and at 102d Street and Park Avenue spied two strange men carrying packs. King caught one of the men, who said he was Louis Heyman, a baker, of 250 Third Avenue, and that the other man had forced him to become a burglar at the point of a pistol. He had some of Mrs. Weiss's property, and was locked up.

BATHERS, STICK TO THE SEA.

New Rule for Rockaway Which the Police Are Asked to Enforce.

The residents of Rockaway Beach have decided that hereafter when men and women don bathing suits they must not promenade up and down the boardwalk, frequent restaurants, or go down to the station to see their friends arrive. For several seasons persons thus attired have roamed about at will, but the decree has now gone forth that bathers must stay on the beach.

To obtain the aid of the police in their crusade, the residents sent a delegation of prominent citizens yesterday to confer with First Deputy Commissioner O'Keeffe. The Commissioner received the delegation, which was headed by Lawyer George Titcomb, in his office in the Police Headquarters Building, Brooklyn. Lawyer Titcomb, in addressing him, said that some of the bathers in the last few seasons had shown a scandalous disregard of modesty. Some of the suits worn by the women were altogether too abbreviated. Some of the skirts, in fact, he said, were hardly an apology for what that garment ought to be.

Fire Near Exposition.

NORFOLK, April 26.—Fire starting from a leaking gasoline lamp destroyed several frame buildings at Pine Beach, just outside of the Jamestown Exposition grounds, early to-day. Among the burned buildings were three two-story hotels. These were crowded, but the guests had arisen early, and there were no fatalities nor serious accidents.

The exposition's Fire Department saved adjoining property. The loss is about $7,500, with no insurance.

PARIS, April 26.—James Clinch Smith, brother-in-law of the late Stanford White, has returned to Paris. Although he was silent about the Thaw case in New York, he has spoken to intimate friends here without reserve.

A curious phase of the case is that Thaw was unaware that Smith was any relation of White until several days after the shooting, and that accounts for his endeavor on the fatal night to have Smith take under his protection the "brunette" mentioned in Smith's testimony at the trial, whom Thaw, anticipating trouble, evidently wanted to get rid of.

Mr. Smith is positive from the actions of both Thaw and his wife that some crime was premeditated, though he would never have imagined it would be murder. Smith stood near Evelyn Thaw when Thaw left her to seek White. He says he noticed her extreme agitation at the time, and was not surprised when he heard a shot and saw a man prostrate. He was not aware it was White till later.

Mr. Smith says he has information that Thaw was much disturbed when he learned that he (Smith) was White's brother-in-law. Thaw wrote a letter to his attorneys, which is still in existence, telling them he had no idea of Smith's relationship when he talked with him on the fatal night.

Smith says he was not permitted to tell on the stand all these facts.

ALL LAUD MISS MARLOWE.

London Critics Are Captivated by Her Viola—Praise Sothern, Too.

Special Cablegram.

LONDON, Saturday, April 27.—Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe delighted the audience at the Waldorf Theatre last night with an artistic presentation of "Twelfth Night." The dramatic critics are captivated by the beauty and excellence of the performance and pay generous tribute to the American artists in their notices of the play. The Times says:

"Miss Marlowe was a bewitching Viola. No wonder Olivia was fascinated by this youth. She beguiled not only Olivia but the whole house last night to admiration. Here, then, is one of Shakespeare's true women. Whether she can be this or that other Shakespearean woman remains to be seen, but Viola she is, a delicious Viola, who sets the heart beating and the warm blood coursing in the veins.

"Mr. Sothern is an excellent Malvolio, quiet yet not tame; grave but not preternaturally grave; fantastic without undue extravagance."

The Standard speaks very highly of the performance, concluding as follows:

"Now that we have seen one of the Sothern-Marlowe Shakespearean attractions, we are anxious to see all the rest. 'Romeo and Juliet' should be a delight."

The Express says Miss Marlowe is a lovely Viola, and that Mr. Sothern's Malvolio is the clever, well-studied work of a practiced actor.

The Chronicle puts Miss Marlowe's Viola next to Ada Rehan's "incomparable rendering." Mr. Sothern it pronounces an admirable Malvolio.

SHOT ON PIMLICO TRACK.

William Dunn, Betting Commissioner, Wounded by a Woman.

BALTIMORE, April 26.—Excitement was caused during the races at Pimlico to-day by the shooting of William Dunn, a betting commissioner, by a woman, who says she is Mrs. Nina King of Buffalo. Dunn's home is understood to be in Elmira, N. Y.

Dunn saw what Mrs. King was about to do just in time to throw up his arm and there receive the bullet aimed at his head. The ball made a bad, but not a dangerous, wound. Mrs. King was placed under arrest and is held on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. She is said to have asserted that she was Dunn's wife.

WOULDN'T LIVE WITHOUT SON.

Butcher Hanged Himself After His Boy's Sudden Death.

Grief over the death of his son caused Julius Bahr, a butcher of Williamsburg, who lived at 209 Powers Street, to hang himself in the cellar of his home early yesterday morning. Two weeks ago his 22-year-old son, Ferdinand, who was a clerk in the Broadway Bank in Brooklyn, died of pneumonia.

The young man spent much of his leisure time at night playing the violin, and his father delighted in listening to him. When the son died Bahr became melancholy, and seemed to care for nothing. He arose at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and went to the cellar. There he made careful preparations for his suicide. Standing on a chair, he tied one end of a rope around his neck and the other end to a nail in a beam and then knocked the chair from under him.

Bahr was 50 years old. He was well known in Masonic and German singing societies, being a member of the Schiller Lodge, F. and A. M., and the Vice President of the Echo Quartet Club.

GIFTS BY ROCKEFELLER.

Property in Cleveland to His Son—$2,000,000 to Chicago University.

CLEVELAND, April 26.—John D. Rockefeller to-day transferred all his unimproved property in this city to his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

It is said that this step is taken because Mr. Rockefeller, feeling the warning of advancing years, wants his estate in such condition that it can be easily settled.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 26.—John D. Rockefeller made another princely gift to the University of Chicago to-day in land valued at more than $2,000,000. The strip extends from Madison Avenue to Cottage Grove Avenue, fronting the south side of the Midway Plaisance. It is his richest land donation to the university. Incidentally, Mr. Rockefeller obtained the land at a bargain by concealing his identity as its purchaser.

Deeds were filed in Chicago in the afternoon presenting the property to the university without a single condition attached. Some of the land was in the name of Mr. Rockefeller, and other portions of the strip were held by Edward V. Cary, Mr. Rockefeller's New York real estate agent.

The price paid for the land was $1,500,000, according to Wallace Heckman, business manager of the university. He placed its present value, however, at a "plump $2,000,000," as some of it was bought four years ago at a cheap figure. All the property was bought in individual strips and at different times during the last four years.

Mr. Rockefeller, it is said, conceived the idea five years ago of enhancing the university's campus and wealth by getting control of all the land on the South Drive of the Midway, as he had then just completed his purchases of the entire north side of the famous World's Fair drive.

Mr. Rockefeller's sub rosa methods of securing the land saved him close to $500,000. Some of the land was bought "dirt cheap," according to real estate dealers in Hyde Park.

This gift of land, placed above the $2,000,000 mark, makes close to a total donation of $5,000,000 to the University of Chicago from its founder this year. On New Year's Day it was announced that he had given within a few thousand dollars of $3,000,000. This is taken to mean as certain that Mr. Rockefeller's interest in the university is far from waning.

COUNTY ATTORNEY SLAIN.

Texas Lawyer Wires Gov. Campbell That He Had to Shoot a Ranger.

Special to The New York Times.

GROVETON, Texas, April 26.—H. L. Robb, County Attorney, and Jim Dunaway, a State Ranger, were shot and mortally wounded here to-day. The shots were fired from the second-story window of the Kinley Building, and R. O. Kinley, one of the leading lawyers of this section, has surrendered to the officers and confessed that he fired the shots that wounded Dunaway. Kinley sent the following telegram to Gov. Campbell:

"Dunaway came in to-day and I had to shoot him. Send Capt. Hughes immediately."

Capt. Hughes is commander of a State Ranger company. A telegram was received this evening from Gov. Campbell, stating that Capt. Hughes and four other Rangers would arrive here to-morrow.

TRIES TO ROB MRS. WARFIELD.

Negro Enters Stateroom Occupied by Maryland Governor's Wife.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 26.—A bold attempt was made by an unknown negro to rob Mrs. Edwin Warfield, wife of the Governor of Maryland, at 2:30 o'clock this morning in her stateroom on the new steamer Columbia, carrying the official guests from Maryland to the Jamestown Exposition.

All the party retired about midnight or earlier. A woman's scream startled those occupying state rooms near Mrs. Warfield's, Lynn R. Meekins, Secretary of the Maryland Commission, located those cries, and Gov. Warfield, who had been occupying another state room, hurried to Mrs. Warfield.

She said she was awakened by a noise and on looking up saw a large negro standing in the centre of the room as though attempting to locate her jewels and other valuables. She screamed, and the negro, putting his foot on the edge of the berth, crawled through the stateroom window. Before assistance came he had made his escape.

LAWSON SUIT SETTLED.

Copper Range Company's Title to $1,000,000 Involved Admitted.

BOSTON, April 26.—The $3,000,000 suit in equity brought by Paine, Webber & Co. against Albert C. Burrage, Thomas W. Lawson, and others to recover on a contract involving 701,000 shares of stock in the Copper Range Consolidated Mining Company, was brought to a settlement out of court some time between court adjournment yesterday and the resumption of the case to-day. Trial of the case before the Supreme Court closed abruptly to-day shortly after court opened.

The amount actually involved is about $1,000,000. The original amount of the Tri-Mountain debt was $840,000. Prior to the filing of the suit, A. C. Burrage had already paid on account of that debt $300,000 to the Copper Range Company, and he claimed in the litigation that he was entitled to recover the $300,000 already paid, together with interest on the total indebtedness of $840,000. The total amount involved is therefore figured as $840,000, with four years' interest, or approximately $1,000,000.

The title of the Copper Range Company to this entire amount has been admitted and confirmed by the terms of the settlement.

BONAPARTE, BOSS EMERITUS.

Attorney General Learns That He Has Been Deposed.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 26.—Attorney General Bonaparte, who has been designated here as an authority on political bosses, has located another species. Some time ago he discovered the "legalized boss"; now he calls himself "boss emeritus." When asked to-day if he had any comment to make upon Senator Raynor's sarcastic political references to him in a speech last night he said:

"About two years ago I learned from the Democratic papers and speakers of Baltimore that I had become Republican boss of the State. Recently I learned, on the same unimpeachable authority, that I had been deposed.

"Now that I am only boss emeritus I feel justified in giving more attention to other demands on my time and less to the utterances of leading lights in Democratic statesmanship and oratory."

DAVID WILLCOX DEAD; A SUICIDE AT SEA

Ex-Railroad President Shot Himself on the Barbarossa Last Wednesday.

ILL AT START OF VOYAGE

Report That He Lost Money in Stocks Denied—Made Noted Fight Against Coal Miners.

David Willcox, former President of the Delaware & Hudson Company, committed suicide at sea last Wednesday, while a passenger on the North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa, according to a report made to Health Officer Doty by Capt. Lengrenter at midnight last night, a few hours after the arrival of the steamer.

The Barbarossa is at Quarantine, where the steamer arrived last evening from Genoa and Naples, with the body on board. Upon the arrival of the liner it was reported that Mr. Willcox had died of heart disease. As he had been known to be in ill-health and had gone abroad recently in the hope of recuperating, it was no great surprise to his friends to learn that he had died.

Subsequent investigation, however, according to the Captain, developed evidence that Mr. Willcox had shot himself. In reporting the facts to Dr. Doty the Captain said that he had only a few moments before been made aware of the real cause of death. Dr. Doty said that he would make an investigation this morning. The vessel remained at Quarantine last night, and will come up to her pier this forenoon.

Mr. Willcox, broken in health, sailed some time ago, and about two weeks ago, because he had not obtained the benefit to his health that he sought, he cabled his resignation of the Presidency of the railroad, which was accepted by the Directors, who chose his successor in the person of Leonor F. Loree, once President of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Rock Island Railroads. At the time it was given out that Mr. Willcox's retirement from the Presidency of the Delaware & Hudson was prompted solely by ill-health.

A rumor was current at the time of his resignation that Mr. Willcox had lost a large sum of money in the March slump in stocks. This was denied by his friends.

Mr. Willcox was feeling ill, it was stated, when he took passage on the Barbarossa at Naples, April 13. He did not appear to improve, and on Wednesday was found dead in his stateroom. The thought of suicide did not then occur to those on shipboard.

The steamer is not equipped with wireless apparatus, and the death was not known here until Quarantine was reached. Mr. Willcox's home was in this city.

David Willcox was one of the few railroad Presidents who came into office through the practice of law. He was well known as a corporation lawyer and a writer on economic subjects. Before he became the executive head of the Delaware & Hudson he had been connected with the road for several years as its legal adviser. His legal acumen made him the leader of the hard-coal road Presidents in all of their many difficulties which required concerted action, and he became prominently before the public as the advocate of the railroads during the struggle with John Mitchell and the striking anthracite miners. Long before the Inter-State Commerce Commission directed its attention to the combinations among the big trunk lines the anthracite roads were hedged around with legal obstacles preventing anything like an avowed community of interests. The roads, however, always managed to act in concert in matters of policy, and Mr. Willcox, in speaking for the Delaware & Hudson, was tacitly understood to be the mouthpiece of all the anthracite roads.

During the coal strike of 1902 it was Mr. Willcox who made the appeal to the President on the ground that the coal strike was a conspiracy to hamper Inter-State commerce, which first brought out the application of the Sherman anti-trust law to the situation. His last public utterance on the question of the differences between the coal roads and their miners was during the anthracite labor trouble last year, when in a letter to John Mitchell he set forth the position of the employers so clearly and forcibly that the labor men backed down for lack of public support.

Mr. Willcox was born in Flatbush in 1850, and was graduated from Yale in 1872. He was valedictorian of his class. He studied law at Columbia and began to practice in 1874. He was a bachelor and lived at 3 East Sixtieth Street. Besides his official connections with the subsidiaries of the Delaware & Hudson, Mr. Willcox was a Director of the Southern Pacific and the Union Pacific. He retained these directorates at the time he cabled his resignation from the Presidency of the Delaware & Hudson.

Mr. Willcox was a member of many clubs, among them the Metropolitan, the Union, the University, the Century, the Union League, the New York Yacht, and the Tuxedo.

ALL OUT OF WASHINGTON.

President and His Entire Cabinet Leave the Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—For the first time in many years the President and his entire official family are absent from the National capital. Some of the members of the Cabinet accompanied the President to Jamestown, Secretary Wilson has gone to Pittsburg, Secretary Root to Clinton, N. Y.; Secretary Taft to Cincinnati to speak, Postmaster General Meyer to New York and Boston, and Attorney General Bonaparte to Boston.

The only other occasions upon which there have been similar withdrawals from Washington of the President and all of the heads of the executive departments within many years was in connection with the funeral of Secretary Gresham, when President Cleveland and all of the colleagues of the deceased Cabinet officer left Washington for Indiana on a special funeral train, and at the time of the death of President McKinley at Buffalo.

WARRANT REFUSED TO JUDGE.

He Wanted Assistant District Attorney of San Francisco Arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—Superior Judge Hebbard of this city, who was denounced by Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney last night in an address to the students of Stanford University, appeared before Police Judge Weller today and swore to a complaint asking for Heney's arrest on the ground of criminal libel.

Judge Hebbard visited the District Attorney's office later and demanded a warrant. It was refused. District Attorney Langdon subsequently said Judge Hebbard's conduct was such that he ordered him from his office.

A TOUR TO SEE WASHINGTON.

Last of the present season via Pennsylvania Railroad, May 2. A three-day outing, visiting principal points of interest. Rate, $12 or $14.50 from New York, covers necessary expenses according to hotel selected.—Adv.

ORDERED BARILLAS MURDER.

Assassins Say Prominent General Gave Them Their Instructions.

MEXICO CITY, April 26.—The details of the investigation into the assassination of Gen. Manuel Barillas, ex-President of Guatemala, who was stabbed to death here several weeks ago, were made public to-day.

The assassins, Morales and Mora, in their confession implicate men high in authority, declaring that they acted under orders of Gen. José Maria Lima, one of the most prominent men in Guatemalan political and military circles and an earnest supporter of President Estrada Cabrera.

They further declare that Lima furnished them with money to make the trip to Mexico City, and that it was their mission to assassinate Gen. Salvador Toledo also, but that he evaded them and left Mexico for Central America before the plot could be carried out.

ROOSEVELT TO FOGAZZARO.

Praises Italian Novelist's Work and Asks Him to Visit America.

ROME, April 26.—Signor Antonio Fogazzaro, the author, is delighted by the receipt of a letter from President Roosevelt praising his work and asking him to go to the United States.

In an interview to-day Signor Fogazzaro said he was writing a new novel dissimilar to any of his former works.

T. J. TAYLOR OFF ON VACATION

His Employes Will Take Six Months Off with Pay While He is Abroad.

Talbot J. Taylor, son-in-law of James R. Keene, who became conspicuous in Wall Street at the time of the disastrous Southern Pacific corner, which brought about his failure, will sail for Europe on May 1.

Mr. Taylor's office employes will have a vacation until his return and his office at 30 Broad Street will be closed. Two years ago Mr. Taylor went abroad, leaving his office force on the payroll, though his offices were closed, for six months.

SPEAKER CLEARS HOUSE.

Says He Will Put Arkansas Lobbyists in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 26.—Speaker Hamiter ordered the house cleared today, declaring that there are men in Little Rock who do nothing but lobby.

"I cannot transact the State's business for those who are trying to control legislation," he said. "I instruct the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest any man lobbying. If the people who are boodling and lobbying here don't quit I am going to send them to jail."

The members applauded the Speaker.

LEAVES PATENT OFFICE.

Commissioner Allen Resigns to Resume the Practice of Law.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The resignation of the Commissioner of Patents, Frederick I. Allen, has been tendered to President Roosevelt, effective June 1.

Mr. Allen will again take up the practice of law, which he gave up when he was appointed as head of the Patent Office April 1, 1901, which position he has held continuously since that time.

STUDENTS TIE UP JUDGES.

Bind Them to Trees and Leave Them There for the Night.

UPPER ALTON, Ill., April 26.—Having decided in favor of the sophomores in an oratorical contest at Shurtleff College last night, Prof. M. Mugan of St. Louis and E. M. Dey, general advertising agent for the Missouri Pacific system, two of the three judges, were seized by the freshmen, tied to trees on the campus, and left helpless until morning. Attorney Harold Johnson of St. Louis, the third judge, who voted in favor of the freshmen, was not molested.

Prof. Mugan and Mr. Dey struggled for hours to free themselves after being tied to the trees, but to no avail. Before dawn they were released and permitted to return to St. Louis.

CONCESSIONS TO OIL MEN.

Independents No Longer Have to Pay $105 on Returned "Empties."

CLEVELAND, April 26.—It is announced here to-day that the railroads have made a big concession to the independent oil men. The independents will no longer have to pay $105 for the return of an empty tank from the Pacific Coast to a refinery east of the Missouri River. A rate which, it is said, has been a big factor in the success of the Standard Company is withdrawn. Both moves are made in advance of the Inter-State Commerce Commission hearing to be held in Washington on May 21.

The readjustment of rates means that the Standard Oil Company loses an exclusive rate of 78½ cents a hundred from central freight and trunk line association territories to the western coast.

LAMPS AGAIN PUT OUT.

Striking Lighters Active on East Side —Conditions Unchanged.

The Inspectors of the Welsbach Street Lighting Company reported to the company yesterday forenoon that the striking lamplighters or their sympathizers had put out the lights which had been kept burning all night and through the day in different parts of the city. The largest of the sections affected was from Second Avenue to the East River between Forty-second and Eightieth Streets, where all the Welsbach lights were put out. A force of men was detailed to light the lamps again. Complaints were made to the Inspectors by the men who were working that some of the strikers had been making threats against them, and they were told that they would be protected by the police.

Meetings of striking lamplighters were held in Schuetzen Halle, 12 St. Mark's Place, and in Yonkers, Brooklyn, and Jersey City. In Jersey City, where naphtha lamps are used, the strike is against another company.

PRIVATE GALLERY BURNS.

Montreal Lawyer Loses $100,000 Worth of Pictures.

MONTREAL, April 26.—The residence of J. N. Greenshields, a criminal lawyer, on the slope of Mount Royal, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. The damages are put at considerably over $100,000 on account of the magnificent picture gallery which he possessed.

Warships of Many Nations Present—A Distinguished Foreign Representation.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, April 26.—President Roosevelt formally opened the Jamestown Exposition to-day, and in doing so served notice to all whom it may concern that neither political consideration nor the pressure of friends of the railroads had swerved him one particle from the course of action he had prescribed for himself in the effort to curb what he believes to be the unjust and illegal practices of corporate wealth. Being thus formally open for business, the Exposition will now settle down to a month or six weeks of hard work getting in shape to do that business. By that time it will be an exposition in fact as well as in name, and then visitors to it will be amply repaid for their travel and efforts.

The ceremonies to-day moved off without a hitch with the exception of the perilous crush that threatened to develop into a serious panic when the President began to speak. The weather was all that could have been desired, fair skies and a fresh breeze lending all that weather can to the enjoyment of a crowd. And there was a crowd. Probably 20,000 persons managed to get out to the Exposition grounds first and last, some by trolley, some by steam cars, most of them by boat, and a few wary and experienced ones by the slow but reliable horse and wagon route, not to overlook the lucky possesors of automobiles.

The official programme began with an omission which is one of the things that are not scheduled to be made up by and by. There was to have been a salute of 300 guns at sunrise, fired by the Norfolk Blues, the local artillery organization of the Virginia National Guard. That was one for each year since Capt. John Smith came ashore and laid the foundation for the Virginia colony. The guns were not fired because, as with the Governor of Guam, there was no powder. There is never going to be any powder. The Exposition Company thought the Blues should buy their own saluting ammunition, and the Blues were sure that if they were willing to get up before sunrise in order to shoot it up the Exposition certainly should be willing to pay for it. The difference of opinion being irreconcilable, the powder remained unbought and there was no salute.

Imposing Naval Spectacle.

But there was plenty of boom-booming from other guns than those of the Blues, and it kept up pretty much all day. The President had come down the Potomac in the converted yacht Mayflower, and was prepared very early in the morning for his part in the day's exercises. It began for him at 8:30, when the Mayflower steamed along the line of foreign warships anchored off the Exposition side of Hampton Roads. The seadogs of five foreign nations were there, separated by a wide stretch of gleaming water from a double line of white-sided men-of-war that were flying the Stars and Stripes. All the twelve foreigners and thirty-eight Americans were dressed in the best of their festival bunting, and together they made an inspiring spectacle for the throngs of people that crowded the water front along the Exposition grounds.

As the President's yacht swung by the first of the foreigners the guns began to roar, and then for an hour there was no cessation of the fire. Each foreign ship in its turn sent up the Stars and Stripes to the fore truck, and blazed away twenty-one times in its honor. Then the Mayflower swung up the line of American vessels, and each boomed out its salute to the President.

By the time all this saluting had been done and the review of the powerful aggregation of warships was ended there were not many minutes to spare in getting ashore by the hour fixed for the commencement of the formal inaugural ceremonies. There was a lot of sharp work to be done by the navy to get all the distinguished guests of the Exposition landed in comfort and order. But it was done just as smoothly and swiftly as if that were all the navy existed for. The Diplomatic Corps of twenty-one nations had come down from Washington as the guests of the United States on the Potomac River steamboat Newport News. The ship tied up at the dock at Old Point Comfort, and there a flotilla of steam cutters from the warships clustered about to transport the diplomats and their numerous attachés across the Roads to the Government pier at the Exposition grounds.

The steam dredger that is busy making a channel had been moved out of the way at the pier, and the launches came alongside of what is to be the landing at the pierhead. There their passengers debarked and prepared to march a couple of blocks through the dusty, unfinished streets to the grand stand at the parade ground, where the ceremonies were held.

Grant Safeguards President.

Unusual precaution for the safety of the President was taken then and throughout the entire day. There had accompanied him the usual contingent of Secret Service men, and there had preceded him several other special Treasury agents, who had been on the lookout to see that nothing untoward happened to Mr. Roosevelt. For some reason, Gen. Grant, the commander of the military forces encamped at the Exposition, was more than usually solicitous about the safety of his commander in chief. The recollection of the tragedy at Buffalo seemed to haunt both officials and sightseers, and many persons spoke of it. Gen. Grant took no chances. He lined the street up which the President passed from the pier to the grand stand with troops of the regular army. Tho men of the Twenty-third Infantry stood on both sides of the street, and held the crowd of sightseers far away from the Presidential party.

This precaution was not all. All that part of the grounds through which the President was to pass had been roped off with heavy lines, and soldiers and Exposition guards kept strict watch to prevent any not provided with proper authority from entering. It was those who had the tickets which entitled them within the roped inclosure who were held back by the men of the Twenty-third.

Thousands Massed Together.

Fifteen feet in front of the grand stand and paralleling it was stretched a stout rope, attached to strong posts, firmly set. Behind this rope massed a throng numbering thousands. It was sweltering hot in the sun, but they did not mind, and kept crowding closer and closer in order to get a glimpse of the President. Ranged directly in front of the Presidential box was a double line of photographers, the busiest men on the grounds. Their shutters kept up an incessant clicking. They formed a half-circle from one side of the box to the other, and unceasingly and without interruption they snapped and snapped, until it seemed as if they must have made a million photographs.

There was an awning over the President's box, and he was shaded from the hot sun. In the front row of seats at his right were posted most of the Ambassadors in the party. M. Jusserand, the French Envoy, with Mme. Jusserand; James Bryce, King Edward's representative, and Mr. Creel, the Mexican Ambassador, with Mrs. Creel; Baron Rosen and Viscount Aoki sat directly in the sun. They did their best to look as if they liked it, and when the President began to speak they promptly uncovered.

The first paragraphs of his speech were devoted to the diplomatic representatives, and as he turned to address himself directly to some of them he saw that they had removed their hats. Immediately he paused in his speech, and said:

"Put on your hats in the front row. We are not going to have any sunstrokes here."

The diplomats very willingly complied, and the good-natured crowd cheered heartily.

Men and Women Faint in Crush.

The crowd behind the rope pressed forward eagerly as the President was introduced. There had already been signs of trouble, and two or three times St. George Tucker, President of the Exposition Company, who spoke for an hour before Mr. Roosevelt began, had been forced to pause while the pressure on those against the rope was relieved. There were times when it looked as if a serious accident was about to happen. There were women and children in the front line, and they were forced against the rope so hard that several of the women and a few men fainted. Mr. Roosevelt saw the danger and spoke to Gen. Grant about it. The General sent for one of his officers and had a company of artillerymen from Fort Monroe brought inside the rope as guards. They forced back the crowd a little, and the danger was temporarily averted.

When the President was introduced he stepped up on a table in full view of the crowd, and addressed himself at once to the men directly in front of him.

"You men must remember that there are women and children in front of you, and if you push forward you will hurt them," he said. "I don't need to say any more to a crowd of Virginia men, who know how to care for their women and children."

That helped the situation a good deal, and presently Gen. Grant had a troop of cavalry brought up. The troopers forced their way into the crowd behind the ropes and pushed most of the people far enough back so that there was no more trouble.

Nothing to Push Button For.

At the close of the speech there was still a third omission. The President was to have pushed a gold button which was to start the machinery going, and thus formally open the Exposition, but there was no machinery in place to start. The button was on the table, in a leather case, and it was duly connected with wires that looked as if they ran straight to the wheels that were waiting to be set in motion. But the President knew the situation, and when he concluded his speech he just sat down and seemed to forget all about the button part of the programme.

Then followed what was described in the programme as a "light lunch." It was the most extraordinary performance of an extraordinary day. The President left the grand stand, surrounded by Secret Service men, army officers, and members of his immediate party, and walked to one of the unfinished Government buildings. He was followed by the diplomats and official guests, mingled with all the rest of the throng, in the grand stand. A room was set apart for the President and his own party, including Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Ethel and Quentin, but all the rest herded into one great barren room, partly draped with bunting, and foraged for themselves as best they could. In the corners temporary tables had been erected out of boards, and behind these the waiters dished up salad, sandwiches, and coffee.

"I say," said a tall Britisher, sweltering under a towering bearskin, "is this lunch an American institution?"

At the luncheon served to the President and the distinguished guests the menu was as follows:

Les Hors d'Oeuvre.
Homard a la Newburg.
Pigeons en Casserole. Petits pois nouveaux.
Asperges Hollandaises.
Jambon de Virginie Bellevue.
Salade fines herbes.
Fantaisie. Fraises au Kirsch.
Petits fours. Bonbon fourres. Cafe.
Champagne.
Apollinaris.

Back to the grand stand again the whole crowd pushed from the luncheon, to see the review of troops by the President. That was one part of the Exposition which was ready exactly on senedule time. It did not conform thoroughly to the programme, for there was an omission from it, too. The official announcement included men from the foreign warships, but somehow they did not get ashore. The marching column was made up mostly of regulars, soldiers, sailors, and marines, and a fine show they made. The parade ground had been cleared and roped off, and the crowd was far removed from any possibility of accidental crush.

Cheers for Uncle Sam's Sailors.

As the men marched by, with bands playing and flags flying, the throng in the grand stand cheered lustily. The regulars, infantry, artillery, and cavalry, all had hearty recognition, but the quality of the enthusiasm which the people all over the country have for the sailor men among Uncle Sam's fighters showed itself the moment there floated up to the stand from far down the parade ground the strains of "Nancy Lee," to which the first company of sailors marched. Then the grand stand simply stood up and yelled.

Immediately after the reception the President returned to the Mayflower.

Again the street was lined with the men of the Twenty-third, who kept the crowds far back. The President was escorted from the Auditorium to the pier by Troop H of the Twelfth Cavalry, which had cecorted him up in the morning.

The official guests went back to their ships, prepared to spend the evening at Old Point.

Mr. Roosevelt dined this evening with Barton Myers, one of the Governors of the Exposition. It had been announced that the dinner was to he at the house of St. George Tucker, President of the Exposition. In explanation of the change, it was said that the measles had broken out at Mr. Tucker's home.

On the President's trip up the James River to-morrow, the Sylph will stop at Westover, the home of the Byrds; at Brandon, the estate of the Harrisons, and the oldest Colonial mansion in Virginia, and at Shirley, the estate of the Carters. These three families are among the oldest in Virginia. The visits of the party were informally arranged with the occupants of these old mansions.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH.

Declares He Will Not be Deterred from Curbing Illegal Practices.

NORFOLK, April 26.—President Roosevelt, in opening the Jamestown Ter-Centennial Exposition, said:

"At the outset I wish to say a word of special greeting to the representatives of the foreign Governments here present. They have come to assist us in celebrating what was in very truth the birthday of this Nation, for it was here that the Colonists first settled, whose incoming, whose growth from their own loins and by the addition of newcomers from abroad, was to make the people which 169 years later assumed the solemn responsibilities and weighty duties of complete independence.

"In welcoming all of you I must say a special word, first to the representative of the people of Great Britain and Ireland. The fact that so many of our people, of whom as it happens I myself am one, have but a very small portion of English blood in our veins, in no way alters the other fact, that this Nation was founded by Englishmen, hy the Cavalier and the Puritan. Their tongue, law, literature, the fund of their common thought, made an inheritance which all of us share, and marked deep the lines along which we have developed. It was the men of English stock who did most in casting the mould into which our National character was run.

"Let me furthermore greet all of you, the representatives of the people of Continental Europe. From almost every nation of Europo we have drawn some part of our hiood, some part of our traits. This mixture of hiood has gone on from the beginning, and with it has gone on a kind of development unexampled among peoples of the stocks from which we spring, and hence to-day we differ sharply from, and yet in some ways are fundamentally akin to, all of the nations of Europe.

"Again, let me hid you welcome, representatives of our sister republics of this continent. In the larger aspect, your interests and ours are identical. Your problems and ours are in large part the same, and as we strive to settle them, I pledge you forewith on the part of this Nation the heartiest friendship and good-will.

Japan Had Much to Teach Us.

"Finally, let me say a special word of greeting to those representatives of the Asiatic nations who make up that newest East which is yet the most ancient East, the East of time immemorial. In particular, let me express a word of hearty welcome to the representative of the mighty island Empire of Japan, that empire which, in learning from the West, has shown that it had so much, so very much, to teach the West in return.

"To all of you here gathered I express my thanks for your coming, and I extend to you my earnest wishes for the welfare of your several nations. The world has moved so far that it is no longer necessary to believe that one nation can rise only by thrusting another down. All farsighted statesmen, all true patriots, now earnestly wish that the leading nations of mankind, as in their several ways they struggle constantly toward a higher civilization, a higher humanity, may advance hand in band, united only in a generous rivalry to see which can best do its allotted work in the world. I believe that there is a rising tide in human thought which tends for righteous internationsl peace; a tide which behoves us to guide through rational channels to sane conclusions, and all of us here present can well afford to take to heart St. Paul's counsel: 'If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.'

"We have met to-day to celebrate the opening of the Exposition which itself commemorates the first permanent settlement of men of our stock in Virginia, the first beginning of what has since become this mighty Republic. Three hundred years ago a handful of English adventurers, who had crossed the ocean in what wo should now call cockle boats, as clumsy as they were frail, landed in the great wooded wilderness, the Indian-haunted waste, which then stretched down to the water's edge along the entire Atlantic Coast.

These Settlers Took the Lead.

"They were not the first men of European race to settle in what is now the United States, for there were already Spanish settlements in Florida and on the headwaters of the Rio Grande; and the French, who at almost the same time were struggling up the St. Lawrence, were likewise destined to form permanent eettlements on the great lakes and in the valley of the mighty Mississippi before the people of English stock went westward of the Alleghanies. Moreover, both the Dutch and the Swedes were shortly to found colonies between the two sets of English colonies—those that grew up around the Potomac and those that grew up on what is now the New England coast. Nevertheless, this landing at Jamestown possesses for us of the United States an altogether peculiar significance, and this without regard to our several origins. The men who landed at Jamestown and those who, thirteen years later, landed at Plymouth, all of English stock, and their fellow-settlers who during the next few decades streamed in after them, were those who took the lead in shaping the life history of this people in the colonial and Revolutionary days. It, was they who bent into definite shape our Nation while it was still young enough most easily, moet readily, to take on the characteristics which were to become part of its permanent life habit.

"Yet let us remember that while this early English colonial stock has left deeper than all others upon our National life the mark of its strong twin individualities, the mark of the Cavalier and of the Puritan—nevertheless, this stock, not only from its environment, but also from the presence with it of other stocks, almost from the beginning began to be differentiated strongly from any European people.

A New and Distinct Ethnic Type.

"As I have already said, about the time the first English settlers landed here the Frenchman and the Spaniard, the Swede and the Dutchman, also came hither as permanent dwellers, who left their seed behind them to help shape and partially to inherit our National life. The German, the Irishman, and the Scotchman came later, but still in colonial times. Before the outhreak of the Revolution the American people, not only because of their surroundings, physical and spiritual, but because of the mixture of hiood that had already begun to take place, represented a new and distinct ethnic type. This type has never been fixed in blood. All through the colonial days new waves of immigration from time to time swept hither across the ocean, now from one country, now from another. The same thing has gone on ever since our birth as a nation; and for the last sixty years the tide of immigration has been at the full. The new-comers are soon absorbed into our eager National life, and are radically and profoundly changed thereby, the rapidity of their assimilation being marvelous. But each group of new-comers, as it adds its hiood to the life, also changes it somewhat, and this change and growth and development have gone on steadily, generation by generation, throughout three centuries.

"The pioneers of our people who first landed on these shores on that eventful day three centuries ago had before them a task which during the early years was of heartbreaking danger and difficulty. The conquest of a new continent is iron work. People who dwell in old civilizations and find that therein so much of humanity's lot is hard, are apt to complain against the conditions as being solely due to man and to speak as if life could he made easy and simple if there were but a virgin continent in which to work.

A Simpler but Not an Easier Life.

"It is true that the pioneer life was simpler, but it was certainly not essier. As a matter of fact, the first work of the pioneers in taking poeseeion of a lonely wilderneee is so rough, so hard, so dangerous that all but the strongest spirits fail. The early iron days of such a conquest search out alike the weak in hody and the weak in soul. In the warfare against the rugged sternness of primeval nature, only those can conquer who are themselves unconquerahle. It it not until the first bitter years have passed that the life becomee easy enough to invite a maes of newcomers, and so great are the risk, hardehip, and toil of the early years that there always exists a threat of lapsing back from civilization.

"The history of the pioneers of Jamestown, of the founders of Virginia, illustrates the truth of all this. Famine and pestilence and wsr menaced the little band of daring men who had planted themselves alone on the edge of a frowning continent. Moreover, as men ever find, whether in the tiniest frontier community or in the vastest and most highly organized and complex civilized society, their worst foes were in their own bosoms. Diseension, distrust, the inability of some to work, and the unwillingness of others, jealousy, arrogance and envy, folly and laziness—in ehort all the shortcomings with which we have to grapple now, were faced hy those pioneers, nnd at moments threatened their whole enterprise with absolute ruin. It was some time before the ground on which they had landed supported them, in spite of its potential fertility, and they looked across the eea for supplies. At one moment so hopeless did they become that the whole colony embarked, and was only saved from abandoning the country by the opportune arrival of help from abroad.

Prospering When Pilgrims Landed.

"At last they took root in the land, and were already prospering when the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. In a few years a great inflow of settlers began. Four of the present States of New England were founded. Virginia waxed apace. The Carolinas grew up to the south of it, and Maryland to the north of it. The Dutch colonies hetween, which had already absorbed the Swedish, were in their turn absorbed hy the English. Pennsylvania was founded and, later still, Georgia. There were many wars with the Indians and with the dauntless Captains whose hanners bore the lilies of France. At last the British flag flew without a rival in all Eastern North America. Then came the successful struggle for National independence.

"For half a century after we became a separate Nation there was comparatively little immigration to this country. Then the tide onee again set hither, and has flowed in ever-increasing size until in each of the last three years a greater number of people came to these shores than had landed on them during the entire colonial period. Generation hy generation these people have been absorbed into the National life. Generally their sons, almost always their grandsons, are indistinguishable from one another and from their fellow-Americans descended from the colonial stock. For all alike the problems of our existence are fundamentally the same, and for all alike these problems change from generation to generation.

"In the colonial period, and for at least a century after its close, the conquest of the continent, the expansion of our people westward, to the Alleghenies, then to the Mississippi, then to the Pacific, was always one of the most important tasks, and sometimes the most important, in our National life.

First Settlers Fought for Mere Life.

"Behind the first ecttlers the conditions grew easier, and in the older-settled regions of all the colonies life speedily assumed much of comfort ahd something of luxury; and though generally it was on a much more democratic hasis than life in the Old World, it was hy no means democratic when judged hy our modern standards; and here and there, as in the tide-water regions of Virginia, a genuine aristocracy grew and flourished. But the men who first broke ground in the virgin wilderness, whether on the Atlantic Coast or in the interior, fought hard for mere life. In the early stages the frontiersman had to do battle with the savage, and when the savage was vanquished there remained the harder strain of war with the hostile forces of roil and climate, with flood, fever, and famine. There was sickness and bitter weather; there were no roads; there was a complete lack of all but the very roughest and most absolute necessaries. Under such circumstances the men and women who made ready the continent for civilization were able themselves to spend hut little time in doing aught but the rough work which was to make smooth the waye of their successors. In consequence observers whose insight was spoiled hy lack of sympathy always found hoth the settlers and their lives unattractive and repellent. In "Martin Chuzzlewit" the description of America, culminating in the description of the frontier town of Eden, was true and lifelike from the standpoint of one content to look merely at the outer shell; and yet it was a community like Eden that gave birth to Abraham Lincoln, and was given such as were therein described from whoso loins Andrew Jackson sprang.

The Task Following Independence.

"Hitherto each generation among us has had its allotted task, now heavier, now lighter. In the Revolutionary War the husiness was to achieve independence. Immediately afterward there was an even more momentous task; that to achieve the National unity and the capacity for orderly development, without which our liberty, our independence, would have been a curse and not a blessing. In each of these two contests, while there were many great leaders from many different States, it is but fair to say that the foremost place was taken by the soldiers and the statesmen of Virginia; and to Virginia was reserved the honor of producing the hero of both movements, the hero of the war and of the peace that made good the results of the war—George Washington; while the two great political tendencies of the time can be symnolized in the names of two other great Virginians—Jefferson and Marshall—from ono of whom we inherit the abiding trust in the people which is the foundation stone of democracy, and from the other the power to develop on behalf of the people a coherent and powerful Government, a genuine and representative nationality.

"Two generations passed before the second great crisis of our history had to be faced. Then came the civil war, terrible and bitter in itself and in its aftermath, but a struggle from which the Nation finally emerged united in fact as well as in name, united forever. Oh, my hearers, my fellow-countrymen, great indeed has been our good fortune; for as time clears away the mists that once shrouded brother from brother and made each look at us though a glass darkly at the other, we can all feel the same pride in the valor, the devotion, and the fealty toward the right as it was given to each to see the right, shown alike by the men who wore the blue and by the men who wore the gray.

The Heritage of Valor.

"Rich and prosperous though we are as a people, the proudest heritage that each of us has, no matter where he may dwell, North or South, East or West, is the immaterial heritage of feeling, the right to claim as his own all the valor and all the steadfast devotion to duty shown by the men of hoth the great armies, of the soldiers whose leader was Grant and tho soldiers whose leador was Lee. The men and the women of the civil war did their duty bravely and well in the days that were dark and terrible and splendid. We, their descendants, who pay proud homage to their memories, and glory in the feats of might on either side, no less than of the other, need to keep steadily in mind that the homage which counts is the homage of heart and of hand, and not of the lips, the homage of deeds and not of words only. We, too, in our turn must prove our truth by our endeavor. We must show ourselves worthy sons of the men of the mighty days by the way in which we meet the problems of our own time. We carry our heads high because our fathers did well in the years that tried men's souls; and we must in our turn eo bear ourselves that the children who come after us may feel that we, too, have done our duty.

"We cannot afford to forget the maxim upon which Washington insisted, that the surest way to avert war is to be prepared to meet it. Nevertheless the duties that most concern us of this generation are not military, but social and industrial. Each community must always dread the evils which spring up as attendant upon the very qualities which give it success. We of this mighty Western Republic have to grapple with the dangers that spring from popular self-government tried on a scalo incomparably vaster than ever before in the history of mankind, and from an abounding material prosperity greater also than anything which the world has hitherto seen.

Cannot Escape Being Governed.

"As regards the first set of dangers, it behooves us to remember that men can never escape being governed. Either they must govern themselves or they must submit to heing governed hy others. If from lawlessnesa or fickieness, from folly or self-indulgence, they refuse to govern themselves, then most assuredly in the end they will have to he governed from the outside. They can prevent the need of government from without only by abowing that they possess the power of government from witbin. A sovereign cannot make excuses for his failures; a sovereign must accept the responsihility for the exercise of the power that inheres in him; and where, as ie true in our Republic, the people are sovereign, then the peoplo muet show a sober understanding and a ssne and steadfast purpose if they are to preserve that orderly liberty upon which as a foundation every republic must rest.

"In industrial matters our enormous prosperity has brought with it certain grave evils. It is our duty to try to cut out these evils without at the same time destroying our well-being itself. This is an era of combinstion alike in the world of capital and in the world of labor. Each kind of combination can do good, and yet each, however powerful, must he opposed when it does ill. At the moment the greatest problem before us is how to exercise such control over the business use of vast wealth, individual, hut especially corporate, as will insure its not being used against the interest of the public, while yet permitting such ample legitimate profits as will encourage individual initiative. It is our business to put a stop to abuses and to prevent their recurrence, without ehowing a spirit of mere vindictiveness for what has been done in the past. In John Morley's brilliant sketch of Burke he laye especial etress upon the fact that Burke more than almost any other thinker or politician of his time realized the profound lesson that in politics we are concerned not with barren rights but with duties; not with abstract truth, but with practical morality.

Burke's Effort for Reform.

"He especially eulogizes the way in which in his efforts for economic reform Burke combined unshakable resolution in pressing the reform with a profound temperateness of epirit which made him, while bent on the extirpation of the evil system, refuee to cherish an unreaeoning and vindictive ill-will toward the men who had benefited by it. Said Burke, 'If I cannot reform with equity, I will not reform at all. * * * (There is) a state to preserve as well ae a etate to reform.'

"This ie the exact spirit in which this country should move to the reform of abuses of corporate wealth. The wrongdoer, the man who swindles and cheats, whether on a hig scale or a little one, shall receive at our hands mercy as scant as if he committed crimes of violence or brutality. We are unalterably determined to prevent wrongdoing in the future; we have no intention of trying to wreak such an indiscriminate vengeance for wrongs done in the past as would confound the innocent with the guilty. Our purpose is to huild up rather than to tear down. We show ourselves the truest friends of property when we make it evident that we will not tolerate the abuses of property. We are steadily bent on preserving the institution of private property; we combat every tendency toward reducing the people to economic servitude; and we care not whether the tendency is due to n sinister agitation directed against all property, or whether it is due to the actions of those members of the predatory classes whose anti-social power is immeasurahly increased because of the very fact that they possess wealth.

Judge Men by Their Deeds.

"Above all, we insist that while facing changed conditions and new problems, we must face them in the spirit which our forefathers showed when they founded and preserved this Republic. The cornerstone of the Republic lies in our treating each man on his worth as a man, paying no heed to his creed, his birthplace, or his occupation, asking not whether he is rich or poor, whether he labors with head or hand; asking only whether he acts decently and honorably in the various relations of his life, whether he behaves well to his family, to his neighbors, to the State. We base our regard for each man on the essentials and not the accidents. We judge him, not by his profession, but by his deede; by his conduct, not hy what he has acquired of this world's goods. Other republics have fallen because the citizens gradually grew to consider the interests of a class before the interests of the whole; for when such was the case it mattered little whether it was the poor who plundered the rich or the rich who exploited the poor; in either event the end of the republic was at hand. We are resolute in our purpose not to fall into such a pit. Thie great Republic of ours shall never become the government of a plutocracy, and it shall never become the government of a mob. God willing, it shall remain what our fatbers who founded it meant it to be—a government in which each man stands on his worth as a man, where each is given the largest personal liberty consistent with securing the well-being of the whole, and where, so far ae in us lies, we strive continually to secure for each man such equality of opportunity that in the strife of life he may have a fair chance to show the etuff that is in him.

"We are proud of our schools and of the trained intelligence they give our children the opportunity to acquire. But what we care for most is the character of the average man, for we believe that if the average of character in the individual citizen is sufficiently high, if he possesses those qualities which make him worthy of respect in his family life and in his work outside, as well as the qualities which fit him for success in the hard struggle of actuni existence—that if such is the character of our individual citizenship, there is no height of national triumph unattainable in this vast experiment of government by, of, and for a free people."

FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVES.

NORFOLK, April 26.—The foreign representatives present at the opening of the exposition were:

Italy—Ambassador Mayor des Planches, Signor Giulio Cesara Montagna, Lieut. Carlo Pfister, Counselor, and Mrs. Pfister.
Austria-Hungary—Ambassador Hengelmuller, Baron Louis Ambrozy, Counselor.
France—Ambassador and Mrs. Jusserand, Capt. Fournier, Military Attache; Lieut. Commander De Blanpre, Naval Attache; Mrs. De Blanpre, and Viscount Charles de Chambrun, Secretary.
Great Britain—Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, Counselor Howard, and Lieut. Col. James, Military Attache of the Embassy.
Germany—Count von Hatzfeldt, Charge d'Affaires; Capt. Hebbinghaus, Naval Attache; Mrs. Hebbinghaus, Major Korner, Military Attache; Mrs. Korner, and C. von Schubert, Attache.
Brazil—Ambassador and Mrs. Nabuco, Counselor Gurgel do Amaral, Mrs. Amaral, Lieut. Col. De Pederneiras, Military Attache, and Mrs. Pederneiras, Lieut. Commander De Aquino, Naval Attache, and Mrs. De Aquino.

BELLE TERRE CLUB

A gentleman returning last week from the Belle Terre Estates came into the office and advised us to destroy every booklet we had, as no printed book or photographic illustrations could do justice to the beauties of the place.

We realize the limitations of language whenever we attempt to describe Belle Terre, and our only suggestion is that the seeker after a country home on Long Island first examine all other sections, then visit this magnificent peninsula of thirteen hundred acres, bounded by five miles of Sound and harbor frontage, and forever protected by nature from all detrimental neighbors.

The most elaborate clubhouse on Long Island will he open June 15. Reservations may be made by approved guests who wish to make an experimental stay at the colony.

An outlay of over ono million dollars will afford an idea of the scale of the improvements.

Final maps will be ready in about ten days. In the meantime many are taking advantage of a "private view" in an endeavor to make a selection in advance from the embarrassment of riches offered.

DEAN & LVORD, Pres., 277 B'way, N. Y.

decided that I would not accept any retainer or take the case he had laid hefore me. I stated that if he desired I would turn it over to my hrother-in-law, Mr. Robertson Honey, who I knew sometimes took criminal cases, and thie wae subsequently done. I havo no relations, whatever with the Trust Company of American, and I have absolutely no information, even if I considered myself professionally free to give it, which would throw any further light on the defaication."

When He First Knew Dennett.

When tho reporters had returned Mr. Quincy explained that he and his counsel agreed that no formal statement would be issued other than the one at noon, but he was willing in an informal way to tell bis side of the story from the beginning.

In the first place, he said, his acquaintance with Dennett was confined absolutely to the incident of eight years ago, when Quincy was Mayor of Boston and Dennett was the cashier of the Beacon Trust Company. It was Bates who brought them together at that time; Bates, who was so close to Quincy in former days that when the politician went to Europe after the close of his Mayoralty he left a pile of notes signed in blank for Bates to fill out as he needed them. Bates did so and some of the notes appear in the Quincy bankruptcy schedules. The moving incident of the Dennett-Quincy meeting was the placing of some paper of a concern in which Bates and the Mayor were intereeted in the Beacon Truet Company.

Denying absolutely that he had eeen Dennett or so much as remembered the existence of suoh an individual, Mr. Quincy jumped from the Beacon Trust episode down to Tuesday of last week, when he returned to New York, where his wife and child had been living for five weeks or more. It was to attend the Bryan banquet in Brooklyn that the trip was made, and arriving at the Grand Central Station at 6 o'clock, instead of going to his apartment at 128 Central Park South to dress, he went to the Manhattan Club, of which he had long been a member.

There awaited him a telephone message from O. M. Dennett, who wished to consult him about "eome matters of business."

Mr. Quincy left word for Dennett to call him up at the apartment the next morning. Dennett did so, remarking, according to Mr. Quincy to-day, when the Bostonian said that he did not remember bie wouldhe client: "You will remember me when you see me."

Dennett Tells Him of Theft.

An appointment was arranged at the Manhattan Club, where Mr. Quincy was reminded of the former acquaintance in Boston. Then, according to Mr. Quincy's story, Dennett told him that he had a friend who had gotten away with a very large amount of bonds from a trust company of which he was an official, mentioning $1,000,000 as an approximate statement of the sum. Some of the bonds had been placed by Dennett under the impression that they had been honestly obtained from the father-in-law of the unnamed friend, and it was only recently that Dennett discovered the commission of a theft. So ran the story.

Mr. Quincy heard and was interested, both in it and in the personality of the man who told it. He said so to-day.

No Suggestion of Further Thefts.

But Dennett continued, according to Mr. Quincy. There was no danger of detection before May 1, and some of the bonds were in a position where they could be returned; also some of the money that had been obtained on others. Would Mr. Quincy accept a retainer to act as counsel for his friend?

The result was more conversation, but Mr. Quincy declared to-day that there was no suggestion in it of any future stealings which might bring the total amount up to so large a figure that negotiations could he undertaken. In fact, he was on the lookout against such insinuations, and when he had told of his care Mr. Dennett added:

"Even if I had been knave enough to have suggested such a thing, I hope that there is not any one who would put me down as so big a fool."

That was the end of the interview. Mr. Quincy went downtown, having made an appointment for later in the afternoon. Meantime he consulted counsel, who, he said to-day, was a member of one of the largest firms in New York, and this lawyer told him to be on guard against any proposition that might involve a suggestion of committing a felony.

Thus doubly warned, Mr. Quincy went hack to see Dennett about his friend. There was more talk and a third appointment was made for Saturday morning. Mr. Quincy returning to Boston on Wednesday night and going back to New York again on a late afternoon train on Friday.

It was 10:15 o'clock on Saturday, according to Mr. Quincy, when he met Dennett downtown. Where this meeting took place was one of the things that he would not say yesterday, but he exhihited surprise when his attention was called to the fact that this meeting was held just twenty-five minutes before Douglas, with the last $50,000 of bonds, left his eage in the Trust Company of America to make his eseape.

Tells Him on Saturday Game is Up.

The conversation at the Saturday morning interview turned to the prospect that the theft would he immediately found out instead of having it go on until May 1. Dennett said that auditors had been put into the company the night before in connection with the merger of the Trust Company of America and the Colonial Trust Company and the game was up.

But President Thorne was in the country, Dennett thought, and Mr. Quincy was unable to understand why Mr. Thorne happened to come back to town on Saturday morning. He was as much surprised about that as he was at the fact that Douglas left the trust company at 10:40 o'clock, whereas he and Dennett went into conference on his own statement at 10:15 o'clock.

Points He Will Discuss Later.

Mr. Quincy would not discuss to-day the detail of the Saturday morning meeting with Dennett more than to say that Dennett told him his friend was in imminent danger, and pressed him to accept a retainer, even offering bills of large denominations. This Mr. Quincy declined, but he did not leave Dennett for good at that time, inasmuch as he admitted to-day that Saturday afternoon saw another conference at which the situation was discussed in even more detail.

Mr. Quincy's attention was called to the inference likely to be made that Douglas, having gone to Dennett immediately upon his departure from the trust company with the additional $50,000 of bonds, would have been present at the afternoon conference. Mr. Quincy did not question this inference, but said that it was plain that there was something yet unexplained on that line which he would discuss, if at all, after the full confessions of Douglas and Dennett were known.

But what Mr. Quincy did say to-day was that he declined to act as counsel in the course of the Saturday afternoon interview, and advised that Dennett's friend retain Robertson Honey, who sometimes took criminal cases. Honey, as has already been stated, is Mr. Quincy's brotherin-law.

Honey was retained, but just when the time came when Mr. Quincy ceased to consult and Honey took charge as counsel for Douglas the former would not say to-day. That is another point remaining still to be cleared up.

After that, during the night, apparently, and on Sunday morning Mr. Quincy "kept in touch" with the situation, according to his statement yesterday. He learned early on Sunday morning of the arrest of Douglas, but from what sources he would not say. There had never heen any intention of flight, but that Douglas would stay and face the music.

It was Sunday morning also when Mr. Quincy heard that Douglas had made a confession. Nor had the day passed before Mr. Quincy and an official of the trust company were in conference, Mr. Quincy explaining his connection with the matter to the entire satisfaction of this official, according to Mr. Quincy's story to-day. Mr. Quincy wouldn't say what official it was whom he saw or what brought them together.

On Monday last Mr. Quincy came back to Boston and within a day or two communicated with Col. Gaston, his counsel. Mr. Quincy's family also moved back to this city on Monday.

The only remaining development of interest to-day was information from New York that William F. Sheehan, counsel for the trust company and one of its directors, laid no blame at the Bostonian's door. Mr. Quincy has been in touch with Mr. Honey since his return from New York.

ACCUSED MEN TALK.

Douglas and Dennett Make Long Statements to District Attorney.

Statements were made yesterday in the District Attorney's office by W. O. Douglas and Oliver M. Dennett, the two men implicated in the bond robhery from the Trust Company of America. Dennett's statement was a long one. No information was given out about what the two said. The trust company declared, through its President, Oakleigh Thorne, that it had washed its hands of the affair and that any further steps in the matter would he left to the District Attorney.

Douglas was taken to the office of Assistant District Attorney Murphy as soon as he came from the Tombe. President Thorne and the prisoner's lawyer, Robertson Honey, were also present, and after a conference of ahout half an hour Douglas was led back to the Tombs.

Dennett was taken to Mr. O'Connor's office and at once began a long statement. A stenographer was sent for, and Dennett was dictating to him all the morning. Forbes J. Hennessey, his lawyer, was present, and Mr. Murphy went in and out of the room, hut did not stay the whole time. Lunch was sent to the prisoner in the District Attorney's office, and he did not finish telling all he had to eay until 4 o'clock. It is helieved that he was going through the history of his husiness career, and that some of his revelations were complete surprises to Mr. Jerome.

When Dennett had finished Douglas wae brought hack and proceeded to give his version of the affair. It was nothing like as long as that of Dennett, and was over in an hour. Mr. Jerome took the strictest precautions to prevent anyone giving out any information of what had been said. He himself departed hy the afternoon train to his country home near Lakeville, where he will etay till Monday.

Company Repeats Loss Is $140,000.

Though no official denial was made yesterday of the statement that the amount of the bonds Douglae had taken was almost $500,000, President Thorne repeated that the actual loss of the trust company would not exceed $140,000. Probably some of the bonds taken before the final coup, when Douglas took $400,000 worth, were restored hy Douglae after they had served his turn as collateral for a short period. Other bonds were recovered a day or two after the robhery had heen discovered. How large that amount was is not known.

The one-hundred-and-forty-thousand-dollar loss ie made up of $77,000 actually paid out for the recovery of honds and $63,000 due on honds belonging to the company, which are still in the hands of brokers until it can be judicially determined who ahould bear the loss of the sums lent upon them as collateral.

It is believed that when the game was up and Douglas made his hig haul as many of the honds as possible were hypothecated, and it ie understood that ahout all Douglas told Oakleigh Thorne after he was arrested was where these securities could be located. It is possihle that same interesting information on this point was voutsafed yesterday to the District Attorney, but it is pretty well known that until the prisoners were taken over to Mr. Murphy's office yesterday neither of them had "squealed."

Oakleigh Thorne declared yesterday that so far the exact numher of honds which had been taken had not been determined, and that his only interest was in the result of the whole business. He had an informal conference with the other officials of the trust company in the afternoon and then went off to Millbrook, N. Y., on a fishing trip until Monday.

As a matter of fact, a firm of chartered accountants is going through the books and the securities of the company. So far the State Department of Banking has done nothing. The Trust Company informed the department on Monday that it had called in an outside firm to audit the accounts. Until that report has been presented the State Department will take no action.

Bank Department's Plan.

It developed yesterday, however, that Superintendent of Banks Keep is considering a very important step. He is thinking of setting on foot a regular examination of the trust securities held hy the trust companies of the State. Tbey run up to enormous figures.

No inspection of these funds has been made in the last ele

MAY COMPROMISE SUBWAY DEADLOCK

Interborough Officials Said to Have Misunderstood Terms of the Contract.

WILL SUBMIT A NEW PLAN

Commissioners Agree That Their Conditions Can Be Modified Without Jeopardizing City's Interests.

There were strong indications yesterday that the transit situation is by no means as bad as it seemed on Thursday, when no bids for the construction of new subways were submitted to the Rapid Transit Commission, and that, eventually, the Interborough would find it possible to build the extensions to the present Subway on Seventh and Lexington Avenues, under terms that would be acceptable to the Rapid Transit Board, the Public Utilities Commission, and the public at large.

It was learned last night that the traction interests have no definite plan to suggest as yet. Their desire is that the city authorities permit them to discuss, in detail the conditions of the published contracts, and to modify many of them. It was ascertained also that many of the supposed objections on the part of the company are based on what appeared yesterday to be misunderstandings of the conditions under which bids were to be submitted. On the other hand, it was established beyond doubt that the conditions are capable of considerable modification without injury to the city's position, but with considerable saving in the cost of construction.

Present Board May Not Act.

The letting of contracts, however, will not rest with the present Rapid Transit Commission if the Public Service Commissions bill passes the Legislature. It will probably be known before the next meeting of the board whether the bill will pass or not. If there are unmistakable signs that it will become a law, it is extremely probably that the present Commissioners will not take up the subject of new routes. Before it dies, nevertheless, the board will probably grant the Interborough's application for the right to build additional tracks on the east side elevated roads.

In view of the fact that the Interborough's proposed conference will probably have to be held with a new body yet to be appointed by the Governor, and with the certainty of the discussions over conditions being long drawn out, it is apparent that months must elapse before any contracts are finally made. That they will eventually be made, however, is exceedingly probable.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough, left for the Jamestown Exposition last night without discussing the situation further. Some of his views of the proposed conditions under which subways would have to be built were learned, however, and they did not entirely agree with statements made by Chief Engineer Rice of the Rapid Transit Commission. Mr. Rice, when asked about the company's attitude yesterday, said:

"I do not consider that the Interborough's estimates on the cost of construction are very high. It may be that they are three or four million dollars higher than estimates of my own would have been, but they are not more than that. As a matter of fact, I have not made an estimate on these subways since the Elsberg bill was passed, and no estimate I made included the cost of real estate. In 1905, if I recall the matter correctly, my estimate was $44,000,000. Real estate and other things that have been put into the contracts since that time would probably bring it up to $50,000,000. The Interborough's estimate is approximately $55,000,000, not counting interest, pipe galleries, or equipment.

Thinks Equipment Estimate Too High.

"What I fail utterly to understand is the company's estimate on the cost of equipment, $24,000,000. It already has a power plant of much larger dimensions than required for the furnishing of power to the present Subway and the elevated lines, and it has more cars than are actually required for those roads now. All it would be necessary for the company to do, as far as I can see, is to add a few units to its present power plant and purchase a comparatively small number of new cars. These would be the main items of expenditure for equipment. The power plant the company now owns, as I understand it, was built not only for the present Subway, but large enough to be of service for any new lines the company might build in the future.

"As for the objection to the length of the stations and to the width of the tunnel, which was to have been larger than the present Subway, all I can say is that the specifications were not drawn solely for the Interborough people, but rather with the idea that there would be competition, and, in the event of another competing company getting the new roads, we wanted to have the tunnel larger and the stations large enough to accommodate ten-car trains.

"Both of these matters could have been arranged previous to the signing of the contract, or even afterwards. We made much more extensive changes in the contract for the present Subway as well as in the contract for the Brooklyn extension. The contract specifically permits a change in the specifications, and it is well to recall that the objections stated by Mr. Shonts were not raised by the Interborough at any of the hearings held by the board on the proposed form of contract.

"The double decking of the Lexington Avenue division of the east side line is simply an engineering problem, and quite feasible. It was planned by Mr. Parsons in the first place, and we have very nearly the same proposal on the present Subway above the Ninety-sixth Street station. The objection that an interchange of passengers would not be possible with such a system can be met with a simple statement to the effect that there are but three express stations on the sections the Interborough proposed to build. These are at Forty-second, Eighty-sixth, and 125th Streets. The only place where the double decking would in any way interfere with the interchange of passengers is at the Eighty-sixth Street Station. The double decking is necessary to protect the property owners along Lexington Avenue, as, in the construction of a four track, one level road, their stoops would be destroyed and the vault space before their property would have to be taken.

"While it is true that the Elsberg law limits the franchise to twenty years, with an extension for a like period, it must be remembered that at the end of that time the Interborough would be in a very strong position, as it would be impractical for the city to take away from it and operate half a road running north from Forty-second Street on one side of the city and half another road running south from Forty-second Street on the other side of the city. It seems to me that the Interborough would be in practical possession of both lines for the full seventy-five years that the contract for the first Subway has to run.

"It is rather hard to understand just what the Interborough wants to do. They have been vacillating on the proposal for some months, as far as I can learn, and I don't think they quite knew until very recently just what they would do."

"Do you think these objections would have been raised by the company if it had really wanted to bid?" Mr. Rice was asked.

"I hardly think so," he replied, smiling.

Contract Terms Misunderstood.

Mr. Rice's assertions, especially those regarding equipment, were conveyed to Mr. Shonts just before he left for the South. While he could not be seen, it was learned that the impression under which he had labored was that the company, if it undertook to build new subways, would have to build an entirely new power plant, so that the whole system would be complete in itself when the city took over the property at the end of the lease term, if such a thing happened. It is asserted, too, that the one item of power house would reduce the price of construction not less than $5,000,000. The present power house cost about $9,000,000.

The cut-and-cover method of construction, taxation, damage liability, and the barring of all advertising from the stations are said to be really the things that are worrying the Interborough. The last named has not been mentioned, but it brings in a very large income in the present Subway, and has a great deal to do with the present attitude of the company. The Elsberg bill, as a matter of fact, is said not to worry the traction officials at all, though the opinion of the commission is that the company's reluctance to bid is entirely due to that one thing.

Grounds for Interborough Objections.

All the facts and figures on which the Interborough has based its arguments relative to the high cost of the new subways have for a pivotal point the fact that the present earnings of the first Subway are, according to the company's report, between 6 and 7 per cent. It was pointed out yesterday by one thoroughly familiar with the situation that this was hardly fair, inasmuch as the company has on hand equipment for the Brooklyn extension worth a great deal of money and charged in with general costs, though the extension in question is not in use. It is prophesied that, as the Battery tunnel will be in full operation before the next report is made, the dividend will be materially advanced.

Controller Metz said yesterday regarding the situation:

"About the only thing that we can do now is to make conditions so attractive that private capital will build subways in Manhattan. It's certain that the city hasn't the necessary money. For Brooklyn, it would be a good plan for the city to build the Fourth Avenue Subway, which could be made part of the tri-borough route later.

In connection with the tri-borough route it was learned yesterday that there is a strong possibility of the Interborough proposing to get around its objections to double-decking the Lexington Avenue line by proposing to run two tracks up Lexington Avenue and two tracks up Third Avenue above Forty-third Street. This plan, if adopted, would effectually prevent the building of the whole tri-borough route, as Third Avenue has been reserved for that line by the Rapid Transit Board.

Mayor McClellan declined absolutely to discuss the Subway question in any way yesterday.

Charles Stewart Smith, one of the Commissioners, said last night that in his opinion the city had no money with which to build the needed subways, and that the best that could be doae was to amend the Elsberg law.

"Then we will have competition," he said.

He expressed the opinion that the Ryan-Belmont interests did not have the whip hand of the city, and that, with the Elsberg bill amended, other capitalists would be found ready to come forward and finance subways.

STEVENS TO TEST PRESIDENT'S PLAN

Mellen Lends His Railroad for a Demonstration of Physical Valuation.

AFFECTS FUTURE WATERING

If the New Haven Is Not Damaged by Inquiry Roosevelt Will Press His Project.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The news that John F. Stevens, formerly Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, is to make a physical valuation of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company at the request of President Mellen, has created no end of interest here.

President Mellen is not only close to President Roosevelt, but is closer than any other railroad man in the country. He is not merely, in the President's mind, one of the "good railroad men," but is the very type of the good railroad man.

On one occasion the President took the unusual step of devoting a large part of his annual message to President Mellen, eulogizing him and incorporating most of one of Mellen's public addresses in the message.

John F. Stevens also enjoys the President's esteem, not even disturbed when Stevens followed Wallace's example and resigned his post. Wallace came in for a lot of denunciation from the President, but Stevens never lost a fraction of the President's regard.

There is every reason to believe that Mr. Mellen has invited Mr. Stevens to make this valuation at the suggestion of President Roosevelt, in order to ascertain whether or not there is anything in the allegations made to Mr. Roosevelt that such valuations are impossible and would disturb public credit. By the measure of Stevens's success and by the difficulties he encounters or does not encounter, as well as by the effect on New Haven securities, if any, Mr. Roosevelt will be able to find out whether or not it is dangerous to push his railroad valuation scheme.

The financiers who poured into the White House in a steady stream for several weeks all discussed the subject of railroad valuation. Most of them vehemently assured the President that it was impracticable and dangerous. It is known that one of them dissented from the view taken by the rest, and while the identity of this man could not be learned, it has always been supposed that he was Mr. Mellen. It will be recalled that when Messrs. Mellen, McCrea, Hughitt, and Newman met in New York preparatory to going on to Washington and seeing the President, in accordance with J. Pierpont Morgan's suggestion, it was found that they could not agree among themselves concerning the attitude to be taken, and broke up.

The President, while firmly convinced that his valuation scheme ought to be put through if possible, has kept an open mind on the question and has taken the ground that he would give up the scheme if he could be convinced of its impracticability and danger. On the other hand, he has not been disposed to give it up merely because a lot of railroad men told him it was impracticable and dangerous.

After the conference of the four railroad Presidents in New York broke up, Mr. Mellen came on to Washington alone and saw the President. It is now said that at this conference the agreement was reached to have the experiment tried on the New Haven Road, and that the President suggested Mr. Stevens as the man for the job.

On the same day that Mr. Mellen saw the President he had a long conference with Chairman Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. It was given out vaguely that this interview related to "matters concerning the New Haven Road on which Mr. Mellen was able to give the Chairman some light," but that it did not relate to any chargee against the railroad. It will be recalled that the President's plan was to have the valuation made by the Inter-State Commerce Commission and that one of the objections raised to the plan has been that it would be impossible to do it without greatly increasing the force.

There is little doubt now that this subject of valuation was gone over fully between Mr. Mellen and Mr. Knapp at that conference.

It is quite certain that if Mr. Stevens succeeds in demonstrating the practicability of the scheme and carries it through without endangering the welfare of the railroad, the President will see no reason why the same process cannot be gone through with other railroads, and will push his plan without the slightest regard to ex parte assurances from railroad men that it can't be done.

It may be said, of course, that it is not the valuation of the roads, but the fear that stock may be rendered valueless by subsequent proceedings that constitutes the chief objection to the scheme. The President, however, has forestalled that by announcing that he does not propose to squeeze the water out of any stocks now existing, but to prevent the watering of stocks in the future.

HAMMOND DECLARED INSANE.

Typewriter Manufacturer Not Competent to Manage His Affairs.

James Bartlett Hammond, President of the typewriting company bearing his name, was declared yesterday by expert alienists to be incompetent to manage his own affairs. He had been under observation at Bellevue Hospital several days. Some of the experts went so far as to say that the form of insanity from which Mr. Hammond was suffering would be permanent.

LIVELY HEARING IN WHITMAN RAID CASE

HAD A CASE ADJOURNED

Magistrate Protested at Further Postponements and a Defendant Is Fined on His Testimony.

Magistrate Whitman stirred up things in Special Sessions yesterday, where the liquor cases resulting from his sensational raids in the early morning of March 24 came up. At that time Magistrate Whitman held court in his evening clothes at the West Forty-seventh Street Station, holding in heavy bail the men whose arrests he had just caused, and yesterday he was no less the star of the proceedings.

Before his case had come to trial the Magistrate accused B. A. McManus, counsel for the Liquor Dealers' Association, of acting in bad faith with the court. McManus had already had one liquor case postponed, and when he sought to have the case of James McQuillan, in which Magistrate Whitman was personally interested, likewise put over on the ground that he had been unable to subpoena one of his witnesses, the Magistrate jumped to his feet, exclaiming:

"Your Honor, Mr. McManus is not acting in good faith with this court."

Presiding Justice Olmsted ordered that the case be taken up promptly at 12:30 o'clock, and Magistrate Whitman then related the story of his raids. He said that he had entered the place at Forty-ninth Street and Sixth Avenue, where McQuillan was tending bar, at 1:26 o'clock in the morning, and had ordered a glass of whisky. According to the Magistrate, he remarked upon the place being open so late, and the bartender replied:

"Oh, we own this precinct."

Verdict Against a Broker.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Ford returned a verdict yesterday in favor of Martin R. Carey of Brooklyn, against John B. Manning, a stock broker, for $27,150. Manning received this sum from Carey to purchase securities for the benefit of the plaintiff's 4-year-old daughter. It was alleged he paid too high prices for stocks and bonds.

PEASANTS IN DUMA ARE IN A FERMENT

Those of Their Number Who Applied for an Audience of the Czar Denounced.

TO SEE EMPEROR TO-DAY

Agrarian Committee Begins Work—Constitutional Democrat Elected President of It.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 26.—Emperor Nicholas did not receive the twenty-two peasant Deputies of the Right and Moderate parties to-day, as it was announced that he would do, but will receive them to-morrow.

The application of the Deputies for an audience has been the subject of passionate arguments in the lobbies of the lower house for two days past. The applicants have constantly been surrounded by wrathful fellow-peasants, who denounced the "reactionary plot to misrepresent the sentiment of the House," and urged that the deputation to the Emperor should be sent by a caucus of all the peasant Deputies.

In the meanwhile the populer leaders of the Group of Toil have been quietly endeavoring to persuade some of the peasant Deputies who are to be received by the Emperor to present to him a memorandum, expressing the unanimous wish of the peasantry for the distribution of land.

Father Iliadore, an orthodox monk, the most violent orator of the Reactionists, pressed the peasant Deputies to petition the Emperor to dissolve Parliament.

It is understood to-day that the Deputies may not present en address to the Emperor, but will have a direct talk with him. The remaining Deputies of the Right Party and Moderate Party hope to be received in audience after the Easter holidays. The fashion of applying for audience of the Emperor was set by the Council of the Empire, (upper house of Parliament,) whose members have been received in audience in groups of ten. A group received by the Emperor to-day included Prof. Maxim Kovalevsky of Kharkoff, leader of the Democratic Reform Party.

The monster Agrarian Committee, a miniature Parliament, composed of ninety-nine members, has begun work. M. Kuttler, Constitutional Democrat, who was formerly Minister of Agriculture, was elected President of the committee, but his election was obstinately contested, and it taxed the skill of the Constitutional Democrats, who have scarcely one-fifth of the membership, to win a victory for their candidate. They finally managed to induce part of the Group of Toil to support M. Kuttler.

FEVER FROM WARSAW JAILS.

Typhoid Epidemic Threatens the City —Over 200 Cases Reported.

WARSAW, April 26.—Warsaw is threatened with a serious epidemic of typhoid fever.

The outbreak originated in the overcrowded prisons, where thousands of political suspects have been shut up for months awaiting trial under the most unsanitary conditions. Typhoid is now rapidly spreading throughout the city. Over two hundred cases have already been reported.

WARSHIP TO ST. LUCIA.

British Vessel Ordered There—Governor Wires for Aid.

LONDON, April 26.—The Admiralty has ordered the cruiser Indefatigable from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, to the Island of St. Lucia.

CASTRIES, St. Lucia, April 26.—Quiet prevails here and work has been resumed, but there is a feeling of unrest, it being feared that disorders will break out again. The employers were compelled to give in to the demands of the coal carriers and laborers for increases in wages. These demands were considered exorbitant.

Rioting continues on the sugar estates, where cane fields have been burned and factories wrecked. The small police force and the special officers, all badly handled, are inadequate to maintain order there. Since the trouble began the police have killed four persons, wounded twenty-three, and taken eleven prisoners.

One hundred policemen and volunteers from Barbados arrived to-day and have gone into the country with the Governor. There is at present no British warship in this vicinity. The Dutch cruiser Gelderland arrived last night for coal, and is now lying at the quay here.

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, April 26.—The rioters in the Island of St. Lucia are again turbulent.

A dispatch has been received here from the Governor of the Island, saying that he is in urgent need of assistance.

SPENCER WILL CASE APPEAL.

W. A. and Lorillard Spencer Believe Decision Will Be Reversed.

PARIS, April 26.—The appeal of William Augustus Spencer and Lorillard Spencer against the decision of the court which gave their sister, the Princess de Vicovaro, possession of the estate of the late Charles Griswold Spencer, will come up on May 1, when a definite date for a hearing will be fixed.

The testator, who was a brother of the two appellants and of the Princess, died in Paris last Nov. 10, leaving his entire fortune, amounting to about $2,000,000, to his sister. William and Lorillard Spencer are confident that the decision of the lower court will be reversed, asserting that it merely dealt with the question of the court's jurisdiction, and not with the merits of the appeal.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 26.—According to advices from Japan by the steamer Oanfa, the arrest of several Japanese forgers at Osaka as a result of the discovery of a plot to sell forged war bonds to Chinese frustrated a scheme to send $1,000,000 worth of spurious notes to San Francisco.

Search of the premises of those arrested resulted in the discovery of lithographic stones, printing gear, and paper for the forgery of bank notes.

Replies to an Inquiry That He Has Entirely Recovered.

LONDON, April 26.—In view of reports of Richard Croker's illness, growing out of the publication in New York of a letter from Mr. Croker, a dispatch was sent to him at Dublin to-day, inquiring as to his health. Mr. Croker replied:

"Have been ill, but nothing serious, and am entirely recovered now."

FRANCE TO APPEAL TO US.

Jusserand Gets Instructions Regarding the Porcelain Dispute.

PARIS, April 26.—Foreign Minister Pichon to-day received the delegation of Deputies and others representing the Limoges porcelain industry, which called to protest against the action of the United States customs authorities in refusing admission to consignments of Limoges porcelain, owing to reports that the goods were wrongly invoiced, which created a crisis in the porcelain factories.

After listening to the complaints of the delegates, the Minister forwarded instructions to Ambassador Jusserand at Washington to lay the affair before the Washington authorities, with a view to ending the difficulty.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Reynolds, in charge of customs matters, said to-day that he knew of no refusal on the part of this Government to receive invoices of Limoges porcelain on any account.

The facts, it is stated, are that, acting upon information in their possession, the appraising officers at New York raised the value of certain china importations from France. The importers appealed from this action to the Board of General Appraisers, and the cases are now under consideration. The Treasury Department is expediting the final settlement of this matter in every way.

It is possible that some importers are not now making entries of French chinaware, pending the determination of the question of value by the Board of General Appraisers, for if the board should decide that the invoiced value was less than the real value of the merchandise the importers would suffer by being compelled to pay additional duties.

MINERS TO RETURN TO WORK.

To Resume Operations in British Columbia Pending Investigation.

PORTLAND, Oregon, April 26.—A dispatch from Fernie, B. C., says the miners' strike there has been settled temporarily, the men agreeing to return to work pending the outcome of the Government investigation.

OTTAWA, April 26.—The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Minister of Labor, has received the following telegram from Fernie dated April 25:

"Different interpretations given of yesteroay's propositions at conference today. Consequently failed to agree. Executive board now holding meeting with Fernie miners, and they have decided to return to work pending investigation."

F. H. Sherman, representing the men, wired to-day as follows:

"Sessions of week have resulted fruitlessly owing to misunderstanding of Industrial Dispute act. District Executive having failed to agree with operators has decided to advise miners to return to work. This advice has been accepted by the Fernie men. Have reasons to believe that operations of mines will be resumed in this district as soon as possible. Will refer the dispute to investigation, believing your Government wants to see justice done all parties."

TO BE PERSIAN VIZIER.

Mirza Ali Ashgar Back in Teheran After Exile in Europe—Sees the Shah.

TEHERAN, April 26.—Mirza Ali Asghar Khan, the ex-Grand Vizier, who for over three years has been living in exile in Europe, and whom the Shah recently summoned to Teheran, arrived here to-day.

His Majesty immediately granted him an audience.

ROME, April 26.—Haji Ali Ghols, Prince of the Bakhtiari region of Persia, who has been visiting Lloyd C. Griscom, the American Ambassador, whom he met when Mr. Griscom was Minister to Persia, on-night received a telegram from Mirza Ali Asghar Kahn, whom he left at Lausanne after Mirza Ali Asghar had been summoned home by the Shah.

The telegram said that although a mob had tried to prevent Mirza Ali Asghar from landing at Enzeli, he had arrived safely at Teheran, where the National Assembly, by a vote of 150 against 4, had accepted him as Grand Vizier.

The Prince, who is an intimate friend of the new Grand Vizier, expects to be called to Persia to co-operate with him in governing the country and in bringing about an understanding between the Shah and his subjects. The Prince says American goods and industrial enterprises are greatly in favor in Persia, the people there knowing that the Americans have no political interests to serve, as have Englishmen and Russians.

King Edward on His Way Home.

PALERMO, April 26.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra sailed to-day on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert for Naples. The King said he had been seeing Palermo again after an absence of forty years and had found it transformed. Both their Majesties will return next year and remain for a longer time.

NAPLES, April 26.—King Edward landed here to-night and will go by rail to London. Queen Alexandra remained on board the Victoria and Albert and will go on a cruise to Greece.

Botha Negotiates Transvaal Loan.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday, April 27.—The Daily Courier asserts that Gen. Botha, Premier of the Transvaal, has negotiated an arrangement with the Rand magnates in London by which they guarantee a big loan to the Transvaal, the Government of the Transvaal undertaking not to interfere with the mining industry. Gen. Botha on being question regarding the story declined either to confirm or deny it.

Dave Hennen Morris Gives Bond.

NEW ORLEANS, April 26.—Dave Hennen Morris, recently indicted by the Federal Grand Jury at Mobile, Ala., on the charge of violating the anti-lottery laws, waived examination when his case came up before the United States Commissioner here to-day and, after giving bond for his appearance at Mobile, was released. Similar action was taken yesterday in the case of Alfred Hennen Morris, a brother of the man arraigned to-day.

TELLS RAILROADS THEY MUST SUBMIT

Melville E. Ingalls Says They Must Realize Theirs Is No Longer a Private Industry.

BLOW OF THE SHERMAN LAW

Caused Resort to Secret Agreements —State Taxation Drove Securities Into Hands of Wall Street Cliques.

PITTSBURG, April 26.—Three hundred or more railroad Presidents, Vice Presidents, Freight Agents, Traffic Managers, and other officials, besides manufacturers and all classes of shippers of freight, were guests of the Traffic Club of Pittsburg to-night at its fifth annual banquet at the Hotel Schenley.

The club's President, W. A. Terry, General Freight Agent of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie Road, urged co-operation between shipper and carrier, and expressed regret that a body of the importance of the Inter-State Commerce Commission should not have among its members one representative of either of the two great interests directly concerned—the shipper and the carrier.

Melville E. Ingalls, Chairman of the Big Four system, reviewed the conditions that had led up to the present situation, and told his hearers that they might as well make up their minds now that they were no longer a private industry, and that he who was not prepared to manage his railway as a public institution in accordence with law ought to resign and seek other business.

Until the passage of the Inter-State Commerce law in 1886, he said, it was the custom among all the railways to make secret contracts, selling their transportation to wholesale bidders at the best prices possible, trying thereby to build up the industries of the country and obtain returns for their stockholders. It was not considered wrong, but a proper way of conducting business. When competition got too severe pools were made by which the business was divided and the rates secured.

"When the Inter-State commerce law was passed in 1886 prohibiting pooling," he continued, "such arrangements were all ended, and the railways endeavored to conduct their business by agreement under that law. This went on very well for a year or two, but gradually the competition for business increased, and the result was that the system of rebates grew into tremendous proportions. Published tariffs were disregarded, and it was a struggle for existence among the different lines.

"In 1895 the situation had become so acute that a few of us thought something must be done or the end would be bankruptcy, so we called a meeting of all of the lines north of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi to discuss the situation. There were present the Presidents and general managers of all the lines. All agreed that the situation was deplorable; that the business of the country was being conducted on special rates; that the shippers were dictating any terms they pleased, and that the end was bankruptcy for the entire railway system unless something could be done to stop it.

"A committee was appointed and we endeavored to make some agreement by which we could maintain our tariffs, and at the same time comply with the law. We drew what was known as 'The Joint Traffic Association Agreement.' The thought of our committee, and I speak whereof I know, was to draw an agreement that should comply with the Inter-State commerce law, and aid the Inter-State Commerce Commission in enforcing the public tariffs. It was never for an instant thought by any of us that there was any danger from the Sherman law, so-called. In fact, I had been told by the author of that famous law when it was passed that it did not apply to railways.

"We made our agreement; we put our machinery in effect, and in the following months we had rates better maintained than they had been for years before. We were brought into the courts, however, by shippers who were opposed to any maintenance of rates, and to our surprise and disgust, before we were aware of it, the Supreme Court had decided in a case somewhat similar, called 'The Trans-Missouri Agreement,' that it was in conflict with the Sherman law, and illegal. We asked for a rehearing, but in the Spring of 1897 the decision was reaffirmed, and it was practically decided by the highest court in the land that there was no authority or power on the part of the railways to make an agreement for the maintenance of rates.

"As no public agreement could be made between the railways, there were various secret arrangements which they tried to keep, but each manager endeavored to obtain as much business as possible for his road on the best terms he could make. There was far more business done on secret rebates and contracts than on public tariffs, with a constant shrinkage of rates."

After saying that owing to the taxation of railway securities in the different States these securities found their way into Wall Street and became controlled by cliques, he recalled that six or seven of these men conceived the "community of interests" idea and sought to buy the controlling interest in practically all the railways of the United States, and thereby produce a joint ownership, and through it a maintenance of rates.

"Instead of improving their lines," he said, "some of them spent a large part of their income and credit in buying other lines and increasing their dividends so that the prices of their stocks could be sold better here and abroad, and all these things caused so much dissatisfaction among people that it finally took form in the celebrated Northern Securities case. If it had not been for that suit a few men would have controlled the great transportation interests of this country, and while they would have maintained rates, they would have made and unmade statesmen; would have controlled Congress and Legislatures, and in the end no one knows what the result would have been."

In conclusion he said:

"You must have legislation giving you authority to contract and make agreements between yourselves which can be enforced. These agreements must be made public, and, in case of complaint, passed upon by the Inter-State Commerce Commission. You must have legislation providing that no new railways shall be built or new stock and bonds issued except with the approval of the Inter-State Commerce Commission. I know this will cause a storm among some railway projectors, but, gentlemen, you have got to submit."

Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, touched on the question of reciprocity with Canada. The State of Massachusetts, he said, deemed it imperative for its future welfare to increase its trade with Canada. Among other things Massachusetts desired that coal should be made reciprocally free of duty between Canada and the United States.

Grand Trunk Official a Suicide.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 26.—E. G. Russell, executive agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific in British Columbia, committed suicide yesterday at Prince Rupert by shooting himself with a revolver.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PARIS, April 26.—The appeal of Count Boni de Castellane against the decision of the court which last Nov. 14 granted a divorce to the Countess Boni de Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould of New York, has been listed for May 21.

BERLIN, April 26.—The Government introduced in the Reichstag to-day a bill designed to reduce the number of prosecutions for treason. In cases where the offense was not committed in public the consent of the Minister of Justice must be obtained before the offender can be prosecuted. Offenses lapse, by the statute of limitations, at the expiration of six months from the time they were committed.

PARIS, April 26.—Warrants were issued today for the arrest of the twenty-one signatories of the recent anti-militarism manifestoes, but only seven were captured. Should convictions ensue on the charge of incitement to disobedience they will involve from one to five years' imprisonment.

HAVRE, April 26.—Alvey A. Adee, the American Second Assistant Secretary of State, who arrived here yesterday on La Savoie from New York, left Hnvre to-day on a 3,500-kilometer bicycle tour of France.

Ten Horses.

COMMENT is frequent concerning the smartness and good looks of the Loeser delivery horses. They have made a special reputation for the Store which is perhaps unique.

It may be interesting, therefore, to note that an inspection of the records the other day disclosed the fact that at least ten of the Loeser horses, still performing their regular duties, have been in the service here for periods ranging from twelve to seventeen years.

The same policy which has brought the Store organization to the highest state of efficiency has also demonstrated the wisdom of good blood and breeding and care in developing the Loeser delivery to the utmost possibilities of promptness and satisfaction.

And to people who have some interest in and experience with horses the records of these animals who have served so long and are still efficient cannot, we think, prove uninteresting.

The Truth About MEN'S CLOTHING.

IT CANNOT BE TOLD BY A GLANCE at the outside of it, any more than you can always tell the character of a man by looking at his face.

It is easy enough to pretty up a piece of cloth into a good-looking suit of clothes—and not spend very much money or very much time about it, either.

Why not know the truth about the clothing you buy? Why not be sure that you are getting clothes TAILORED into shape instead of pressed into shape? Why not treat the buying of a suit of clothes just the same as you would treat any other business proposition and know all about it before you spend your money?

It takes a little more time and a little more trouble than simply to accept the salesman's word. But we know it is worth while, and we want you to know it.

The Loeser Clothing for men stands on its merit. The salesman is ready at any time to show you the inside of a coat so that you can see just how it is made and just how careful is the handwork that makes Loeser clothing different from the ordinary ready-to-wear clothing. We shall be glad to have you make careful comparisons—glad to stand by the result.

YOUTH RAISES POINT FOR MME. DE MASSY

Says That After Simon Was Shot a Man Preceded Her Down the Stairway.

SURPRISE TO PROSECUTION

Court Rules Out Testimony That After the Shots the Defendant Tried to Escape and Was Stopped.

Strong points for both the prosecution snd the defense were brought out yesterdsy at the trial of Mme. Anisia Louise du Vernon De Massy in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for the murder of Gustav Simon, the wealthy shirtwaist manufacturer, of Brosdway. Through it all the little Frenchwoman showed poise and indifference. She was compelled again, as on the day before, to meet the accusing gaze and extended hsnd of a witness who swore that ehe was the woman who hsd descended the stairs from Simon's office just after the three revolver shots had echoed through the halls.

With the exception of the testimony of Elizsbeth Veronica Hale, that the dying merchant, in evident terror, had begged that the Frenchwoman be taken away, accusing her of shooting him, the accusation of yeeterday is the most damaging evidence which the State hss yet preeented. Yet Mre. De Msssy met it with her inscrutable smile.

That she was buoyed up by the testimony of the morning there can be no doubt. For then, for the first time since the trial commenced, a fact was brought out which confirms in a measure the contention to which the little Frenchwoman has held from the day of her arrest —that not she, but another person who had been lying in wait for Simon, shot the old merchant at the moment when Mrs. De Massy was leaving his office, to return at his request two hours later.

This fact came out in the examination by Assistant District Attorney Ely of Howard Eberlein, the elevator boy in 604 Broadway, the building in which Simon wss shot. Eberlein had testified concerning the events immediately following the shooting, and had told of seeing Mrs. De Massy descend the stairs.

Man Preceded Her Downstairs.

"Did you eee anybody other than the defendant come downetairs after the shooting?" suddenly demanded Mr. Ely.

To Ely's apparent sstonishment and the evident gratification of Mrs. De Massy and Charles Le Barbier, her counsel, Eberlein responded:

"Yes, I did. It was a man."

"Do you know who he was?"

"No, I did not get a good look at his face. It was turned away from me, but I do not think that I ever saw him before. He came down a few seconds before the defendant did."

In the afternoon Celia Guggenheim, employed in the hat factory of Solomon Shiller, on the fourth floor of 604 Broadway, two stories below Simon's place, was called to the etand by Mr. Ely. She had been in the showroom of Shiller's place, she testified, when she heard the report of three revolver shots. The door leading from the showroom to the hallway was open, and to this she ran with Otto Schissel. A woman in black was coming down the stairwsy from the floor above, and Schissel stopped her.

"What's the matter upstairs?" he asked, Mlse Guggenheim testified.

"Why, some one has been doing some shooting," the witness said.

Identified as "Woman in Black."

Miss Guggenheim, at Mr. Ely's request, thereupon identified Mme. de Massy as the woman in black whom she had seen.

Mme. de Massy showed no perturbation, but her lawyer jumped out of his chair.

"She tried to run away, to escape, and Schissel caught her."

"Objection," shouted Mr. Le Barbier. "I move that those words be stricken from the record."

Justice Blanchard so ordered, and Mr. Ely reframed his question.

"What did the woman do next?" he asked.

"She did not stop, but continued to walk, and Mr. Schissel followed her."

If this testimony of Miss Guggenheim was damaging, however, that of both Max Zimmerman and Travis, both employes of the Queen Shirtwaist Company, Simon's concern, rather favored the little Frenchwoman. Zimmerman said he had heard the rapping on the door, and when he heard the shooting returned to the office from the factory. He spoke to Simon and then went with Travis to the street. On his return, he said, he had been in the office with Simon when Mrs. de Massy was brought in, but had not heard Simon accuse her of shooting him.

Travis testified that he had been in the office with Simon, and had heard the rapping on the door. He had turned away for a moment, and when he looked back he could see Simon standing between the wooden door and the iron door leading into the hall. His back was to him. Then, said Travis, he saw the doors flung wide open, heard three shots fired in rapid succession, and dodged downward as the glass in a partition over his head was shattered by one of the bullets.

Fails to Identify Mrs. De Massy.

"As I raised myself up again," added Travis, "I saw a flash of white, and then everything was black."

"A flash as of—" Mr. Ely supplied.

He could not identify this vision as Mrs. De Massy, however.

Simon, said the witness, had stepped out into the hall after the shooting and said something. He returned holding his hand against his breast, where the bullet had struck him, and gave some instructions to Travis. The latter then went down in the elevator. On the street he saw Mrs. De Massy, and called a policeman to arrest her. Then he had returned to the office.

Travis indicated upon the diagram which Mr. Ely put in evidence on the first day just where the bullets had struck, and also pointed out to the jury the location of the wood and iron doors. He had asked the policeman to search Mrs. De Massy, he said, but no revolver had been found. He had later, however, seen a weapon at the police station, which was said to have been the one found in the hall and with which the shooting was done.

"I will ask you if this is it," said Mr. Ely, as he handed the witness a revolver.

"It looks like the one I eaw," answered Travis.

Eberlein's Memory Defective.

Mr. Le Barbier cross-examined Travis at length, as he had Eberlein. He paid particular attention to the time between the firing of the shots and the arrest of Mrs. De Massy, apparently being anxious to show that his client could not have fired the shots and then reached the street within the time which elapsed between the actual firing and her arrest.

Eberlein, under cross-exnmination, developed a remarkable loss of memory. He could recall none of his answere to queetions put to him at the Coroner's inquest, and had no recollection of testifying that a man had followed Mrs. De Massy from the building. Mr. Le Barbier tried hard to show from Eberlein's former testimony that this man who had followed Mrs. De Massy was Otto Schisael.

Eberlein could not remember, however, and at last Mr. Le Barbier demanded:

"Did any one tell you to make these answers to my questions?"

"No," retorted the young man, "but if I don't know them, I ain't going to say I do."

The trial will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock on Monday morning.

"EXTRAS" FOR FIRE DRILL.

Alarming Reports of Burning Steamer on Which There Was No Fire.

Any skipper desiring to make a noise and a sensation in this harbor may observe the following rule:

Proceed slowly until near in ehore and then give several short blasts on the whistle, at the eame time letting seven men scamper across the deck, in plain view of those gathered on shore, carrying a length or two of hose.

The steamer Sarah A. Jenks, plying between this port and Ossining on the Hudson and hitherto unknown to fame, had her arrival promptly noted in maritime circles yesterday and a great stir made sbout her. The Jenks was proceeding slowly down the river, when an observer on shore heard her whistle hegin to toot, and at the same time noted unusual activity on deck. Instantly there was a panic ashore, and soon a news agency with a direct wire to Police Headquarters ground out this bulletin:

Police Headquarters has received a report that the eteamer Sarah A. Jenks is coming down the Hudson River.

This was strictly true, but it was soon followed by this:

Stesmer Sarah A. Jenks is coming down the river on fire.

This last was enough to make the afternoon newspapers spell sensation with an upper case S. A few minutes later out came a midnight extra with this legend spread in two-inch black letters nll across the front page: "Steamboat on Fire."

The steamboat Sarah A. Jenks, plying between New York and Yonkers, caught fire in Long Island Sound off Port Morris to-day. The steamboat is reported to be doomed. The fire gained such headway that the crew could do nothing. * * * (More sensational details.) * * * The crew fought the fire as long as possible before aking to the boats.

This news spread rapidly. Out came more editions in white and pink describing the burning of the "doomed" vessel, with awful details. Even the staid ticker began to spread the news.

"It's a second Slocum disaster," wss the word that went around, and off went a host of reporters and photographers to intercept the burning craft. Police Headquarters told Fire Headquarters, and the fireboats McClellan snd New Yorker were dispatched to the rescue.

All this time the Sarah A. Jenks was placidly coming down the river. Capt. Joseph Jenks, her skipper, all unaware of the excitement his coming wss causing on shore. He wss hot when the fireboats came alongside, snd he wss angrier still when his boat tied up at the foot of Franklin Street and the reporters climbed aboard.

"If I ever catch the blue-boned, half-boiled son of n sea cook who sent thst report in I'll tie him in the scuppers and go out in what the newspapers call 'mountainous seas' and eee thnt his head is kept under water on the trip," said Capt. Jenks as he looked out of his pilot-house window. "There was nothing exciting about this trip, except that I steamed past two canalboats in tow, one brick-loaded schooner, three tugboats, and a loaded barge, proceeding across the river under sail."

And then it came out that it was such a monotonous trip that the skipper decided to enjoy the diversion of a fire drill. Lest the diversion should be too realistic the crew were sent to warn the few passengers the Jenks carried. That being seen to, the whistle of the Jenks shattered the quiet of the Palissdes and her five lines of hos were put in operation, becoming in the afternoon fudges n "doomed vessel drifting helpless in the river with her passengers leaping overboard."

WILLIAM A. BREWER PLEADS.

Aged Insurance Official's Sentence Withheld Until Tuesday.

William A. Brewer, ex-President of the Washington Life Insurance Company, was before Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday. He is under two indictments for perjury snd ono for making false reports of the company's financial standing to the State Insurance Department. Mr. Brewer, who is 73 years old, was accompanied by his attorney, ex-Assistant District Attorney William Rand, Jr. The latter was prepared to enter a plea of guilty for his client to the false report indictment. While the first two indictments charge felony, the latter is only a misdemeanor, punishable by a year in prison, a fine of $500 or hoth, and depending upon the advanced sge of Mr. Brewer, Mr. Rand has sought to have only the fine imposed.

Assistant District Attorney Nott told Justice Blanchard, however, that whilo he would not object to the plea of guilty, he would oppose the fine as the sole penalty in view of the fact that in an almost similar case George Burnham, Jr., of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, had been sent to Sing Sing.

Justice Blanchard announced that he should put off all sentences in his court until next Tuesday, the last day of the term, and realizing that in the event of pleading, Mr. Brewer would be compelled to spend the time until Tuesday in the Tombs, Mr. Rnnd withdrew his tentative plea. The case will come up again on Tuesday.

WHY BOSSES ARE NEEDED.

President Wilson Tells Columbia Students About Party Rule Here.

Woodrow Wilson, President of Princeton University, spoke on "Party Government in the United States" in Earl Hall at Columbia University yesterday afternoon. He said in part:

"The result of the successful separation, by Whig theory, of the several parts of our Government, is that it lacks unity and cohesion, and contains hut one antional force, namely, the President. Only the President represents the country as a whole, and the President himself is co-operatively related to the Houses only by party machinery and discipline.

"It is the continuous and systematic attention which it is necessry to devote to this difficult business of controlling the Government from the outside that has made it necessary that we should have 'bosses,' and that they and their lieutenants should assign offices by virtual appointment.

"It would he hard to exaggerate the importance of the nationalizing influence of our great parties. Without them, in a country so various as ours, with communities at every stago of development, separated hy the sharpest economic contrasts and social difference, with local problems of their own which seem to give them separate interests difficult to combine with any others, keen in rivalry, and even cut asunder by deep-rooted prejudices, national opinion, national judgments could not have been formulated or enforced without the instrumentality of well disciplined parties."

SALOON KEEPER KILLED.

Shot In Front of a Saloon In Eighth Avenue In a Row.

Patrick J. McCarthy, an old-time saloon keeper, with a business at 414 Eighth Avenue, wns shot to death early yesterday morning just outside James Moore's saloon, at 354 Eighth Avenue. The police found on him a revolver, a blackjack, and $130. Nine men were immediately arrested and taken to the West Thirty-seventh Street Police Station.

Later in the day they were all releaaed except Frank Cassidy of 300 West Thirty-first Street and John McCoy of 301 Tenth Avenue, supposed to be concerned in the killing of McCarthy, and three others, who were held as witnesses. The bartender at Moore's said that he heard one shot, and then McCarthy staggered in through the door, exclaiming:

"I'm shot. See what you can do for me."

The bartender said he found a number of men outside fighting. McCarthy died before the ambulance came. His wife said yesterday that she had no idea why he should be killed except for his money. She said he had expected to get a large amount of money Thursday night.

Police May Have Capt. W. P. Williams

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—A man who is supposed to be Capt. William Plumb Williams, wanted in New York for attempting to float railroad companies whose rights exieted only on paper, was arrested here to-night. The charge against him is that of defrauding the Hotel Edourd of food and lodging to the value of $70. He registered at the hotel as O. H. Williams. At the police station he gave the name W. B. Williams.

INFECTION AND CONTAGION.

HOUSEHOLDERS CAUTIONED.

Disinfect Freely this Spring.

Infectious and contagious diseases are prevalent. The use of a reliable disinfectant protects the household. The last thing at night pour into the traps of the closets, wash basins, sinks, etc., just a little Platt's Chlorides. Dusty or damp corners and cracks—nooks behind plumbing and all spots that can't be reached by the scrubbing brush, should be freely sprinkled with a mixture of one (1) part Platt's Chlorides and ten (10) parts of water. This dilution costs less than 5 cents a quart. Do not neglect a liberal sprinkling of the cellar. To remove objectionable odors where sprinkling is inadvisable, keep a cloth or sponge moistened with the dilution mentioned. A little extra care just now may prevent much sickness and expense.

KELSEY'S FRIENDS CAN KEEP HIM IN

On Present Showing of Senate Strength, Hughes Loses Insurance Fight.

QUICK MISSIONARY WORK

Lou Payn, McCarren, and Grady Have Been Busy in the Last Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 26.—Senator Raines, the majority leader, after throwing down the gantlet to Gov. Hughes at the close of the Judiciary Committee's session on the Kelsey case yesterday, went back to his own bailiwick of Canandaigua. A majority of the members of the Old Guard, however, decided to stay in Albany over Sunday. From a careful poll of the Senate, it now appears that unless something can be done to steam the reactionary tide between now and the time the Kelsey case will come before the Senate for final action Gov. Hughes will be defeated in his purpose of having the State Superintendent of Insurance removed from office.

Gov. Hughes, as the situation stands, will have only fifteen certain votes in favor of Kelsey's removal. There are nine Senators who are doubtful. Even should all their votes go to the Governor's side of the Kelsey proposition he would nevertheless suffer defeat.

Louis F. Payn, who at one time was State Superintendent of Insurance, is acting as generalissimo of the brigade of leaders now in the field for Kelsey, and McCarren and Grady have done a whole lot of missionary work. McCarren has been slated to lead the fight for him on the Democratic side when the case comes before the Senate.

A friend of the Governor, in commenting on the situation, said to-day:

"Where does the interest of McCarren and Grady in Kelsey come in? They have always been arrayed against him in politics. Neither of these Senators can be charged with being overburdened with sentiment."

The Governor's friends assert to-day that the situation that has developed over the Kelsey case may be regarded as part of a general attack on the Public Utilities bill. Should the Governor's prestige suffer the set-back of a defeat on the question of Kelsey's removal, then there is no doubt that many of the legislators who have found this a "poor" session will take advantage of the opportunity to retrive their earlier losses in the closing hours of the present Legislature. The corporations up to the present time have hesitated to use the time-honored means of persuasion, but there is no doubt that if the Black Horse Cavalry gets in the saddle they will hesitate no longer, and their missionaries will be welcomed with open arms.

LAND CLAIM BILL VETOED.

Gov. Hughes Deals a Blow to a Form of Legislative Abuse.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 26.—Gov. Hughes struck at another legislative abuse to-day, when he vetoed a species of private claim bill of the sort that deluge the Legislature every session. By the action of the Governor to-day it is safe to assume that to push that kind of legislation during his administration is labor lost. The bill was "an act to release to Cora Fehling the right, title, and interest of the State to certain lands in Queens County acquired by escheat upon the death of Martin N. Connolly."

The Governor concludes the memorandum of his veto is as follows:

"The public lands law provides a method by which petition may be made to the Commissioners of the Land Office for the release of lands which have escheated to the State. The Commissioners are authorized to execute a conveyance to the petitioner upon such terms and conditions as the Commissioners may deem just.

PLEA FOR BOXING BILL.

Representatives of Amateur Clubs Back Frawley's Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 26.—Gov. Hughes granted a hearing to-day on the Frawley Amateur Athletic Union Boxing bill. The Governor asked twice if there was any one present to represent the opposition to the bill. No one appearing against it, Senator Frawley, Capt. Dixon of the Military Athletic League, Thomas J. Nevins of the Church Athletic League, and John P. Boyle of the Pastime Athletic Club, extolled the merits of the measure.

Following the hearing the Governor and Senator Frawley went over the bill together, the latter explaining its workings at greater length. It was said that the bill is opposed secretly by professional followers of pugilism.

THE UNITED SERVICE.

The Army.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Major E. Russel, Signal Corps, will proceed to Fort Monroe on official business pertaining to the wireless telegraph installation at that post.

Major J. T. Crabbs, Quartermaster, in addition to his other duties, will assume charge of construction work at Washington Barracks, relieving Capt. J. S. Sewell, Corps of Engineers, of that duty.

A board of officers, to consist of Lieut. Col. G. R. Cecil, Tenth Infantry; Major O. Rafferty, Surgeon; Capt. J. M. Field, Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry; Capt. E. J. Griffith, Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry; First Lieut. W. H. Armstrong, Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry, Recorder, is appointed to meet at San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 3 to conduct the examination of candidates for Second Lieutenant in the Porto Rico Provisional Regiment of Infantry.

Capt. C. W. Kutz, Corps of Engineers, will proceed to New York City for the purpose of attending a meeting of the Niagara Falls Commission on April 29.

The Navy.

Commander T. W. Rymn, retired, to the navy yard, New York, for court-martial duty.

Lieut. Commander F. R. Payne to the Naval Hospital, New York, for treatment.

Boatswain J. Winn to the navy yard, Norfolk.

MOXIE

are enthusiastic advocates of Moxie. They have learned to love it because of its delicious taste. It is refreshing and thirst-quenching. Moxie is good for the children. It is as good for their nerves as food is for their growing bodies. Give them all they want of it. It will always do them good.

Fatigue arising from housework, social duties or athletic pursuits vanishes before a glass of Moxie. This is because it sustains the nerves.

Women who keep Moxie in the ice-chest at all times eat better, sleep better and feel better for its constant use.

The trying days of summer have no terrors for the woman who drinks plenty of Moxie.

Have you a case in your house now? If not, it would pay you to order one immediately.

Sold by all Grocers, Druggists and Dealers in temperance beverages $2.50 a case, 25 cents per bottle, 5 cents a glass at all fountains

THOUSANDS WAKE THE "WEISER MIT"

Passing of Klein's Famous Saloon Brings Sorrow to Second Avenue.

A MONSTER CELEBRATION

Balloons Bearing Cards Promising Free Clothes, Wine and Cheese Among the Features—Drinks on Tap for All.

The old-fashioned German of New York pulled his hat over his eyes and declared last night that Avenue A had passed away. The reason for this declaration was that Edward Klein, who has had a wine stube in Avenue A since he was a boy, had pulled his shutters down and notified his customers that he had done with business at his place, 31 Avenue A.

The saloon, which has been the resort of politicians for almost half a century, will pass away on May 1. Last night everybody of prominence on the east side went there to have a last drink with the proprietor. Klein had notified them that he had sold the property and intended to live in Easy Street for the rest of his life. Knowing that most old-time saloon keepers have been in the habit of buying their places back after selling them to strangers, Klein sold the building under such terms that he cannot get back into the business if he would.

His father, Karl Klein, had opened the place in 1863, when Avenue A was young. When Avenue A grew the Klein saloon became known as the Weiser Mit, for the reason that they sold white wine and seltzer there. The place became famous after the younger Klein, Edward, took charge of it twenty years ago, and when the Jewish element began to crowd out the Germans from the east side everybody said that the Weiser Mit would soon go out of business.

Ed Klein had such a celebration there last night that he blocked the cars of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, attracted all of the politicians of the lower end of the city to the place, together with the police officials, and put his saloon out of business with a band of music and everything else that could be thought of in the way of noise. About 500 men helped to celebrate the passing of Avenue A. Among them were State Senator William Sohmer, Alderman Joe Schneider, Assemblyman Huth, Civil Justice Roesch, and ex-Alderman William Baumert.

They sent up paper balloons to notify strangers that Avenue A had changed. These balloons contained a card which entitled the finder to a suit of clothes, a basket of wine, or some other thing of value. At least 5,000 people gathered in front of the place to witness the balloon ascensions and the fireworks which followed. Every man who had patronized the saloon took part in the ascensions. One man who was an umbrella manufacturer attached his business card to a balloon sent up, with an order for an umbrella, payable to the finder. Another man, who was a tailor, attached his business card to a balloon. It entitled the finder to a suit of clothes.

Ex-Alderman William Baumert, in the cheese business, attached his business card to one of these balloons, and on it he had written that the finder of the balloon would be entitled to a case of Brie cheese.

The hundreds of persons brought to the neighborhood of the wine saloon stood in groups in the roadway in front of the place telling one another that it was a saloon in which a glass of beer had not been served in more than forty years. The crowd also talked of other things. They remembered that the proprietor, Ed Klein, had lost most of his family in the Slocum disaster. They recalled that on that occasion Mr. Klein's wife and some of his children had been burned to death. His mother also lost her life that day.

The Klein children, who survived, were on hand last night helping to entertain those whom their father invited to his place. Among them was one who told how a 21-year-old son of the host had been drowned a little after the Slocum disaster. The boy who told of this said that he was glad that his father was getting away from Avenue A.

Edward Klein created history on the east side in his wine saloon. It had been noted for its pinochle clubs and for the German organizations that had made it their headquarters. The old-time east side club known as the N-R's, was organized there. Many pigeon-shooting societies helped make the place famous. Klein, the proprietor, had always taken an interest in pigeons, and that was the only thing he worried about last night. He had built a pigeon coop on the roof of two houses he owned on Avenue A, a coop that contained $6,000 worth of pigeons, and every time he opened a bottle of wine with his friends he asked some of them what he was to do with his pigeons.

While the saloon celebration was going on many people called at the place and told Klein that they had received balloons that he had sent up in the week. Each balloon had an order of some kind for a suit of clothes, a basket of wine, or something of that sort; and these balloons, which consisted of paper and were about six feet high, had fallen in all parts of New York.

"ADIRONDACK" MURRAY FUND.

Friends Plan a Monument and Fund for His Family.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the birth of the late William Henry Harrison, "Adirondack" Murray, father of the out-of-door-life movement. His friends met yesterday afternoon in the Grand Union Hotel to formulate suitable plans to perpetuate his memory, to assist in the support of his wife and four daughters, and to preserve the Murray homestead in Guilford, Conn. Committees were appointed, and steps were taken to raise money for the Memorial Association.

"Adirondack" Murray was born in 1840 and died in 1904. He began his career as pastor of the Park Street Congregational Church in Boston. His love of sports, good horseflesh, and an erratic out-of-door life cost him that place, and he became a lecturer and writer.

To Mortgage Music School Settlement.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman signed an order yesterday giving to the Society of the Music School Settlement permission to mortgage its real estate at 55 East Third Street to the Mutual Life Insurance Company for $27,500.

BETTER FIRE PROTECTION.

Completed Parts of Salt Water System to be Made at Once.

It is the intention of Commissioner O'Brien of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity to use parts of the new high-pressure fire service plant, now being installed, previous to the completion of the entire system. For this purpose a connection has been established between the Croton low-pressure service and the new service pipes at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-first Street.

The district to be benefited by this plan is comprised within the following boundaries: Beginning at Twenty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, down Broadway and University Place to Waverley Place, westward through Waverley Place and Christopher Street to West Street, northward through West to Sixteenth Street, eastward through Sixteenth Street to Seventh Avenue, northward through Seventh Avenue to Twenty-second Street, and eastward through Twenty-second Street to the corner of Twenty-second Street and Fifth Avenue. It comprises about 400 acres and embraces many of the most important retail dry goods districts.

An interesting test was made last week on the 24-inch high-pressure main on Third Avenue to determine whether the 20-inch gate valves could be easily opened while under a pressure of 450 pounds a square inch on one side and no pressure on the other, which is equivalent to a pressure of 71 tons on the valve disk. It was found that two men working an ordinary gate key with 2-foot handles could readily open the valve.

LANTRY HEARS FROM CROKER.

Sends Thanks for Restoration of Old Papers—Has Been Ill.

Fire Commissioner Francis J. Lantry found a few weeks ago an old personal letter impression book belonging to Richard Croker stored away in one of the bureaus of the Fire Department. The former Tammany chieftain was for years a Fire Commissioner. The book undoubtedly contains much interesting personal matter relating to Mr. Croker and his friends, of Tammany and politicians generally, but Commissioner Lantry ordered the book sealed up and forwarded to Mr Croker, in Ireland. Mr. Croker wrote a letter of thanks to the Commissioner, dated Glencairn, Sandyford, County Dublin, Ireland, which was given out yesterday by Commissioner Lantry, and reads as follows:

My Dear Commissioner: Thank you very much for your kindness in sending the book of old letters which was here when I returned from Egypt.

I want to congratulate you on your appointment as Fire Commissioner. I consider it one of the most honorable and interesting places in the City Government, and where you can do the most good for the people.

Politics are in such a mixed condition, from what I read in the papers and letters from friends, that I will not dwell on them. You have always been a stanch Tammany man, and I hope that those in power will not force you to the wall.

I have been laid up with a severe cold on my kidneys which I got while I was away, and I have been in bed ever since I returned from Egypt. Although now well on the mend, I must be careful hereafter. If you have any time for a vacation, come over. I have not seen any places I like as well as old Ireland. Wishing you health, and with kind regards to all my friends, believe me

Very sincerely yours,
RICHARD CROKER.

FIREMEN PROMOTED.

John O'Hara Made Deputy Chief and M. J. Smith Battalion Chief.

The following promotions were announced yesterday by Fire Commissioner Lantry:

John O'Hara, Battalion Chief of the Bushwick District in Brooklyn, to be Deputy Chief; Foreman Martin J. Smith of Engine Company 151, Wallabout District, Brooklyn, to be Battalion Chief.

O'Hara was appointed a fireman on Jan. 30, 1887. He became Assistant Foreman in March, 1887; Foreman in July, 1889, and Battalion Chief in December, 1897. In his long service in the department there has never been a complaint against him.

Smith was appointed a fireman April 16, 1880; made Assistant Foreman in December, 1897, and Foreman in December, 1906. His record in the department is also without a flaw.

SUGAR TRUST SUIT UP.

Pennsylvania Refining Company Wants $30,000,000 Damages.

Judge Lacombe listened yesterday to arguments of Lawyer Marshal of Battle & Marshal, representing the plaintiff, and Henry W. Taft, a brother of the Secretary of War, representing the defendants, on a motion to strike out certain portions of the answer of the defendants in the suit filed by the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company against the American Sugar Refining Company.

The complaint, asking $30,000,000 damages, charges a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in restraint of trade. It is said that the suit really grew out of the financial tangle of the late President Hippie of the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia. Hippie, it was said, owned 26,000 shares in the Pennsylvania Sugar Company, an enterprise promoted by Adolph Segal, and intended as a competitor of the Sugar Trust.

There were those in court who smiled when Mr. Taft appeared in behalf of the Sugar Trust, fighting the Sherman law, as he but recently appeared in support of it in the same court in the Tobacco Trust cases, where he represented the Government.

"DIVINE" HEALER A SUICIDE.

Mrs. Vitous Sank Her Fortune in an Invention and Took Gas.

After having mortgaged her home to get money to aid an inventor with a scheme which was to do away with matches, and despairing of ever realizing on the sum invested, Mrs. Marie Vitous, known as a divine, or mental, healer, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas in her home, 214 East Seventy-second Street. Mrs. Vitous was accredited by the hundreds of foreigners who formed her clientele as having divine healing powers and to them she was always "The Little Shepherdess."

She came to this country from Austria fifteen years ago. She was well educated and spoke several languages. For a number of years the woman went from house to house "healing" the sick by "divine" methods. Two years ago the woman bought the house in which she died. She had an immense practice, and there were many mornings when there was a line of patients leading far out into the street, waiting for treatment.

On Tuesday, according to Coroner Acritelli, the woman received a letter stating that the invention in which she had invested her all was practically useless. She became despondent and yesterday was found in her room dead. A gas tube extending from the chandelier to her mouth. Mrs. Vitous was 44 years old.

PASTEURIZED MILK IN PARKS.

Nathan Straus to Furnish It for Poor if City Will Build Booths.

The East Side Pure Milk League has written to President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen asking his support of a measure that is to be introduced in the board by Alderman Stapleton appropriating $8,000 for the erection in each city park of temporary structures from which pasteurized milk may be distributed to the poor at small cost.

In the letter referred to, Clement J. Driscoll, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the league, asserts that the various Park Commissioners in all the boroughs have no money to erect the booths needed. He points out the necessity of seeing that the poor get pure, pasteurized milk, and advances many of the arguments made in favor of pasteurization at the various hearings held by the Aldermen. The greatest damage done by impure milk, he says, is in the Summer months, and he calls attention to the fact that infant mortality, among the poor especially, can be greatly minimized by the distribution of pure milk in the Summertime.

Should the board decide to appropriate the money the $8,000 will be turned over to the Park Commissioners. It is estimated that that sum will be sufficient to erect temporary structures, and Nathan Straus has promised that if the city will erect the pavilions, which are to be known as "Straus Milk Depots," he will furnish the pasteurized milk and will defray the expense of conducting the booths. The milk will be sold at nominal cost.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS CENSURE A MEMBER

Some Object to Mrs. Leveridge's Work Against Women Teachers' Bill.

BUT THEY RE-ELECT HER

The Women's Democratic Club at an exciting meeting yesterday passed a resolution censuring one of its members, and then re-efected her as First Vice President.

Mrs. Silas P. Leveridge was the one censured. It was alleged she had been lobbying at Albany against the teachers' equal pay for equal work bill. And it was understood that she was represented there as coming form the Women's Democratic Club. Mrs. Leveridge was not present herself at the meeting yesterday.

It was Miss Yendes who introduced the resolution of censure. It immediately stirred up a storm of protests. Here is the resolution:

Whereas it is the theory of this club that we work as women for woman, and one of our cardinal principles is equal pay for equal work; and

Whereas public meetings have been held for the discussion of this question, and members have been invited to join the club because we have been working with that as one of our aims;

Therefore, Be it resolved that it is with deep regret that we learn that our First Vice President went to Albany to oppose the legislation in this direction introduced there by the Interborough Teachers' Association of this city; and be it further

Resolved, That in order to right before the world and purge ourselves of any charge of double dealing, and further reiterate our principles of equal pay for equal work, we hereby extend our sympathy and hearty co-operation to the Interborough Teachers' Association and order this resolution published in daily newspapers.

The resolution was not passed without heated discussion. There were only a handful of women present, but the thing did not blow over until matters had reached such a pass that it looked as if lightning might strike at any minute. Miss Ellen T. O'Brien moved that the resolution be accepted.

"We should not do anything about this matter until Mrs. Leveridge can be present," said Mrs. L. R. Greenburg.

"Mrs. Leveridge would be doing her duty by the club better if she attended more of the meetings," said a member with asperity.

"Can you name a time when Mrs. Leveridge was not present at a meeting?," said Mrs. Greenburg.

"Yes, I can," said the member tartly; "she wasn't here Good Friday, because she went to Albany."

"Whether Mrs. Leveridge went to Albany or not doesn't make any difference," said Miss O'Brien. "I know that Mrs. Leveridge lobbied against that Equal Pay bill."

"I say that we don't know whether she did or not," said Mrs. Greenburg.

"I am here to vouch for it that she did," said Miss O'Brien, shutting her lips very tight.

"I was at Albany," said Mrs. N. Curtis Lenihen, "and I heard a member of this club say that she represented the primary teachers, and that she was a members of the Interborough Teachers' Association—"

"I object," broke in Mrs. Greenburg.

"And I heard her say," continued Mrs. Lenihen—

"I object," said Mrs. Greenburg, with more emphasis.

"I will vouch for all the former speakers have said," concluded Mrs. Lenihen with equal emphasis.

The President, Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby, then made a temperate speech, saying that if she thought it was her duty to speak against the Teachers' bill she should do it, but she would do it as an individual and not as representing a club, and she thought no action should be taken until Mrs. Leveridge was present.

However, the resolution had by this time been put before the club, and it was passed, but only by a narrow margin. The election was even more closely contested., Mrs. Cornelius Sullivan's name was proposed for the office of First Vice President in opposition to Mrs. Leveridge.

"I think I prefer to be the power behind the throne," said Mrs. Sullivan. I am sure I should not have as many friends if I were an officer, and I should resign from the club."

The name of Mrs. Harry Crampton was put up with that of Mrs. Leveridge, and there was a tie on the first vote.

"The President should settle this by her vote," said one of Mrs. Leveridge's opponents.

"The President will not vote at all," said Mrs. Crosby.

Mrs. Leveridge's friends got busy immediately. On a second vote Mrs. Leveridge's name was swung triumphantly into place and she was re-elected First Vice President.

FIFTY-FIVE YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Reitweisner Have Lived in the Same House Over Fifty Years.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reitweisner of 402 West Fiftieth Street celebrated yesterday the fifty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. When they first went to live in the plain brick structure which they have occupied for upward of fifty years all that neighborhood was known as Bloomingdale, and farmhouses were plentiful about.

Four of their six children and thirty-one grandchildren are living, the combined ages amounting to more than a thousand years. The old couple asked that no elaborate entertainment be made, as they desired to save their energies for the sixtieth anniversary.

Verdict Set Aside as Inadequate.

The action of Attorneys Francis L. Minton and Peter R. Gatens for false arrest and malicious prosecution in connection with their arrest and imprisonment four years ago against the International Mercantile Agency, Charles A. Henderson, its general manager, and Detective Sergeants Patrick F. Gargan and John F. Tinker, ended on Thursday in a verdict against the International Mercantile Agency in favor of each plaintiff for $1,500, and against Henderson for $1,200, and for $25 against each of the Detective Sergeants. Justice Dayton has decided that the verdict as to the Detective Sergeants was inadequate, in view of the circumstances of the unwarranted arrest, and has set aside the verdict as to those two and ordered a new trial.

BURTON BOOMS TAFT.

Ohio Congressman Predicts Defeat if Anti-Roosevelt Man is Named.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 26.—Congressman Theodore C. Burton, who is one of the managers of Secretary Taft's candidacy for the Presidency, speaking before the 1,000 members of the Republican Club of Trenton at the annual dinner of that organization this evening, predicted defeat for the Republican Party in 1908 if any candidate but one pledged to carry out the Roosevelt policies is nominated by the party.

Congressman Burton concluded his speech by saying:

"My choice for President in the campaign of 1908 is a son of Ohio, William H. Taft.

"I recognize in him an administrative officer in any office he has served. It will be hardly necessary to count the minority votes cast."

Mr. Burton said he was waiting for Secretary Taft to return to his Ohio home, when he will give out a statement. However, he predicted the nomination of Taft as the best man to carry out the policies of Roosevelt, the carrying out of which was the salvation of the Republican Party's future.

ICE TRUST GETS A STAY.

But It Will Permit State to Look Into Accounts from 1904.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman signed an order yesterday staying the execution of an order made by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, permitting the Attorney General to inspect the books and papers of the American Ice Company. The result of this inspection is to be used by the Attorney General in his proceeding to annul the contracts of the corporations with its subsidiary companies on the ground that they are in restraint of trade and in violation of the anti-trust laws of the State.

Assistant Attorney General De Ford opposed the granting of the stay and said that the representativee of the American Ice Company had entered into a stipulation permitting an examination of the books of the concern from March, 1904, to date. The lawyer for the ice company admitted that this was so, but declared that his client desired to appeal from so much of the order as provided for the examination of the books and contracts from 1899 to March 8, 1904.

The appeal from the order will be heard by the Justices of the Appellate Division May 7. It was declared that the examination of the books of the ice company from March, 1904, would begin to-day.

THIRD TRIAL; 6-CENT VERDICT.

Woman Sued Dentist for False Arrest —Withdrew Assault Charge.

A verdict of 6 cents damages was returned by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Dugro yesterday in a suit brought by Mrs. Rose Wilson against Adolph Stein, a west side dentist, for false arrest. Mrs. Wilson sued for $10,000.

According to the plaintiff, she went to the dentist's office to have her teeth filled. While he had her in the operating chair, she averred, he attempted to kiss her, and when she ran out of his office he followed and had her arrested. She was taken before a Magistrate the next day and discharged.

The defendant denied that he had attempted to kiss the woman, and declared he had her arrested because she refused to pay his bill. There have been three trials of the suit. At the second trial the charges of assault and malicious prosecution were withdrawn. The juries in the first and second trials disagreed.

DEALER HELD HER PICTURE.

Offered to Restore It, but Didn't Send It Back—Owner Gets $500.

A jury before Supreme Court Justice Amend yesterday returned a verdict of $500 in favor of Mrs. Minnie S. Morris against David Lindenborn, a dealer in antiques, for a picture belonging to the plaintiff and now held by Lindenborn. Because an expert called by the plaintiff declared that the picture was worth only $300, a motion was made on behalf of the defendant to set the verdict aside as excessive. On this motion Justice Amend reserved decision.

The picture in question was the work of August Mueller of Munich. It had been in the home of Mrs. Morris for many years, and had become cracked. The defendant saw it and offered to restore it, and declared that after he had done so it would be worth $1,000. He took it and when she asked for the painting back he offered her $100 for it. She refused his offer and sued for its value.

August Young, an artist, was called to testify for the plaintiff. He said that the painting was worth $300. The jury, however, returned a verdict for $500.

SHOOTS SECRET SERVICE MAN

Ex-Member of Capt. Flynn's Staff Wounds R. E. Lewis Accidentally.

Robert E. Lewis, a Secret Service operator, was shot accidentally yesterday afternoon by Robert Moser, a former member of Capt. Flynn's staff. The ball grazed Lewis's hack, inflicting a painful flesh wound. The injured man was removed from the Secret Service office, at 116 Nassau Street, to St. Gregory's Hospital, where the wound was dressed.

Operator Burke's revolver was on his desk. Moser came in and took the cartridges out of the weapon. Later some one else, seeing the revolver empty, and knowing there was a rule that all guns should be kept loaded, filled the chambers.

A few minutes later Moser returned, and, thinking the revolver still unloaded, picked it up and pulled the trigger, wounding Lewis.

Moser was deeply affected, as he and the injured man were great friends. Lewis said there was no doubt the shooting was accidental.

BIG GIFTS TO HOSPITALS.

Saturday and Sunday Association Distributes $84,000.

The Distributing Committee of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association met yesterday to distribute the undesignated fund of the collection of 1906. This committee is composed of Mayor McClellan, Postmaster Willcox, Morris K. Jesup, James Speyer, John Claflin, and James C. Fargo. McAVOY WINS SLANDER SUIT.

Action for $50,000 Against ex-Police Deputy Is Dismissed.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday dismissed the suit for $50,000 for slander instituted by John G. Dooley against ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Thomas F. McAvoy. The plaintiff declared that McAvoy had said he was a fugitive from justice. McAvoy pleaded justification, his statements being true.

Dooley and McAvoy contended for the leadership of the Twenty-third Assembly District in 1903, and the next year Dooley went into bankruptcy. The motion for the dismissal of the case was made on the ground that the plaintiff had not been sufficiently diligent in pressing it to trial.

SPECIAL PANEL FOR BURNHAM

Justice O'Gorman Grants the District Attorney's Motion.

Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman signed an order yesterday granting the motion of the District Attorney for a special panel of jurors to try Frederick A. Burnham, President of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, who is under indictment for forgery and grand larceny.

The trial is set for May 17, and the granting of the order was opposed by Burnham's counsel on the ground that his client was ill and would be unable to attend the trial at that time, and also that the appeal from the conviction of George Burnham, Jr., would not come before the Appellate Division until May 7. It would not be proper to try the defendant until the other case was decided by the Appellate Court, he said.

SYNDICATE GETS ARCADE.

Leases Wing of Structure at Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue.

A syndicate headed by Max Kurzrok, a shirt waist manufacturer, has leased the Forty-second Street wing of the six-story Arcade Building, now under construction at the northeast corner of Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, and will sublet the stores and offices. A nineteen-year lease has been signed. Henry Corn, the owner, will retain control of the rest of the building.

The syndicate's lease covers all six floors in that part of the structure facing Forty-second Street. The syndicate was organized by Louis J. Selezniok, President of the Knickerbocker Jewelry Company of 278 Sixth Avenue.

"Yankees" Shut Out Washington and Win Third Game of Series.

The "Yankees" shut out Washington yesterday at the American League Park and won the third game of the present series. Brockett made a good impression. He pitched a masterful game and kept the five hits made off him well scattered. Rain fell heavily in the eighth inning, but the game was resumed after a brief wait, when Keefe finished the game for New York. Washington also tried a new pitcher, Graham, who enjoyed an excellent reputation in the West, but the New York batters experienced little difficulty in solving his delivery. Keeler returned to his position in the right field, but he is somewhat under the weather. Williams is still on the sick list, and was replaced by Moriarity.

New York secured the lead in the first inning, and maintained it to the end. Hoffman singled, reached second on Schafly's wild throw, went to third on Keeler's sacrifice, and scored on Elberfeld's fly to Ganly. A double, an infield hit, and a single added a run in the fourth inning, and three innings later Hoffman hit for two bases, with Kleinow on third and Brockett on second, scoring both runners. Score:

Giants Defeat Philadelphia in Final Game of Series, 5 to 4.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—Indifferent pitching and failure to make opportune hits cost the Phillies the final game with New York to-day, the Giants winning 5 to 4. Rain descended heavily while the New Yorks were taking their half of the ninth. When the Philadelphias came to bat, Gleason reached second by his base on balls and Titus's sacrifice, when the rain came down in torrents and Umpire Rigler suspended play. After the usual half hour's wait Rigler declared the game over, play reverting to the eighth inning.

Both teams hit the ball hard. Sparks was in poor form and was hit hard almost from the start. McCloskey, who succeeded him in the seventh inning, did not show any improvement, and to his wildness in the seventh inning New York is indebted for the winning score. Mathewson was hit almost as hard as the Quaker twirlers, but was fortunate in keeping his hits well distributed. In most instances when a hit would have been damaging Mathewson was invincible. In four different innings a single would have changed the result.

Dahlen played a star game for New York, while Doolin and Thomas performed well for the Phillies. Thomas, Shannon, Dahlen, and Strang led in batting, the latter getting five singles out of six trips to bat, while Thomas hit for two doubles and two singles in five times at bat. Score:

Baltimore Beat Newark in Ninth Inning Because of Errors.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., April 26.—Errors on the part of Mahling and Engle proved costly to Newark to-day, and Baltimore won out by a score of 5 to 2. It was a close game up to the ninth, with Baltimore one run ahead, but Mahling's error and a bad throw to the plate tallied three more for the "Orioles." Score:

Providence's Errors Were Costly.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 26.—Costly errors by the Grays in the seventh and eighth innings of to-day's game with Jersey City gave the visitors a 2 to 1 victory. Up to that time the game was faultlessly played by both teams. Score:

FAVOR TOURING CAR RACE.

Prospective Entries Withdrawn for Vanderbilt Cup Event in Two Cases.

Indications that many American motor car manufacturers will devote their entire racing attention this year to the touring car contest projected by the American Automobile Association over the Long Island Motor Parkway have been clearly exemplified within the last few days. The leading manufacturers all favor this event, the cylinder displacement plan of limitation instead of by weight has met with almost universal satisfaction, and all that is now needed to insure a big entry list is the official announcement of the rules.

So confident, however, is the general opinion that the rules will be wisely framed that some manufacturers have no hesitancy in announcing that they are already making plans to enter cars. Harry A. Lozier, President of the Lozier Motor Company, says that he will enter two of his big touring cars, probably of the 60 horse power type. He stated early in the season that he hoped to enter a car for the Vanderbilt Cup, but he has now decided to confine his efforts to the touring car event. Another withdrawal from the previously announced Vanderbilt Cup ent

THREE CENTURIES.

Fourteen years ago we were celebrating the quatercentenary of the discovery of America by the bold theorist who died without any notion of what he had discovered. Yesterday we began to celebrate the tercentenary of the settlement of America by the men who had as little notion that they were founding a new realm of English speech and English ways, which was to become so much greater than the old. For, although the actual settlement at Jamestown dates from the 13th of May, yet it was precisely on the 26th of April, 1607, that the little squadron of three ships, under the command of CHRISTOPHER NEWPORT, which had left Blackwall, on the Thames, on the previous Dec. 19, completed its long and circuitous voyage by entering the estuary between the capes afterward called Charles and Henry, in honor of the two sons of the King, and taking shelter behind the promontory, which the weary voyagers thereupon named "Point Comfort." In spite of a previous failure on the Kennebec, and of another on the Carolinian coast, that was, in fact, the beginning of the English settlement of America, of the America which now contains twice as many inhabitants speaking English and founding their institutions on those of the mother country as inhabit the parent island of Great Britain.

How this continent came to be English speaking and to derive its institutions from English precedents is a question which the historians have not even yet succeeded in making entirely clear. The doctrine announced at the close of the first quarter of the nineteenth century "that the American continents were not to be considered subjects for colonization by any European power" would have been taken, at any time within the first quarter of the seventeenth, not so much for disputable doctrine as for stark nonsense. In spite of the Pope's bull during the previous century, making over to Spain the New World which COLUMBUS had added to Castile and Leon, "the American continents" were considered in Europe as nothing else but subjects for such colonization. The question was only which power should fare best in the competition of colonization. To the Protestant nations the Papal assignment, of course, meant nothing and offered no obstacle to their expansion. And even to Catholic France it meant little. Witness the attempt at acttlement and colonization just north of the Spanish settlements in Florida, an attempt which survives only in the names of the Carolinas, which are commonly taken to have been named after CHARLES of England, but which are in fact named after CHARLES of France. Witness the settlement of Canada, which is still entitled to be called "Nova Gallia," in so far as it is not entitled to be called Nova Scotia. Every expanding and energetic European power in the first half of the seventeenth century had "staked out its claim" for colonization on the North American Continent. A map of that time would bewilderingly show the competition of New Spain, New France, New Holland, New England, and even New Sweden among the pre-emptions of what is now the Atlantic Coast of the United States.

The views of the powers were different. The object of the Spaniard was to realize at the earliest moment on the deposit of the precious metals and to induce a formal adhesion to Catholicism on the part of the natives. The purpose of France in the Canada in which French influence is still so powerful was to Christianize the natives, and no more heroic work was ever done by man than the pioneer work of the French missionaries who penetrated from the seaboard to the Mississippi. The purpose of Holland, or rather of the Dutch West India Company, was merely to strip the country of its peltries, as of the Spaniard to strip it of the precious metals. The purpose of England—what was the purpose of England? In Virginia, and afterward in Maryland, it was the purpose of making money by inducing settlement by the means which BACON declared, while the expansion was proceeding, that "plantations" were "amongst ancient, primitive, and heroic works." Truly, the colony of the "London Company," with its 105 colonists, which found shelter 300 years ago yesterday behind Point Comfort, might fairly be called a real estate speculation, as the Spanish colonies to the southward might be called a speculation in the precious metals, as the Dutch settlement to the northward, which followed a few years afterward in the wake of the discovery of "Hudson's River" by an Englishman in Dutch employ, might be called a speculation in furs.

The only emigration and colonization which had not a "business basis" was the settlement of New England, properly so called, which came thirteen years after, the landing at Plymouth, which came thirteen years after the landing at Jamestown. The basis of the settlement of New England was spiritual and not material. The emigrants to New England were really "come-outers." Neither the colonists of Jamestown nor their backers in England had any notion of disturbing the British Constitution of Church and State as by law established. Both felt themselves quite at home in it, as did the English colonists of Manhattan a generation later, when the Duke of York and Albany gave his name to New York and Albany, in place of New Amsterdam and Fort Orange. In truth, the inalienable loyalty of Virginia outlasted that of England itself, and earned for the first British colony the name of the "Old Dominion." But in New England and in Virginia alike the colonists brought with them English notions of law and English notions of liberty. If the descendants of the pioneers of New England may justly claim that they have had more to do with the subsequent wonderful expansion of America than the pioneers of any other colony, the descendants of the pioneers of Virginia may say that it was a Virginian who led to success the rebellion against the tyranny of the mother country, and another Virginian who laid down in the Declaration of Independence the political principles which prevailed in the Revolution, and which, since the Revolution, have been dominant in the political and social progress of the United States of America.

MR. SHONTS'S OFFER.

The rapid transit situation in this city has been so bedeviled by the Elsberg bill and by the efforts of reckless and impractical agitators that no bids were submitted to the commission on Thursday for the proposed extensions of the Subway, and the prospect is that hoped-for relief will be indefinitely postponed. Mr. SHONTS did submit an offer, however, and we wish the people of the city would examine it for themselves and determine for themselves whether it is fair and advantageous to them. After informing the commission that it was impossible for the Interborough to make a bid for the construction and operation of the new subways under the proposed plans and specifications, Mr. SHONTS said:

> I have, therefore, to advise you that we are prepared to enter into a contract for the construction, at actual cost, of two extensions of the existing municipal Subway, one upon the west side extending south from Forty-second Street to the Battery, the other upon the east side extending north from Forty-second Street into the Bronx, and for the equipment and operation of such extensions, provided the cost of construction can be brought within the city's borrowing capacity, and provided the terms of the contract are such that we may reasonably expect the earnings from these additional subways to be sufficient to cover the interest and sinking fund upon the bonds of the city issued for their cost, a proper annual charge for depreciation in equipment, and other property which the city may take over at an appraised value at the end of the twenty years' lense, and interest upon our additional investment for which city bonds would not be issued. In other words, we are willing to complete the existing rapid transit system so that there shall be, as originally planned by your board, two complete longitudinal lines, one upon the east side and the other upon the west side of the city, without any prospect of profit beyond a fair rate of interest upon the additional investment involved, and obviously without an expectation of such a return no capital could be secured for additional subway construction.

The people of New York City have been told a thousand times that Mr. BELMONT and Mr. RYAN have brought into existence a veritable octopus that holds them helplessly in its grasp. If true, that is a fact of undeniable importance. Mr. BELMONT and Mr. RYAN may be perfectly unscrupulous, and their greed may know no bounds. But now that we have got into such a position that nobody will bid for the privilege of constructing and operating the new subways under the advertised specifications, it is worth while to examine Mr. SHONTS's offer on its merits.

Is there anything furtive, subterranean, and predatory in this offer of the Interborough to build for the city the west side line from Forty-second Street to the Battery, and the east side line from Forty-second Street into the Bronx at actual cost, without any profit whatever to itself upon construction account, and then to equip and operate the road "without any prospect of profit beyond a fair rate of interest upon the additional investment involved"—that is, the additional investment for equipment? If this is a hard bargain, that quality does not show upon the face of the offer. It would seem to be not only a good offer, but a far better offer than the city could expect from any other source. It would seem, too, that if the Rapid Transit Commission has the authority, the offer ought to be accepted, and the Interborough Company held to a strict performance of its terms and conditions.

Anyway, there is no other present promise of new subways. If the people of the city would close their ears to the outcries of the agitators and corporation baiters long enough to consider the matter candidly, they might conclude that it opens a very promising opportunity to secure much-needed additions to present rapid transit facilities.

MR. PARSONS'S STRANGE LETTER.

Mr. HERBERT PARSONS, President of the Republican County Committee, is acting strangely. Through its many organized civic voices this city calls for the reform of the Municipal Court. The Governor has recommended it in his message. The press without an exception has supported it. The Wells bill has been framed to effect the reform. Mr. PARSONS has written Gov. HUGHES a letter opposing it altogether. He stands alone against four millions, rich and poor, high and low, who believe this city would be better off if the "poor man's courts" were reorganized.

We understand Mr. PARSONS's main contention to be that these courts are not really congested; that the fourteen Judges in Manhattan can take care of all the cases that come up, and the addition of eight new Judges would be superfluous.

Let us see. The number of cases annually coming before the Municipal Court has increased from 53,620 in 1903 to 74,268 in 1906. That is an increase of 40 per cent., not counting summary proceedings, and in the three years but one Judge has been added. For Manhattan Borough the number of cases in which the defendants defaulted in 1906 was 22,140; the total number of trials was 13,265, and there were 63,936 summary proceedings, bringing the volume of business close to 100,000 cases in one year. The average for fourteen Judges was 7,140 cases disposed of by each, including 1,000 trials, 4,500 dispossess proceedings, and 1,600 inquests.

Compare these 100,000 cases handled in a year by the fourteen Judges of the Municipal Court with the work done by the Supreme Court in the seven-year period from 1896 to 1902, amounting to 10,283 trials by a bench of twenty-six Judges, and the vast disproportion in the business of the two courts is evident.

Mr. PARSONS, who pledged his support to Gov. HUGHES, has written him a letter opposing, on deplorably insufficient grounds, one of the Governor's wisest recommendations. The Rules Committee, to which the Wells bill is committed, is two-thirds Republican, and Mr. PRENTICE is its most influential member. Will Mr. PRENTICE allow himself to be influenced by the petty political considerations which weigh so heavily with Mr. PARSONS?

HARD TIMES FOR EVILDOERS.

No considerations of appropriateness or public exigency demanded of the President at Jamestown a discourse upon the spoiler, but it is his obsession that the spoiler must be put down. So he berated him in the customary good set terms in the speech he delivered yesterday. His words indicate that he not only hears and heeds a call to great duty, but that he is unfalteringly confident of his capacity to perform it. Men have often pledged themselves to accomplish specific reforms, but we do not recall any previous occasion upon which a man in a place of responsibility has promised to uproot evil altogether. Christianity has been recognized as a very great and effective regenerating force, but the Saviour exhibited a spirit of meekness, and was not quite confident of human perfectibility. He did not promise that all should enter the Kingdom of Heaven, not even when they besought Him in plausible words.

If we understand Mr. ROOSEVELT aright, he is going to make the way of the transgressor so hard that transgression will presently go out of fashion. We append one passage from his address because it is worthy of diligent study and examination:

> The wrongdoer, the man who swindles and cheats, whether on a big scale or a little one, shall receive at our hands mercy as scant as if he committed crimes of violence or brutality. We are unalterably determined to prevent wrongdoing in the future; we have no intention of trying to wreak such an indiscriminate vengeance for wrongs done in the past as would confound the innocent with the guilty. Our purpose is to build up rather than to tear down. We show ourselves the truest friends of property when we make it evident that we will not tolerate the abuses of property. We are steadily bent on preserving the institution of private property; we combat every tendency toward reducing the people to economic servitude, and we care not whether the tendency is due to a sinister agitation directed against all property or whether it is due to the actions of those members of the predatory classes whose anti-social power is immeasurably increased because of the very fact that they possess wealth.

We think anybody will be moved with curiosity to know what is the thought behind these remarkable words. There are no limitations, no reservations. The wrongdoer shall receive no mercy. "We are unalterably determined to prevent wrongdoing in future." Does that mean all wrongdoing, or only the wrongdoing of corporations and gentlemen in "high finance"? How is it to be done? Every method righteous men could devise has been tried for thousands of years, but with imperfect success. Princes and potentates, lawmakers, courts, and the constable with his staff have from the dawn of civilization been engaged in a war upon wrongdoers, with the result that at best they have merely held them in check. Short of the millennium prevention has been considered an unattainable ideal.

Either Mr. ROOSEVELT has discovered in himself new powers, or else he has spoken without duly weighing his words. Every tendency toward reducing the people to economic servitude is to be combated, he says, and he cares not "whether the tendency is due to a sinister agitation directed against all property" or whether it is due to the acts of the predatory classes. We should like to know what that means. An agitation directed against all property might conceivably reduce the people to poverty, certainly not to servitude. Indeed, all the assailants of the existing social order, Anarchists, Socialists, Communists, Collectivists, and the rest, profess to be soldiers in a war of liberation, seeking to deliver the people from servitude. But the President is "bent on preserving the institution of private property." We should suppose that the Jamestown audience must have listened in some little bewilderment to this part of the President's address.

THE CAMEL'S NOSE.

Every argument put forth by the power and paper manufacturing companies for flooding some 17,000 acres of the Adirondack Park, in furtherance of private schemes under the guise of a public benefit, has been confuted by the most expert of water storage engineers and authorities on forestry. Every fallacy has been demolished. It remains for the unscrupulous and defiant interests behind it, if they can, to "jam through" the Merritt-O'Neil resolution, which seeks to remove the Constitutional bar to power grabbers, not only from the 17,000 forested acres, but from the whole State Preserve. The fable of the camel's nose never found apter counterpart.

The Forest Preserve "blue line" is the sheik's tent within which the water-power camel would thrust his cold nose. It is the boundary that separates very expensive lands, lands the companies would have to buy and pay for, from territory on which they hope to intrude scot-free with their power reservoirs. So they make the specious plea that their plan would prevent floods and freshets, furnish municipal water supplies, and perfect the State canal system.

ALFRED BROOKS FRY, C. E., Federal Chief Engineer and Superintendent of Public Buildings in New York and member of the State Canal Advisory Board, together with Engineers ROPES and EMIL KRICHLING, has quashed all that nonsense. They have shown that the State Canal system is amply provided for without damming Park waters, and that power reservoirs can never prevent floods, since to run the mills they must always be kept full up to a certain pressure. Manifestly a storage reservoir, unless it is empty, cannot restrain a sudden flood. Besides, within the "blue line" no reservoir could begin to hold back the floods of the upper Hudson, which are caused almost wholly by the drainage areas below the State Park. Such floods as originate in the Adirondacks, says the State Water Supply Commission in its last report, can be controlled without encroaching upon State land.

His hypocrisy exposed, the camel will try what brute force will do. Those who persist in a policy shown clearly to be contrary to public interest need not complain if accused of resorting to money and "influence" to accomplish their ends. Each legislator, moreover, who shall vote for this discredited amendment will fairly incur the suspicion of having acted from sinister motives.

In a spirit of cynical gallantry the Legislature has passed the New York women teachers' "Equal Pay" bill. Its members were perfectly aware that this bill, frowned upon by the Board of Education, would be vetoed by the Mayor, and, if necessary, by the Governor. Sincerity, not gallantry, was what the occasion demanded. The light speeches and foolish compliments bestowed upon their measure must have annoyed its earnest advocates more than any opposition based upon a frank examination of its defects.

The full-page picture of the Russian Duma in session in the Pictorial Section of THE SUNDAY NEW YORK TIMES to-morrow is a study of national psychology. The bearing of the Duma is that of a modern deliberative body, its soul is mediaeval, and upon it a new light is breaking. This Pictorial Section also contains a remarkable double-page reproduction of one of the most notable paintings in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the "Triumph of Germanicus." JAMES BRYCE, his British Majesty's Ambassador to Washington, has given THE NEW YORK TIMES for publication to-morrow his ideas on several subjects of great interest, speaking with particular vigor on the present state of the drama. Mr. BRYCE addresses himself to the mystery of human genius, inquiring (he confesses he has no answer) why conditions do not regularly produce it, and why, when it does appear, it so seldom takes the form that might be expected.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Suggestions from a Cynic.

A reader whom we suspect of having a more cynical humor than, in the estimation of the more old-fashioned admirers of her should-be sweetly amiable sex, is quite becoming to its representatives, suggests that in our remarks of yesterday we did not exhaust the possibilities latent in the new scheme of the Prussian Minister of Education for the training of girls.

Our critic admitted—with some reluctance, apparently—that we showed a fair degree of almost human intelligence in warning the Minister that the German youth, instead of marrying the young women to whom had been given in the lyceums all, and only, the knowledge needed to be "merely housewives," would be irresistibly attracted to the more widely wise graduates of the gymnasia, and, by ancient and assorted manly arts, would lead the wiser and just as fair ones to the career-destroying altar. Where we were wrong, it seems, was in thinking that this would leave the "merely housewives" up in the air, as it were, with no prospects of anything except an unoccupied and vacuous spinsterhood.

On the contrary, we are told, what will happen is this: The German youth will, indeed, marry the girls with well-developed minds and live happily ever afterward in the stimulating companionship of the same, but they will also employ, at the wages which competency always commands, the past mistresses of cooking, domestic hygiene and economics, the care of infants, and the like, to free the wedded Minervas from the household toils for which Minervas have but slight capacity. Then, indeed, declares our critic—whom we still suspect of cynicism, though we can't prove it—then, indeed, will all be well in the homes of those German youth, and then will the Prussian Minister of Education be justified of his ingenuity.

It may be so—thus may his scheme work out. But what a disappointed and confused Prussian Minister of Education he will be if it does! And how he will regret that he ever attempted, under the compelling guidance of a Certain Eminent Personage, to allot one strictly discriminated teaching to little maids who wanted to be merely housewives and another to those who aspired to be something else and more! He will regard his time as having been much worse than wasted. Perhaps it has been, anyhow.

Not Ready, but Hurrying Up.

That the Jamestown Exposition was not ready for opening when the appointed day came is nothing to wonder at, for never yet was a fair of anything approaching international, National, or even State magnitude in a condition of complete preparation for visitors on the inaugural day, and apparently the human mind is so constructed that none ever will be.

It is not that the promoters of expositions do not begin to plan betimes. They always do. At any rate, they always begin to talk with great vivacity years ahead, and they use no end of energy on the desperately needful task of convincing big and little Legislatures of the need of appropriating money for that particular exposition if the Muse of History is not to be forever disgruntled and if the country is to fulfill a glorious destiny instead of hastening toward ruin and oblivion. The Jamestown people did all this and did it in due season, but either the money came with unusual difficulty or else something—perhaps the climate—quelled the activity of those who should have pushed the work of actual construction.

However this may be, it is generally agreed by all those who attended the opening exercises that never was a big fair so far from ready on the date when in theory everything should be ready. It seems to be a fact that for some weeks there will be nothing to see at Jamestown except preparations for holding a really fine exposition. This is a serious business for all concerned, for it will be impossible again to get any such amount of free advertising as the fair has had this week, and a good many people who would now go to Norfolk if reports had been different will drift off in other directions with their spare cash and spare time. A good many others, however, will be patient and will remember that all observers prophesy fine things and many of them to see when the fair, as distinguished from the fair ground, is ready. So success is still to be hoped for.

Incidentally, the waiting period can be utilized by the exposition authorities in perfecting the sanitary arrangements in and around the exposition grounds and in seeing to it that the water supply for the expected thousands is pure and abundant. Not to do so would be the worst of all possible mistakes, for the Virginian sun is fervent and the site, from a sanitarian's point of view, not ideal, though it can be, and we assume will be, made perfectly safe.

A Fault of the Telephone.

We warmly sympathize with the correspondent who appealed yesterday to inventors for relief from a telephone annoyance which all users of that infinitely valuable though often maddening instrument has experienced. His complaint was of the frequency with which persons busily engaged in their own more or less important affairs are interrupted by somebody who certainly would be kept waiting a more convenient season if he were not "on the wire" and enjoying the curious claim to instant attention which that position, for some mysterious reason, gives to anybody who can secure it.

Our correspondent sighed for a device by which the message of the person calling up could be recorded for convenient consideration. With phonographs in their present state of near-perfection, it seems as if something like this might be done if there were really a large demand for it, but our impression is that for a good many years to come the ring of the little bell, or notification that "You're wanted on the 'phone," will retain its imperative quality. Men grumble, but they obey, for, deep down in their hearts, they know that they even things up by causing as much inconvenience as they suffer, and that, as they don't like to be kept waiting when telephoning themselves, so they should not inflict like pain on others.

With all its faults, the telephone is come to be a necessity of modern life, the greatest boon conferred by the Nineteenth Century. Without it we would be back in an age now almost unthinkably remote, though it is only a little more than a single score of years away.

The Poor Man's Court.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in your issue of to-day that our Legislature expects to end its present session on May 16, and regret that no mention is made in regard to passing the Wells bill for the improvement of our Municipal Courts, which is certainly as important as anything before the Legislature.

All parties must agree that the conditions in the so-called "poor man's court," as they exist to-day, are well-nigh intolerable. I know from my own experience of several cases where people gave up their rights rather than become involved in the expensive and prolonged litigation of the lower courts, where more valuable time is lost than anywhere else, and generally by people who can least afford it. Even the lawyers who charge a comparatively decent fee for appearing there in an action are often compelled to sell their time at a much lower rate than ordinary mechanics, on account of the inevitable delays before the case can be marked ready for trial, and because they often have to sit around in court for days before the action is finally disposed of.

The majority of Municipal Court Justices who, while competent for their work under ordinary circumstances, are sometimes forced to dispense with justice instead of dispensing justice between the parties on account of lack of time to take all the circumstances of a case into consideration. And the miscarriage of justice in these courts is generally attended by more heartburning and suffering than in the higher courts, for the litigant often spends time which he can ill afford and his last dollar on his case, and if the overworked Justice commits an error in rendering judgment there is no redress, as the litigant actually has not the money to pay the expense of an appeal.

FRANK M. FRANKLIN.
New York, April 22, 1907.

PEOPLE VS. PARSONS.

Have the Former Outgrown the Need of the Latter?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the excellent article in last Sunday's issue which sets forth the wealth of church corporations and the general contrasting affluence of the minister, the edifice, &c., with the straitened circumstances of the people as a chief factor in the decadence of the churchgoing habit, and would like to add a further explanation, which, to my mind, removes from the souls of the people the implied stigma of envy and puts them in a more praiseworthy position. I believe it is the inability of the pulpit to supply reasonable doctrines, convincing arguments, and rational theories that is at fault. The so-called common people of to-day are not the common people of a decade ago. Then it was the custom to follow a leader. Brains were used by the majority as ballast for the physical equilibrium and not to think with. To-day the commonest of the people are waxing thoughtful, while the average class of erstwhile churchgoers have done more—they have attained seriousness, a conception of facts, and are in great measure enlightened. The classification of ministers has followed naturally, and the child of a humble worshipper of a generation past knows to-day that a sincere minister, one who believes what he says, is still an uneducated man, while the student who chooses preaching as his vocation does so for revenue only, and is of necessity a hypocrite. And the intelligent, self-respecting person wants nothing of either class.

For social enjoyment one has one's club, one's friends, and one's home; for spiritual guidance one has one's conscience, and for the training of the latter there is the library and the daily experience. Who of this age would accept the opinion of the average minister as against the voice which speaks from library shelves in words penned by the greatest students this planet has ever produced—men who wrote the textbooks for the universities of the world; in fact, who made such universities possible? The quality of the knowledge possessed by a possible congregation of non-churchgoers is so far in advance of the actual knowledge utilized by the orthodox Bible expounder that he would be lost in a hopeless muddle if at the conclusion of a sermon one was allowed to "talk back to the minister." Which of us desires to insult our own intelligence by giving seemingly respectful attention to a speaker of scant understanding of the subject in question? And so it is to the library that we repair or to the lessons taught on all sides as the panorama of life moves on, and the empty sound which the costly untaxed brownstone edifices give forth as we pass is not the echoing cry of inequality of worldly goods, but the hollow groan of a condition that has been vanquished, namely, the habit of scurrying to a church to bore one's self merely because the day of the week happens to be Sunday.

SKYROCKETING GAS BILLS.

Householder Gives Figures and Asks for Advice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly give space to the following, which is given to elicit information as to whether possible redress lies with a citizen when confronted with extraordinary bills from the New Amsterdam Gas Company?

We are a family of three living in a small apartment since August last, with two servants who go home at night about 8 o'clock. Three burners are ordinarily lighted during the evening and turned low, for we prefer lamps and candles, even in the kitchen, using for light a lamp because of the close air from the gas range. There are no gas fixtures at all in the dining room. For the month before the range was installed the gas bill rendered was from

Aug. 15 to the 12th of September	$1.40
Sept. 12 to Oct 10	3.40
Oct. 10 to Nov. 10	5.60
Nov. 10 to Dec. 11	9.00
Dec. 11 to Jan 11	8.60
(The above were all promptly paid.)
Jan. 11 to Feb. 10	13.80

A protest being sent to the gas company at the last bill, with proof that no change in family living warranted such amount, no bill at all was rendered by the company for the following month—from Feb. 10 to March 10—although a reading was taken of the meter in March and April. The bill rendered in April was for arrears ostensibly, though no explanation was given for a charge of $29.90—this for two months—to which was added $10.00 as the amount of gas bill from March 12 to April 10, the entire claim of the gas company against us for three months being $40.50.

It can be abundantly proved that the quiet family life is the same now as in early Autumn, save with far more responsible servants who came early in January.

We should most thankfully like to know if any suggestion could be given whereby a lawsuit could be avoided. It is a hard matter for a single individual to attempt to fight a corporation which seems successfully to defy the rulings of the State. M. C.

How Much Coal to the Ton?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent "C. C.," writing in to-day's issue respecting the cubic contents of a ton of coal, says that the ton (of 2,000 pounds) will occupy a space of forty cubic feet. He expresses surprise that many coal dealers do not know this. If he will investigate more thoroughly he will find that no coal dealer knows it.

The cubic contents of a ton of coal will vary according to the character of the coal. Certain kinds of hard Lehigh will fill considerably less space than "light" Schuylkill of similar weight. Coal dealers here, and presumably elsewhere, know that hucksters who retail by the bucket are satisfied only when they get such coal as will yield them the greatest number of buckets to the ton.

I speak from experience. I have weighed thousands of tons. S. J. BURKE.

From Another Mother.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The two letters which have recently appeared in your columns anent men teachers for boys over 7 years are interesting in that they show the tendency of parents to shift responsibility from their own shoulders to those of teachers.

The latter have charge of children five hours out of the twenty-four. Therefore if boys are becoming "little ruffians," evidently the responsibility rests with their parents. Home training determines the conduct of children on the streets and elsewhere.

TO COMMON SENSE.

About Art's forehead twine your laurel wreaths
And lay the ivy on Fame's placid brow;
To Wisdom homage pay, and make your vow
Where Love her ardent longing breathes.
To these full meed of honor bring,
And praise unstinted from thy competence,
While I above all others sing
The greater glories of plain Common Sense!

Give me that attribute, divinely fair,
That saving grace when all else hesitate,
That wit magnificent, alas, and rare,
And, sans the rest, I'll break a lance with Fate.
Thrice gifted he who, from so scant supply,
Receives a share of Common Sense, say I!

BUTLER GUIDES SOUTH FOR THE PRESIDENT

Ex-Populist Senator from North Carolina Commands Roosevelt Campaign.

PATRONAGE CLUB WORKING

In Tennessee, for One State, the Tactics Used in New York and Ohio Are Employed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—It has become clear that the Roosevelt Administration recognizes in the South its weak point, politically speaking, and is addressing itself with its usual energy to the capture of that region. Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock's Southern trip has been followed by new developments.

The first is that ex-Senator Marion Butler of North Carolina has been chosen as the Administration General for the South. The second is that in at least one Southern State, and presumably others, the same tactics have been employed as in Wadsworth's New York district and in Ohio—namely, the employment of Federal patronage to crush the President's enemies. The State where this is known to be the case is Tennessee, where the Evans faction has been recognized as the Administration organization, and the Brownlow men are being put out of office as fast as possible. Brownlow is under the ban for the same reason that Wadsworth is in New York and Foraker and Dick are in Ohio—that is, he is supposed to be in the plan to nominate a "reactionary" candidate for President and thus thwart Mr. Roosevelt's policies.

Marion Butler was elected to the Senate as a Populist. He was elected, however, by a combination between Republicans and Populists, and in his State Populism was on a different footing from what it was in Kansas and the Populistic States of the West. In the Western States Populism was a blow aimed at the Republican Party; in the South it was aimed at the Democratic Party, and Republicans were its natural allies. Since Butler left the Senate he has been practically a Republican and thoroughly a Roosevelt man.

He was the youngest man in the Senate when he served there, and was regarded as a man of brains and political skill. His success in breaking down for a while the strongly intrenched Democratic Party of North Carolina has given to many persons the idea that he is well equipped to advise the Administration on Southern matters. He no longer lives in North Carolina, but practices law in Washington. He has never lost touch with his home State, however.

It will be recalled that in 1902, when the President was planning to be nominated in 1904, James S. Clarkson of New York was made [illegible] manager and delegate-getter in the South. The position which Butler now holds is similar to that then held by Clarkson.

Whenever a Southern Republican comes to town to discuss the political situation with the President, Secretary Cortelyou, or Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock, he is always sent to Butler and instructed to report to him.

In Tennessee there are two Republican factions, one headed by Representative Walter Brownlow and the other by H. Clay Evans and State Chairman Newell Sanders. Brownlow has a good share of the Federal patronage. Lately his loyalty to the Administration programme for 1908 has come under suspicion, and his men are being put out and Evans-Sanders men put in.

For example, J. W. Dillin was Surveyor of the Port of Nashville. He is a Brownlow man. His term expired in January and no successor has been appointed. But the place was offered to John W. Oliver, an Evans-Sanders man, who declined it. Then it was offered to J. J. Gore, another Evans man, and he was about to be appointed when charges were preferred against him and the appointment was held up.

Dillin came on here to see Secretary Cortelyou about it, and the Secretary frankly told him that Gore would surely have been appointed but for the charges. According to Dillin the Secretary advised him to "get in touch with Evans and Sanders."

Dillin offered to have a delegation of importers come on here and tell the Secretary that the business interests of Nashville required his reappointment, but the Secretary did not take any interest in that proposition.

Arch M. Hughes, Postmaster at Columbia, was removed from his office on charges of having been absent from his post. Hughes has a lot of evidence to prove that he never was absent, and has succeeded in presenting such a strong case that the matter has been held up. When he was removed, J. W. Jackson, his assistant, was designated to succeed him. Hughes is a Brownlow man and Jackson was, too, but before Hughes was removed, Sanders, it is alleged, told Jackson that if he would desert Brownlow he would get the place. He did, and got it. Sanders openly boasted in the local papers that he had got Hughes out because he was a Brownlow man.

Brownlow is vastly disturbed at the fight the Administration is making on him and to save himself has declared publicly for Taft. Either the Administration does not believe him or is already committed to Evans, for there has been no change in the situation.

WOOD FAMINE THREATENS.

Several Times More Used in the Year Than Grows.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The United States Forest Service has issued a circular saying that this country consumes every year between three and four times more wood than all of its forests grow in the year, and that if this is continued the result will be a timber famine. A policy of Government control and regulation is recommended as a remedy.

The Pacific States, it says, will soon take the ascendency in timber production.

DOMESTIC WINE SALES GROW.

American Champagne Affects the Imports from France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The falling off in importations of champagne into the United States, recently noted by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, appears to be due, in part at least, to the fact that more than two million bottles of genuine champagne wine are now annually produced in the United States.

The importations of champagne in the calendar year 1906 fell 81,444 quarts below the imports of 1905, while for the nine months ended with March, 1907, the falling off was 165,012 quarts compared with the corresponding months of the preceding year; and the single month of March, 1907, showed a decrease of 31,020 quarts compared with March, 1906.

MISS UNTERMYER TO MARRY TO-DAY

Two Special Trains Will Carry Guests to and from Greystone-on-the-Hudson.

SEDLEY WEDDING PLANS

Miss Sedley to Wed Mr. Greppo on Monday—Fashionable Audience at Miss Baker's Recital.

Greystone-on-the-Hudson, the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Untermyer, and for years the Summer home of the late Samuel J. Tilden, will be the scene this afternoon of the wedding of Miss Irene Untermyer and Louis Putnam Myers.

It will be the first wedding in many years celebrated in this historic house. One of the festures of the ceremony will be a procession of choir boys, twenty-eight in all, who will march down the grand stairway from the top of the house singing as they descend.

The floral decorations will be elaborate, and for three days the florists have been busy bedecking the interior with hundreds of American Beauty roses and thousands of lilies of the valley, grown in the Greystone conservatories.

Two special trains, leaving the Grand Central Station at 1:45 and 2:35 P. M., will take the guests from New York to Greystone for the ceremony and the reception. Carriages and automobiles will convey the guests from the station to the house. Returning the trains will leave to suit the convenience of the guests.

The ceremony, which will take place at 3 o'clock, will be performed by Judge Gildersleeve. Miss Untermyer will have no bridal attendants. Perit C. Myers, Jr., will be his brother's best man, and the ushers will be Kenneth B. Schley, Daniel M. Coffin, James B. A. Fosburgh of Boston, Louis M. Richmond, and Alvin Untermyer and Irwin Untermyer, brothers of the bride.

Following the ceremony a large reception will take place, and if the day is pleasant tea will be served on Greystone terrace, which overlooks the Hudson and commands a fine view of the Palisades.

MISS MORGAN TO WED JUNE 1.

The Ceremony Will Take Place at Plymouth, Mass.

The wedding of Miss Caroline Morgan of Boston and Oscar Egerton Stevens of this city will take place on June 1 at Plymouth, Mass. Miss Morgan, whose engagement was announced last Winter, has recently returned from Europe.

Miss Elizabeth Winthrop Stevens, whose engagement was recently announced to William Emory, Sr., is a cousin of the bridegroom. She will be one of the bridesmaids, and Miss Alexander Stevens, his sister, another. Mr. Stevens is a son of the late Alexander Stevens of this city, and a grandson of the late Dr. Octavius White of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hecksher will spend the Summer with Mr. Hecksher's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Hecksher, at their country place at Huntington, L. I.

Mrs. Benjamin Brewster and Miss Dows will sail for Europe next Tuesday, to be gone for several months. Mr. and Mrs. George Brewster will occupy the Brewster house at Cazenovia, N. Y., in July and August.

Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Eliot, Jr., of 110 East Fortieth Street have taken a cottage at Easthampton for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Justus Ruperti and family have taken a house at Norfolk, Conn., where they will spend the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., are to be at Islip, L. I., for the Summer, where they have taken a cottage on the grounds of Mr. Wagstaff's father.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore V. Trotter of 136 East Thirty-seventh Street and Miss Helen Trotter have taken a cottage at Quogue, L. I., for the Summer.

SEDLEY WEDDING PLANS.

Ceremony to Take Place on Monday in the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The wedding of Miss Eleanor Sedley, eldest daughter of Mrs. Henry Sedley, and Theodore Greppo will take place at 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street. The Rev. Stephen Price Simpson, assisted by the Rev. D. Parker Morgan, will officiate. Miss Sedley's brother, Parke Godwin Sedley, will give her in marriage. She will have no attendants. Mr. Greppo's best man will be Benjamin Atterbury, and the ushers selected are Henry Lowe, Ralph Edmunds, Arthur Ryle, Lawrence Reamer, and Joseph P. Grace.

Many invitations have been sent out for the church ceremony, but the reception at the home of the bride's mother, 50 East Twenty-ninth Street, will be for relatives only.

Miss Good Engaged.

LOCK HAVEN, Penn., April 26.—Mr. and Mrs. George S. Good have announced the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Blanche Beatrice Good, to Charles Tressler Lark, an attorney, of New York.

MISS BAKER'S RECITAL.

Large and Fashionable Audience Attend It in Sherry's Ballroom.

Miss Amy Baker was greeted by a large and fashionable audience yesterday afternoon when she gave her annual recital in the ballroom at Sherry's. She was assisted by Frederick William Gunther, basso, and Bruno Huhn, pianist.

Miss Baker's selections included "Tha Paralysis of Uncle John," from Anne Warner's "Seeing France with Uncle John"; "Anticipation" and "Bereavement," from ths "Irish Coast," by Mary M. Cunningham, presented for the first time; "He Who Died at Azan," from the Arabic; "Marguita," by A. M. Davies Ogden; "An Interlude," by Algernon Charles Swinburne, and "A House of Cards," which concluded the programme.

The songs rendered by Mr. Gunther were Berlioz's Serenade from "La Damnation de Faust"; "The Ould Black Mare," by W. H. Squire; "Go, Lovely Rose," by Niedlinger, and a pirate song by Henry F. Gilbert.

Among those present at the recital were John C. Wilmerding, Mrs. Edwin Parsons, Mrs. Hubert Vos, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Moller, Miss Adelina Moller, George C. Munzig, Mrs. Frederick P. Garrettson of Newport, Miss Frith, Mrs. Hans Winterfeldt, Mrs. William Gilbert Davies, Mrs. Louis Mansfield Ogden, Miss Mary Cunningham, Miss Sarah Brown, Mrs. Edward M. Knox, Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt, Mrs. Hilborne L. Roosevelt, Miss Dorothy Roosevelt, Mrs. E. Ritzema De Grove, Mr. and Mrs. E. eBrry Wall, Mrs. Augustus Field, Mrs. E. Francis Hyde, Miss Callender, Miss De Forest, Mrs. J. D. J. Kelley, Miss Jacquelin Kelley, Mrs. John Drew, and Mrs. James Lewis.

Social Notes.

Mrs. Henry Sedley will sail in June for Europe to join her younger daughter, Miss Barbara Sedley, who has been in Europe for several months. Mrs. Sedley will return in the Autumn to New York.

Mrs. Andrew Porter and her granddaughter, Miss Catherine Rush Porter, sailed yesterday for Europe. Miss Porter will return and join her mother, Mrs. John Biddle Porter, at her cottage, Wyandotte, at Bar Harbor, in August.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Erwin Ogden, George P. Henry, and Miss Louise Henry and Miss Julia Abbott of New York have arrived at Asheville, N. C.

Mrs. Benjamin Horwitz of Baltimore is ill at her home, on Cathedral Street, in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. James Pinchot of New York and Washington are to sail about the 1st of May for Europe, and while there will visit their daughter, Lady Alan Johnston, in Denmark. Lady Johnston is the wife of the British Ambassador to Denmark.

The Friday Evening Roller Skating Class had its last meeting last night in the Lenox Lyceum. Its members are largely the girls and young men who attend the Friday Junior dances.

Mrs. Pemhroke Jones, who came up from Arleigh, N. C., to look over her Newport home, has returned to her Southern plantation, where Mr. Jones and her daughter, Miss Sadie Jones have been staying.

JURYMAN SAW ASSAULT.

Now Policeman Who Struck a Citizen Is in a Cell Under Indictment.

One of the members of the Special Grand Jury empanelled for April was on his way to a meeting of the jury in the Criminal Court Building on April 2, when at Lafayette and Centre Streets he saw a policeman and a citizen having a dispute. As the juryman watched he saw the policeman strike the citizen with his club.

The juryman made an investigation of his own, and yesterday when the Special Grand Jury met for the last time he told of the case to his comrades. Then he asked for the indictment of the policeman on a charge of assault in the second degree. The indictment was quickly found and filed.

Late yesterday afternoon Policeman Henry A. Mehl of the Elizabeth Street Station came off post, and was promptly arrested by the Lieutenant on the desk, and put in a cell. To the surprised policeman's request for an explanation, the Lieutenant could tell him no more than that a bench warrant for his arrest, signed Edward Carroll, Special Deputy Clerk of the County of New York, issued upon a Supreme Court warrant blank, had been received at the station.

The warrant showed that Mehl was charged with assault. To Capt. Dooley, who is in command of the Elizabeth Street Station, Mehl declared that he could not recall having struck anybody, although he remembered having pushed back a crowd of striking tailors, who had congregated at Centre and Canal Streets last Thursday. He was sure, though, that he had assaulted no one.

Mehl will be arraigned to-day or Monday when he will have recalled to him the circumstances of the charge against him.

MRS. VON CLAUSSEN'S LATEST

Writes Swedish Prime Minister Asking for Graves's Scalp.

Mrs. Ida Von Claussen, who has obtained notoriety through her efforts to see President Roosevelt to complain of the refusal of the American Minister to present her to King Oscar of Sweden, has written a letter to Prime Minister Lindman of Sweden.

In her letter Mrs. Von Claussen tells of her unsuccessful attempts to see Mr. Roosevelt and recites the circumstances attending Mr. Graves's refusal to present her at court. She says that she intends to sue every one connected with her humiliation here and in Europe for libel, and asks him to have Mr. Graves pronounced persona non grata to the Swedish Court. This paragraph appears in the letter:

"Now, on the other hand, from our conversation I believe you understand that I am in a position to make myself valuable to Sweden. What we talked about has been started. It has been carried as far as some members of the Senate. I feel confident that the capital is at my suggestion for disposal. I have come in contact with the very men you would like to meet. The public and the press are on my side and I am the most talked of woman in America to-day."

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The season at the Madison Square will close to-night, when "The Three of Us" will be presented for the 227th time. Miss Rachel Crothers, author of the play, will sail for Europe on May 4. She expects to find material there for another play which she will finish before she returns to New York.

The William Morris stock company at the Lincoln Square Theatre will present next week "Christopher, Jr.," which was produced nine years ago at the Empire Theatre.

Wilton Lackaye, by permission of William A. Brady, will take part in some special performances to be given in the Columbia Theatre, Washington, by Hilda Spong, Guy Standing, and others. Lackaye's new play, a dramatization of "Brother Jim's Baby," will be tried out at these performances.

Next Monday and Tuesday afternoon and evening will mark the last performances at the Third Avenue Theatre. Moving pictures and vaudeville will be the programme.

FOOD.

COFFEE DELIRIUM

Child Lies Awake Nights and Talks to Himself.

To be active during the day and keep in good health requires sound sleep at night.

This is especially true of children when mental and physical development is more rapid than later on.

An intelligent mother discovered that coffee was harmful, not only to herself and husband, but that it was doubly so to her boy. She writes:

"For more than twenty-five years I have been a great coffee drinker; have often tried to give it up because it made me nervous, constipated, and I could not go to sleep for several hours after retiring.

"About six months ago I finally quit coffee and began to use Postum. Now we use it three times a day; I am entirely cured of constipation, can sleep all night, and do not get those nervous spells. While under the coffee habit I was pale and sallow; now every one tells me I have such a healthy complexion. Postum has certainly won the victory in our house.

"There are two persons especially who have been greatly benefited by drinking Postum instead of ordinary coffee. One, a gentleman who has been cured of dyspepsia; the other, my own little boy, was cured of a most annoying affliction, without our even consulting a physician.

"Whenever he took tea or coffee he would lie awake at night probably three or four hours, with his eyes wide open, talking to himself and grasping at imaginary objects in the air.

"We commenced giving him Postum in place of tea or coffee. He is now a robust boy and is entirely free from those spells of wakefulness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

SPOONER STOCK CO. FOR KEITH & PROCTOR

Brooklyn Troupe to Supplant Present Company at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

ENGAGEMENT PERMANENT

"Zaza" to be the Opening Production —Keith & Proctor Company to be Disbanded.

Edna May Spooner and the entire Spooner stock company, so long established in Brooklyn, are coming to Broadway. Keith & Proctor announced last night that they had arranged a contract with Mrs. Spooner by which she is to install her own company at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, replacing the present Keith & Proctor stock company, which reopened only a short time ago, when it was decided to abandon the vaudeville policy of the house. The engagement is a permanent one. The Spooner stock company, henceforth to be known simply as the Fifth Avenue stock company, is to open at that playhouse on May 13.

Some months ago it was reported that Mrs. Spooner had concluded not to renew her lease of the Bijou Theatre, in Brooklyn, and was looking for a Manhattan House. She was said to be considering either the West End or the Lincoln Square, and there was a prospect that she would become a serious competitor of the Keith & Proctor companies. Mr. Albee, General Manager for Keith & Proctor, arranged the terms on which Mrs. Spooner has moved to the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Mrs. Spooner has been a favorite on the other side of the bridge for the last ten years and her company has acquired unique reputation for an organization of its class. The opening production of the Spooner Stock Company in New York will be "Zaza."

With the installation of the Brooklyn company at the Fifth Avenue the stock company which has been playing there will be partly disbanded. Henriette Brown, the leading woman, will become leading woman of the Keith & Proctor Stock Company at the Harlem Opera House, succeeding Beatrice Morgan, who has not yet fully recovered from the effects of her recent operation and needs a long rest.

"GREAT DIVIDE," 250 TIMES.

People Standing Three Deep at the Princess Theatre Last Night.

Margaret Anglin and Henry Miller appeared for the 250th time in "The Great Divide" at the Princess Theatre last night. In spite of the rainy weather and the prolonged run of the piece, patrons were standing three deep in the rear of the orchestra. The size and enthusiasm of the audiences seem in no way to have abated.

Miss Anglin gave her customary sympathetic performance of the rôle of Ruth Jordan. Her emotional scenes at other points of the play and her final reaction in the last act were, as always, much applauded.

The Princess Theatre will close for the season to-night, with a run of 252 performances to the credit of "The Great Divide." The attitude of the audience at last night's performance was significant, not only of the long run of the play now on the boards at the Princess, but of the future still in prospect for the players at their new playhouse, Daly's. "The Great Divide" will be the opening attraction at Daly's Theatre in August.

BARNARD STUDENTS ACT.

Present Boucicault's Comedy "Old Heads and Young Hearts" Creditably.

Dion Boucicault's famous old comedy of "Old Heads and Young Hearts" was presented yesterday afternoon and evening by the students of Barnard College as their seventh annual undergraduate play, in the strapped pantaloons and the bell-skirted frock coats of several decades back the "men" of the cast swaggered about the stage with convincingly long strides, and got the spirit of the play.

Miss Agnes Ernst as Littleton Coke, and Miss Dorothy Kirchwey as the tender-hearted old martinet, Colonel Rockett, won the honors. Miss Eva E. von Baur and Miss Ray West as the two "young hearts" mentioned in the title were well received. Miss Harriet Fox made an impression in the part of Lady Pompion.

Much remark was made of the fact that freshmen predominated in the cast, four of the ten important parts six are taken by the first year students. Up to this year it has been considered unusual for a freshman to receive one of the important parts. The play was produced under the direction of Eugene B. Sanger. The cast follows:

Littleton Coke	A. Ernst, 1907
Lady Alice Hawthorn	Eva E. Von Baur, 1909
Lord Charles Roebuck	M. Newland, 1908
Kate Rocket	Ray West, 1910
Tom Coke	G. Hunter, 1910
Jesse Rural	G. Eglesion, 1910
Lord Pompion	M. Pfiliser, 1910
Lady Pompion	Harriet Fox, 1910
Col. Rocket	D. Kirchwey, 1910
Bob	J. Houston, 1908
Servants	K. Smith, 1907 G. Stein, 1908 M. Harrison, 1908 M. McLean, 1909

An attractive musical programme was given between the acts by the Columbia University Philharmonic Society, the student orchestra.

"DR. FAUSTUS" PRODUCED.

Tragedy Staged for First Time Here by Princeton Students.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 26.—Christopher Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" was presented in Alexander Hall to-night by the English Department of Princeton University. All the parts were taken by undergraduates. This is the first time that "Dr. Faustus" has ever been put on the stage in America, although it was presented several times with great success in England about ten years ago. The play is generally regarded as the greatest tragedy in English literature, apart from those of Shakespeare.

A crowded house greeted the amateur actors with much applause. A number of prominent English professors from nearby universities were present to witness the production. Mr. Herbert Carter, who played the title rôle when "Faustus" was produced in England in 1904, coached the actors and assisted in the staging of the play.

COLLEGIANS GIVE "ORACLE."

Senior Class of New York University Pleases Audience with Annual Show.

The senior class of New York University offered its annual show last night at the Carnegie Lyceum before an audience disposed to be appreciative. The piece given, "The Oracle," is a typical college boy piece, with an ingenious libretto. The book of the opera is by William Le Baron and the music is the work of J. Deems Taylor, both university graduates.

"The Oracle" in question is the oracle of Apollo, and the play hinges on the working of a fraud. Two college students, Jack and Billy, get mixed up with the ancient Greeks by some strange method and find themselves confronted with the same puzzle which confronted Paris—that of awarding a golden apple to the most beautiful of the goddesses. The feminine deities in the case are evidently of the masculine gender—which makes the quandary just so much the more impossible of solution. Jack and Billy try a scheme of giving each of the three goddesses a fake golden apple, but are caught in the act.

Some of the men sang well, the work of P. C. Wolff, as Peleus, being particularly notable.

CARNEGIE LAUDS CORNELL.

Address Read at Celebration of 100th Anniversary of His Birth.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 26.—Amid scenes of hearty enthusiasm, mingled with cheers and yells of the students and applause of Trustees and Faculty, the Cornell celebration in honor of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ezra Cornell, founder of the university, was begun this morning by a big demonstration in the armory.

The singing of "Alma Mater" and "Cornell" by the undergraduates was one of the most impressive features of the programme. When Andrew Carnegie's name was mentioned a little cheer leader mounted upon a table and called for "Three short ones for Andy, boys, and let him hear them 'way down in New York." They were given with a will. A long yell was given for the founder, and Prexy was greeted with three short, snappy ones. Judge Blood read an extract from Mr. Carnegie's address which said: "Cornell money is clean money won by honest labor," and the crowd went wild with enthusiasm. When the venerable figure of the first President of the university, Andrew D. White, appeared on the platform the audience burst forth in tremendous applause, which lasted for many minutes.

President Schurman sent a telegram to Mr. Carnegie on behalf of the Trustees, Faculty, and students of Cornell University, expressing the hope that he would soon be restored to health.

Andrew Carnegie's address contained the following:

"Cornell was the most prominent man among the originators of consolidation. He had watched over the new invention in its infancy, supervised it during its growing youth, and conducted it to maturity; was the largest stockholder in the Western Union, and one of the few millionaires then known. This was before the new species, the multi-millionaire, had made its appearance. His fortune, immense in those days, exceeded $2,000,000, all made out of nothing but hard work, speculation having no place in it. Cornell money was clean money, the reward of labor."

Summing up what Cornell stands for, he said, among other things:

"Before Cornell obtained its free charter, with the exception of the State universities of the West, in the land were sectarian and denominational. Its charter provided that no professor or officer should be chosen with reference to his religious or political views, and that a majority of the Trustees should never be of any one religious sect. This latter provision may some day create embarrassment, when all Christian sects agree upon just what Christianity is and unite, which seems sure to come sooner or later. This, however, is unlikely to disturb our generation.

"To Mr. Sage, who succeeded Mr. Cornell in the management, great credit is due for the total result. His name can never be spoken here without arousing grateful feelings in all our hearts. Business men and methods are sharply criticised in our day, not without reason, but we do well to remember that the man of affairs is essential, and that business ability ranks high in importance when working for some such purpose as Cornell and Sage were in this instance. Not for self-gain was he inspired, but for a noble public need. His gains are still at work here and this stream of benefaction flows forever."

Andrew D. White in his address pointed out the foresight with which Cornell shook off the old shackles of scholasticism and recognized the value of science, literature, and art, and his precaution to see that the university should not fall under sectarian control.

A letter from President David Starr Jordan of Leland Stanford Junior University also was read.

THEATRICAL LIBRARY, $7,000.

Sale of Historical Playbills Collected by Charles N. Mann.

The sale of the theatrical library of Charles N. Mann of Philadelphia, which was concluded at the Anderson Company's rooms in West Twenty-ninth Street last evening, realized $7,000.

A bound volume of early American playbills, including those of amateur performances by a number of Maryland men in 1781 at Annapolis, Fell's Point, and Baltimore, brought the highest price of the day, $125. It was bought on order for a resident of Baltimore, whose name was withheld. The names of the performers are written opposite to the characters portrayed. On the lower margin of one bill, Annapolis, Sept. 20, 1781, is written "N. B.—The band of music that was provided for this night's performance belonged to the regiment of the Count De Chanoir, who, with the French Army, were on their march to Virginia to attack Lord Cornwallis, posted at Yorktown." There is bound up in the same volume a complete file of playbills covering the entire first season of the Baltimore Theatre from Jan. 15 to July 9, 1782.

THIEF USES FIRE ESCAPE.

Hotel Guest Loses Pin, the Gift, She Says, of Former Viceroy Curzon.

A thief who by means of the fire escape got into the rooms of guests of the Arlington, an apartment hotel at 18 West Twenty-fifth Street, last evening while the guests were at dinner down stairs, carried away several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry.

John Fife, a broker, and his wife, went to their rooms on the fifth floor after dinner, but could not enter. Mr. Fife reported the fact to Manager Tolson, who got into the apartment through a window. The door was bolted on the inside.

The Fifes found everything in disorder, clothing taken from closets, and the contents of dresser drawers thrown on the floor. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Fife found anything missing, but Miss Florence Conron, who also found her rooms in disorder, lost $400 worth of jewelry.

Miss Conron valued an elephant scarfpin, diamond studded, beyond any monetary value, being a gift, she says, of former Viceroy Curzon of India. She said she should like to enter into negotiations with the "fire-escape man" to return the memento.

HELD PRISONER, SHE SAYS.

Girl Tries to Jump from a Window—Accuses "Friend of Stanford White."

After she had tried to jump from the second-story window of a house in East Thirteenth Street last night, Susie Brackin, 25 years old, of 345 West Fifteenth Street, was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where she told a story of having been held a prisoner in a room for three days and assaulted by a man friend.

After the girl had tried to jump from the window the people in the house called Policeman Lawler, who took her in an ambulance to Bellevue. The girl was hysterical, and was put in the psychopathic ward.

Dr. Fleming, who was in charge of the ward, said that in his opinion she was not insane nor was she intoxicated. The woman was then taken to another ward still in a state of hysteria.

There she continued to sob out her story. She said that a man she loved and respected and who was a friend of Stanford White had taken her to a room and held her there a prisoner three days. The girl was well dressed and pretty.

CRIPPLED NEGRO SET FREE.

Sympathizers Pay the Dollar and Costs That Kept Him in Jail.

Special to The New York Times.

MOI'NT HOLLY, N. J., April 26.—Gordon Phillips, the old crippled negro of Burlington who for the last nine months has been a prisoner in the county jail here because he could not pay a dollar poll tax and $2.38 costs, was liberated today after anonymous friends had come to his relief and paid the debt. When he was liberated the old man wept like a child. Inability to render his benefactor some service was the old man's only complaint.

BALTIMORE HOME FROM FAR OFF SEAS

Cruiser Sails Up Harbor Flying a 465-Foot Pennant Made of Chinese Silk.

TO GO OUT OF COMMISSION

Officers Saw All the Sights of the Orient in 4 Years' Cruise—Ship Has Champion Battery.

With her homeward bound pennant and her trophy flag flying, her colors dipping in answer to the harbor crafts' toots of salutation, the United States cruiser Baltimore, a stranger to home waters for nearly four years, sailed up the East River yesterday afternoon and tied up at the navy yard.

Passengers on the ferryboats and along the water front opened their eyes in wonder as the Baltimore steamed by them. The cruiser was flying a record-breaking "homeward bound" pennant. It was 465 feet long and was made of Chinese silk in Hongkong, the officers and crew all chipping in to foot the bill.

In all probability the trip up the harbor was the Baltimore's last public appearance as a cruiser. Within two weeks she will go out of commission, and when she again goes into service it will be in the minor capacity of a mine destroyer.

The Baltimore took leave of New York on May 5, 1903. Her first stopping point was Gibraltar. Then she made a cruise of the Mediterranean, touching at Algiers, Genoa, and Venice. The course then lay through the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, with Cairo, Port Said, and Aden as way stops. Bombay was the next port made. Thence to Ceylon, Singapore, Shanghai, and Manila.

After a stay there of some time the Baltimore sailed for Japan, with Kobe and Yokohama as chief stopping points.

The Baltimore returned to Manila, and after another stay of some months laid her course for the antipodes. The prominent ports of Australia and New Zealand were visited, and then once more she returned to Manila.

Her boilers were now in such bad shape that a board of survey ordered her home. After laying up long enough to put her boilers in safe condition, she shook out her "homeward-bound" pennant and began the journey of 13,000 miles which was completed yesterday afternoon.

The ship's roster is as follows:

Lieut. Commander C. M. Stone, Commander; Lieut. F. R. Nalle, Executive Officer; Lieut. L. B. Hardson, Chief Engineer; Lieut. J. L. Hileman, Navigator; Ensigns T. H. Taylor, A. B Reed, C. E. Wood, E. G. Oberlin, Dr. G. H. Barber, Surgeon; Assistant Paymaster H. B. Worden, and First lieut. J. F. Dyer, U. S. M. C.

When a TIMES reporter boarded the cruiser after she had tied up at the navy yard, Lieut. Commander Stone, the skipper, was up paying his official compliments to Rear Admiral Coghlan. The other officers were all making merry over the home-coming.

Lieut. Richardson was in his tiny (navy size) stateroom with a half dozen others. There was some repetition of the phrase "Here's how!"

"Say, Richardson," said Lieut. Hileman, "tell about that yarn out at Naples."

The "one at Naples" was "on" Lieut. Richardson and he begged to be excused.

"Say, Hileman," said he, "why don't you tell him about that one out at Yokohama?"

Judging from the reminiscent laughter, the Yokohama incident must also have been a merry one.

"How about Dyer giving us a few from his collection?" asked Lieut. Hilemait.

Lieut. Dyer turned the conversation tactfully by pressing the button.

"You can wager," said Lieut. Richardson, "that we have used all our opportunities to see things. Kipling didn't exaggerate when he wrote about Port Said. We have ridden the donkeys of Cairo, the camels of Arabia, the elephants of India, the rickshas of Japan. And we are now versed in many things we did not know before.

"At Manila we engaged in target practice, and made a record.

"The Baltimore is now the champion of her class. And we have accordingly flown the trophy flag all the way home. On this line I wish you would say that the Baltimore has one of the finest batteries in the navy. If they will put water tube boilers, and vertical triple expansion engines in her, she will be one of the finest cruisers of her type in the navy—and, of course, that means the world."

SLUGGED JEROME SLEUTH.

Italian on a Car Assaults Reardon with a Black Jack.

County Detective Edward Reardon had an exciting experience last night on a Third Avenue surface car with an Italian named Tony Long, who hit the detective several times over the head with a blackjack just as the car reached Third Avenue and Twelfth Street.

The Italian appeared to be intoxicated. He had been arguing with the conductor, who had given him a severe dressing down for insulting women passengers. Reardon interfered, showed his shield, and told the disorderly passenger that he was a police officer. At this the Italian pulled out the blackjack and began to use it.

The two men fought all over the car, and the assailant was only subdued when Reardon got him down and sat on him. There were fourteen passengers on the car, including three women, and they were greatly excited. It was not until the car reached Seventh Street that the detective could drag his man to the street. He was taken to the Fifth Street Station on charges of disorderly conduct, assault, and carrying a concealed weapon.

BIG MINERS' DEFENSE FUND.

Conferences Expect to Raise $1,000,000 for Moyer and Haywood.

A report was made yesterday by U. Solomon, campaign manager of the Socialist Party for New York and a member of the Moyer-Haywood Conference of Manhattan, in regard to the efforts of the conferences here and in other cities to collect money for the defense.

"On April 1," he said, "the sum collected was $101,587, and out of this $92,690 had been paid in preliminary expenses. Since then many large contributions have come in, and some individual unions have contributed as much as $5,000 each. There are 3,000,000 organized workers in this country alone, and we expect to eventually raise $1,000,000."

The Moyer-Haywood Conference got a permit from Police Headquarters for an open-air mass meeting to be held last night around the Franklin Statue, in Park Row, opposite the Tribune Building, to denounce President Roosevelt. The meeting was indefinitely postponed on account of the rain.

REMINISCENCES BY CANTOR.

Jacob A. Cantor, once Borough President of Manhattan, speaking before the members of the Municipal Art Society last night at 119 East Nineteenth Street, said that before the days of the society and the Municipal Art Commission city improvements were frequently made when there was a chance to benefit some particular person or to show favoritism.

"It was the case sometimes that a man owned land," he said, "which he could not use to good advantage and profit in a private way, and he or his friends would dump it upon the city at a good price under the guise of city improvements. There was no systematic efforts, either by city officials or the public, in those days for a general scheme of improvements and a city beautiful."

He congratulated the society on the good work it had accomplished.

Now a Rich Man's Daughter.

Over in Jersey City yesterday Mary Classey, 3½ years old, blue-eyed and golden-haired, was formally translated from a waif, picked up in the last snowstorm by a policeman, to a rich man's daughter. As soon as her clothes are made, she will start her new life by making a trip to Paris, with her new mother and father.

In the Orphans' Court, John Classey, iron molder, out of work, renounced all claim to his daughter Mary, and John Singleton, mine owner, of Los Angeles, Cal., and his wife, childless, assumed future care of Mary of the hungry days and cold nights.

ROBERT L. STEVENS DEAD.

Son of Founder of Stevens Institute a Victim of Typhoid Fever.

Robert Livingston Stevens, son of Edwin A. Stevens, the founder of Stevens Institute of Technology and brother of Col. E. A. Stevens and Richard Stevens, died at his residence at Westbury, L. I., of typhoid fever yesterday at the age of 43. He had been ill only about two weeks. At his bedside at the time of his death were his wife and his two brothers, Col. Stevens and Richard Stevens.

Mr. Stevens's business interests were confined mostly to his activities as First Vice President of the Hoboken Land and Improvement Company, the property of which consists of the real estate holdings of the Stevens estate. He was well known in society as a sportsman, and he had a strong predilection for fine horses. He had owned horses with good records and was one of the judges at the Horse Show for several seasons.

He was also a good polo player, and was a member of the Meadow Brook team. At Bernardsville, N. J., where his Summer home was located, he entered with zest into the sports of the Summer colony.

Mr. Stevens was a prominent churchman. He was a trustee of St. Bernard's Church, at Bernardsville, was on the Board of Governors of two hospitals in Jersey, and identified with other church work.

Four years ago he ran for Congress at Bernardsville on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated by Ira Wood, a Republican.

Mr. Stevens was born at Castle Point, Hoboken. His early education was obtained at St. Paul's Collegiate School, at Concord, N. H. Later he entered Columbia University and was graduated from there in 1887. In 1895 he married Miss Mary Stewart Whitney. Besides the widow he leaves three children, Mary Stewart, 5 years; Esther, 3 years, and Robert, a three-months-old infant. Besides the two brothers, Col. Stevens and Richard Stevens, he also leaves a sister, Mrs. C. D. Alexander, living at Bernardsville, N. J.

Mr. Stevens was a member of the St. Anthony, the Union, Knickerbocker, Jockey, Mendow Brook Hunt, and Racquet and Tennis Clubs and Columbia Alumni Association.

The funeral will take place at Bernardsville, N. J., on Monday afternoon in St. Bernard's Church.

NOTED SURGEON DROWNED.

Prof. Mosetig-Moorhof Falls Into Danube—Introduced Iodoform.

VIENNA, April 26.—Prof. Albert Ritter von Mosetig-Moorhof, the well-known surgeon and introducer of iodoform, while walking on the bank of the Danube today, fell into the water and was drowned.

It was at first thought that he had committed suicide, but inquiries tend to show that his death was accidental. The professor was subject to sudden fainting fits, due to calcification of the arteries, and it is supposed that an attack of this sort caused him to fall into the river. His body has not been recovered.

According to witnesses, Prof. von Mosetig-Moorhof apparently felt faint and leaned over the river bank to bathe his face. In doing this he lost his balance, fell into the water, and was carried away by the swift current. He was 60 years old.

The death of Prof. von Mosetig-Moorhof has aroused great public sympathy.

Besides having introduced the use of iodoform in surgical cases, he had an international reputation as the originator of a method for treating caries—the ulceration and decay of bones—with a filling composed of a preparation of iodoform and petroleum. This proved of the highest value in cases of compound fracture of the bones in the arm or leg, often rendering amputation unnecessary.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

William G. Colesworthy.

William Gibson Colesworthy, one of the most widely known book dealers in this country, died on Thursday at his home in Boston, at the age of 56 years. In his book store and that of his father, Daniel C. Colesworthy, many of the famous poets and writers of the last generation used to gather to chat and sometimes to purchase books.

Longfellow, Holmes, Lowell, Emerson, Wendell Phillips, Garrison, and other famous men of arts and letters were frequent visitors to the old Colesworthy book shop. They all were friends of Colesworthy, the elder.

William Gibson Colesworthy entered Harvard in 1870. Two years later he was obliged, through illness, to discontinue his studies. Afterward he entered Boston University and was graduated with honors from the College of Art, and later the Theological School. From the latter he received the degree of S. T. D., in 1877.

Mr. Colesworthy had many friends in New York, both in and out of the book trade. For many years hundreds of rare and antique literary gems have been in his shop in Boston.

Dr. Nelson C. N. Randolph.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 26.—Dr. Nelson C. N. Randolph, aged 73, a grandson of former Gov. Thomas M. Randolph, and a great grandson of Thomas Jefferson, died here to-day. For seventeen years he was a member of the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia, and for eight years rector of that institution. The burial will take place at Monticello.

CLOSE GOLF GAMES ON LAKEWOOD LINKS

Herreshoff Meets Strong Opponent in Hamilton in Opening Round.

HARD MATCH FOR TAINTOR

Three Cup Contests Furnish Plenty of Sport in Country Club Tournament.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 26.—Fred Herreshoff, the young Garden City golfer, furnished the maximum of interest to-day in the match-play rounds for the Lakewood Cup in the Country Club's open tournament. He won both of his matches, defeating the Lakewood veteran, Jasper Lynch, with unexpected ease in the afternoon by the high score of 8 up and 7 to play. Herreshoff's driving was the feature of his game. He did the first nine holes in forty strokes.

C. W. Taintor of Richmond County and Paul Waterman of Englewood had the closest match of the day, Taintor winning on the twentieth hole. Waterman had the advantage during the greater part of the game, standing dormie two on the sixteenth. Poor driving cost him the next two holes and ultimately the match. In the semi-final round to-morrow for the chief trophy Taintor will play H. M. Forrest of Philadelphia and Herreshoff will play C. L. Tappin of Westbrook. The match-play results are:

Lakewood Cup.—First Round—S. Y. Ramage, Oil City, beat C. A. Spofford, Hanger Hill, England, 2 up and 1 to play; J. West Taintor, Richmond County, beat Paul Waterman, Englewood, 1 up, (20 holes;) H. M. Forrest, Philadelphia, beat Harold Sands, Aiken, 2 up and 1 to play; W. E. Conklyn, Dunwoodie, beat Park E. Wright, Baltusrol, 4 up and 3 to play; Jasper Lynch, Lakewood, beat W. M. Weaver, Camden, 3 up and 2 to play; Fred Herreshoff, Garden City, beat L. A. Hamilton, Wykagyl, 2 up and 1 to play; C. L. Toppin, Westbrook, beat E. L. De Forest, Lakewood, 3 up and 2 to play; R. L. Redfield, Essex County, beat A. J. McClure, Albany, 2 up.

Second Round—Taintor beat Ramage, 5 up and 4 to play; Forrest beat Conklyn, 3 up and 2 to play; Herreshoff beat Lynch, 8 up and 7 to play; Toppin beat Redfield, 1 up.

Metedeconk Cup.—First Round—F. A. Potts, Seabright, beat C. E. Leitsen, New Brunswick, 7 up and 5 to play; W. M. Carpenter, Berkeley, beat H. S. P. Randolph, Philadelphia, by default; P. A. Fogerty, Midland, beat J. R. Larendon, Lakewood, 1 up; H. A. James, Lakewood, beat Theodore Keer, Baltusrol 3 up and 2 to play; A. W. Black, Lakewood, beat Philip Rhinelander, Lakewood, 6 up and 5 to play; H. V. Gaines, Wykagyl, beat G. B. Witter, Tacnuch, 1 up, (20 holes;) C. A. Lee, Tuxedo, beat Frank Presbrey, Dunwoodie, 5 up and 4 to play; H. McSweeney, Oil City, beat A. F. Southerland, Englewood, 1 up, (19 holes.)

Second Round—Carpenter beat Potts, 2 up; Fogerty beat James, 5 up and 4 to play; Black beat Gaines, 3 up and 1 to play; Lee beat McSweeney, 2 up and 1 to play.

Third Cup.—First Round—W. B. Potts, Seabright, beat J. A. Gordon, Lakewood, 6 up and 5 to play; F. W. Cassidy, Arsdale, beat W. J. Busby, Atlantic City, 5 up and 4 to play; A. C. Soper, Lakewood, beat Frederick Pring, Arsdale, 1 up; Hazen Morse, Apawamis, beat Stephen Ayres, Dunwoodie, 3 up and 2 to play; G. H. Potts, Seabright, beat C. W. Harman, Wykagyl, 4 up and 2 to play; W. E. Edge, Atlantic City, beat F. R. May, Brookline, 1 up; D. H. Thomas, Dunwoodie, beat J. N. Teeter, Crescent A. C., 2 up and 1 to play.

Second Round—W. D. Potts beat Cassidy, 8 up and 7 to play; Morse beat Soper, 5 up and 3 to play; S. H. Potts beat Murdoch, 2 up and 1 to play; Thomas beat Edge, 1 up, (19 holes.)

Police Enjoined by Boxing Club.

A temporary injunction prevented Police Capt. Buchanan of the East 129th Street Station from interfering with the boxing bouts of the New Polo Athletic Club last night. William Newman, President, and Thomas Newman, Treasurer of the club, also secured an order from Justice Bischoff directed against Police Commissioner Bingham, Inspector Dillon, and the Captain of the precinct to show cause why the temporary order should not be made permanent as an injunction. The Court fixed Monday as the date for hearing the case. Capt. Buchanan had arranged to send thirty or forty of his policemen in plain clothes into the clubrooms last night and stop the bouts, but the injunction interfered with the plan and the bouts went on as scheduled.

MISS SUTTON'S FINE TENNIS.

By Aggressive Play California Girl Wins Final in Women's Doubles.

Aggressive and agile Miss May Sutton almost single handed carried off her match in the final of the women's lawn tennis doubles yesterday. The girl expert from California surpassed all of her previous efforts on the court of the St. Nicholas Rink, Sixty-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue. Paired with Mr. J. V. L. Pruyn, the California girl defeated Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Nora Iselin in straight sets by the scores of 6—2 and 6—2.

The match was in no sense as one-sided as the score indicates, for by driving from the base line and some snappy smashing and volleying at the net Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Iselin kept the winning pair on the move. But the abounding physical vigor of Miss Sutton never slacked. She practically insisted in trying to cover the entire court on her side of the net. She was constantly on the run, and it was no unusual thing for her to hit the ball with her racquet when she was in the act of leaping toward it and with both feet off the ground.

It was in the prolonged driving rallies with Mrs. Barger-Wallach that the proficiency of the California girl was displayed. She shot the ball true to the mark, whether for deep court or close to the net. She played with the distinctly English method of only clearing the net by fractions of an inch and still being safe. Altogether, she scored fully nine-tenths of the points on her side, and gave a most remarkable exhibition. The summary:

Women's Doubles—Final Round.—Miss May G. Sutton and Mrs. J. V. L. Pruyn defeated Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Nora Iselin, 6—2, 6—2.

MADISON, Wis., April 26.—The State Assembly to-day by unanimous vote adopted a resolution protesting against Memorial Day as the time for holding the Wisconsin-Syracuse regatta here.

Yale Auto Club Race Meet.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 26.—For the fist time the Yale Automobile Club will hold a tournament to-morrow. A list of eight events will be decided at the Branford Driving Park track, including an automobile crew race, obstacle races, and an Australian pursuit race. The car which won the Paris-Madrid race last Fall is an entrant, the Thomas car which made the New Year's trip from New Haven to Buffalo, and the car which won the Stanley races at Ormond are entered.

AMATEUR FENCERS IN CHAMPIONSHIP

Curti Qualifies for Final Bouts in Foils Without a Defeat.

MANY CLUBS REPRESENTED

Chicago, Philadelphia, and Boston Send Best Swordsmen to National Meet.

Amateurs with the foils, dueling swords, and sabres last night began the preliminary bouts in the fourteenth National championship tournament. The men met in the gymnasium of the New York Athletic Club, Sixth Avenue and Central Park South. With all of the three weapons the bouts aroused plenty of enthusiasm among the competitors, who represented Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, and this city.

In order to facilitate matters the aspirants for foil honors were divided in two squads. Federico Lage and C. Waldbote qualified for the finals to-night in Squad 1, the former representing the New York Fencers' Club and formerly the intercollegiate champion of Columbia. Waldbote hails from the Chicago Turn Verein. G. H. Breed and Valentine P. Curti qualified in Squad 2. The latter won the junior championship a year ago, and came through last night with a clean score, being the only foilsman who did not suffer a defeat. The unexpected feature of the contests was the failure of W. L. Bowman, the ex-Harvard champion, to qualify or even make a good score.

The summaries were:

Preliminary Round—Squad No. 1—Lage defeated Bainbridge, Sauer, and Bowman; lost to Waldbote. Waldbote defeated Bainbridge, Sauer, and Lage; lost to Bowman. Bainbridge defeated Sauer and Bowman; lost to Lage and Waldbote. Bowman defeated Sauer and Waldbote; lost to Bainbridge and Lage. Sauer lost to Bainbridge, Bowman, Lage, and Waldbote.

Squad No. 2—Curti defeated Eckard, Breed, Lewis, and Lyon. Breed defeated Eckard, Lewis, and Lyon; lost to Curti. Lyon defeated Eckard and Lewis; lost to Breed and Curti. Eckard defeated Lewis; lost to Breed, Curti, and Lyon. Lewis lost to Eckard, Breed, Curti, and Lyon.

WHY THE "RUN-OFF" FAILED.

Athletes for Military Hurdle Championship Refused to Compete.

The mystery surrounding the failure to hold the run-off of the protested hurdle championship of the Military Athletic League as scheduled at the Thirteenth Regiment Armory on Thursday evening, was explained yesterday by officials of the league, though the explanation is not likely to appease the ill-temper of those who journeyed all the way over to the Brooklyn armory to see the race, only to be disappointed. The explanation was that the runners refused to compete, so the league committee decided to have no race. It announced ostentatiously that after due deliberation it had decided to reverse its decision to have the race rerun, believing "that it was better that injustice should be done to one man—Toole—than that the precedent should be established of overruling the referee's decision." The facts behind the matter, however, were cleared up by the contestants.

There were five men eligible to run in the run-over. These were West and Hillman of the Thirteenth Regiment and Toole of the same regiment, who was left at the post, and Bacon of the Twenty-third and Eller of the Seventy-first. Eller refused to run again, though his regiment was willing he should. Both Bacon and the Twenty-third protested against running again, and Hillman declared that since some might think it was a "frame-up" for him to win, he would not start. This left only the two outsiders and cut out the three men who won places, so that the committee decided that to rerun the race would be a farce. That is really why it was abandoned.

RELAY CHAMPIONSHIP TO-DAY.

All the Leading College Athletes in the Country to Compete.

The big relay carnival which is to be held in Philadelphia to-day, while having a somewhat smaller entry in the number of teams competing than has occasionally been represented, will have the highest class of competitors that has ever been gathered together in a collegiate event in America. There are no less than twenty-two champions, holders of Eastern and Western intercollegiate titles or National championships, who will compete, the special events and the races for the championship being especially notable in their strength.

The three big collegiate events will be the races for the one, the two, and the four mile title. Pennsylvania is entered for all three; Chicago and Cornell will contend against it in the one mile; Yale, Columbia, Dartmouth, and Princeton in the two-mile, and Michigan and Cornell in the four-mile. The personnel of the various teams is such as to lead one to expect that any one of the three records may be broken.

The individual invitation events will all of them be remarkable contests. The entries include:

100-Yard Dash.—Eastern Champion Cartmell and Witham, Pennsylvania; Rulon, Miller, and Gamble, Princeton; Young, Syracuse; Rogers, Cornell, and Torrey, Yale.

120-Yard Hurdle Race.—Western Champion Garrels, Michigan; Eastern Champion Hubbard, Amherst; National Champion McCullouch, Pennsylvania; Shaw, Dartmouth; Armstrong, Princeton.

Pole Vault.—National Champion Allen, Syracuse; Eastern Champion Jackson, Cornell; Western Champion Greer and Norris, Illinois; Hollings, Chicago; Dray, Cornell, and Gelbert, Yale.

High Jump.—National Champion Patterson, Michigan; Eastern Champion Marshall, Yale; Risley, Colgate; Moffett, Pennsylvania, and Schrommer, Chicago.

Broad Jump.—Eastern Champion Knox, Yale; Western Champion Heath, Michigan, and Mount Pleasant, Carlisle.

Weights—Talbott, Michigan; Horr, Syracuse; Williamson and Russell, Chicago; Cook, Cornell, and Burroughs, Illinois.

Torrey Ill, Out of Athletics.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 26.—Yale to-day lost Torrey, her best sprinter, formerly intercollegiate champion. He was obliged to leave college and go home to Scranton because of illness. He hopes to return in time for the inter-collegiate meet, but can hardly be in his best condition again this year.

W. L. DOUGLAS

THE BEST $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

DO YOU WEAR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES? IF NOT,
I BELIEVE I CAN GIVE YOU GOOD AND SUFFICIENT
REASONS WHY IT WILL PAY YOU TO WEAR THEM.

I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles, which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

I give the wearer the benefit of the most complete organization of superintendents, foremen and skilled shoemakers, who receive the highest wages paid in the shoe industry, and whose workmanship cannot be excelled. The selection of the leathers and other materials for each part of the shoe, and every detail of the making is looked after and watched over by these expert men, regardless of time or expense.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.

I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the past ten years, and have found them easy to walk in, stylish and very comfortable. I am constantly on my feet 16 hours daily, and have never known a pain or ache since wearing your shoes.

DR. GARDNER WON $10,000 EXCELSIOR

T. D. Sullivan's Horse, with Top Weight, Took the Track and Galloped In First.

POST CHOICES UNPLACED

Recordbreaking Crowd of 20,000 Visitors Saw Big Race at Jamaica Track's Opening.

Taking the top weight to the front in the first furlong of a mile and a sixteenth race, Dr. Gardner, owned by Timothy D. Sullivan, made his own pace and won the $10,000 Excelsior Handicap at the Jamaica track yesterday, just about as he pleased, after a truly remarkable performance.

The race was the special feature of the opening of the Metropolitan Jockey Club's Spring meeting, and an attendance estimated in excess of 20,000 visitors saw Dr. Gardner win, with Glorifier, the winner of the Carter Handicap, second, and the one-time great horse Cairngorm third.

In his run from the barrier into first place, Dr. Gardner had to go on from the extreme outside position at the start, cross the entire breadth of the track, and outpeed the swiftest horses of the field to the first turn, but all of that the Sullivan horse accomplished from a break back in the centre of the crowd, and from the time that he showed in the lead until he galloped in winner by a length and a half, the result was never seriously in doubt.

The race was the first really important victory that Dr. Gardner has earned for his owner since T. D. Sullivan and Frank Farrell bought the horse from Barney Schreiber for $15,000 at Brighton Beach last Fall, and, stout and fast as Dr. Gardner proved himself to be last season, the result was far removed from the expectations of the general public, and even was something of a surprise to his stable, for, after his defeat at Aqueduct by Athlete, the Sullivan-Farrell-Johnson combination lost faith in the colt to such an extent that the stable backed him only gingerly yesterday, the horse going back in the betting from 3 to 1 at the opening to a post price of 7 to 1.

Aside from the result, however, the race was one which in popularity took rank with the Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps of the past. The crowd that gathered for the occasion was typical of an important race day, and the celebrities of every element of metropolitan life were on hand to make the most of the occasion, fashionable society having an excellent representation in the clubhouse crowd and in the automobile procession to and from the track, while the stage, politics, Wall Street, and Broadway sent out a goodly number of their brightest lights.

The race that drew the huge patronage was one that was fully worthy of the prominence the Excelsior Handicap has had this Spring, for the field of fourteen horses included about all the best that have shown this season, with the addition of several notables of last season. Only two of the sixteen horses named in the overnight announcement of the entries were withdrawn, these being the noted mare Dishabille and the sprinter Pretension, which ran in an earlier race of the day.

The field proved to be a most unruly one, King's Daughter being especially nervous and excitable, and kicking at horses which crowded on her with such good will that when she landed on Oxford the gray horse for a few seconds seemed to be crippled. The line of horses twisted and broke for something like five minutes, and then Starter Cissady caught the horses all headed the same way and sprung the barrier to a good start, the field breaking almost as one horse, but an instant after the break beginning to tangle up in the crush over to the rail as the short run to the first turn was begun.

King's Daughter was the first to suffer, the filly being pinched in between Glorifier and Okenite, with horses jamming them in from either side. Shilling, on King's Daughter, had to pull back to prevent being thrown, and, though he steadied the filly and tried for a leading position by going around on the outside, the lost ground and jostle cost King's Daughter her chance for the race almost at the start. W. H. Carey, a slow beginner at all times, had no more hard luck than could have been anticipated for him in such a field, as he broke next to last and fell in with the trailers in the run around the first turn.

Dr. Gardner, actually sixth at the start to a head off by Good Luck, with Samuel H. Harris second, went on with a splendid rush from his outside position, and, crossing the track in the run to the first turn, took the track in less than a furlong, and once in the lead, settled down to a steady, swift pace there, and never permitted any of his opponents to come to him in the remainder of the race. King's Daughter, after recovering from the early interference, took second place on the turn into the back stretch, and raced there almost to the far turn, where she began to lag and drop back, Cairngorm and Glorifier, the closest challengers to that point, then passing her and going on in a hopeless chase after Dr. Gardner. As his pursuers moved after him, Dr. Gardner slipped just far enough away from them to cause the jockeys on Cairngorm and Glorifier to make the last call on their respective mounts. Even then Dr. Gardner held them safely, and, with victory assured, Martin, on Dr. Gardner, eased the pacemaker a bit, and Dr. Gardner only galloped the last furlong, winning well in hand by a length and a half from Glorifier. Three lengths farther back Cairngorm, whipped and ridden to the last ounce, just managed to last long enough to snatch third place from the three-year-old Philander, which, last away, closed in resolute style, and was barely a head away from Cairngorm. The time of the race, 1:48 1-5, was slow, even considering the high wind, though the fractional time in the early stages of the race, 0:12 1-5 for the first furlong, 0:24 4-5 for the quarter, and 0:36 4-5 for the three furlongs, indicated a good pace to the middle ground of the race.

UPSETS BY TWO-YEAR-OLDS.

Biskra and Tartar Maid, Both Unbacked, Take Jamaica Purses.

The post favorites fared badly through the programme at the Jamaica track yesterday, and especially so in the races for two-year-olds, in both of which the post favorites ran unplaced, while the winners turned up in practically unbacked horses. In the first of the races for two-year-olds J. R. Keene's Citizen was the choice at odds, but was outrun from the first jump, Biskra, which failed for a plunge bet by E. R. Thomas at Aqueduct, and which went out unsupported by her owner yesterday, going to the front early and winning all alone, in easy style.

In the second two-year-old race P. H. McCarren sent out a highly tried colt in Gold Heart, which started an even-money favorite, but Gold Heart never was a factor in the race, Tartar Maid brushing to the front on the last turn and winning cardily, with Transvaal second. Summaries:

$1,000 FOR SCHOOL SPORTS.

Four Championship Meets to be Held This Spring.

The Games Committee of the Public Schools Athletic League held its annual meeting on Thursday and outlined its plans for the Spring season. It is intended to extend the scope of the League and arrange a long list of athletic meets. This is made possible by the new athletic fields, which will shortly be ready for use. Four championship meetings, for elementary and high school boys will be held in addition to the district meets. A special effort will be made this year to encourage the school boys to take up athletics and enter the contests.

S. R. Guggenheim, Treasurer of the league, has contributed $1,000 toward the expenses, all of which are defrayed by voluntary contributions. There is still urgent need of more money to carry on the work of the league, and the committee has sent out an appeal for funds.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

S. & M. SCHULMAN.—Judge Hough has appointed John Grueneberg receiver of the assets of S. & M. Schulman, skirt manufacturers at 48 East Eighth Street.

JACOR VAN.—Jacob Van, dealer in trunks and leather goods at 497 Sixth Avenue, has made an assignment to Marcus Helfand. The liabilities are $1,800 and assets $1,200. He began business on Jen. 2 last.

THE BOIS SHEET STEEL STAIRS COMPANY.—The Bois Sheet Steel Stairs Company, manufacturer of iron and steel stairs at 426 Greenwich Street, made an assignment yesterday to Louis B. Brodsky. The company is a New York corporation, incorporated on Aug. 20, 1905, with a capital stock of $100,000. Daniel Petigor is President.

MELZER & LERNER.—Judge Hough appointed John Gruenberg receiver in bankruptcy for the assets of Melzer & Lerner, furriers of 70 East Houston Street, on application of Berel Barnett, a creditor, who said that all the stock had disappeared, and he had been informed that they had fled to Canada. It was said that $3,000 worth of furs have been secreted in this city, but they have not yet been found.

MORRIS WEISS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris Weiss, cloak manufacturer at 15 West Seventeenth Street, by Harris Hnndman & Brother, creditore for $512. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made an assignment on Saturday, and made preferential payments. Judge Hough appointed Albert Falck receiver. It was stated that assets are $3,000, and Mr. Weiss had abandoned his place of business.

CLARENCE D. WILLIFORD.—Clarence D. Williford, residing at 40 West Eighty-third Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $14,983, all on account of the B. I. Bushy Company of Memphis, Tenn., for which he indorsed accommodation notes, and no assets. There are only three creditors, the Mercantile Bank of Mamphis, $8,000; North Memphis Savings Bank, $4,500, and T. B. Caldwell, as receiver of the F. 1. Busby Company, $2,483.

THE ROBERTS WAGON COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Roberts Wagon Company, manufacturer of wagons at 302 and 304 West Fifty-third Street, by these creditors: J. P. Sjoberg & Co., $409; N. Sangler & Sone, $185, and Donald Mitchell, $188. It was alleged, that the company is insolvent, admitted in writing on April 23 inability to pay debts, and made preferential payments of $1,200 on March 16. The company was incorporated in 1901 with a capital stock of $30,000. John B. Roberts is President.

ROTHENBERG BROTHERS.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Morris and Frank Rothenberg, composing the firm of Rothenberg Brothers, dealers in meats, produce, and eggs at 240 East 102d Street, by E. S. Alpaugh & Co., creditors for $502. It was alleged that they are insolvent, recently obtained $2,000 worth of goods on which they got advances, concealed the money from creditors, and removed part of their property. Judge Hough appointed Lawrence B. Cohen receiver. Creditors refused an offer of 25 cents on the dollar a few days ago. Nominal assets are $5,250, actual assets probably $2,000.

ALBERT BRUCKHEIMER.—Albert Bruckheimer, residing at 2,100 Fifth Avenue, formerly a pawnbroker, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $3,054 and no assets. The petition was filed on account of a judgment rendered against him in the Supreme Court on April 19 for $852 in favor of Tessie Johnston, who was a servant in the family, for damages for false arrest. Diamonds which she was accused of taking were found in the house after she was arrested, but she got no satisfaction for the trouble she had passed through. She also obtained judgment against Mrs. Bruckheimer.

SAMUEL SCHOLL.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel Scholl, manufacturer of clothing at 140 Orchard Street, by these creditors: Given Manufacturing Company, $720; Fred Butterfield & Co., $509, and H. A. Caeenr & Co., $114. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $5,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $5,000. Judge Hough appointed Edward R. Finch receiver. It was stated that he was recently burned out, was insured for $4,500, and that the insurance companies have offered to pay him $1,200, and creditors fear he may collect the money and keep it. Liabilities are $6,000.

WHEAT FLURRY A FACTOR

Preliminary estimates of the week's currency movements foreshadowing substantial loss in cash by the banks, which have also suffered from the shifting to their shoulders of loans abandoned by interior institutions, together with an advance of 2 cents in wheat prices upon further unfavorable reports from the crop territory, unsettled prices in the final hour. Up to that time the trading had been of small volume and dominated almost wholly by professional operations. The continued absence of much-needed moisture over large sections of the Winter wheat area was the influencing factor in the rise of prices upon Produce Exchanges, and this unfavorable condition of affairs has now progressed to a point where conservative trade authorities are expressing serious apprehensions. The interest of the Stock Exchange in this situation, however, arises more from the fact that other easy explanations of price movements are wanting in the universal dullness than from any settled belief that the damage to Winter wheat thus far is irreparable. Hopes had been raised earlier in the week that in the President's address at Jamestown there would be found some explicit word of reassurance to the railroads and corporations generally, but Wall Street failed to find in the speech anything more than a restatement of often-expressed views, and, therefore, dismissed the document with scant attention. The rise in copper metal prices here and in London attracted some comment, as did the earnings statement of the Atchison system for the month of March with its gain of $580,000 in net.

To-day's bank statement will probably prove that interior banks have played a conspicuous part in the week's money movements. These institutions have been again withdrawing their money from loans, thereby placing the burden upon local institutions, and they have also been calling upon New York heavily for cash. Estimates of the movements seemed to show that on balance out-of-town banks have taken some $2,000,000. Through various agencies, such as new gold, this loss appears to have been reduced to slightly more than $1,000,000. If there occurs an increase in loans nt all comparable to that of last week, or its predecessor, the surplus account must be again cut into. Money rates for short and long periods were unchanged, but the banks are showing a disposition to refuse to lend for the long periods, particularly for nine months and a year.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—Philadelphia Rapid Transit, Cambria Steel, and United Gas Improvement were the leaders. Reading was less active, and Lehigh Valley was dull. Denial of the Morse-Mellen contest for control of Lehigh Navigation did not affect the price of the trust certificates, which held strong. A feature was the activity in Lehigh Valley Transit preferred, several thousand shares changing hands. General Asphalt was off 2 points, to 5, but the preferred was unchanged. Union Traction and Philadelphia Electric were in demand. Total sales, 52,548 shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Wire houses had the appearance of activity yesterday, although the stock market was absolutely dull and apathetic. As a rule these houses have among their customers a liberal percentage of men who trade exclusively in grain and disregard the stock board altogether. These regular customers in grain options were increased yesterday by recruits from the stock-trading crowd, and the advance in wheat particularly induced considerable activity in several offices. The trading in grain is in very much heavier volume than one might suppose from the usual careless attitude of the New York offices toward their grain department. Orders in half million bushels and in two or three hundred thousand bushels are given very quietly and executed very promptly. The service between the two cities is usually perfect. Some houses have four or five direct wires to Chicago.

Relative to grain trading it is admitted that the New York branches of these houses would much prefer their customers to trade in stocks. There is not in the first place the same reputation to be gained by having a heavy clientèle in grain as in stocks, and there is the added fact that the profit in stock trading to the broker is decidedly more than in grain. No interest is charged to the customer in grain, and until recently the commission for a round trade—that is, buying and selling—was only ⅛, whereas it is ¼ for each operation in stocks. The adoption of the rule making the commission an eighth for each operation in grain has helped somewhat, but not sufficiently, to inspire a desire to have possible stock customers transefer their dealings to the grain options.

Although the aged maxim that a woman cannot keep a secret has as many believers in the financial district as anywhere else, the fact remains that the details of one of the real curiosities of a late panic have remained hidden. There are many who know that one of the big pools or a comparatively big one that suffered in the violent break in March was composed almost entirely of women, and their play in the market had been on a very heavy scale. Details as to the identity of the participants in the pool or the extent of the loss have not come to light, and it seems as if curiosity would not be gratified on that point. There is at least one man in the financial district who does not look resentfully at the figures of the stock slump on March 14. One of his near and dear relations bad been twitting him on her success and his inability to make any money. Unfortunately this esteemed relative of his was a member of the pool in question. She took her losses without a murmur, but the man's satisfaction is no less acute on that account.

***

"Why it is that I pay so much attention to bear guff I cannot understand," said a trader who was watching Union Pacific yesterday. "I was long of that stock not so many days ago 10 points lower, and one day at luncheon a man who is never known to have a real idea in his head came to me and told me that he had executed big buying orders in the stock without moving it a bit. Then he went on to figure out that it was going to break, and gave me a lot of that stuff about the technical position and the like until I came to the conclusion that I had better get out. I did, and I have been afraid to buy it ever since. I suppose every trader is afflicted with similar pests in the shape of friends. I am trying to keep track of the crowd who have steered me wrong in the past year or so, and I shall 'copper' everything they tell me."

***

Traders in stock brokers' offices paid very little attention to the President's speech. They did not even take the trouble to read it as it came out on the news bulletins. This did not mean disrespect to the President; it simply showed that they knew there was nothing of serious import in it from a stock market point of view. They will reserve their reading of it until the full text can be obtained in the newspapers, but had it been specifically on corporations it would have been read with avidity.

***

Scores of traders who went through the panic with long stocks and were compelled to margin them even from the low figures that were reached are still long of these stocks. They will not sell them on rallies, believing as they do that eventually the prices before the panic will be reached again. Interest charges keep on piling up, but they still hold on. They figure out that they have a big loss, and they take the position that having once gone through the panic they had better take a chance of getting out even than to sacrifice their holdings at present prices.

***

Superstition is as much in evidence in the financial district as in a gambling house. It is well known that several buildings in the financial district in numbering their floors have eliminated the thirteenth. One of the recent new buildings in the district, remarkable for its architectural ugliness and its limited ground area, has a large shop on its street floor. The firm that leased the shop put a large sign in the window and adopted for themselves a special name for the building. It attracted a great deal of attention because, unconsciously, perhaps, they had given it a name yeare ago identified with an uptown resort which received a great deal of attention from the police. When this was called to their attention the fancy name was rubbad out and the plain number of the building substituted.

***

Bankers are interested in the announcement of a new issue of city bonds. The bonde will be 4 per cents, and the usual rule that they muet bring par or better will obtain. It is expected that there will bo a substantial number of bids, but the fact remaine that many houses in the district are carrying city issues, particularly the old 3½ per cent. bonds, at a loee, and with no prospective improvement in the market.

***

One eure eign of the near advent of the 1st of May was the appearance in the financial district yesterday of many moving vans. It induced tho comment that in many instancee moving this May is coupled with the thought of reorganization. Certain important announcements in that raspect are looked for withln a few days, and, despite deniale, the rumors of dissolution of certain firms are accepted as facts.

***

Incidente of a very dull market aside from the President's speech and the rise in wheat were a sharp break in Detroit United Railways, which excited no special interest, and good statements of earnings by the Atchison and the Rock Island. The story of a holding company for all Union Pacific linee was revived again without official sanction. The depression of the close of the market was ascribed to a foreknowledge of to-morrow's bank statement. Tradere on the floor give a more prosaic explanation of professional profit taking.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Apathy on the Stock Exchange Reflected in Sluggish Market on the Curb.

DAVIS-DALY ESTATE UP

Reflecting the apathy of the Stock Exchange, trading on the curb yeaterday was practically at a standstill outside of the issues in which activity is stimulated by interested parties. At the close of the market losses and gains were about evenly divided. One of the issues in the mining list which showed conepicuous etrength was Davis-Daly Estate. This stock gained 1 point on trading of 3,000 shares, closing at 16¾. Butte Coalition also moved upward, rising from 26⅝ to 27¼, after transactions of 850 shares. Nevada-Utah was again active yesterday, selling 7,000 shares with a resultant rise of ⅜ to 4⅜, at the close. Manhattan Transit sold 4,000 shares between 5¼ and 5½, closing at 5⅜. Boston Copper was one of the weak shares in the mining list, trading totaling less than 2,000 shares, resulting in a loss for the day of ½ point. The price fluctuated between 29⅛ and 28½, closing at the latter figure.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Stringency in Pig Iron Reported—Prices Advanced.

Reports of a stringency in the pig iron markets, more especially in the Middle West, have developed within the last few days. Bessemer iron for delivery this year is only obtainable at $22, Valley, which is $1 higher per ton than was paid for 150,000 tons, sold a fortnight ago. The scarcity of steelmaking iron is commented on as follows by ona trade authority:

"The scarcity of steelmaking pig iron is not so much due to large open-markot sales as it is to various consumers taking their maximum tonnages under various arrangements which they have, when ordinarily they take close to the minimum. Thus one transaction recently reported has developed into a tonnage, for second half, more than 40,000 tons in excess of what it was understood to involve at the time. The steel casting concerns are taking maximum tonnages."

The Buffalo furnaces have also advanced the price of malleable iron for delivery in the last quarter to $23 a ton, and have put up foundry iron to $22.50. Consumers are reported as more eager to take material for delivery in the last half of the year than at any time since the books opened.

Bessemer iron for immediate delivery is commanding a premium in the Sharon district, and one firm in Warren, Ohio, is reported as having paid $26 a ton for 500 tons on Thursday for immediate delivery.

Steel railmakers are confident of a large increase this year in export orders. Buenos Ayres is in the market for some 6,000 tons, Cuba for 4,000 tons, and Mexico far 1,800 tons.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Developments of Yesterday in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 26.—Money was in better demand in the market to-day for settlement requirements. Discounts were firmer on the probability that further gold will be taken to Paris.

On the Stock Exchange the settlement was concluded smoothly, but the markets generally were flat, new loans, including the Chinese railway loan of £1,500,000 and also the impending Irish and Indian issues, causing a shrinking of consols and home stocks generally Foreigners were steady, especially Rio Tinto. Japanese Imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 101½. Mexican rails relapsed further on country selling.

Americans, although inactive, improved, under the lead of Union Pacific, from the morning's parity level, but the business transacted was entirely professional. New York sent liberal buying orders in the afternoon for United States Steel, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific, which hardened and closed firm. The other securities on the list were neglected.

Bullion amounting to £21,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today.

The Indian Secretary to-day obtained an option on £75,000 in gold due here shortly.

Bar silver quiet at 30 5-16d per ounce. Money, 1⅝@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3⅛@3¼ per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 10.40; Lisbon, 2.75.

PARIS, April 26.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened firm, but trading became inactive.

Russian imperial 4s were unquoted and Russian bonds of 1904 closed at 498.

Three per cent. rentes, 94f 55c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 16½c for checks.

BERLIN, April 26.—Prices in most departments of the Boerse to-day were firm.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 46¾ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates: Short bills, 3 per cent.; three months' bills, 4 per cent.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Third Day of the Ogden Sale Yields $435,000—Deal for West Thirty-eighth Street Residence—Walker Street Building Sold.

Two hundred and five lots sold for a total of $435,000—that was yesterday's result at the Ogden estate auction sale. The crowd which faced Auctioneer Day was not inferior in size, spirit or buying power to that which had filled the sales-room on Wednesday and Thursday. Three consecutive days of auction-room oratory seem to have been without effect upon the auctioneer himself, and at the close of yesterday's session he announced the sale would be resumed on Monday morning.

Out of the 1,100 parcels in the Ogden offering 644 have now been sold for $1,103,225.

More high prices were scored yesterday when the lots along Boscobel Place, between Aqueduct and Undercliff Avenues, were put up. This block is just alongside the Bronx entrance to Washington Bridge. For the southwest corner of Aqueduct Avenue and Boscobel Place I. A. Mekeel made the highest single bid of the sale so far, $17,800. This plot is a little over a lot in area, so that the price is not relatively as high as the $15,800 paid on Thursday for three-fifths of the lot at the corner of Ogden Avenue and Boscobel Place.

At the southeast corner of Boscobel Place and Undercliff Avenue Charles V. Halley paid $7,900 for a lot, and also took an adjoining parcel on Boscobel Place for $6,100 and one on Undercliff Avenue for $2,600. The other inside lots on Boscobel Place brought $5,250 and $5,500 each. To the south, along the west side of Aqueduct Avenue, the bids ranged from $4,500 to $4,700 a lot, and at the rear, on Undercliff Avenue, they averaged $2,025 a lot.

The first block in which sales were made was that bounded by Undercliff and Sedgwick Avenues and the Washington Bridge Parkway.

On Undercliff Avenue prices for lots ran as high as $2,925, but fell off to $1,600 further north. On Sedgwick Avenue prices ranged from $2,575 to $1,675. For lots running through, where the block is narrow, prices ranged from $2,600 for 25 by 200 down to $1,125 for 25 by 90. The almost triangular plot at the junction of the two avenues, 108 by 50 by 116 by 8, brought $2,300.

When the block to the west was invaded the Whitehall Realty Company bought twenty-six lots on Commerce Avenue at one knockdown for $800 each, including the southeast corner of 171st Street. One other lot on the same street brought $1,025. On the west side of Sedgwick Avenue twenty-six lots went at prices between $1,450 and $1,500, while the corner of 171st Street brought $2,150, and the lot adjoining $1,800.

The southerly corner of 171st Street, on the same avenues, sold for $1,375 and $3,000, and three lots wedged in between the new aqueduct and the bridge brought a total of $5,000.

Prices were much higher on Ogden Avenue, north of 171st Street. On the west side of the avenue lots brought from $2,900 to $3,150, and the corner went up to $3,650. The triangle at the junction of Ogden and Aqueduct Avenues, 75 by 75 by 50, brought $10,650.

Purchase by Arthur Brisbane.

Leopold Weil has sold for Mrs. Moses Bruhl to Arthur Brishane the four-story dwelling, fully furnished, at 21 West Thirty-eighth Street. The price paid was $100,000.

Deal for Seventh Avenue Parcel.

S. B. Goodale & Son have sold for Jennie E. McLellan the four-story dwelling 243 West Thirty-eighth Street, on lot 17.3 by 100.

Charles E. Durose has leased 368 Seventh Avenue to Harry Weiner, who will occupy the premises after making extensive alterations.

Sale of Walker Street Building.

Randolph Guggenheimer has sold to Uhlfelder & Weinberg, through Cohen & Co., 9, 11, and 13 Walker Street, a new seven-story loft building, on plot 60 by 100.

Buyer for Lexington Avenue House.

A. C. & L. A. Marks have sold for a client the four-story dwelling 638 Lexington Avenue, adjoining the northwest corner of Fifty-fourth Street, which is owned by May Irwin.

The Doelger estate has sold 130 East Fifty-fourth Street, a four-story dwelling on lot 20 by 100.5.

Samuel Verplanck has sold 122 and 124 East Twenty-fifth Street, two three-story dwellings on plot 41.8 by 98.9.

West 87th Street Dwelling Sold.

Hugh M. Mooney has sold for Henriette O. Glatz to George F. Parsons, for occupancy, 314 West Eighty-seventh Street, a three-story stone-front dwelling, 20 by 100.8.

Harlem Properties Find Buyers.

G. Frohlich has resold 223 West 115th Street, a five-story single flat on lot 18.9 by 100.11.

Arthur G. Muhlker has sold for a client to Tuckman & Seegal the three-story dwelling 367 West 119th Street, on lot 19 by 100.11.

The Elko Realty Company is the buyer of the new six-story flat, on plot 40 by 60, at the northeast corner of Eighth Avenue and 144th Street, the sale of which by the Northwestern Realty Company was reported yesterday.

West Side Tenement Purchases.

Ask the Farmers and the Market Gardeners of Long Island

Is there any money in buying acres? They are all rich.

We are actually at the dawn of Spring, and from this hour we will find sunshine and the splendor of the green fields, the earth upturned everywhere to receive the seeds which decorate the fertile fields of Long Island.

150,000 people this Spring will enjoy the comforts and pleasures of Suburban Life, suburban to New York, who were occupants of Flats and Apartment Houses a year ago. The great activity in Real Estate during the year 1906 induced them to either buy or rent in the suburbs, and before another year a greater number will emigrate. Electric car lines are building in every direction on Long Island; Rapid Transit Trains are increased, and the great reading, wage-earning public are bound to get out and breathe the air and enjoy the sunlight where life looks sweeter and homes more happy. Every paper published in Greater New York has repeatedly stated in its columns "Long Island is the one and only place to live. The best channel to place your money."

THE INVESTMENT ON LONG ISLAND WAS $600,000,000.

$250,000,000 WAS MADE BY THE MARKET GARDENER ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE REAL ESTATE OPERATOR ON LONG ISLAND
WAS MADE BY THE SMALL INVESTOR ON LONG ISLAND

BELIEVE US, DEAR READERS, TO-DAY WE ARE ACTUALLY AT THE BEGINNING

350,000 people dropped into New York last year. An equal amount will be ushered in this year. Some of them building, buying or renting. It means New York Suburban Real Estate will improve from 20 to 50 per cent. before April 1st, 1908. Have you a desire to make money? Make it quick?

LET US LEAD YOU INTO DAYLIGHT, INTO THE PROMISED LAND OF PROSPERITY

We do not ask you $500 to $1,000 a lot, or $1,000 to $2,500 per acre, but will, during this sale, show you one-half acre plots (10 city lots) at a sum less than you can buy a lot in the suburbs for,

$5 Down Monthly — $250 One-Half Acre (10 Lots) — $5 Down Monthly

enough land to raise your own vegetables, raise your own chickens, keep a cow and a horse, if necessary; a spot large enough to receive all the pleasures Nature can give. Buy the land on your terms and in a few years build to suit yourself.

Any Wage Earner Can Buy—Any Investor Can Purchase

You are not giving up your life's earnings to pay for it. It is within your means and just what you want. Located in the most natural and fertile field of Long Island,

BAYSHORE

About one hour out by express trains now; electricity will make it 40 minutes in the near future; 6,000 people there enjoying the comforts and pleasure on the Great South Bay, where there is Rural Home Life, splendid schools, churches, hotels and over 100 business houses; just far enough away to be strictly suburban to New York, with many trains to and from the city.

We Have 2,000 Acres Subdivided Into 4 Bargains

Bargain No 1. 5 Lots for $125 — $5 Down Monthly

Bargain No. 2. Boulevard Lots, near Depot — $200 — $5 Down Monthly — $180 Cash

LEGAL NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM, PART I., OF THE Supreme Court of the State of New York held at the Court House in the County of New York on the 9th day of April, 1907. Present: Honorable Henry Bischoff, Justice.—In the matter of the petition of the F. W. GESSWEIN COMPANY for leave to assume another corporate name, to wit: WILLIAM DIXON, INCORPORATED.

Upon reading and filing the petition of the F. W. Gesswein Company, a domestic stock corporation, duly verified March 6, 1907, by William Dixon, its President, wherein said petitioner prays for an order authorizing it to assume another corporate name, to wit: William Dixon, Incorporated; and the certificate of the Secretary of State annexed thereto, certifying that the name which said corporation proposes to assume is not the name of any other domestic corporation or a name which he deems so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive; and due proof by affidavits that a notice of the presentation of said petition has been duly published once in each week, for three successive weeks, in two daily newspapers published in the County of New York, in which said corporation has its principal business office, and the Court being satisfied by said petition, affidavits, and certificate that the said petition is true, that there is no reasonable objection to the change of name proposed, that the petition has been duly authorized, and that notice of the presentation of the petition has been given as required by law,

Now, on motion of Scott, Upson & Newcomb, attorneys for the said petitioner, no one opposing, it is Ordered, that said petition be, and the same hereby is, granted, and that the petitioner herein, the F. W. Gesswein Company, be, and it hereby is, authorized to assume another corporate name, to wit: William Dixon, Incorporated, on and after the first day of January, 1908; and it is further Ordered and directed that this order be entered and the papers on which it is granted be filed within ten days from the date hereof in the office of the Clerk of New York County, the county in which the certificate of incorporation of said corporation is filed; that a certified copy of this order be filed within ten days after the entry thereof in the office of the Secretary of State, and that a copy of this order be published once a week, for four successive weeks, in The New York Times, a newspaper in the County of New York, beginning within ten days after the entry thereof.

Enter: H. B., Justice Supreme Court.

BINGHAM ONCE MORE SHAKES UP POLICE

Sends 28 Lieutenants from Detective Bureau and Brings a Few Back.

"SIR JOHNNY" DUNN OUT

Shifted from Wall Street, Where He Has Been a Picturesque Figure for Years—May Resign.

Continuing his avowed policy of remaking the Detective Bureau, Commissioner Bingham yesterday afternoon gave it another jolt, perhaps the hardest it has received in years. He ordered twenty-eight Lieutenants, who were called Detective Sergeants up to last week, to go out and do precinct work. John Dunn, for many years head of the Wall Street Detective Bureau, was sent to Flatbush.

Seven of the Lieutenants who were shipped to outlying territories a week ago yesterday—now called Black Friday by some policemen—were brought back yesterday to their old home at 300 Mulberry Street.

One lonely Sergeant was also shifted to the Detective Bureau, and eight patrolmen were ordered in from various precincts to help do sleuthing work.

Yesterday's shake-up followed a day of so of comparative quiet. On Black Friday over twenty Lieutenants were told to go out and get uniforms and do precinct work. The uniform market began to get hysterical. Transfer orders then slowed down until the red taps that goes with shifting men about in the department could unwind itself a bit.

Perhaps one-third of the Detective Bureau has been shifted since Commissioner Bingham started on his reform work, though a few of the men are finding their way back to the bureau. Some try to find political significance in these returns. But Commissioner Bingham has said all along that he wanted to shake the bureau into sane, honest energy, and that no doubt he would find now and then that a man transferred from the bureau really belonged there. If so, he said, he would put him back as soon as he discovered the mistake.

Lieut. J. J. Cain is brought back from Westchester, for instance, and Michael J. Ready is brought in from Rockaway Beach after a day or two there. Some profess to see behind these changes the influence of Capt. McClusky, reduced Inspector, who is now in the Tenderloin, and for whom the Mayor is supposed to be preparing something better.

"Sir Johnny" Dunn.

The shifting of Lieut. Dunn from Wall Street to Flatbush affects one of the most picturesque figures in the Police Department. Now and then one has seen a little gray-haired man standing at Wall and Broad Streets, scrutinizing the passing crowds. He appeared to be about 60 years old, but he was really 74, according to the records. He was a bit over 5 feet in height. Always he wore a high silk hat, white waistcoat, and a cutaway coat. In his coat was always a flower. That was Dunn. He will probably be there no more.

A trace was found in the Complaint Clerk's office, where Dunn has only two little marks against him in his nearly fifty years of work in the department. The Complaint Clerk wrote him down as 27 years old when he joined the force in 1859. In 1860 he was up on the charge of "unofficial-like conduct." He must have left his white gloves at home. The charge was dismissed. Seven years later he was reprimanded for "neglect of duty." In the early eighties he was made a Detective Sergeant, or whatever then corresponded to that title. He has been at 13 Wall Street a good many of the years since.

POLICE GRAFT CASE DELAY.

Church Street Station Charges Will Go to Grand Jury on Monday.

The alleged case of graft in the Church Street Police Station was not presented to the Grand Jury yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who has charge of the investigation, was busy on other matters and delayed action until Monday.

The case arose out of Lieut. Haerle accepting bail on a minor charge for two men who were accused of swindling two immigrants out of $600. The accused did not appear in court, and this led to an investigation that implicated other policemen. All were at Mr. Jerome's office yesterday, but were excused until Monday.

Commissioner Bingham said yesterday that as yet he had received no official notification of the affair. He said he would take up the matter after the District Attorney had disposed of it.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—An area of high pressure is central to-night over the lake region, and a second high pressure is advancing southeastward along the northeastern Rocky Mountain slope. A depression of considerable size overlies the plateau region, while two smaller depressions are central in the Middle Atlantic States, where they have caused local rains and thunderstorms.

Temperatures have fallen 10 to 20 degrees from Eastern New York southwestward to Arkansas.

It will be warmer in interior valleys Saturday and decidedly colder, with local snows and rains in the Rocky Mountain region and Missouri Valley Sunday.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be fresh north; South Atlantic Coast, fresh south, shifting to northeast.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have fresh northerly winds and cloudy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday; colder in south portion. Sunday, fair and warmer; fresh northwest winds.

New Jersey—Fair Saturday; colder in the interior. Sunday, fair; fresh north winds.

New England—Fair Saturday and Sunday; fresh northwest winds.

Delaware—Fair and colder Saturday. Sunday, fair and warmer; fresh northwest winds.

Western New York and Western Pennsylvania—Fair Saturday and Sunday; light, variable winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1906.	1907.		1906.	1907.

MAY GET A FORTUNE LOST IN THE 80S

Russell Sage's Godson Recovers Judgment on Father's Long-Lost Bonds.

CLAIM REACHES $1,800,000

Two Lives Worn Out in the Fight—Bonds Held Valid Because of Clerk's Error.

Out of the musty records of the Federal courts yesterday there came to light through the filing of an unsatisfied judgment for $1,500,000 a legal romance, disclosing the fact that through the unaccountable error of a lawyer's clerk made many years ago a fortune of half a million and over may be restored to its former owners, with over a million of interest added. The principal claimant is Russell Sage Raphael, a godson of the late financier, and himself a middle-aged man. His mother and sisters are interested with him in the litigation.

United States Marshal Henkel returned yesterday as unsatisfied a judgment for $1,680,768.35 against the Wasatch & Jordan Valley Railroad Company. The latter was a road constructed in Southern Utah in the early eighties, and is now a part of the Rio Grande system, and owned jointly by the latter, the Missouri Pacific, and the Oregon Short Line.

When the road was built it issued $1,000,000 in debentures. Later a second issue of bonds was authorized, and about $800,000 of them were disposed of at par. Among the buyers of the latter was Nathan Raphael, a close friend of Russell Sage, who bought $680,000 of the securities. The interest on the bonds was defaulted, and later Mr. Raphael found that he had been shut out of his rights through the foreclosure of the first mortgage bonds. He then instituted legal proceedings which lasted for years, and which he carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, only to meet with defeat after defeat. Having exhausted his last dollar in the fight, Mr. Raphael's death quickly followed. Worry, his friends declared, was the cause. His attorney, Judge Easton, who had likewise staked almost everything in the ultimate outcome of the litigation, dropped dead suddenly in his office in Broadway a short time later.

Fortune in Old Papers.

For years the matter was forgotten, and then Russell Sage Raphael, a son of the original owner and godson of Russell Sage, came across the old bonds among his father's papers. He finally induced Lawyer Joseph Martin of 226 Broadway to undertake to revive the action. Mr. Martin began many suits, which included even bankruptcy proceedings against the old Wasatch & Jordan Railroad Company. Although bitterly opposed and demurred to, these proceedings are still pending. A suit was also brought in the Federal courts of New York on the bonds, which resulted in a judgment for $1,680,768.35 against the old road, which represented the principal, $680,000, and interest to date. But one officer of the old corporation could be found, the President, now a man over 80, residing in New York, but no longer interested in the corporation.

Lawyer Martin, after clearing away a mass of tangled legal débris, while looking over the old court records in Salt Lake made the discovery that the lawyers representing the owners of the first mortgage bonds, in filing their foreclosure suit neglected to include as a co-defendant, as necessary, the holders of the second mortgage bonds, leaving them out entirely. This, as lawyers say, deprived them of "their day in court" and entitled them, at least so Lawyer Martin asserts, to immediate possession of the property as mortgagees. Should this contention be sustained by the courts—and lawyers generally agree that the error was a fatal one—the present owners of the second mortgage bonds are in a position to sue the present possessors of the property for the profits derived from the operation of the road since the foreclosure. This sum is estimated at close to $30,000,000, although it is more than probable that they would be glad to accept their principal, with the accumulated interest to date, and say nothing about possession.

Files Judgment for $1,808,000.

To further strengthen his position, Lawyer Martin yesterday filed in the Supreme Court a judgment based upon the Federal Court finding, asking for $1,808,272.77, the interest having increased a few hundred thousand since the original judgment was secured.

The present possessors, the Denver, Rio Grande & Western Railway Company, obtained possession of the property through purchase of the road at the foreclosure sale ordered as a result of the suit of the first mortgage bondholders, and which would have been valid beyond question had the second bondholders been included as parties to that action. Had they been, it is probable they would have been then entirely shut out, as the purchase price included only the amount due the original bondholders. It is also said that Raphael is now the owner, in addition, of all the known outstanding stock of the old Jordan Valley Road.

Raphael is a resident of Bayonne, N. J., and, according to well-posted lawyers, the error of the law clerk, or whoever it was that neglected to include the second bondholders in the suit, has left the way open for the heirs to regain what their father spent the latter years of his life and the remainder of his depleted fortune in trying to regain. Raphael owns $680,000 of the issue of $800,000. Where the remaining $120,000 are no one knows.

AHEARN-METZ FUSS OVER NEW SEWERS

MAYOR MAKES COMPROMISE

The Matter Finally Left to a Special Commission, After Board Is Put on Record by Ahearn.

Borough President Ahearn's new sewer system stirred up a lot of animosity at the meeting of the Board of Estimate yesterday, the Mayor, Controller, and President McGowan running counter to Mr. Ahearn, who wants to spend $22,500,000 in rebuilding 300 miles of new sewers. The Controller reported against the plan, but, after the discussion, withdrew his report. Mr. Ahearn succeeded in getting the members of the board on record, however.

The Controller's report was to the effect that the time was not ripe for a general reconstruction of the sewer system. He urged the utmost diligence by city officials in exercising supervision over existing sewer systems. On the other hand, Mr. Ahearn handed in one from his engineer, Horace Loomis, asserting that the public health demanded the reconstruction of the sewer system, and that it was more important even than the extension of the transit system.

Mayor McClellan wanted to know what had become of a commission appointed by Mayor Low to look into the sewer system question, and Mr. Metz said he thought the Borough President had been represented on the commission. Mr. Ahearn replied testily:

"The Borough President has not been represented on any commission—lately."

At a suggestion from the Mayor that the matter be sent to a special committee, Mr. Ahearn replied:

"No! I want a vote on this. Let's vote now. I want to know where we all stand. This is a matter of the public health."

The question was on the adoption of the Controller's report denying the application. The Mayor, Metz, and McGowan voted yea, and Metz began to laugh at Mr. Ahearn, who became very angry.

"This is no laughing matter," he fairly shouted. "Mr. Mayor, I insist that this is no laughing matter. I want proper respect from this board. It is my due and I ask you to interfere."

The Mayor tried hard to frown at Mr. Metz.

"The chair does not wish to name any gentleman, but he must say that the members of the board are entitled to respect."

"I—I—ha, ha—I—excuse me, gentlemen," said the Controller.

"I have this word of warning to give," said Mr. Ahearn:

"The responsibility for failing to make provision for an adequate sewer system is now squarely on your shoulders. I'm not against an extension of transit facilities. I am in favor of protecting and preserving the public health first, however. It is ridiculous to fail to provide, in connection with these elaborate plans for additional subway construction, for the sewer system of Manhattan, which, according to the report of Chief Engineer Loomis, whose experience and ability no one can deny, is seriously endangered. I vote 'No!'"

President Haffen voted with Mr. Ahearn. Finally, after Mr. Ahearn had taken another slap at the Mayor because he had been refused a report by the Chief Engineer, Mr. Haffen suggested that the commission, if there was one, be asked to report, and the Controller withdrew his statement pending an investigation by the commission.

"I'm glad your all on record," said Mr. Ahearn. "I want something done." Then to the Mayor, somewhat sarcastically: "I'm glad you see the necessity of this work."

The board appropriated $25,000 for the continuation of the work of exterminating the festive Staten Island mosquito, and authorized its chief engineer to confer with the Bridge Commissioner and the Interborough engineers regarding the lowering of the elevated tracks on Second Avenue to allow for the Manhattan Bridge aproach.

AHEARN HEARING IN DOUBT.

Supreme Court to Decide on Tuesday Whether Proceedings Are Legal.

Whether the investigation before the Commissioners of Accounts into the affairs of Borough President Ahearn's office is a legally authorized proceeding will be threshed out in the Supreme Court on next Tuesday. This course was decided upon yesterday by the Commissioners and Martin W. Littleton. Should the court hold that the proceedings are legal, Mr. Ahearn will appear and testify.

At the morning session yesterday James E. Keeler, assistant manager of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, declined, on advice of counsel, to produce certain documents. Mr. Keeler appeared at the afternoon session, however, bringing the required papers, which were an assignment of a wood preserving patent. An officer of the company, owning the patent, had telephoned that there was no objection to the paper being made part of the record. This was done.

The chief witness of the day was James H. Howard, once an employé of the department, who thought the whole method of paving in Manhattan was inefficient and unsatisfactory. There should be one person in charge, and no division of responsibility, he contended.

Later in the day Mr. Mitchell signed a number of papers, which he said were applications to the court to adjudge in contempt George V. Scannell, George R. Carney, and William A. Walker, the employés of Mr. Ahearn's department, who had refused to testify some days ago, or else refused to answer subpoenas.

BUCKET SHOP INDICTMENTS.

Richard Preusser, Who Shot Gambler McDonald, Among 8 Men Accused.

The Hudson County (N. J.) Grand Jury handed to Judge Blair yesterday indictments against eight persons said to have operated or been connected with the Manhattan Stock and Grain Dealers, an alleged bucket shop and gambling house raided last January at 77 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, by the police. Those indicted were Richard E. Preusser, Samuel Mayer, J. J. Breen, Leslie Crandall, Robert Maxwell, Daniel Sullivan, Edgar Hewitt, and Nathan Trace.

Preusser was known as the manager of the concern. He is the man who shot and killed Myles McDonald, a gambler, in Albany, several years ago. Mayer is a brother of Leo Mayer, the bookmaker.

Smoked as He Bled to Death.

Frederick Roeder of 455 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, committed suicide on Thursday night by severing an artery in his right arm. He bled to death. A pipe he had been smoking as his life ebbed was found beside him. He was 63 years old and a veteran of the civil war. His only daughter, Mrs. Charles Aumack, died two years ago from taking poison by mistake.
